For the next half hour Teddy hovered round, waiting for the moment when mother would pronounce the pie "done;" and, when it did come out of the oven, with its flaky crust baked to a golden brown, and delightful little crimson trickling of juice escaping from the tiny holes pierced in the top, Teddy thought there had never been another so tempting.

"I hope there will be enough to go round," he said, somewhat anxiously. "It seems as though it isn't as big as when you put it in the oven."

His mother laughed as she placed it on the shelf to cool and told him that she thought his appetite had grown, and that there was no danger of his not getting as much as was good for him.

Teddy walked slowly out on the veranda, and sat down on the top step. Somehow he didn't feel like going very far from that pie. He wondered if his cousin Dorothy, who was coming to dinner with him, was fond of cherry pie. Perhaps as she was just getting over the measles, she ought not have a very big piece. He wondered, too, if it would be polite for him to have two pieces, and he thought that perhaps he would rather have the extra piece and not be quite so polite. Hark! What was that noise? Supposing the cat should get into the larder? He thought he had better go and see.

Now, what do you suppose made him open and shut the door so softly, and tiptoe across the kitchen floor in such a quiet way?

It seemed strange because Teddy was through the house was usually marked rather a noisy little boy, and his way by a series of bangs and thumps. Perhaps because he wanted to surprise pussy. Do you suppose that was the reason? But no pussy was there, and the pie was safe where his mother had left it. It certainly was a delightful pie. How well he had crimped the crust—almost as well as mother. But no, stop! there was a place where the edges were not quite together. Of course, mother would like to have the pie look well, with other people at dinner; so he tried to press them closed. But they would not meet. Perhaps there were too many cherries in it! What should he do?

Ah, Teddy! Didn't something whisper to you that the thing to do was to hurry right out of the larder, quick? But suddenly a chubby hand reached out and a small finger disappeared into the pie, and when it came out two rosy cherries came with it and were popped into a little mouth as rosy as themselves. One, two, three times it went in before Teddy felt that those edges would meet, and then he hastily pinched them together and slipped away, with rather a guilty feeling at his heart.

This was soon forgotten, however, in the excitement of the arrival of his aunt and his cousin, and it was not till dinner was half through that he began to think of what he had done.

When the pie was brought in, he somehow thought it didn't look quite so tempting. There was that guilty feeling at his heart again, and suddenly he jumped. What was that he heard his mother say to Aunt Lizzie? He could hardly believe his ears, and yet he had distinctly heard her say: "Teddy had a finger in this pie," and everyone was looking at him and smiling, and oh, how dreadful it was!

Teddy's face grew scarlet, and sliding down from his chair before anyone could speak, he was out of the room and up the stairs to his bedroom where he hid his hot face in the cool pillow, wishing he might never have to take it out again.

How had she found out? Did mother know everything? And then to tell it right before Aunt Lizzie and Dorothy! He felt that he could never look them in the face again.

GREAT HEART

Where are you going, Great Heart
With your eager face and your fiery grace?
Where are you going, Great Heart?
"To fight a fight with all my might,
For Truth and Justice, God and Right;
To grace all Life with His fair Light."
Then God go with you, Great Heart!

Where are you going, Great Heart?
"To lift Today above the Past;
To make Tomorrow sure and fast;
To nail God's colors to the mast."
Then God go with you, Great Heart!

Where are you going, Great Heart?
"To break down old dividing-lines;
To carry out my Lord's designs;
To build again His broken shrines."
Then God go with you, Great Heart!

—Orenham.

HAS ITS LIMITS

Sympathy has its limitations. We cannot properly sympathize with that which is wrong or untrue. Fe can sympathize with a penitent sinner struggling Godward. But we cannot sympathize with him who is confirmed in sin and is determined to resist all the overtures of mercy and grace. One can sympathize with the reforming drunkard as he battles with his old enemies, for all have had some enemy to fight; but we cannot sympathize with the liquor-seller who makes the drunkard, nor with the drunkard himself, who abuses his wife and starves his children. To those who walk in sin, we can only extend pity for their poor, miserable condition. This pity ought to move us to their rescue, but not to fellowship with them.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By Elizabeth Hanner

President C. E. Society, High Point College

SEPT. 29: "HOW CAN THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S ORGANIZATIONS IN OUR CHURCH WORK TOGETHER?"

I Cor. 3:4-9; Rom. 12:1-12.

Bible Readings

Monday—Co-operation essential. I Cor. 12:12-21.

Tuesday—Dangers of discord. I Cor. 1:11-18.

Wednesday—Organized co-operation. Exod. 18:13-27.

Thursday—Harmony restored. Acts 6:1-4.

Friday—United effort. I Cor. 16:1, 2.

Saturday—Planned work. I Chron. 9:22-30.

To the Leader

If your church has more than one young people's organization have a joint meeting. By doing this you will show that your society has a spirit of co-operation and good will. Have each organization to be directly responsible for some part of the program. It would be well to have the presidents of these various organizations to talk for a few minutes on the aims and principles of their respective organizations.

Possibly your society is the only young people's organization in your church. If this is the case you should stress co-operation and try to show that it is this spirit which pervades in your society.

Use some of these hymns: "Onward, Christian Soldiers," "We've a Story to Tell," "Where He Leads I'll Follow," "Praise Him! Praise Him," "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

The Leader's Talk

Only a short time ago there were no organizations in the church for young people. Young people had no work to do—they were to be seen and not heard. Today the situation is different. We have very few churches in which there is not at least one such organization. The church is waking up to the fact that there is a mission for young people after all. With two or three organizations working in one church there will always arise certain conflicts in regard to various things. We need to be liberal and broad-minded enough to see the aims of these other organizations and to try to work in harmony.

In founding this great Christian Endeavor movement, Dr. Francis E. Clark saw clearly its purpose. He gave the purpose to us in the words of the motto: "For Christ and the Church." Here we have the purpose of every great Christian organization. When any group falls short of this ideal they have made themselves unworthy of the great responsibility.

The program of these groups should be one that will, at all times, hold up the ideals of Christ sufficiently, that the youth of our land will be anxious to know Him.

Topics

Principles in working out the problems of organizations within the church in regard to co-operation:

1. Willingness.
2. Understanding.

3. Demonstration.
4. Progress.
5. Achievement.

To Be Answered

1. Did Jesus believe in organization? Give reasons.
2. Why is planned work easier?
3. Why is it better to have only one program in several organizations?
4. Where does the danger of over-organization lie?
5. To what extent is it advisable for individuals to belong to more than one organization? To hold more than one office?

Poetry to the Point

It ain't the guns nor armament,
Nor funds that they can pay,
But the close co-operation
That makes them win the day.
It ain't the individual
Nor the army as a whole,
But the everlasting teamwork
Of every bloomin' soul.

—Rudyard Kipling.

WE NEED CO-OPERATION

How little trouble there would be
If I knew you and you knew me!
We pass each other on the street
But we seldom ever meet.

Each one intends to do what's fair
And treat his brother on the square,
But he cannot quite understand
Why we don't take him by the hand.

We have a church down in our town;
The dear old place must not go down;
We want to push her work along
With everybody pushing strong.

So let's don't knock and slam and slap
At everybody on the map,
But push and pull and boast and boom
And use up all the standing-room.

Do rainbows ever appear as complete circles?

Aviators frequently see rainbows as complete circles. In order to see this phenomenon the flyer must ascend to a considerable altitude when the sun is not very far from the horizon. Sometimes rainbows as complete circles are seen from mountain tops.

What makes some soap float?—The floating quality is given to soap deliberately by manufacturers. It is done by blowing it full of tiny air bubbles while the product is still hot and before it is cast and pressed. The air is beaten into the soap much as one would beat air into cream to make whipped cream.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

HENDERSON AUXILIARY

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Henderson Methodist Protestant church met this week at the home of Mrs. E. C. Kittrell, with Mrs. I. W. Boyd as associate hostess. The attendance was unusually good. Circle number one, Mrs. John Fox, leader, had the greatest number present.

Mrs. R. A. Hunter conducted the devotional services, reviewing a chapter in "Quiet Talks on Prayer." The program committee appointed for the year was announced as follows: Mrs. S. R. Harris, Mrs. Clyde Finch and Mrs. John Fox. Voluntary subscriptions amounting to $7.50 were taken to be applied in payment for the organ motor. Mrs. F. R. Harris announced that she was taking orders for stationery with names and addresses in order to help Circle No. 3 raise its quota.

After reports from the circle leader Mrs. Henry Powell gave a splendid synopsis of a chapter from the study book, "What Next in Home Missions," discussing the problems of the church in the cities, and telling how some of the churches are solving their problems. Mrs. S. R. Harris gave some interesting facts about missionaries at home and in the field.

At the conclusion of the program the hostesses served a delightful ice course.

EIGHTH DISTRICT MEETS FOR MISSION STUDY

The auxiliaries of the Woman's Missionary work of the Eighth District were invited to Maple Springs, Forsyth Charge on August 29 for a mission study, Mrs. T. L. Speas, district chairman, being responsible for the program, which began at 10 a. m.

Devotionals were conducted by Mrs. Ira Baity. Mrs. W. C. Hammer in her interesting manner presented the home study book, and after a short intermission Rev. R. C. Stubbins very ably explained the foreign book. We are glad to report each auxiliary in the district was represented, and all pastors who have auxiliaries on their work were present.

At the close of the study all were invited to spread their lunch in the basement, and all enjoyed a bountiful feast.

We extend our appreciation to the Maple Spring Auxiliary for their hospitality and feel that a great good is accomplished through these mission studies.

MRS. J. F. HUNTER, Sec'y.

—The Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. now has a total communicant membership of 2,004,467, the first time it has exceeded 2,000,000, the net increase the past year being 41,629, the new members added on confession of faith numbering 113,900.

—The British overnment has decided to begin in September to withdraw its six thousand troops now occupying German territory and to finish the process as soon as practicable, possibly by the end of the year.

CRADLE ROLL HISTORY OF CHARLOTTE METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH

(Read by Mrs. Helen McCall on Cradle Roll Day, September 22).

This is the tenth anniversary of our Cradle Roll department.

Ten years ago, in September, 1919, Mrs. George L. Curry organized our Cradle Roll department with the following charter members: Virginia Curry, Marion Muse, Vera Garmon, Howard Garmon, Helen McCall, Juanita Love, Helen McCommons, Margaret Delinger, Woodrow Beik, Helen Holmes Brewer, Agnes Virginia Bennett, Paul Beach, Philip Beach, Inez Craig, Ruby Stegall, Ethel Mae Yandle, Mary Frances Yandle, Mildred Yandle, Marion Comer, Altha Comer, Evelyn Simpson, Ned Wilbur Simpson, Robert Miller Garner, Guy Reynolds, Jr., Jack Madison Childress, Margaret Helms and Charles Hunter Muse.

Miss Inez Hinshaw was elected superintendent of this newly-organized department of the Sunday school. We had our own little class in the Sunday school and Miss Inez was our teacher. Among my most treasured possessions are my Cradle Roll membership certificate, birthday cards, etc., that my first Sunday school teacher gave me. We all loved Miss Inez and were always delighted when she visited us in our homes. This department grew rapidly in interest and in numbers.

When Miss Inez went away to school, Miss Annie Mae Wooten was elected to succeed her.

In September, 1922, the present Cradle Roll department superintendent, Mrs. A. F. Love, was elected and has had charge of the department ever since. Miss Estelle Hanes is her assistant.

Two hundred and sixty-five babies have been on our cradle roll since it was organized. Many of us are still here in the Sunday school, and 20 of us have joined the church. Some have gone to other churches, several have moved away and five have gone to dwell with Him who said "Of such is the kingdom of heaven."

Little Doris Marie Green holds the honor of being the youngest baby ever enrolled on our Cradle Roll. She was enrolled at 30 minutes old.

Carolyn Ramona Blake was enrolled at one hour of age and Sara Jane Wilburn at eight hours old. We enroll them from one minute to four years of age.

Miss Macie Garmon, who is now in the third year primary class, holds the honor for being the youngest Cradle Roll member to attend Sunday school. Her parents brought her to Sunday school when she was two weeks old and she has made an almost perfect attendance record ever since.

Others who joined the Cradle Roll class in the Sunday school before they were one year old were: Joseph Garmon, Kathryn Garmon, Howard Garmon, D. G. McCall, Elizabeth Scruggs, Gloria Alice Thomas, C. D. Thomas II, Dorothy Frances Simpson, Mary Jane Watts, Alice and Rebecca Thomas and Laura Ann Freeman.

We have a fine Cradle Roll class which meets every Sunday in the Cradle Roll class room. This class room is equipped with a large, low table, a sand-table, small chairs for the children, a little bed, and also large chairs for mothers and visitors. We also have blocks and toys that are interesting to the very small children.

We have an attractive wall roll, a large cradle from which little card cradles are hung on ribbons. On these tiny cradles are written the names of our Cradle Roll babies. On promotion day each graduate is given his small cradle from the roll with his promotion certificate.

Seasonal posters adorn the walls of the Cradle Roll room, with a few permanent pictures, a Madonna, "Christ Blessing the Children," and "The Hope of the World."

As the babies come into the class room their offering is taken in a little church made of cardboard with an opening in the top in which they drop their money.

They are taught to reverently bow their heads during prayer, which begins our worship program. Even a little baby is a part of God's great plan and should be taught to worship and to cultivate the Sunday school habit early.

Very simple songs are used and the larger children enjoy singing.

We use "Cradle Roll Lessons," by Mrs. Louis M. Oglevee, which is a splendid course of Bible stories that even the small children enjoy. We illustrate these stories with sand-table cut-outs, after which each child recites the memory verse, which he or she has been taught at home from the Cradle Roll picture paper given the previous Sunday.

Following the lesson story comes the play period, which they all enjoy. We have blocks, toys, boxes, dolls, etc. Also crayons and paper.

At present there are 77 babies on our Cradle Roll. Ten of these are now four years old and will be promoted to the Beginners' department next Sunday.

Each baby's birthday is remembered with a lovely card, which many of them have framed. A beautiful certificate is given to each child when it is enrolled on the Cradle Roll and it is given a certificate when it is promoted from the Cradle Roll to the Beginners department.

On the last Sunday in each month certificates are given to the babies who have been enrolled during the month. Their names are read before the Sunday school, for each child on our Cradle Roll is a part of the Sunday school.

At the monthly meeting of the Workers' Council a report is given showing what the Cradle Roll Department is doing.

The whole Sunday school takes an active interest in the Cradle Roll and are justly proud of it, for they realize that the hope of the future church is in the babies of today.

The Cradle Roll room is used for a nursery during church services. A bed was given to us by the W. T. McCoy Furniture Company for our nursery. Competent persons are in charge and the babies are well taken care of.

Has a woman's picture ever appeared on our stamps?—Queen Isabella of Spain, Martha Washington and Pocahontas are among the women whose pictures have appeared on American stamps. Queen Isabella's portrait appeared on a $4 stamp issued by the Government for the Columbian exposition at Chicago in 1893. Martha Washington's portrait appeared on the eight-cent stamp issued in 1902, and Pocahontas' portrait was on the Jamestown exposition stamp issued in 1907.

PLANTING THE SEED OF TOLERANCE

A gift of $60,000 by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to finance the administration of the University of Iowa School of Religion for three years is characterized by The American Hebrew (New York) as one that "possesses the seed that may flower beautifully for better understanding between Christians and Jews in America." The gift contains the proviso that the Protestants, Roman Catholics, and Jews provide the salaries of the three professors, each representing one of the faiths, who constitute the faculty. This school of religion, says The American Hebrew, is an experiment which should be followed with interest, and it informs us:

"A Professor of Protestantism, a Professor of Catholicism, and a Professor of Judaism, each selected and approved by his denomination, each paid not out of University or State funds but by the groups directly interested, teach the history and tenets of their faiths to all who may come and learn. Their courses are given academic standing and credit. The arrangement solves many perplexing problems and raises religious instruction in a university out of the realm of controversy and propaganda. Mr. Rockefeller was wise in limiting his support to the administrative expenses. In the Iowa experiment he is backing no particular creed, but is advancing religious instruction, free and untrammelled, for the whole student body. Christians may learn what Judaism is, and Jews may acquaint themselves with Christianity, all from approved experts in their field. The students of Iowa who will take advantage of the opportunity offered will constitute a vanguard of leaders in better understanding between the religious groups in America. We trust that the School of Religion in this State University will prove its worth during the experimental period, and that its plan will be adopted by other State and privately endowed schools of higher education."—Literary Digest.

COVER CROP USED DEPENDS ON NEED

The kind of cover crop to plant this fall depends on the use to be made of the crop, the fertility of soil, and how early the land will be ready for sowing.

"If one needs hay, the best cover crop to plant this fall would be a mixture of small grains with vetch or Austrian Winter peas," says E. C. Blair, extension agronomist at State College. "One may use a mixture composed of two bushels of oats, one bushel of barley, one peck of wheat and 15 pounds of vetch. This has been found very satisfactory by many successful farmers. However, a substitute mixture is one bushel of oats, one bushel of barley and 20 pounds of vetch. A third mixture is one bushel of oats, and one bushel of wheat and 20 pounds of vetch. These amounts are for one acre of land."

In any of the above three mixtures, 30 pounds of Austrian Winter peas may be used instead of 20 pounds of hairy vetch seed. The mixtures should be planted between September 15 and October 15. If the oats should be winter-killed, there will be enough of the other grains to make a full hay crop. Neither rye nor crimson clover is recommended by Mr. Blair for hay.

For grazing, he finds that nothing is better than a mixture of one bushel of rye and barley each, planted on good land about September 15. Early sowing is important, he says.

For soil improvement, winter legumes planted alone are best. Crimson clover planted in late August or early September at the rate of 25 pounds of seed an acre is fine. Vetch should be planted in September and October at the rate of 25 pounds of seed an acre and Austrian Winter peas may be planted at the same period using 30 pounds of seed. On poor land, Abruzzi rye planted at the rate of one and one half bushels per acre makes an excellent soil improving crop, says Mr. Blair.

OUR GREATEST PARK

Yellowstone National Park at present comprises an area of 3,348 square miles, or about the combined size of Delaware and Rhode Island, and contains more spectacular hot-water phenomena, in the form of active geysers and hot springs, than all the rest of the world combined, besides being the world's greatest wild-animal preserve. Its great central plateau has an average elevation of approximately 8,000 feet, surrounded by mountains whose peaks rise to from 10,000 to 11,000 feet, embracing a section of the main ranges of the Rocky Mountains. The whole region is built up of material once ejected from far beneath the surface by volcanic activity.

Within the central valleys are located several lakes, the largest of which is Lake Yellowstone, with an area of 139 square miles, the second largest body of water at its elevation in the world. The Yellowstone River is the outlet of this lake, and its placid waters a few miles north plunge over gigantic waterfalls into a canon of indescribable grandeur and magnitude.—Edgar H. Fletcher in The Scientific Monthly.

CONSIDER FOUR POINTS IN CULLING POULTRY

There is no mystery about culling poultry. It is quite simple when done in the summer, since the changes in the body of the laying hen are more pronounced then than at other times.

"First," says W. F. Armstrong, poultryman at State College, "consider the condition of the feathers. If they are worn, ragged and dirty, it is because the hen is a worker, not a drone, and the working hen is the heavy layer. The feathers of the poor layer will be in good condition in late summer. They will be clean and well-kept because she is a society chicken and spends lots of time on her appearance. The poor layers usually get a new coat early in the summer while the heavy layers may not moult until August, September, October, November or even later."

Next, points out Mr. Armstrong, the heavy layer does not usually get enough yellow corn or green feed to keep the yellow color stored up in her body while laying; so, her skin and shanks bleach out and become white. This yellow pigment is taken from the body and puts into the yolk of the egg to color it. The poor layer does not call so heavily on this reserve supply and therefore maintains her natural yellow skin and shanks.

The poor layer is fat and the good layer is usually rather thin. The latter does not have time to store up a supply of surplus fat.

The fourth point is the body measurements. When laying, the hen's body expands because more room is needed to consume more feed and manufacture eggs. The poor layer will most likely be out of lay in late summer and will have smaller measurements than the one which is producing. Measure by the width of the hand and fingers from the rear end of the breast bone to the public bones and then between the arch of the public bones, says Mr. Armstrong. The best layers have the greater distance between these bones.

EDITOR, SPARE THAT STAMP

(To the Editor of Rejected Mss.)

Editor, spare that stamp,
Harm not a single part;
Since youth I saved it up,
Pray do not rend my heart.
Editor, spare that stamp,
Though you reject my verse;
Your basket may be full,
But empty is my purse.

Editor, spare that stamp,
Don't mail it back to me;
Forbear thy wrath, good sir,
Like "Woodman and the Tree."
Editor, spare that stamp,
Lick not the little thing;
Preserve it tenderly,
It may some good luck bring.

Editor, spare that stamp,
Though old and worn and frayed;
It must be clear to you,
Poets are born, not paid.
Editor, spare that stamp,
Insert these lines instead;
Put it in your cash drawer,
You'll be two cents ahead!

In 1644 when the Tartar or Manchu emperors began to reign in China the people were compelled to shave the fore-skull and adopt the queue as a symbol of subjection and loyalty to their new masters. At first the people resented the imposition but opposition soon died out and the queue became the most characteristic and cherished feature of the national dress.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Friendship, Mount Hermon Charge.—The church and Sunday school workers have been unusually busy during the summer months. We have had splendid attendance at all religious services and every one is to be commended for loyalty to the church during the hot months.

The piano debt has long since been paid and we enjoy the use of it much more.

Several new members have been taken into the church since the beginning of the revival season. Dr. T. M. Johnson assisted our pastor, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, in our special meeting and every one enjoyed his splendid messages. We hope he will come again.

The Missionary Society has been doing good work this summer. The college assessment has been paid in full and we are expecting to go over the top with the apportionment. The next regular meeting will be held with Mrs. Talton Allred.

The Baraca and Philathea classes gave a play at Edlund High School Saturday night, September 21, for the benefit of the church. It will be given at other places within the near future and we would like to invite those who are interested in wholesome entertainment to see this play.

A goodly number of our people attended the district rally at Belmont last Sunday. Both morning and afternoon services were well attended. Rev. J. E. Carroll and Mrs. W. C. Hammer addressed us at the 11 o'clock service, and Rev. J. F. Minnis and Dr. S. W. Taylor spoke at the afternoon session. Each speaker brought a splendid message which will help us to better understand the church, its needs and its program. The district chairman, Rev. L. W. Geringer, of the First Church, Burlington, and Mrs. H. A. Garrett, of our own church, are to be commended for their work in outlining such a very helpful program for the district meeting. At this rally officers for the young people's work were elected as follows: Miss Mae Patterson, of Friendship church, Mount Hermon charge, president; Mr. Monroe Bennett, of Burlington First Church, vice-president; Miss Bessie Holmes, of Bethel church, Alamance charge, secretary, and Mr. Edlund, of Fountain Place, Burlington, as treasurer.

Mr. H. A. Garrett is our delegate to conference this year. We hope that a number of our people can attend the conference, as it is to be held so near us.

REPORTER.

Henderson. Our revival meeting closed on September 8th. It was conducted by Rev. N. G. Betha, and proved of great spiritual benefit to the entire membership and community at large. On Sunday morning, September 15th, at the 11 o'clock services 16 persons were received into the church by baptism and five others received by letter. This was an interesting service and a splendid climax for the close of the meeting. We thank God for this gracious outpouring of His Spirit in the hearts of so many individuals.

Circle No. 4 of the Auxiliary met September 12th with Miss Mattie Hayes. Mrs. R. A.

Hunter was joint hostess. Miss Elizabeth Fox conducted the devotionals. The president of the Circle, Mrs. H. A. Jordan, presided. Reports were given from the standing and special committees. Plans for a barbecue dinner were discussed and voted on. September 24th is the date set for this dinner, in the basement of the church. The Circle also decided to have a Baby Contest during the week of the Fair. Mrs. W. B. Hight was appointed chairman of the contest. The program was omitted for the evening, and during the social hour a delicious salad course was served.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the church met September 16th at the home of Mrs. E. C. Kittrell with Mrs. I. W. Boyd, associate hostess. The attendance was unusually good. Circle No. 1, Mrs. J. B. Powell gave a splendid synopsis of a chapter from the study-book, "What Next in Missions." Mrs. S. R. Harris gave some interesting facts about our missionaries at home and in the field. At the conclusion of the program the hostesses served a delightful ice course.

Sunday, September 22nd, was Rally Day for our Sunday school and a special program was given by the children of the school. The services were in charge of Miss Elizabeth Fox, and all classes from the Intermediate and Junior departments took part. Due to the cold, rainy weather and the celebration at Union Chapel, the attendance was not as good as was hoped for, but all present were much pleased by the program given. During the 11 o'clock service Rev. Lawrence Little spoke in regard to the needs of Christian education for the youth of the day. His talk was most interesting and full of optimism for the awakening of our Christian people to the fulfillment of this great need. A good congregation was present and we were delighted to have Rev. and Mrs. Little with us.

The fifth Sunday Rally will be held at Spring Valley. There will be no church services at 11 o'clock in our church, but the Sunday school will meet at its regular hour, also preaching services will be held that evening by the pastor.

We regret to report that Mrs. S. R. Watson entered the hospital this morning for an operation. We pray for her and hope that all will go well.

REPORTER.

Mount Lebanon, Randleman.—On the third Sunday evening the Missionary Society gave a very interesting program at the church. Professor Hamilton and his Grace Church singers, of Greensboro, were invited down for the occasion. Aside from the singing, our pastor made a talk on Missions. Brother L. R. Hughes also talked. Miss Margaret Hall gave a reading entitled, "The Thank-Offering Box Opened at the Master's Feet." The children marched upon the platform and placed their thank-offering boxes on the table. They deserve much credit for raising ten dollars of the more than twenty received that night.

The Ladies' Aid held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. C. B. Nelson. The annual dahlia show given by the society will be held October 7th.

Owing to the revival which began at Salem church the third Sunday, our morning service was called off. The success of the meeting at Salem was wonderful indeed. Quite a number were converted or reclaimed. The pulpit help was Rev. M. C. Henderson, of Cherryville, N. C. So great was the meeting that our pastor has persuaded Brother Henderson to stay over a while and preach for us at Mount Lebanon. The first sermon of the meeting was heard Monday night. A number of our good people met Sunday afternoon in a special prayer service for the meeting.

Before closing I must write of the marriage of Miss Johnnie Van Werry and Lester E. Rich, which was solemnized Tuesday morning, September 17th, at 8 o'clock in the Mount Lebanon church. They were attended by Miss Inez Van Werry, sister of the bride, and Dr. C. D. Kistler. Miss May Parsons, who presided at the piano, played very softly during the ceremony, "To a Wild Rose," by McDowell. Rev. T. A. Williams spoke the wedding vows, using the impressive ring ceremony. The bride was very beautiful in her bridal attire. After the ceremony they left for Selma, Okla., Wichita, Kans., Dallas and Miami. Johnnie is a very attractive girl and will be greatly missed in Sunday school where she has been the efficient secretary for a number of years. We wish for them much happiness.

REPORTER.

High Point.—A very enjoyable reception was given by the Woman's Auxiliary in honor of the faculty and students of the college on Friday evening, September 20, in the First Church. It was not a formal affair, but was in the nature of a get-together and become acquainted evening. The girls and young ladies of the church were hostesses in the different class rooms, where games and contests, such as table ten-pins, "ringing the peg," "whale," or old-fashioned "fruit-basket," how many things you can see on a watch, etc., were enjoyed by the guests, who progressed from one room to another. After this pilgrimage through the Sunday school rooms, everybody was invited to the assembly room, where Miss Mary Young in a quaint old-fashioned dress, small cape, and powdered hair, exhibited her family album to the audience. This album was composed of living photographs of her relatives and friends, among the group being President Andrews, Mrs. L. J. Diffeo, R.-v. R. I. Farmer, who was the bashful young man, Dr. P. E. Lindley, Prof. J. H. Allred, Miss Idol, the Ferree twins, Miss Rosalie Andrews, who was a beautiful, blushing bride, Misses Esther Pritchard and Josephine Ferguson, and others. This was very cleverly given, and brought forth much merriment, which was tinged with a strain of sadness, however, when a quartette, composed of Prof. Stimson, Mr. Arthur Fidler, Mesdames Allred and Briggs, sang the old-time favorites such as "Long, Long Ago," "Auld Lang Syne," and others. Miss Margaret Neese and C. L. Gray, Jr., sang "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," with beautiful effect. Mrs. R. I. Farmer played accompaniments. Delightful punch and "Dixie cups" were served to the guests. The evening proved delightful and to Mrs. C. C. Robbins, Mrs. J. H. Walker, Jr., Mrs. C. L. Gray, Mrs. L. R. Peacock, Misses Elizabeth Oakes, Elizabeth Welch and Marguerite Sykes and Mrs. John Whitesell, who composed the committee on arrangements, many thanks and much grateful appreciation are due for the excellent way in which the affair was managed.

At the morning hour for worship last Sunday Rev. Mr. Farmer delivered an eloquent and impressive sermon on "Judas, not Iscariot," from that matchless chapter, John 14. He said in part that for one to depart from the straight path is to place a stumbling-block in the way of others, and the conduct of one individuals makes it hard for another of the same name. Shakespeare says, "That which we call a rose by any other name would be as sweet." No man or woman can ever succeed in burying all the consequences of their sins. The covenant of friendship, the seal of discipleship could not keep Judas from the base betrayal of his Lord. When one banker is dishonest, men suspect all bankers. Here is a man, who calls himself a Christian, who indulges in sinful practices, and all Christians are criticized and suspected. A name does not make a man, but a man makes or mars a name. Some names become a shrine for ideal; such as Joan of Arc in France, Bunker Hill, Gettysburg, and the Marne are magnetic. Alexander the Great saw a man doing an unworthy act, and calling him he asked his name. When told it was Alexander, he commanded him to deny his name. There were two men, totally unlike, who bore the name of Judas. Judas, not Iscariot, as he was called, loved his Lord. You cannot live with Jesus and not love Him and be like Him. God wants us to keep our consciences clear. There can be no dualism in a Christian's life. An artist upon being asked what were so many pictures with faces turned to the wall, replied, "Oh, those are my disappointments." Christ wants us to live an everyday religion. Before Him who speaks to us, "Are we His disappointments?" At this service Mesdames J. H. Allred and J. G. Briggs sang a lovely duet, "Forever With the Lord," and the choir rendered a beautiful anthem, "Break Forth Into Joy," by Simper. At the Junior church service, led by Rev. E. Lester Ballard, the topic was "Our Animal Friends," from Proverbs 12:10: "A righteous man regardeth the life of his beast; but the tender mercies of the wicked are cruel."

At the evening service Mr. Blake Harrison sang "The Good Shepherd," and the choir presented the anthem, "The Shadows of Evening," by Shelby. Rev. Mr. Farmer brought the message on "God's Answer to Man's Need."

The Junior Mission Circle held its September meeting at the church Monday afternoon with 30 children present. In the absence of Mesdames Whitesell and Pickett, Mrs. S. S. Coe kindly served as leader. Mrs. A. A. York and Mrs. Pickens served oranges and bananas to this lively group.

The Christian Endeavor Society planned a "weenie" roast for Monday evening, but the weather caused a postponement, and the usual meeting was conducted at the church.

After prayer meeting on Wednesday evening, the stewards will gather in an important meeting, and there will also be a short session of quarterly conference.

The minister announced Sunday that there is a guest-book on the desk in the lobby of the church, in which all guests who attend services are asked to register their names and addresses.

The hearty sympathy of the entire congregation is extended to Mrs. W. P. Pickett and her family in the loss of her father, Mr. John A. Eller, who died Sunday at his home in Davidson County after a decline of several weeks. Mr. Eller had attained the ripe old age of nearly 99 years, and was oldest, most highly esteemed, and universally beloved citizen of his community. Funeral services were conducted at Midway Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Truly, "he has come to his grave in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in his season." In the Civil War Mr. Eller was a brave soldier, and served three years as a member of Company A, 42nd Regiment, Kirkland's brigade, and Hoke's division of N. C. troops. In time of peace he was a good farmer, and took an active interest in his 200 acres until his recent illness. He is survived by three daughters, who tenderly nursed and cared for him with unusual devotion until the end; Mrs. W. P. Pickett, of High Point, Mrs. J. J. Eads, of Mount Airy, the wife of a member of the M. E. South Conference, and Miss Mary Eller, of the home place near Thomasville. Mr. Eller was a Christian gentleman of the highest type; and in an interview a few years ago, upon being asked to what influence he attributed his advanced age, replied: "To a strict observance of God's laws." He said at that time, "I have never used tobacco, never drank liquor, nor gambled; neither have I done anything that did not become a gentleman." What a grand example to the youth of this day and what a more consistent life can we find anywhere?

He bore without abuse

The grand old name of gentleman."

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Whitaker, Jr., of Gastonia, spent Sunday with their mother, Mrs. C. L. Whitaker, at High Point College.

Miss Luella Bovard, of New York City, has been the guest of her friend, Mrs. R. M. Andrews, on West College Drive, for several days.

Mrs. Clyde Cox underwent a serious operation on Monday at High Point Hospital, and although she is suffering considerable pain, the physicians give encouraging reports of her condition, and assure us of an early recovery. Mrs. H. A. Moffitt is taking care of the young children, Sarah and Clyde, Jr., during her daughter's illness.

Dr. and Mrs. Geo. R. Brown, of Reidsville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. White last Thursday.

Spring Hill, West Thomasville Charge.—Bro. Whitehead filled his appointment Sunday morning, using as his subject "True and False Standards of Success." The mother of Zebedee's children asked Jesus to give her two sons certain places in His kingdom, but success can be obtained only by those who work earnestly and steadfastly.

About 70 members of the Sunday school went to the Guilford Battleground Saturday afternoon on a picnic. Not only was the supper enjoyed by all, but the thought of being on this historical spot where our forefathers fought for our freedom, made us want to lift our hearts in gratitude to the One who made our freedom possible.

Mr. J. D. Collette, who has charge of the Intermediate class of girls, gave them a weiric roast at his home the second Saturday night.

Mrs. George Craven entertained her class of small boys and girls at her home Saturday afternoon, September 14. Games were played, after which supper was eaten and all had a happy time.

Miss Vina Cecil has placed a beautiful rug on the pulpit for which all are very thankful. She has done a lot for the church and continues to work. It is appreciated.

Since our last report the revival meeting has been changed from the first Sunday in October to the fifth Sunday in this month. Rev. George L. Curry will do the preaching after Sunday.

REPORTER.

New Salem, Randleman Charge.—On September 15 our special meeting began. Rev. Mr. Henderson from Bessemer City was our pulpit help. He came to us on Sunday and preached for us until Friday night. He brought us some very helpful messages. He returned to his work Saturday. Rev. T. A. Williams, our pastor, preached Saturday afternoon and night. We are very thankful for this revival. It seems that the Spirit of God was with us each service. There were 19 conversions; 15 joined the church. We want to thank the good people at Randleman and the entire community for co-operation. We pray God's blessings upon the meeting.

CHAS. W. HAYES.

South Winston.—We closed our revival tonight, which has been in progress the past week at Union Grove. We closed with the spiritual tide running high. There were four professions and four reclaimed. Two united with the church tonight, and the work was advanced. We hope much good has been done toward drawing all closer to God.

Some one spoke about building a new church. We went to work and got $400, the frame and weatherboarding subscribed and a good portion of the carpenter work promised.

We ask all the Herald family to join with us in fervent and earnest prayer for this church.

There were four young men who requested that the church continue to pray for them.

This church is behind $18.00 on pastor's salary, $10.00 on Conference claims. We will come out.

P. L. KINNAMAN, Pastor.

Rose Hill, Pageland Charge.—Our protracted meeting began the last Sunday in August and ran through Friday night. The pulpit help was Rev. Fred W. Paschall. We were glad indeed to have him with us in the meeting and in our homes. Everybody learned to love him and he brought us a gospel sermon each time. We feel like there was great good done.

We feel sad for the loss of our pastor, whom we all learned to love, Bro. Madison. Although he stayed with us but a short while he did a great work. He is a man that believes in working for the Master and building up the broken down walls, and that is the kind of a pastor this charge needs. May God's richest blessings rest upon him in his school work this year and we hope to have him back with us soon.

Rose Hill Sunday school worshipped with Bethesda the first Sunday in September, Rally Day, and all reported a good time. We listened to a good sermon from our pastor, Rev. T. G. Madison, and several other good talks.

The Ladies' Aid is still doing good work. We have ordered the pulpit furniture and are expecting it every day.

We meet in the homes once a month, the last Tuesday. I would like to say more, but for lack of space I will stop and come again.

MRS. J. H. MARZE.

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—The men got together and painted the church and cleaned off the grounds, which has added much to the appearance of the church.

Our revival meeting began the second Sunday in August and ran through the third Sunday. Rev. Lee Leonard, of Greenville, S. C., did the preaching. The church was greatly revived and several were converted; two have joined the church. Bro. Leonard did some wonderful preaching and we thank God for such men.

Yesterday was our regular preaching day. Our pastor brought us a splendid message at the morning hour. There was no preaching at night, but prayer meeting was held. Mr. Tracy Burton, a student of Furman University, conducted the prayer service.

REPORTER.

Lincolnton Station.—We see reports from C. E. societies and Sunday school and many other organizations of the church, but we haven't seen anything about class meetings. We wonder if they are a thing of the past. No, thanks be to God, we have good class meetings at Lincolnton station once a month. At the first of this year we had only a few present at the meetings. But God met with us and we had good times together, testifying, praising God, praying one for another, and bearing one another's burdens. It continues to grow in number and in spirit.

Last Sunday we had a good crowd, and another fine time with the Master, telling what He was doing for us.

In our way of seeing what the class meeting means it is to the church what the family altar is to the home.

May God help us as Methodist Protestants to get back to old-time Methodist class meetings and take time to find out how our brother is getting along spiritually, and come closer together, as Jesus prayed for His disciples that they might be one and show to the world that they were Christians because they had each other's interest at heart.

Yours for more and better class meetings.

O. G. CARPENTER, Class Leader.

Corinth, Littleton Circuit.—Our revival meeting began on the first Sunday in September and closed on the following Friday night. Rev. N. M. Harrison, a former pastor, came on Monday and did the preaching throughout the week. All those who attended the services were highly pleased with his messages. They were strong and forceful, holding the attention of the large congregations attending. There were nine additions to the church and the spiritual life of the church was greatly revived.

We were glad to have Rev. J. B. O'Brian attend services here on Monday afternoon and Mrs. Harrison, Mr. Harrison's mother, on Wednesday afternoon.

Right after Sunday school last Sunday our Christian Endeavor reorganized. Henry Morris was elected president and Allene Carter, vice-president. The first meeting will be held Sunday night. We hope that the young people will all come out and take part and the society grow.

Mrs. M. S. Hamill, mother of Mrs. M. J. Morris, is very ill.

We realize that Annual Conference is almost here and we are far behind with pastor's salary and the budgets are unpaid; however, we hope to have all of this paid before Conference.

M. J. MORRIS.

Sept. 16, 1929.

Philadelphia, Greenville Circuit.—Our meeting began the fourth Sunday in July and ended the following Thursday night. We were very fortunate in having one of God's greatest servants to help our pastor in this meeting, Rev. C. L. Spencer. We just learned to love Bro. Spencer. He gave wonderful messages. It is felt and thought that many and great things were done in the Lord's name during this revival, but we feel there is much more that could have been done. There were no additions to the church but several conversions. Nevertheless, this revival was a great blessing to our church and neighboring churches as well. We're always glad to see Brother Spencer and hope to have him with us again next summer.

We are sorry to say since our last report that we have lost one of our greatest and oldest church members—George W. Pearson. He joined this church at an early age and lived a faithful Christian life to the end. Would that we all would follow his example. The church and many loved ones will greatly miss him.

The Circuit Rally will be held at Matthews Chapel on the fifth Sunday in this month. We're very sorry that we will not be able to render our program on account of sickness.

The Home-Coming Day will be held at this church on the first Sunday in October.

Love and best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

BERNIE PEARSON SHELL, Reporter.

Kernersville.—Home-Coming and Circuit Rally at Pine Grove, Kernersville Charge. The pastor and people most cordially invite all former pastors and people who have worshipped with us to come back Sunday, September 29. This, we hope, will be a feast day of good things to all. At 11 o'clock Dr. S. W. Taylor, president of Annual Conference, will speak to us; at 12:30, dinner on the grounds; 2:30, Dr. P. E. Lindley, dean of High Point College, will speak.

Another feature of the service will be the singing. We are expecting two male quartettes. The Higgins sisters, who have made a national reputation, will be there to render several selections. Come one, come all, and let us have a great time together in the service of the Lord.

J. D. CRANFORD.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—Our pastor met with us on the second Sunday, bringing with him Rev. E. G. Cowan, of Greenville Charge, who preached at the 11 o'clock hour. Bro. Cowan's subject was "The Price of Liberty," and he delivered a wonderful message. Rev. H. S. B. Thompson was also with us and engaged in the service.

We were somewhat surprised to learn that the First District Rally will meet at this church next Sunday, the 29th. However, we wish to use this means to extend an invitation to every minister and every Christian worker in the First District who can to come. Our church building is small, we regret to say, but we trust a generous welcome and hearty co-operation await you.

We hope the day will be fine, the roads good and under the brilliant leadership of Chairman Auman we anticipate a good day.

We have some very fine young people here and shall appreciate every agency of the church to help edify their young lives. Therefore, we trust that every minister and Christian worker will join in prayer that the Lord will bless this service, that lasting good may be accomplished.

REPORTER.

Reidsville.—For several months there has been nothing in the Herald from Reidsville. Our silence might indicate that we had nothing to say. This would not be true. We are still able to talk, for which we are thankful, even if what we say is commonplace and uninteresting. We hope, however, to say a thing or two in this letter that will be considered worth-while news.

Through the kindly offices of our Ladies' Aid Society our church has been repainted inside. The work was paid for as soon as finished. To do this these good women had to work hard and sacrifice much.

We began our revival services on the second Sunday and continued them for ten days. Rev. A. D. Shelton, pastor of the Spring Church charge, preached one week for us. Brother Shelton is a good preacher, and all who heard him were delighted with his good gospel messages. We had two conversions and one reclamation. Two united with the church. We can not help believing that greater good was accomplished than was apparent.

Mr. C. H. Garrison, Mrs. C. R. Reed and Mrs. F. W. Easter have recently had hospital experiences. We are glad to report that all of them are now well on the way to recovery. Several of our members because of the infirmities of old age are kept from taking an active part in our services. They have been so faithful all these years that they are greatly missed by their brethren and friends. Even though they are deprived of the great pleasure of going to church, they enjoy the presence and communion the blessed Holy Spirit with them in their homes.

GEO. R. BROWN.

Saxapahaw Charge.—We of the Saxapahaw Circuit have not done very much publishing recently, but we have been slowly progressing toward our goal, which is to make this the best year in the great cause of Christ in the history of this charge.

We have held revivals in three of our church which resulted in 47 conversions and 18 accessions. We hope to enlarge these numbers before the year closes. It has been stated by several of our members that our revivals in general were the best this year that they have been in years. This, we feel, was due to the splendid pulpit help we were fortunate in securing, which was

Rev. W. M. Loy, at Concord; Rev. L. W. Geringer at Salem, and Rev. Edward Suits at Orange Chapel, and the co-operation on the part of the good members at each church.

We have never made it a habit thus far in the history of our charge to pay all the Conference budgets, but we are putting forth a special effort at present to raise our Annual Conference budget in full for this year. We are very hopeful in this undertaking because our people have expressed a desire to see this done; and we usually do that about which we are anxious.

Saxaphaw Charge is one of the growing circuits of the Methodist Protestant Church in North Carolina, and we believe that in time it will be one of the very most, if not the most, outstanding country charge in our conference. We base our belief upon the progressive spirit that is dominating the minds of its members.

The pastor and family wish to thank the people of the work for the many gifts and other expressions of kindness they have received at their hand. And may God bless them and enrich their lives with those things which fade not away.

A. C. LOY, Pastor.

Mount Carmel, South Lexington Charge.—

Rev. C. G. Isley filled his appointment September 15; he preached a very interesting and uplifting sermon. On the first Sunday morning he preached a very able sermon to the young people.

The C. E. Society is doing fine work under the leadership of Mr. H. L. Swicegood. The society has been having a great success in raising money for the church. On September 14 the society gave a supper. The proceeds amounted to $50.25.

One more year of faithful work has passed at Mount Carmel, and the annual revival has been held. We had our Children's Day program in the morning. This proved to be an interesting event in the lives of the little folks. After the children's program Rev. Mr. Isley made a short talk on the importance of training the children. In the afternoon Rev. N. G. Bethea came to do the preaching for the special services. He preached some of the most helpful and inspiring sermons heard by this community in quite a while. The influence he sent out for good will be remembered always. The explanations he gave during this revival help us to understand life's mysteries. Seventeen new members were added to the church membership, while several others were born into the kingdom of God.

The members of the Missionary Society seem to be falling in line with the new work splendidly. The society hopes to accomplish many worthwhile things before the close of the year. May we all give our co-operation and help carry on the good work for our Master. Our prayers are not only for our little band of Christian workers here, but help us to pray for the good work to go on all over the globe till the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord.

The church is going to pay all of the A. C. B. available.

May we help those who are hungering for God and all those that are less fortunate than we are.

Yours for better service,
BEAUTUS WAITMAN.

Asheboro.—Notwithstanding the rain and cold yesterday was a good day for us. Sunday school attendance was considerably off, but those who were there came across with the $35, the monthly offering for the Children's Home. When we started making this regular payment to the Home two years ago we thought it would inspire others to do likewise, however, according to Dr. Dixon's reports it seems that not many have followed our example.

At the 11 o'clock service we observed school day in accordance with previous announcement. While the day was rough and cold there was a fine company of children present. Just before the sermon they were asked to stand according to grades, then the pastor preached a sermon to them from the life of Daniel.

At the morning hour yesterday we received two new members, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lutterloh, who have recently moved to Asheboro from Franklinsville, N. C., and who came to us from the M. E. Church, South. Before moving to Franklinsville Mr. Lutterloh was a member of Giles' Chapel on Richland Charge, the writer's old home church.

We have three other letters to get this week.

Next Sunday we will observe Rally Day. The service will be held during the Sunday school hour and after the children are promoted to their new classes they will go to their new room so as to learn the way for the next Sunday.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

September 23.

Burlington, First Church.—Today was Home-Coming and Annual Conference Day with us. Dr. S. W. Taylor, our former pastor, and president of the Annual Conference, was with us and delivered a powerful discourse at the 11 o'clock hour. The attendance at this service was unusually large, and we believed had it not been for the unfavorable weather, we would have had to use the Baraca room. Mrs. Taylor and the children were present also. Glad to have Bro. Taylor and family. Come again.

Our Baraca president, Dr. H. M. Patterson, and Mrs. Patterson are rejoicing over the arrival of a little son, Master George Green Patterson. Also, the Baraca teacher, Prof. C. C. Lindley and Mrs. Lindley have been made glad over the birth of a little daughter. We hope every plan of life for these little ones will be realized many-fold and that they will become great workers for the Kingdom.

Our revival begins next Sunday, September 29. We are to hold our own meeting. Bro. Geringer, our pastor, is to do the preaching and each member is urged to do whatever he or she can to make the revival a success. Let us all work for the salvation of the unsaved in this community during this meeting.

The Senior Christian Endeavor society is having splendid prayer meetings each Sunday at 6:45. Attendance very good and interest gratifying. Mr. Wm. Smith was leader this evening and several took an active part in the service. On next Sunday the society is to hold a short prayer meeting at the home of Bro. John Thompson on Whitsett road. Each member is asked to meet at the church in time to leave for this service.

Mr. Aubrey Rich, who recently underwent an operation at the Rainey Hospital, is back home and getting well rapidly.

Mrs. George Haltom, of Camden, S. C., is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Rogers. Mr. and Mrs. Haltom recently moved from High Point to Camden. Mr. Haltom is in business near the latter place.

Rev. and Mrs. Geringer and son, Master Wilson, members of the parsonage family, attended the Wilson-Gibbs wedding in Aberdeen, Md., last Wednesday.

L. A. BRAXTON, Reporter.

Greenville, S. C.—Rev. and Mrs. G. H. Hendry arrived in Greenville August 28th, for the purpose of conducting a revival. He, with several of the laymen, after looking over the city, decided to erect the gospel tent on Fall street, the site where the Ham-Ramsey meeting was held about four years ago.

The first service was held on Sunday afternoon, September 1, Rev. Mr. Hendry using for his subject, "The Gospel." The Palmer Sisters, of Linwood, N. C., with their musical ability, added greatly to the song services. Rev. R. L. Leonard had charge of the choir.

The meeting continued for 18 days with only night service, excepting Sunday. A union service of Fairview and Liberty Hill churches was held on the third Sunday, having three services that day.

On September 18th the meeting closed with the organization of a church with some 20 or 25 members. Mr. J. R. Stout, Rev. R. L. Leonard and Mr. J. Lee Poole were elected trustees for the church. A committee composed of Mr. J. R. Stout, Rev. R. L. Leonard, and Mrs. J. Lee Poole were to arrange for a place of worship until a church could be built. The committee has secured the Y. M. C. A. for that purpose. All members are urged to be there Sunday, September 29th, at 10 o'clock to organize the Sunday school.

We cover the prayers of the Christian people in behalf of a new Methodist Protestant church in Greenville, S. C.

MRS. J. LEE POOLE.

Box 141, Greenville, S. C.

Calvary, Greensboro.—To go back and report all the things that have happened in the church since the last time I wrote would make this letter too long. Some of the things that have happened our good editor has put in as news items. But he has not put them all in, and perhaps, appearing only occasionally, it might seem that not much is going on. But the contrary is true, and to catalog them all would make a long list. So I shall refrain, and give myself to the immediate events.

The most recent is the revival. It was that, and the folks were greatly helped. We had splendid congregations most of the time, and the best of preaching all the time. Rev. H. F. Sumratt was the help. There will be a number of additions to the membership as a result of the meeting. Two joined last Sunday night. Other will come in next Sunday. We have had 23 accessions so far this year.

The first year of the calendar plan has been completed, and the chairman reports $520.37 raised. This has come from a number of individuals who agreed a year ago that they would give a penny a day toward paying off the floating debt. There are exactly 100 names on the Honor Roll. Others paid less than a penny a day, some seven cents a week.

I commend this plan to any church that is struggling with a debt, and wants to make it possible for a large number of folks to help pay it off without any great sacrifice on the part of any. It takes hard work, but it's worth it.

The Women's Auxiliary is making arrangements to have a booth at the Central Carolina Fair, week after next. We hope all who come to Greensboro for the Fair will look up the Calvary Church booth, and help these good women.

The church is looking forward to entertaining the Conference. The other Methodist Protestant churches in Greensboro and the surrounding territory have agreed to help home the folks, thus relieving us of the strain of trying with our small membership to provide all the entertainment.

Rally Day will be held on the first Sunday in October. We are looking forward to a good day.

We invite the members of our country churches when they are in town on Sunday to worship with us.

C. W. BATES, Pastor.

SUCCESSFUL DISTRICT RALLY

A most successful district rally program was held at the Belmont M. P. Church last Sunday, September 22nd. All the pastoral charges except one had representatives present. Three pastors were in attendance. Mrs. W. C. Hammer, Revs. Carroll, Minnis, and Taylor, all gave addresses filled with information and inspiration. There were many comments to the effect that the rally was interesting and helpful.

At the close of the speaking program the following officers were elected to have charge of the young people's work of the district: Miss Mae Patterson, president; Monroe Bennett, vice-president; Miss Bessie Holmes, secretary, and Guy Eiland, treasurer. These officers will please communicate with Dr. Fred Paschall, 165 Hillside Street, Asheville, N. C., for information as to what is expected of them.

What state grants no divorces—South Carolina is the only state in the Union which grants no divorces.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Lewis

James Pinkney Lewis, born February 16, 1853, died September 10, 1929.

He was converted in early life and united with Shiloh M. E. Church, Alamance County, later moving his membership to Fair Grove M. P. Church where he remained a faithful member until death. His companion and five children preceded him in death. He is survived by three children, twelve grand children, and a number of relatives and friends. Funeral services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. Mr. Trollinger, and Rev. W. D. Reed, a former pastor and close friend of the deceased.

"I cannot make it seem a day to dread
When from this dear earth I shall journey out

To that still dearer country of the dead
And join the loved ones, so long dreamed about

I love this world, but I shall love to go and Meet the friends who wait for me I know.
I never stand about a hier and see the seal
Of death on some well-loved face.

But that I think none more to welcome me
When I shall cross the intervening space
Between this land and that one over there
One more to make the strange beyond seem fair."

And so for me there is no sting to death
And so the grave has lost its victory
It is but crossing with a fated breath, and White set face

A little strip of sea, to find our loved on the shore.

More beautiful, more precious than before.—

Greene

Mrs. Louisa Hawkins Greene, passed away in her home near Hawkins Chapel Church, July 22, 1929, at 1:30 a. m., at the age of 78 years, 4 months, 19 days.

She joined Hawkins Chapel Church in her young days and was always faithful and loyal to her church when her health would permit.

She was married to Mr. E. P. Greene who preceded her years ago, leaving her with seven children, five girls and two boys: Mrs. Martha Snipes, Mrs. B. S. Hawkins, Mrs. A. D. Pittard, Mrs. J. W. Hale, Mrs. George Pearson, Mr. George Greene and Mr. Baldy Greene; and 18 grandchildren.

She was confined to her bed about two weeks before she died. She called her children to her bedside and told them she was going to heaven and for them to meet her there.

Funeral service was held in her home conducted by Rev. J. B. O'Briant, assisted by her pastor, Rev. I. C. Smith. Her body was laid to rest in the family burying ground near home.

The beloved family have our sympathy in their sore affliction. May God sustain and keep them until death and when they are called to a higher sphere may He say to them: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

She is sleeping in yonder graveyard by the way;

Only sleeping till the dawning of the resurrection day.

They have placed her in the casket and have borne her form away;

Still in death she's only sleeping till the resurrection day.

Oh! 'Tis lonely here without her, in this world of toi land care;

But we'll join her with the ransomed in that land so bright and fair.

Yes, 'twill be a happy greeting, when we meet to part no more;

With our friends and loved ones waiting on that bright eternal shore.

September 14, 1929.

MRS. CLAUDE HAWKINS,
MISS BEATRICE HAWKINS,
MISS MAGGIE HAWKINS.

Black

S. Hamright Black, born in 1846, died September 7, 1929. He was twice married. Both wives preceded him in death. He was the father of 10 children. There are also four sisters, three brothers, 46 grandchildren, 27 great-grandchildren, a large circle of kindred and friends to mourn his passing. He professed faith in Christ when a young man and joined the Methodist Protestant church at Mount Moriah. He remained a member of this church until death.

We are informed that he was an active member of his church, having been class leader for a number of years. The funeral was held at Mount Moriah church on Sunday, September 8, 1929, at 11 a. m. by the pastor, assisted by Rev. H. C. Sisk, of Shelby, and we left his body there to await the resurrection morn.

The bereaved family has our sympathy.

Crawford

We were grieved a short while back by the passing away of one of Orange Chapel's oldest and most useful members, Brother Stredrick Crawford. He was near the age of 76 years. Nearly all of this life was spent actively in the Master's business at Orange Chapel church of Saxapahaw charge. He had occupied every office in the church that is open to laymen and handled each very successfully. We hope he is now enjoying his great reward in a heavenly home.

To his children, and especially to his aged companion, we extend our sympathy.

O. C. LOY, Pastor.

Mattie Brooks Martin, born August 1, 1881, died July 30, 1929.

She was married to C. C. Martin November 3, 1900. To this union were born 14 children. She leaves behind her husband, seven children, a large circle of kindred and friends. Her sickness was of short duration. Death came to her in the Shelby Hospital after she had undergone a serious operation. Her membership was with the Union Baptist church. Her husband and her children are members of our Oak Grove church.

Mrs. Martin was a faithful companion, a loving mother, true to her home and her family. She left a bright testimony that the Good Lord had done great things for her.

The funeral was held by the writer at Oak Grove church on July 31, 1929. Rev. J. R. Anderson, being with me in a meeting here at that time, took part in the service. The crowd was large and the floral tribute was beautiful. Her body was laid to rest in the church cemetery by the side of her seven children to await the morning of the Resurrection. The bereaved family has our deepest sympathy.

"We have lost our darling mother,
She has bid us all adieu,
She has gone to live in Heaven,
And her form is lost to view.
Oh, that dear one, how we loved her,
Oh, how hard to give her up!
But an angel came down for her
And removed her from our flock."

C. E. RIDGE.

Crutchfield

Salem church, of Saxapahaw charge, has suffered a great loss in the death of one of its most active and useful members, Brother James M. Crutchfield. His death was a great shock to his family and community because it came so unexpectedly, and we can say of a truth it brought with it a loss and a sadness to the church and community that they cannot overcome soon.

Brother Crutchfield was serving as chairman of the board of stewards of his church at death, and was one of the most earnest workers in that capacity the writer has ever seen. If all the stewards in our churches took the welfare of their pastor to heart as did this good man, financial embarrassment would be greatly eliminated on the part of our ministers of the gospel. He himself had nothing too good for his pastor or anyone else who was in need.

We would not say he was a perfect man, but we can say he was of sterling quality and just the type of man we greatly miss when taken from among us.

To his children and loving companion we extend our deepest sympathy. May God bless them and fill the vacancy in their lives and home, is our prayer.

O. C. LOY, Pastor.

Hinshaw

Mary Ellen Wright Hinshaw was born February 27, 1849. Early in life she accepted Christ as her Savior and joined the M. P. church at Flint Ridge. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wright. But few people love their church as Sister Hinshaw did. She was not ashamed to own her Lord anywhere.

On April 26, 1890, she was married to Zimri Hinshaw. This union was blessed with one son, Harrison A. Hinshaw, of Siler City, R. F. D. Her life was one of prayer. The last service she was permitted to attend she led the congregation in prayer. In a few days she received a stroke of paralysis. On August 31, as the day was fading into night, she was gently let down in the arms of death. During her last days she often said, "I am ready to go at any time. I am just waiting the summons."

She leaves her son and two brothers, J. A. Wright, of Charlotte, N. C., and G. W. Wright, of Siler City, R. F. D., and four grandchildren, Glenna, Bernice, George, and Clinton Hinshaw; and several nephews and nieces who mourn for her. We miss her in the home and in the church, but rejoice to believe that she is with God.

Rev. H. E. Crutchfield, of the Christian Church, Revs. Virgil Pike and Henry Wrenn, of the Friends Church, assisted the pastor in the funeral services which were held at Flint Ridge on Monday, September 2, 1929.

A. O. LINDLEY.

OBSERVATIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

We don't know how to say the words we feel. It is pitiful to observe the non-attendance of people at the Lord's house, ones whose names are on church books; some of them neither attend preaching regularly or ever attend Sunday school; and the ones in towns and cities leave at close of Sunday school and do not stay for church service. We believe parents are responsible for this and will have to face it at the judgment. A child can sit as long in God's house as they can anywhere else and we believe Satan originated the idea for mothers to stay at home, (or leave with some one) small children; mothers need to be fed with the Bread of Life and meet at God's house to worship.

Another excuse for not attending worship we have heard: "Tired of hearing preachers talking about money." We get tired of them having to talk about it, but we believe when church members are filled with God's spirit they will give to God's cause and not have to be asked for it. Some of those who know our Children's Home needs our support never put any offering in the plate for it. Suppose all did likewise? What would happen? If we withhold from them are we not afflicting them? (Exodus 22:23-24).

We wonder if our preachers gave us more of God's law on giving in their sermons would help us to see what God requires of us as His children—if they wouldn't have less empty pews to preach to and less time required for the financial part.

We heard an old Christian say years ago that the pulpit educated the people. God's Word verifies his statement. (Hosea 4:9; Jer. 50:10; Psalm 86:11.)

We are not meaning or intending to criticize any of our ministers. It is only a thought that God gave to us and we are passing it on, hoping and praying that it will help someone. May our Heavenly Father help us each one to see ourselves as God sees us.

Hoping for the best year in our Lord's work in the M. P. Church, and an outpouring of the Holy Spirit on the Annual Conference.

MRS. J. M. LLOYD.

It takes nerve to plan ahead knowing you have but a few months, at best, to live. Dr. Ozora S. Davis, 62, of Chicago, who rose from a shoeless, penniless newsboy to moderator of the Congregational Church and president of the Chicago Theological Seminary, will write books, travel and lecture until an incurable malady claims his life.

—The little log school house has almost disappeared in North Carolina; there were only 28 houses of this type during 1927-28, and all of these used by negro children. Of this total number, 23 were in Caswell county and one each in Alamance, Durham, Halifax, Person and Vance counties.

—The English sparrow population of this country has decreased greatly in recent years.

MARRIED

Three Marriages

H. G. Hudson, of Franklinsville, and Norma E. Allen, of Ramseur, April 13, 1929.
S. B. York and Dessie Allred, both of Cedar Falls, August 5, 1929.

Charlie G. or Yk, of Cedar Falls, and Ruth B. Millikan, of Millboro, September 14, 1929.

These marriages were at my house. I do not know whether it will ever be convenient for me to stop with them for dinner or not, but, come on, folks, I can marry you and lead myself.

Wishing all a happy life.

G. A. LAUGHLIN.

Ferguson-Hardin

Mr. Danmer Ferguson, of Staley, N. C., and Miss Tilda Hardin, of Franklinsville, N. C., were married at my home on Saturday evening, September 21, in the presence of a few relatives and friends. Miss Hardin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hardin, of Gray's Chapel. We wish for them a happy and successful journey through life.

Anglin-Bowles

The wedding bells have again been ringing around the First Methodist Protestant parsonage, Burlington. Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock Mr. Hal H. Anglin, of Graham, and Miss Hilma Bowles, of Timberlake, were united in matrimony by the pastor, L. W. Gerringer, in the presence of only a few intimate friends of the couple. The beautiful ring ceremony was used.

Mr. Anglin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Anglin, of Graham, and he now has charge of the Anglin Studio of Burlington. Mrs. Anglin, whose father and mother are both dead, has for some time made her residence in Burlington. She is an attractive and accomplished young woman. After a brief honeymoon this happy young couple will make their home in Burlington.

Wilson-Newton

A marriage of much interest to the many friends of both parties is that of Miss Mary Newton and Harvey F. Wilson, which was solemnized at York, S. C., on Saturday evening, September 21st. Mrs. Wilson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Newton, of Concord, and by her pleasing personality has made many friends in this city. Mr. Wilson is the son of S. H. Wilson and the late Mrs. Wilson, of Charlotte, and a young man of splendid character. He has been in military service for a period of six years and holds the position of radio operator on the S. S. Shaw, stationed at New London, Conn.

Both are valuable members of First Church, Concord, and have the best wishes of the entire church. After October 2 they will be at home at 214 Huntington Street, New London, Conn.

MRS. D. A. McLAURIN.

How many men teach school? About 139,800 men were engaged in the teaching profession during the year 1928-1929. During the same period there were 675,000 women teachers, making a total of about 814,000 school teachers in the United States.

Note: Above is a contribution by Miss Mamie Johnston for Sunday eggs. This was saved for the Children's Home and sent to us by Miss Mollie Wheelis after Miss Mamie had gone on to the Heavenly Home. Miss Mamie was one of three women in the conference who tithed her egg money and sent it to the Home. There are only two left. Will not a hundred, or more, take Miss Mamie's place and thus swell the offering to the Children's Home? "She being dead yet speaketh," and may her influence win many other dollars for the Home.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mrs. J. S. Poole, Effand, 5 tablets, 5 pencils, 2 spools thread, and 3 pieces of print dress material.

Mrs. G. G. Bivins, Hillsboro, 1 boy's overcoat, 1 hat, 1 pair slippers, 7 dresses, 2 print coats, 2 pieces of underwear and 2 waists.

Class of girls, Winston Salem, 1 silk dress for little girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Delk, Fullers, N. C., 6 dresses, 1 blouse, 6 little boys' suits.

Mr. Arthur Ross, Asheboro, 12 new dresses, prints and gingham.

These gifts are all timely and helpful. We thank you for the money and other gifts. Your helpfulness encourages us to keep on trying to feed and clothe and keep warm and send to school our big family of children.

October

October is almost upon us, and October is the last month of the conference year. Your tasks will be many in winding up the year's work; but we plead with you to make one more special effort for the Home.

See President Taylor's notes of last week. He says, "One hundred and one Sunday schools and 18 other churches contribute monthly to the Home." That is good, but are there not about 230 Sunday schools and churches? If one hundred and nineteen are contributing monthly, where are the one hundred and eleven?

What we are asking now is that pastors and Sunday school superintendents see that every Sunday school in the conference sends us a good offering for October. Our report to conference must be made by the first of November. Please send any money that may be in hand for the Home to us at an early date. Thank you, and may God bless you and prosper your every effort to wind up the year successfully.

Yours in His blessed service,

A. G. DIXON.

—We are in receipt of an interesting personal letter from Bro. George L. McAdams, formerly of Mebane. He now lives in the mountains at Pulaski, Va. Conditions there enable him to appreciate home missionary work. The Presbyterians are taking a leading part in this work. It is a region where feuds flourish and there is a homicide every few weeks. Bro. McAdams would like to hear some of our N. C. ministers again. He mentions by name Rev. W. F. Kennett, a former pastor. Bro. McAdams appreciates the Herald as a medium of communication with friends in North Carolina. His friends here would welcome his return at any time.

—Calvary people are glad to have in their congregation Bro. Friddle and family, recently moved to Greensboro from Burlington. Bro. Friddle is a mail clerk and Uncle Sam will interfere somewhat with his attendance at church.

God Incarnate

My skeptic friend, pray which, think you,
Is really harder to receive—
That God would clothe Himself in flesh
Or that He'd simply make believe?

If He through painful human death
Could bring lost souls within the fold,
Think you He'd halt and shrink and fail,
Or would His love be strong and bold?

The World's Enormous Debt to the Jews

"Salvation is of the Jews."—Jesus to a woman of Samaria.
Jews gave to the world its greatest religious library. We believe every book in the Old Testament and every book in the New Testament except Luke's Gospel was written by a Jew, and Luke, if not a Jew, wrote under Jewish influence. What a contribution to the world's weal did the Jews make in the production of this incomparable book, the Bible! We need not here enlarge upon the good influence of this book upon the life of the world. But we should remember that it was written almost wholly by men of the Jewish race.

Jewish writers were able to write this great book because they had before them great religious actors, and these actors almost without exception were of the Jewish race. Think of that grand man of faith, the progenitor of the Hebrew race, Abraham. How he looms up! Think of Joseph and his marvelous career. Think of Moses who delivered his people from bondage and sought to replace in their lives the rule of fear with the rule of conscience and law. Think of Joshua and Samuel and David, men of faith and great achievement. Think of the inspired prophets and their timely and stirring messages. Think of John the Baptist with his unique role among the prophets. Think of Jesus of Nazareth, who "spoke as never man spake." Think of His apostles, Paul, Peter, John, and the others, men of Jewish blood and training. How different would the world be today if these men had not lived and acted their parts. In the world of today we feel Roman influence, Greek influence, and Jewish influence, and the greatness of these is Jewish influence.

Why were the Jews able to surpass other races and nations in contribution to the common good? Because God chose them, inspired them and gave them power. They were God's "peculiar people," not in the sense that He loved them above the rest of mankind, but in the sense that God would peculiarly fit them to be a means of blessing to all the nations of the world. They were to awaken in human consciousness certain great ideas. One of these is that of the oneness of God. Another is that God is moving to put away sin and bring men to righteousness. The Jews were to teach the world that God is a God of righteousness and that men may be and are expected to be people of righteousness. Great lessons these. It cost the Jews immense sums to convey these lessons. Many millions of dollars' worth of sacrifices burned upon their altars from first to last to develop in the mind of the world awareness of sin and horror of sin. Long years of captivity must be endured to wean the people away from trust in false gods. The Jews paid the great price and brought blessing to the world. The world is indebted to them for what they did and what they suffered that mankind might better know God.

As if to reward the Jews for their great part in the religious education and reformation of the world, God gave to them the supreme honor of bringing into the world Him who was to be the Desire of all nations, Jesus of Nazareth. His mother was a Jewess. He towers in His personality above all other men and was more than a prophet. We cannot class Him with even the greatest prophets of the past. He belonged to a peculiar order. I believe with Peter that He was the (not a) Son of God. But humanly speaking He was a Jew, and we must recognize our great debt to the Jews in that one of their virgins was His mother.

The more we see in Jesus the greater our debt to the Jews appears. If He were only another of a long line of prophets such as Isaiah and Jeremiah, then His worth would be comparable to theirs, he would be merely the prophet of His age, and we would simply add His name to the roll that bears theirs with no especial sense that our obligation had greatly increased. But He does not come with a message like theirs. Their vision was of a glorious kingdom set up on the earth. His vision was of a kingdom that fills the universe. He called it the "Kingdom of the Heavens," not "Heaven" as in our English translation. He announced that this Kingdom was at hand and told men how to prepare for entrance and continuance in it. He did not think of the destiny of man as realized in life on the earth. Instead of a petty kingdom of this world, such as that of David, or even that of Caesar, Jesus saw a great Kingdom of God, filling all space and all time. All men were privileged to be everlasting and joyous subjects of this Kingdom of the Heavens. The great impassable obstacle in the way of men was sin. Sin must be put away. A stupendous problem. Men could not go back and undo their sins. Men could not expel from their souls the strong tendency to evil. Jesus undertook both of these humanly impossible problems. He succeeded in making "salvation" possible for every man. We are not profound enough to understand fully and clearly how He accomplished His great undertaking, but we have evidence that He can save from sin. We cannot doubt that He has power to carry on His program to its glorious end. The consciences of men distressed by the thought and memory of sin were eased by the sight of the supremely efficacious offering made when He allowed Himself to be hanged on a tree in the agonies of death. The tendency to evil in the soul of man is overcome by the powerful operation of the Spirit of God, resulting in a recreation and a new birth of the soul. Had Jesus been simply another one of the prophets,

THE RURAL CHURCH

(CONTEST ARTICLE NO. 4)

To my mind consolidation is one of the greatest needs of the rural church today.

Just a few years ago the idea of consolidating the rural schools was ridiculed by some and opposed by a great number of parents, but where is there one today who would be willing to have their children go back to the little one-room school house, and be taught by incompetent teachers the same old methods. Consolidation does not only give them more comfortable buildings, but better qualified teachers, longer school terms, and better advantages in every way.

We are a progressive people. Ever since our Pilgrim Fathers landed on Plymouth Rock we have been progressing along every line. The first thing they did was to erect a crude building in which to worship the Lord, and sad but true we have made more progress along every other line than we have in the church of the living God. It is time we were waking up to the realization of that fact and getting busy to remedy these conditions. Even though with its hypocrites and imperfections it is the best institution one earth and none of us would live in a community where there were no churches, we would get out as quickly as possible, and yet we seem to be satisfied to drift along in the same old way. I am reminded of the poor old man who got his wooden leg fast in a knot hole on the bridge. He was first going 'round and 'round and thought he was getting somewhere.

Another great need of the rural church as well as the city church, is trained leadership. Sunday School teachers who are willing to sacrifice enough of their time to qualify themselves to be accredited teachers. It is no wonder our children do not like to go to Sunday School. They are taught in the day school by a wide-awake teacher, one who is on her job and they are taught at Sunday School, in a great many instances, by just anyone they can pick up on the spur of the moment, whether they have seen the lesson or not. The child wriggles and twists for thirty minutes and goes home disgusted with Sunday School.

Are we putting the Kingdom of God first?

"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

John Henry Ford and others have made it possible for everybody to be enabled to get to the house of God to worship, and distance is no obstacle. Consolidation would not only mean better church houses, but an enlarged church program. An all-time pastor, preaching every Sunday instead of once per month. Greater opportunities to serve, in other words, just outgrowing the old shell and leaving it by the wayside.

We do not plow our fields with an ox just because our fathers did, neither do we make our dresses with our fingers just because our mothers did. They did the best they could with what they had.

Then after he have seen the need of better conditions the next thing to do is just get busy and remedy these conditions. "No good thing will be withheld from them that walk uprightly." Of course there might be some opposition, but the rebuilding of the Temple was delayed fifteen years because of enemies, but it was finished nevertheless, and the glory of the latter was even greater than the first because of the real spirit of worship that was put into it.

God grant that we may never get away from the faith of our fathers who remained true to the cause in spite of fire, dungeon and sword. Youth is naturally more optimistic than old age and is not afraid to tackle a big job.

How to solve the problem is another question, but in unison there is strength. Co-operation, hard work, every man, woman, boy and girl putting his shoulder to the wheel will bring about better conditions for the rural church.

THE MUSICAL MOOD

The poorest tune or hymn that ever was sung is better than no tune and no hymns. It is better to sing than to be dumb, however poor the singing may be. Any tune or hymn which excites or gives expression to true devout feeling is worthy of use; and no music which comes to us from any quarter can afford to scorn those simple melodies which taught our fathers to weep and give thanks in prayer meetings and revival meetings. We owe much to the habit of the Methodist Church, which introduced popular singing throughout our land, and first and chiefly through the West, and little by little everywhere.

The Jews were pre-eminently a choral people; and as the early church was almost wholly Jewish—that is, as the dominating characteristic was Jewish—the habit of song, as well as many other habits, passed over into the early church, and it was a singing church. By song it consoled itself in sorrows; it instructed itself; it ministered to its own patience; it created joy where otherwise there could have been none. All the way down through the early centuries there were exhortations to song like that of the apostle in our text, where he is teaching men how to maintain their faith under adverse circumstances.

In the early church the hymn was the creed. It was at a later day, when music began to wane, that creeds took on philosophical forms, and men exchanged psalmody for the catechism. Not insignificant authorities have declared that the success of the German Reformation depended more upon the fact that the great mass of the common people were taught to sing, and that there was furnished them an immense natural literature of hymns, than upon any other thing.

Religious music, as distinguished from other music, is that which shall excite or express some inflection of the highest feelings. But in our use ordinary music is designed either to promote or to express what may be called the moral and spiritual feelings.

There is a great difference in music itself; and yet almost any music can be so used as to express religious feeling. We have a right in the church to ask for such music as shall promote thoughtfulness, tenderness, devoutness, cheerfulness, aspiration, joy in praise, and hope.

Not only the character of the music, but also the method of rendering it, is concerned in making it devout or religious.

Much music is so mingled with what may be called musical gymnastics that it inevitably will excite curiosity and admiration rather than thoughtfulness and emotion.

I should shock even the least venerating in my presence if, standing here, I should employ my prayers, the devotions of the church, as an elocutionary exhibition. I should do violence to your feelings if, addressing God, I were to begin with the scale of vowel sounds and explode them all the way from the the lowest to the highest in the midst of my prayer. You would be shocked if in the most devout passages of my prayer I should go through these sounds on the rising scale and on the descending scale, observing the various inflections and reflections, giving all the tones—the sweetest ones and the harshest ones. You could not help being shocked if I should make an elocutionary drill of prayer, using the name of God as a pivot on which to thrill or explode the sounds. Nobody could tolerate such an outrage of propriety as this would be.

But why is that any worse than to do the same thing in singing, with our hymns, most of which are prayers? Why is that any more than in singing, to see how rapidly one can run up or down, or to see how high or low in the scale one can go? Why is it any worse than for one to show how exquisitely and artistically he can utter the highest note? There is a great deal of the gymnastics of music that is proper in some places which would not be proper in a church, as there is a great deal in calisthenics that would be proper in a hall devoted to physical training which would not be proper here on this platform. The place has one object, while this place has another. And I affirm that any use of music, in regard to sacred things, which makes it merely a physical accomplishment, and which addresses it to wonder and curiosity and admiration, is a desecration. As an invariable rule, on all occasions of purely religious end. And no matter how consummate it is, no matter how exquisite it is in taste, if it fails to promote religious feeling it fails to meet the end for which it was instituted.

The highest music for religious purposes is not vocal and instrumental music pure and simple, but music which is wedded to psalms or hymns.

Let us consider some of the advantages in a religious education which grow out of the use of music in connection with hymns and psalms.

In the first place, I hold that there is more sound instruction to be given to a congregation by this method than by almost any other. Indeed, I doubt, if you were to analyze your religious emotions, whether you would not trace them back to hymns more than to the Bible itself. If any one will consider the sources of his thoughts of heaven, I think he will land in Dr. Watts rather than in the Revelator Saint John. I think that the hymns of Dr. Watts, and Charles Wesley's hymns, in which they describe heaven, its occupations, its glowing joys, and its zeal and rapture, have more to do with forming men's ideas of the promised land than any other literature, not excepting the Bible. Just as John Milton has given us more theology of one sort than can be found in the Bible.

In this way the truth is made easy to all comprehensions. We follow nature. We find that children learn most readily by fables and stories rather than by reasoning. We find that children are seldom metaphysicians. More often they are poets. Children learn more by pictures which are presented to their minds than by exact statements of ideas. And the word of God is seldom an uninteresting book to children if it is properly laid before them. Its stories surely delight them.

So that instruction which is derived from psalms and hymns is according to the Bible method, because it addresses itself through the imagination to the emotions, and through emotions to the understanding. And it is better fitted for the inculcation of popular theology than sermons themselves.

It is on this account that I think hymns and psalms will be among the great influences which will bring together the church of the future, and make substantial harmony between those who never could be reconciled by their confessions and by their catechism. It is remarkable to see how men will quarrel over a dogma, and then sit down and rejoice over a hymn which expresses precisely the same sentiments about which they have differed. A man will dispute with you in regard to the absolute divinity of Jesus Christ, but he will sing "Coronation" with you because he carries out his own ideas as he goes along. In general feeling you are united, though in special dogmatic statement you disagree.

There have been vehement controversies between the Calvinists and the Armenians. There have been a great many disputes as to whether men can fall from grace or not after they have once been effectually called and converted. They all do sin, we know. The Armenians say that they fall, and the Calvinists say they do not. It is a difference of statement in regard to fact which seems to me to be without dispute concerning this recondite matter, on the one hand the Methodists will sing Calvinistic songs with us, and on the other hand we will sing Arminian hymns with them. Without hesitation we sing with each other hymns, quite unaware of what the doctrines are which are laid up in them. We sing from the same hymn-book things about which we should widely differ if we were discussing systems of theology. "The theology of the feelings," as it has been aptly termed, the theology of the heart, brings men together. You can blend men by common experiences which touch common feelings, but you cannot unite men by philosophical statements or historical facts. One of the bonds of union today is the hymn-book and tune-book of the congregation, which contains dogmas representing every conceivable variation of belief, which brings men together, harmonizing them and cementing them, and inspiring in them the feeling that they are brethren, and that alike they are children of their Father, God.

There stands a controversial dog at almost every turn; and when you approach men on the subject of theology, this watchdog shows his teeth. Men call it "conscience"; but a dog is a dog. Where a man is combative, he denies your propositions, and fights them. And much that is true never finds an entrance into men's minds because of the malign feelings which are in them. But there is that in music which has the power of putting these malign elements to sleep. We are told, you know, in the fable that old Cerberus went to sleep charmed by music. However that may be, sweet hymns do allay malign feelings; and men who are rude and combative may be harmonized under their influence.

I remember a remarkable instance which occurred in my father's lecture-room during one of those sweet scenes which preceded the separation of the Presbyterian Church into the old and new schools. At that time controversy ran high, and there were fire and zeal and wrath mingled with discussion; and whoever sat in the chair, the devil presided. In the occasion to which I refer, an old Scotchman, six feet high, much bent with age, with blue eyes, large features, very pale and white all over his face, and baldheaded, walked up and down the back part of the room; and as the dispute grew furious he (and only he could have done it) would stop and call out, "Mr. Mauder-ator, let us sing 'Salvation,'" and some would strike up and sing the tune, and the men who were in angry debate were cut short; but one by one they joined in, and before they had sung the hymn through they were all calm and quiet. When they resumed the controversy it was on a much lower key. So this good old man walked up and down, and threw a hymn in the quarrel every few moments, and kept the religious antagonists from absolute explosion and fighting. It is the nature of hymns to quell irascible feeling. I think that a man who was mad could not sing six verses through without regaining his temper before he got to the end. You cannot have antagonistic feelings together. If a child is angry, the nurse tries to make him laugh; and he won't. He strives against it, because when the laugh comes, away goes the temper. Our feelings are set like a board on a pivot, and if this end is temper and that end is good humor, when the temper goes up the good humor goes down, or when the good humor goes up the temper goes down. So it is in respect to all the feelings; they exist in opposite pairs; and the way to put down a bad feeling is to find out the feeling which is opposite to it, and stimulate that. This is in accordance with the law of the mind. And the singing of sweet hymns and tunes will go further to cast the devil out of men's minds than any other exorcism which I know of.

As a preparation, then, for religious meetings, sing. As a preparation for the sanctuary and its privileges, sing. As a preparation for self-examination, or as a means of pushing in the worldly stops and drawing out the religious stops of the organ, sing. And let the children sing. Joining in the singing of hymns is eminently profitable.

Such being the power of music, it seems to me that it ought to occupy a much more important place in the realm of instruction. There are those who ask: "What shall make the Sabbath day more acceptable? What shall save the Sabbath day?" If you ever save the Sabbath day, you must make it attractive. You will never drive this great American people into Sunday as into a net. You will never drive men into the Sabbath day as into a prison house. If it opens its cavernous doors, and invites men only to a condition of restraint and formal obedience, they will not enter it. And every American church that would redeem the Sabbath day must do it not by holding up texts badly construed or misreasoned upon. You must make the Sabbath day the sweetest day of the week. Then no argument will be needed to induce men to accept it. If you are not willing to do that, then you should shut your mouth evermore on the subject of desecration of the Sabbath. In every household it is the duty of father and mother to extort from their children, in after years, the testimony that of all the days of the week there was none that they liked so well as Sunday. Of all the days of the week there was none that I liked so little as Sunday when I was a boy. Of all the days of the week now there is none on which I work so much as on Sunday. And if to work on Sunday is to break the Sabbath, then I am one of the greatest Sabbath-breakers, for I work about all day, and sometimes all night. But, after all, it is the joy-day of the whole week to me. And if you would redeem the Sabbath, make it more cheerful in the household. Give it the exhilaration of song. Give it the social element which goes with psalms and hymns. If you do not make the sanctuary on the Sabbath day a place of joy, and not gloom, you cannot express the spirit of such a people as ours; but if you inspire the sanctuary with a noble life of manhood, and with high conceptions that touch the whole range of faculties; if the reason, if the taste, if the moral faculties, if the deeper springs of the soul, are touched, and the mysteries of the world to come are sounded out, and men are thoroughly held, then no house will be large enough for the congregation that will be eager to participate in the services of religion. For under such circumstances religion has the power to make men's sorrows lighter, their joys brighter, and their hopes more rapturous.

When religion is made attractive; when it is made, by singing and other instrumentalities, to appeal to men's best feelings; when it makes the sanctuary a place where men are so happy that they would rather part with their daily bread than the bread of the Lord which they obtain there, then there will be no difficulty in getting men to observe the Sabbath day. Make it better than any other day, and then men will observe it of their own accord. But you cannot dry it, desiccate it, make it a relic of the past, and then get men to bow down to it and respect it. Make it a loving day, a heart-jumping day, a free-thinking day, a day of inspiration and hope, and then you will redeem it.

Let us, then, pray for the days of song. Sing, man; sing, woman. Or, if you cannot sing, make a joyful noise to the Lord. Sing in your house. Sing by the wayside. Sing upon the sea. Sing in the wilderness. Sing always and everywhere. Pray by singing. Recite truths by chanting songs. Sing more in the sanctuary. All of you sing. Sing from city to city, from state to state, and from nation to nation. Let your songs be like deep answering to deep, until that day shall come when the heaven and the earth shall join together, and the grand and final chorus shall roll through the universe; when "the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and his Christ, and He shall reign forever and ever.—Henry Ward Beecher, D. D.

PROHIBITION AND THE HOME

By HOMER W. TOPE, D. D.

State Superintendent of the Pennsylvania
Anti-Saloon League

From the days when skin-clad men and women gathered with their children about the fire in a low-hung, smoky cave, the hearth and the home have been the centers of our racial life. Here are given the first impulses to budding childhood. Here youth has the opportunity to profit by the experience of age. Here those ripe in years make provision for the continuity of life, passing on the torch to generations which succeed them. All human society rests upon the permanent foundation of the home. There is no other institution with which humanity has yet experimented which has even a minor fraction of the influence, value or significance of the home.

Here religion has its largest opportunity. The time is past perhaps, when great religious leaders can write like Paul to Philemon. "Greeting to the Church in thy house," but unless the Church has entered the house, then the Church outside the house is cribbed, cabin'd and confined in narrow limits of influence.

As Henry Ford recently reminded us, "Prohibition began at home with women who wanted better home conditions. They got it and the better home conditions with it." This was not accidental. It is merely what has happened in social and moral movements without end. Society begins its renewal in the smallest and yet the most significant of its units—the individual home. As the new spirit passes from family to family, like a torch passed to light the flames on hearth after hearth, the progressive social movements of the world take their form, eventually to express themselves through larger organization, to eventuate in necessary legislation and, ultimately, to become a part of the accepted social practice of the age.

It was in homes, first, long before prohibition dawned upon the United States, that hostility toward beverage alcohol first was felt. Even in those far distant days when mothers made Nazarites of their sons, pledging them to total abstinence for a period or for a lifetime or with those sons of Jonadab who early became apostles and examples of total abstinence, on down through the ages it has been in the home that antagonism to the destructive forces of alcohol has had its birth and from the home there have gone forth those who have sought the salvation of their fellows from this curse.

Probably there have been few more cynical suggestions ever made than those which are frequently set forth today by the foes of the Eighteenth Amendment who, recalling the bitter popular opposition to any return of the old-time licensed saloon, now suggest the sale of beverages, not to be consumed in some inn or tavern, but to be drunk at home. The pollution of this shrine, the desecration of the primary unit on which civilization is based, the prostitution of the earliest temple of childhood and the cradle of the race seems to weigh less with these bitter foes of civilization's new crusade than does the satisfaction of their own appetite or their greed for the unholy profits to be gained from the traffic in alcoholic beverages. If this is the best alternative these can suggest to our "noble experiment of prohibition" then the fight is well nigh over and the enemy have confessed defeat.

The home has altered greatly since prohibition came. There are exceptions, of course. The word "home brew" has a tragic significance which we dare not and must not under-estimate. The sad example set the younger generation by those who should have profited by the experience that is the fruit of years, not be without its evil effect upon those not yet arrived at the age of citizenship. There is tragedy there. But tragedy is always the exception and not the rule of life. Nor should we ever forget such tragedies are not the result of prohibition. Nor are they so frequent as the countless tragedies that resulted from the licensed sale of intoxicating beverages. There is, however—let us not under-value this truth—a revolution in the American home since the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment. The old-time slump has vanished. The crowded alley tenement is gone. The vilely dirty rooms in which whole families crowded for lack of other lodging have been cleared out. When the saloon disappeared all these vanished with it. They were a part of its shadow. They could flourish only under its wings. Now they are gone and instead of these disgraces to our great cities one finds new homes, clean homes, hopeful homes springing up by the uncounted thousands.

The tremendous boom in home building and in home owning which has characterized the decade since the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment is without parallel in our history. The money which once went over the bar, is now buying cottages or paying rent for proper dwelling places in which children may be reared. Not even the rage to own an automobile, a radio, or a fur coat seems to have affected this passion for the proper setting for a new home life under prohibition.

There is an economic value to all this, of course. Not alone our building trades, but our furniture stores, our retail trade and the whole category of those who provide the raw material out of which a home is built, have felt this new impulse. There is a deeper significance also. A new spirit of hopefulness, a different attitude toward life, the dawn of finer ambitions and that "noble discontent" which makes each generation seek finer things than its predecessors knew or dreamed of, have been among the secondary fruits of this resurgence of the old home building impulse. Out of this has come the desire for a larger education which is driving to the doors of our colleges multitudes of youth who before prohibition would have been doomed to the factory at an early age, limited in their outlook on life, hemmed in hereafter by petty tasks, ill paid and without future. One cannot easily estimate just how far reaching is the influence of those new and higher standards of living made possible for the masses by the Eighteenth Amendment. They permeate our national life so fully and so widely that their effect is incalculable.

The reciprocal relationship between the home and organized society is so intimate that either of these institutions must respond to much that affects the other. Since the Christian home originally developed in a pagan civilization, it was more or less colored by that civilization. Eventually it altered the color in which it was born so that the Mediterranean world was forced to adopt, nominally at least, a faith utterly alien to its own traditions. The sole alternative to this would have been the extinction of Christianity and its replacement by some philosophic system based upon heathenism such as that suggested by Julian, the Apostate. Inevitably the home and organized society must react upon each other while the stronger influence must dominate the weaker one. Homes where ideals are regnant, where self-control is instructive and where self-reverence is assumed as normal, cannot help producing those leaders whose influence reaches far beyond the borders of their own communities.

But there is another side of the picture. A society whose ideals as formally expressed in its legislation are low and which assumes that evil is inevitable and panders to the baser appetites as though these were entitled to the same consideration as man's loftier impulses, will, despite all barriers one may erect, temper the quality of the larger number of homes in such a community. When by law, under the license regime, we were giving to the beverage liquor traffic a quasi-respectable standing, we were by that very act minimizing the effect of all our preaching of Christian doctrine. Our social conduct was the negation of our Christian theory. We were forgetting what Emerson so keenly phrased when he said, "What you are shouts so loudly that I cannot what you say." Between our practice as a social order and our preaching as a religious group, there was a gulf fixed as great as that between Lazarus and Dives.

Much of the evils which accompanied the pre-prohibition period and its over-indulgence in alcoholic beverages were, questionless, due to this false stamp of respectability which we accorded the liquor traffic by our license system. We are heirs today of much of that evil influence. It is lessening. Thank heaven, it is becoming "small by degrees and beautifully less." A great deal of our present trouble is due to this "hang-over" from our past misconduct on this question.

Today the whole atmosphere is different. Liquor once legalized is now clandestine. Once challenging, it is now furtive. Once reaching out its sinister hand even toward the ermine of the bench, while it corrupted voters, office holders, administrators, it today is on the defensive, its back to the wall, its cry, no longer a defiance but a pleading call of "Kamrad." Because there is a bounty on the wolf's scalp, he is seeking to don sheep's clothing and would persuade us of his own sheeplike harmlessness. The influence of the Christian home has conquered.

How long this victory will be maintained depends upon how thoroughly we inform the younger generation of the real issues hidden behind the smoke screen of propaganda issuing steadily from the brewers, the vintners, the liquor group. Eternal vigilance is as much the price of liberty today as when Curran first uttered his immortal dictum. In Pauline phrase, we must stand and "having done all to stand, united, alert, fearless and resolved."

OPTIMISM

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

*Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit;
so shall ye be my disciples.—John 15:8.*

“LEST WE FORGET”

“Not a week, not a day shall pass without an honest effort and an earnest prayer to close this year in the highest honor to God.”

Instructing Delegates

On most of our charges the fourth quarterly conference usually instructs the delegate as to pastoral supply for the ensuing year. This is in harmony with our representative form of government, though there is no law that requires it. Some charges desire to express a choice on this matter through the vote of the congregation. In that way they instruct their representatives in the quarterly conference, as to their wishes. There is no church law regulating this, though it is in perfect order to do it, when a congregation so desires. Whether this expression of the people is given through the congregation, the quarterly conference, or by both, it should represent their wishes. And the only way we can know that it represents their wishes is by their vote. When the matter comes up in the quarterly conference the officials should vote, and not wait until the conference adjourns to have their say. Likewise in the congregational meeting. The time to register a choice is there, and not on the church grounds after the meeting is over. Brethren of the laity, when this matter comes up in your churches and your quarterly conferences, frankly and kindly express your wishes, and then the pastor and the conference will know how to act.

Pastoral Changes

Many times changes need to be made, both from the standpoint of the pastor, and that of the charge. They should always be made gracefully and with no after hurt. However, there should be a reason always for a change. Moving is expensive, and disrupting progress is oft times hurtful, both to the pastor and to the charge. Many fields suffer because pastors do not stay with them long enough to stabilize the work. And it is not infrequent that these changes take place because of personal whims, and conflicts with personal notions. It would hardly seem that the work of the Kingdom should swing upon such a hinge. If your pastor is trying to put on spiritual and progressive programs; if he is seeking to link his charge with conference and denominational purposes; if he is earnestly striving to “make full proof of his ministry,” don’t demand a change just because some personal notion has been offended. And we would suggest to pastors, also, the necessity of patience and prayer before breaking a pastoral relationship. This ministry is given to us in “earthen vessels,” and those to whom we minister are likewise imperfect. Patience, therefore, must “have her perfect work.” Let us pray much during these remaining weeks about our pastoral changes.

Names of Delegates

We can not complete our list of conference committees until the names of delegates are reported to the secretary of the conference, Rev. C. W. Bates. Pastors will please do this at once, so we may complete this part of our conference work.

Do not wait until the alternate is elected by the fourth quarterly conference. Let the name of the delegate go in now, and that of the alternate may follow later. Thank you.

Salaries

Last year only a few charges failed to pay pastor’s salary in full. And enough charges over paid to more than make up, perhaps, for those that did not pay. But of course, the pastor who failed to get his salary was not benefitted by this. We appeal to all churches to see to it that pastors receive the promised salaries. They have been under the necessity of incurring financial obligations during the year, and their only hope of meeting these obligations is the salary. Don’t let them fail, brethren, because this is not paid. Your credit, and their’s, too, is involved.

Vance

October 5-6, Saturday and Sunday.—We were with the Vance Charge on this date. The appointment on Saturday was at Harris’ Chapel, with a preaching service at 11 a. m., dinner on the grounds, and the fourth quarterly conference following at 1:30 p. m. The attendance was good. In the quarterly conference all of the five churches were represented but one. The reports revealed a hopeful condition on the charge. Brother O’Brian has labored faithfully during the ten months that he has served as pastor, and we are sure that he has been a blessing to the work. Revivals have been held at all the churches and fifteen additions made to the rolls. Of the five Sunday Schools on the charge, two contribute monthly to the Children’s Home, and one church, also. Spring Valley reports a better school this year than last. Flat Rock has an active Auxiliary and Aid Society. Spring Valley has a C. E. Society with 25 members. The finances of the charge are considerably in arrears, but we expect this to be greatly changed during these closing weeks. We want Vance to have her place on a number of conference honor rolls. The conference named a committee, with power to act, to provide a parsonage for the charge. We feel confident that this will be done promptly. Most of the money for this purpose is already in hand. The spirit of the conference was encouraging and we believe that the charge is tending toward progress. An adjourned meeting will be held in Henderson on the 26th to close the work of the year.

At 11 a. m. Sunday we had the pleasure of preaching at New Hope Church. The attendance was very good, and we were especially pleased with the large number of promising young people in the congregation. This is the home church of Dr. Fred W. Paschall. We wish that we had his double several times. His father is superintendent of the Sunday School. One of the oldest,—perhaps the ablest—and most faithful members of this church is Mrs. Lucy Watkins. For many years she has been a contributor to current publications. We enjoyed being on this charge and renewing acquaintance with former friends.

Chase City

October 6.—We were here at night, and had the pleasure of preaching before a congregation that was encouragingly large and helpful in attention. This is our first visit to this church. Our impressions are favorable and pleasing. We found a neat and well-constructed church building, though it needs painting on the inside, and no doubt this will be done later. The location is on the state highway from Chase City to Clarksville, and seems to be well chosen. The community is fairly thickly settled, and quite a few of our members are originally Methodist Protestants from North Carolina. The fourth quarterly conference was held at the close of the preaching service and the usual business transacted. The pastor will be paid in full, and the balance on their college assessment, of $20.00, was paid during the quarterly meeting. We must take care of Chase City. It is our hope that a district Rally may be held there next year. Brother O'Briant has served them well, and has them "in his heart." We enjoyed our visit with this church. The pastor and the people on these charges were thoughtful for our comfort, and they are hereby assured of our full appreciation.

Quarterly Conferences

They should always be well attended, and especially is this true of the fourth quarterly conference. Very important plans are made in this conference for the ensuing year, and in order to make them well the charge should be fully represented by its officials. We are scheduled to hold several conferences before the year closes and we urge a full attendance.

Installation

The order for this is on Page 83 of the last conference Journal, which we presume every pastor has. Before the year closes all church officers, including the Sunday School officers, should be properly installed. This is a necessary part of the proper closing of the year's work. When the new conference year begins all the machinery for starting it should be ready to run. The officers are an important part of this "set up." Be sure, then, that they are installed before the year closes.

Appointments

October 9, Wednesday.—West End, in quarterly conference, 7:30 p. m.

October 11, Friday.—Tabernacle charge in quarterly conference. Hour, 1:30 p. m. Same date, Mt. Lebanon Church, Randleman charge, 7:30 p. m.

October 12, Saturday.—Mocksville charge, Elbaville, in quarterly conference. Hour, 2:00 p. m.

October 13, Sunday.—Yadkin College, 11 a. m.; Mt. Carmel, South Lexington charge, 3 p. m.; State St., 7:30 p. m.

October 16, Wednesday.—With Boundary Committee meeting in High Point. Hour, 1:30 p. m., First Church. Thomasville, in quarterly conference. Hour, 7:30 p. m., First Church.

October 16, Wednesday.—Elon College, 10 a. m.

JUST WHY—A WORD TO PASTORS

Just Why—Can't the brethren send in their delegate's credential cards? I still lack thirty of having them all. Cards were sent out three weeks ago. Please, brethren, let us have the name of your delegate so we can complete the list.

Just Why—Can't the brethren send me what is due on Conference Journals? I still owe the book concern some $300. I want to pay up before conference, so we can have next year's Journal published.

Please read the "Report of the Committee to Devise Plan to Publish Journal," found on Page 87 of the 1928 Conference Journal. Try to get your people to pay for the Journals in advance. Let me have a list of those so doing.

We must find some other method than we have been using to finance the Conference Journal. It isn't fair to the concern that prints it to have to wait a year for the money, and there are no funds that can be borrowed to take care of it.

I feel sure, if you will present this matter to each of your churches, you will have no difficulty getting the money to pay for next year's Journal, and everybody concerned will be saved considerable embarrassment.

C. W. BATES, Secretary.

NOTICE OF MEETING OF ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The 102nd annual session of the North Carolina Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church will convene in Calvary Methodist Protestant Church, Greensboro, N. C., November 6, 1929, at 9:30 in the morning. All delegates, ministers and preachers, are expected to be present to answer to the first calling of the roll. It is hoped they will all stay until the last business, which is usually most important, is transacted. Let us come in the spirit of prayer, earnestly desiring the will of the Lord shall be done through us, and His Kingdom advanced.

S. W. TAYLOR, President,
C. W. BATES, Secretary.

OUR STORY PAGE

WHEN GRANDMA RODE THE RUNNER

Little grandma twisted restlessly—not because she was cold. How could she be in quilted hood and homespun cloak, woolen mittens and stockings—and buried, too, beneath wolf-skins? But she had sleighed all day and was tired of sitting still. It was a long way to Great-aunt Ellen's.

"Mother," begged grandma, "may I ride the runner?"

"Of course not," said great-grandmama promptly.

"I'll hold on tight."

"Don't mention it again," said great-grandmama.

With a sigh little grandma snuggled under the robes.

They were mounting Hardscrabble Hill, and Billy stopped to rest. Great-grandmama laid the sleeping baby among the furs and climbed to the front seat besides great-grandpapa. Little grandma kept wanting to ride that runner. Next time Billy stopped for breath she slipped noiselessly from the sleigh and around the back. She stood on the broad runner and grasped the top of the sleigh with both mittens. It was the end of the hill, and Billy started briskly. The runner struck the rut of a cross road. Little grandma's feet bounced into the air, her hands were torn from their hold, and she was flung off into a drift. She lay half stunned by the fall. After a while she picked herself up. The deep snowdrift was soft, and her heavy clothing saved her anything worse than the bump. The sleigh jingled out of hearing. Dazed from the fall, little grandma, instead of keeping straight ahead, turned down the cross road. She listened for sleigh bells and heard a sound faint and musical. She hurried on, but it was only a boy drumming his milk pail.

"Have you seen my sleigh drive by?" cried little grandma hopefully.

"Nobody has been by," answered the boy, staring, as well he might, at the little girl alone at the edge of the evening on the dim road through the forest.

Little grandma sat flat down on the snow and cried. She knew she was lost.

"Mother," shouted the boy, and he ran to the house. His mother came and led little grandma in. She sobbed out her story.

"There, there!" the boy's mother comforted. "We'll take you to your Aunt Ellen's. 'Tisn't far. I wish the horses were here so we could take you now, because your mother will worry."

"I can carry her," interrupted the boy, "with Star. If I go the short cut through the woods, we'll be there almost as soon as her mother."

"It's nearly night, John," his mother hesitated, "and Star is so slow. It will be dark before you get home."

"I'm not afraid," said John sturdily, and he was off to the barn. He came back in a tinkle of bells, driving Star.

"Why, it's a cow!" cried little grandma in astonishment.

John laughed proudly. "Trained her myself," he said, as they tucked themselves into a mite of a sleigh.

"She's a year and a half old. Father gave her to me when she was a calf, and I broke her. Get up, Star." He took the reins, and the heifer started obediently. "She's slow, but safe. There's a wagon for summer. Star's broke to saddle, too."

"How old are you?" asked little grandma respectfully.

"Nine," said John.

"Was she hard to teach?"

"It took quite a while. I never used whip nor goad. Just coaxed her with apples and maple sugar."

Little grandma wasn't missed from the big sleigh. Her mother glanced back often to make sure the baby was all right; and when she didn't see little grandma, she supposed her cuddled under the robes to keep warm. At Great-aunt Ellen's everybody trooped out to greet them—so many that in the confusion one little girl more or less didn't count.

"Why didn't you bring one of the other children, too?" Great-aunt Ellen asked, hugging the baby.

"I did," answered great-grandmama, surprised. "Haven't you seen her?"

Then it was discovered that nobody had seen her.

"She must be in the sleigh asleep."

Her father lighted a lantern and went to the barn. He shook each robe. He searched under both seats. When he came in, he looked pale. "She isn't there," he cried.

Then every one was frightened.

"Could she have fallen out?"

Tinkling bells brought them to the door.

"Oh, she's there! She's found!" cried grandma's mother joyfully, the first to see her, and thanked John over and over for bringing her.

"I'll never ride a runner again," promised remorseful little grandma, gratefully feeding Star a big lump of maple sugar.

John's pockets were filled with apples for himself, and then John and Star jingled merrily down the dark woods road.—Canadian Churchman.

when He died He would have passed to the state of the uncommunicative dead. But death did not end His relation to men in this world. It brought Him into a new and more intimate relationship. You must try it for yourself to realize what it means to your spiritual progress and find what deep peace and pure joy there is in it. Jesus is still carrying on in this world, trying to bring to everlasting salvation every soul He died to redeem. He has given to men hopes far transcending those awakened by a prospect of the greatest and most long-continued worldly prosperity. Before, death was the gloomy, saddening end of all our hopes. Now, death is the beginning of a new series of hopes inconceivably glorious.

Matchless character in human history! Son of Man and Son of God, able to sympathize with us and able to give us infinite help! Our Strong Elder Brother! Our daily and nightly Companion—the Friend that sticketh closer than a brother! The Man that died for us! When we learn to realize His presence, enter fully into His spirit and purpose, life is exalted and glorified. We are ready to exclaim, happy the people that can claim Him as their own in any peculiar sense. When He said, "Salvation is of the Jews," He gave to the Jews their highest credential as the people of God. By His perfect fulfillment of the law of God given to the Jews He brought it to pass that salvation is indeed of the Jews. Great is their debt to Him and great is our debt to them.

The Leader's Talk

What is prayer? Prayer is the unused power or function for the cultivation of the soul—a function for communion with God. If we fail to avail ourselves of this function we lose the best things in life. Those who have cultivated this unseen force have more power in the world of spiritual reality.

In any form of true worship we find that at the heart of it is prayer. In prayer we need not always call attention to our own sins but seek to make God's will our own after trying to find His will. Then if this be true, prayer is life, the expression of our character. We need to be persistent in prayer for we are persistent in those things which hold the supreme place in our lives.

Prayer alone, however, will not avail all. We must be willing to go down from the mountain of prayer into the valley of service. There are five elements in relation to the word "acts": adoration, confession, thanksgiving, supplication, submission to His will. These should be in every prayer. May we strive to pray more earnestly and to be willing to support our prayers with deeds of service.

Topics

1. Silent and public prayer.
2. Sentence prayer.
3. Written and directed prayer.
4. The Lord's Prayer.
5. The "Thy will be done" prayer.
6. The quiet hour—pledge, its meaning.

Questions

1. How does life teach us to pray?
2. Why are some of our prayers not answered and how may we know if our prayer is legitimate?
3. What is your most effective argument for prayer?
4. In what way may we know what we are to pray for?
5. Why is prayer such a drawing factor?
6. What is the place of public prayer?

Quotations

You cannot make me doubt anything regarding the full salvation and answer to prayer; for God is the God who will answer prayer, and who will hold us up if we will only look to Him and to Him alone.—Alvin C. York.

Life is so ordered that we are taught to pray. Its darkness drives us to the Father for light and help. Its loneliness sends us to Him for comfort. Prayer is communion, just talking with God—not always asking for things.—Ward.

Every true desire in the heart of a Christian finds response in the heart of God. He says yes, or no, or wait a while.—Norman MacLeod.

Poetry to the Point

Prayer is the soul's sincere desire,

Uttered or unexpressed;

The motion of a hidden fire

That trembles in the breast.

Prayer is the simplest form of speech,

That infant lips can try;

Prayer the sublimest strains that reach

The Majesty on high.

Prayer is the Christian's vital breath,

The Christian's native air,

His watchword at the gates of death;

He enters heaven with prayer.

O Thou, by whom we come to God,

The Life, the Truth, the Way,

The path of prayer Thyself hast trod,

Lord, teach us how to pray.

—James Montgomery.

More things are wrought by prayer

Than this world dreams of. Wherefore let thy voice

Rise like a fountain for me night and day.

For what are men better than sheep and goats

That nourish a blind life within the brain,

If, knowing God, they lift not hands of prayer

Both for themselves and those who call them friends?

For so the whole round earth is every way

Bound by gold chains about the feet of God.

—Tennyson, Morte D'Arthur.

OLD YADKIN

I mean the bell. "Old Yadkin" is its new name. For half a century—probably longer—it "rang in and rang out" at Yadkin College. Numbers of men and women here and there over North Carolina, and some in other states, can even now hear the tones of this fine old bell ringing in their ears. One of the things that they can't forget, when they were students at Yadkin, is the old bell. And they want it to ring on and on and on. Its tones are too clear and far-reaching to be silenced. It has, therefore, been taken down to High Point College, and is "ringing in and ringing out" there for the boys and girls of a new generation and a new age. On Thursday, October 17, "Founder's Day" at High Point, this old bell is to be formally installed in its new field of service. Attorney E. E. Raper, and Attorney Z. I. Walser, graduates of Yadkin College, will honor this occasion by their presence and their addresses. All friends and former students of Yadkin and all friends and students of High Point are most cordially invited to be present. We want to make this a notable day for both the new and the old. "Old Yadkin" will ring the hopes and aspirations of one and the past glory of the other. On to "Founder's Day," and the installation of "Old Yadkin!"

G. L. CURRY.

October 9, 1929.

HIGH POINT COLLEGE ITEMS

Founder's Day will be observed Thursday, October 17. The program will begin at 10:30 a. m., consisting of special music and an address by the Hon. E. E. Raper, of Lexington. Mr. Raper is an alumnus of Yadkin College, and it is the hope of the administration that a large number of the former students of Yadkin College will be present at this meeting. "Old Yadkin," the bell used by that institution, will be formally presented to the college. It is also the hope of Rev. G. L. Curry, who has been interested in the installation of the bell, that an organization of the former students may be perfected at this time.

But aside from the featuring of Yadkin College, we hope to have present a large number of the alumni and friends of High Point College at this time. Classes will be suspended for the day at 10:30. Remember the day and the hour and come.

R. M. ANDREWS.

DISCONTENT IN PRISON

Our big problem is this discontent in our prisons. Hardly a day passes that prisoners don't show some little outward sign of uneasiness, such as shooting a few guards, burning some buildings, and giving some hint that they want to participate in this era of prosperity, through which we are struggling to make both ends meet. It just looks like the boys in there don't appreciate how fortunate they are, to have no installment payments to meet.

The next political campaign is liable to be based on, "Bigger and better jails, for bigger and better prisoners, a satisfied prisoner means a satisfied nation."

Personally, I would like to see 'em all turned out as I have always felt we had the wrong bunch in there.

Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Friendship-Porter.—Our Friendship people made some improvement on the church, and the Ladies' Aid have done many nice things for which they should be praised. We haven't words to tell them how much we appreciate the nice dining room suite, also the beautiful floor covering, the handy wardrobe placed in our bed room, and all the table supplies, for all such help to make the pastor and family feel good. You see if you clothe, feed, and make the preacher comfortable, he can bring his congregation better food. We will talk to the Lord about them.

Our special meeting began here at Friendship the first Sunday in August. Rev. Robert Short did the preaching for us. We also made that home-coming day. We had a special in singing. The Palmer Sisters, Surratt Quartet, and Mr. Daniel Hatley from Spencer gave us some good solos. You see we had good preaching, singing, and a good time together. Here we extend a word of welcome to all to come this way again. Our meeting continued until Friday night. Bro. Short brought us good messages, and there was one soul saved. Not the visible results that we hoped for, but we never can tell, for we feel assured there was some seed sown in good ground.

Our special meeting began at Porter the fourth Sunday in August. At the request of the people I did the preaching. We held prayer services each day, conducted by different members of our church, and other denominations; we all came together; it pleased the Lord, and our souls were filled with joy. There were nine conversion, six united with the church. Since the meeting we have organized a Christian Endeavor Society. They believe in going forward, and climbing higher. Before the meeting they had their church lit up with electricity. It sure does add to the church. This is a loyal little band. At the close of the meeting they made Mrs. Hill a present of fourteen dollars. We do not have the words with which to express our appreciation, so we just tell them that we have our hearts full of love for them that will never fade away, and ask God to shower blessings on each one.

We have held our third quarterly meeting. Mr. J. H. Harkey was elected delegate at Friendship and Mr. J. L. Cauble at Porter. They both go by the name of Jonah. Can any other preacher present two delegates of the same name?

Our fourth quarterly meeting will be held at Porter at 1 o'clock on Saturday before the third Sunday in this month, and here at Friendship at 7:30. C. H. HILL.

Hawkins Chapel, Littleton Charge.—We were pleased to have the First District Rally conduct its program at this church on Sunday, September 29th.

The day was ideal in this section, and Chairman Auman declared the Rally a success. The following charges were represented: Littleton, Halifax, Whitakers, Enfield and Spring Church.

Creswell and Greenville not being represented.

The ministers in attendance were Dr. Johnson, Chairman Auman, Bros. Spencer, Shelton, Thompson and Pastor Smith.

There were several subjects effectively discussed and we believe the splendid addresses delivered will create an impression that will eventually bring forth fruit. We were glad to see the ministers and representatives from these charges, and appreciate the honor of their presence.

Our financial condition is not very satisfactory as this conference year draws to a close, but we will do what we can to relieve the situation.

REPORTER.

Gillburg Church, Vance Charge.—In the fourth Sunday in September the revival started at our church. In the morning the pastor, Rev. J. B. O'Brian, preached a good and interesting sermon. Due to bad weather there were no services that night. On Monday afternoon, our helper, Rev. J. Clyde Auman, was there. The first of the week the crowds were very small as the weather was so bad. However we had good preaching and on throughout the week. Although there were not any to unite with the church there were a good many renewals and we feel like much good was accomplished.

Friday night Mr. Auman helped us organize a Christian Endeavor Society. A lot of the members came forward, especially the young people, eager to organize and we are hoping that it will be a big success.

ALMA POYTHRESS, Reporter.

Forsyth.—We have held all our revivals. Rev. L. E. Ballard was with us at Hickory Ridge, Rev. D. R. Williams at Mt. Carmel, Rev. M. P. Chambliss at Maple Springs, Rev. M. Meyers of the Baptist Church, at Oak Grove. All of these men rendered fine service and as a result four members were received at Mt. Carmel, three at Hickory Ridge, and eight at Maple Springs.

This year has been one for very good attendance, both at Sunday School and church services.

Finances are not up to date on our charge, two of the churches being very much behind. However, we think the good work of the stewards will make things look different by the fifteenth of October.

Two of our churches have made improvements during the year. A kitchen sink has been given the parsonage by Mrs. Eugene Kiger and Miss Flora Kiger. Many kindnesses have been shown to us this year by members and friends we greatly appreciate.

The papers on "The Country Church" offer some good suggestions. The one written by Rev. E. A. Bingham, though not in the contest, is full of practical help for us all. Let's read it again.

I hope those who contemplate some boundary change on their charge will not forget to let the boundary committee know before conference.

Our delegates to the annual conference will be Mr. Luther Shields, of the Mt. Carmel Church.

Hoping that we may have a fine conference full of good reports. R. C. STUBBINS.

Union Grove, Orange.—Our pastor filled his appointment Sunday with a very good-sized congregation. After preaching, officers for the church were elected and the church book revised.

We have two more appointments before Annual Conference meets. We hope that all claims will be paid. We hope that Bro. Williams will come back to us another year.

The Ladies' Missionary Society met last third Sunday afternoon and officers were elected for the coming year, as follows: Mrs. J. M. Lloyd, president; Mrs. H. N. Blackwood, vice-president; Mrs. L. C. Davis, secretary; Miss Eleanor Craig, treasurer. The society meets again the third Sunday afternoon after church service. We hope that all that can will attend. MRS. L. C. DAVIS, Reporter.

West Forsyth.—The fourth quarterly conference will be held at Union Hill church on Saturday before the fourth Sunday in October. There will be preaching at 11 o'clock by Rev. A. L. Hunter, pastor of the Pinnacle charge. Dinner will be provided by the Union Hill church and the business session of the conference will begin at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Every official member of the six church on the charge is urged to attend the conference and the members of the different churches are invited to be present. Brethren, let's work hard from now until the meeting of the quarterly conference and make a special effort to have all of the finances of the charge paid by that time, so the pastor can carry a good report to the Annual Conference. C. B. WAX, Pastor.

October 7, 1929.

Tabernacle Charge.—Rally Day was observed at both churches on this charge last Sunday with large congregations present. Rev. Lawrence Little was the speaker at both places and his addresses were instructive and inspiring. It was a pleasure to pastor and people to have Rev. and Mrs. Little with us for the day. Among the visitors at Tabernacle was Rev. J. F. McCulloch, D. D., of Greensboro.

This week has been designated as Harvest Home Week for Tabernacle church. Mrs. G. A. Garrett, Mrs. Christopher Fields, Mrs. Glenn Coble, and Mrs. Cyrus Fields were appointed as a committee to arrange for a pounding for the Children's Home. Every member is requested to give something to the Home.

Mrs. Christopher Fields recently joined Tabernacle church by certificate, coming from Alamance Presbyterian church. We were glad indeed to receive this good woman into our fellowship. Two new members also united with Julian church last Sunday night, making 14 additions to this church during the year.

Bro. C. M. Fields, our efficient Sunday school superintendent at Tabernacle, has recovered from his recent illness. He was back at his post of duty last Sunday.

We are sorry to report the serious illness of Bro. T. G. Coble, one of our faithful Julian members living in Greensboro.

We desire to thank the following for donations: Bro. Arthur Coble, Dan Smith, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hanner, Mr. and Mrs. John Burrow, Mr. Charlie Holt, Mrs. P. R. Blackard, Mr. Arthur Causey, Mr. Lewis Jones, and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hanner.

H. L. ISLEY.

First Church, Burlington.—We are in the midst of our fall revival. Bro. Gerringer, our pastor, is doing the preaching and is giving us messages of power and inspiration. We feel that the services of the past week have just been preparatory to the real meeting and we are hoping and praying that we may see many unsaved people come to the Savior during the remaining days of the revival.

Attendance at Sunday school today was 307, showing an increase of 35 over the previous Sunday. Offering in the amount of $18.18, which goes to the Children's Home as the first Sunday's offering.

We regret to have Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Fridde move from our community. They are now living in Greensboro and are worshipping with the Calvary congregation. These good people were faithful to First church and we feel sure they will be loyal in supporting whatever church they choose to attend in their new home. L. A. BRAXTON.

Cid, Denton Charge.—It will not be long until Annual Conference. Our pastor, Rev. E. A. Bingham, brought on yesterday a most wonderful message from Matt. 11:29. He explained these words of Jesus. A good-sized congregation, was present. Hope this message will find its way into some sin-sick soul. For the last several months he has improved in his delivery so much. He has been giving us service on every second Sunday night. He has served us so faithfully and we highly appreciate it.

We certainly did enjoy reading of some of our former pastors having such good results in their meetings. Those of Bro. Robert Short and Bro. Edmund Ridge; they were hard to beat. Our Sunday school is getting along real well.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Wright are all smiles—a daughter.

There will be preaching at Cid next Sunday night at early candle-light.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kindley are faithful to help us out at Cid. We appreciate it.

MRS. N. W. LANIER, Reporter.

Elbaville, Mocksville Circuit.—Our attendance at Sunday school Sunday morning was unusually fine. Much interest is being taken in the school. We are glad to say that our school has prospered much during this Conference year. Our pastor, Rev. J. W. Braxton, delivered to his hearers Sunday morning a delightful sermon, which was enjoyed by all. The theme, "A Closer Walk With God." Scripture, Psalm 42.

Our church has made much progress since our pastor has been with us. We want to thank Conference for sending us a young man with such inspiring ability. We feel that there could have never been another who could have so touched the hearts and lives of the young. He is leaving inspirations and thoughts upon their lives that will never be forgotten.

What our Christian Endeavor is today we owe it all, first to God, second to our pastor. The society is progressing nicely. Since last report we have had one social, at which the young people were much overwhelmed with joy. This being our first social it was held at the home of the president, Miss Laura Shutt.

Our Ladies' Aid is still in full sway for the up-building of God's kingdom.

There are only six more weeks of this Conference year. The fourth quarterly conference will be held here Saturday, October 12, at 2 p. m. We are glad to announce that Dr. Taylor will be with us at that time. Members are urged to attend.

We ask the prayer of all Christian people that we may do more for the Master, who maketh and giveth all things.

As Conference will soon be here, we hope for our pastor a report from this field that neither we nor the Conference will be ashamed of.

STELLA BAILEY, Reporter.

Davidson.—Had fine services at Lineberry and Pleasant Grove Sunday. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered and the large number of old and young that partook was gratifying.

We elected officers at the above places. Our young Bro. Ernest Smith was elected Sunday school superintendent at Lineberry and another young man, Grady Surratt, at Pleasant Grove. These are young men of promise and we predict a year of great progress in the Sunday school work.

It has been said of old that a new suit given to the pastor just before Conference means a change of pastors, but this scribe wants to know what meaneth the new pair of shoes that he has been made the happy recipient of. Mrs. Virgie Wood and Cottie Morris, both daughters of Rev. Robert Short, were the promoters of this splendid gift; preacher's daughters know how to make way into the hearts of pastors. To them and all who made possible this gift we are profoundly grateful.

Another appreciated gift comes from Bro. Lindsey Lanier. Any preacher might be justly proud of such a gift. Many and profuse have been the kindnesses shown us since Mrs. Reed has been in the hospital, for which we are very grateful.

And now we are grieved at the serious illness of our good Bro. Alex Loflin, who for years has been the mainstay in Pleasant Grove church. We pray for his recovery.

W. D. REED.

Albemarle.—One of the most tragic deaths ever to have occurred in our midst was that of Mrs. S. R. Green, on September 26. Mrs. Green with her brother, P. J. Huneycutt, of this place, had started to see some of their relatives at Stanfield after supper Thursday night, when something happened to the car, causing the lights to go out. They decided to return to Albemarle, and had come as far as Pine Grove church, about four miles from here, when Mrs. Green became excited and told her brother to stop, but before he could do so, she had either fallen or jumped from the car. He stopped the car as quickly as possible and with the aid of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Hutchins and A. S. Burleson, who were passing, they located Mrs. Green about 50 feet from the car with her head lying just inside the pavement and her body on the dirt road that leads to the church. She was rushed immediately to the Yadkin Hospital, but never regain consciousness, and died in about an hour.

Mrs. Green in her daily life was all that a true Christian should be. Her meekness of spirit, kindness of heart, and loving disposition endeared her to all with whom she came in contact. She was always cheerful and happy, it seemed, and just to be with her for a while always inspired one to higher, nobler things of life. Her greatest joy was in the work of her Master, and she was always at her place in the church services unless providentially hindered. In her going, we feel that we have lost one whose life was a shining light in our midst, and the influence she wrought for good will long be remembered in our hearts.

The funeral was held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the church, and the vast crowds that attended was a testimony to the love and esteem in which she was held by those who knew her. The floral offerings were many and beautiful, it taking half a dozen cars or more to carry them. A special selection was sung by the male quartet of the church, and Mrs. Hobert Morton sang a soprano solo.

J. D. Gantt, son of J. E. Gantt, is confined to his bed with very painful injuries which were sustained during a football game at the school. It is not thought, however, that it will prove to be of a very serious nature, and we are hoping that he may soon be out again.

C. E. Lowder is convalescing after an operation for appendicitis. A telephone call informs us that he is rapidly regaining his strength, and hopes to be back at church in a week or two.

Our Sunday school is growing by leaps and bounds. Last Sunday we had a total of 194 in the school, and we are trying to go over the 200 mark before cold weather begins to induce some to stay at home.

Rev. J. L. Trollinger and family, of Brown Summit, attended the funeral of Mrs. Green. We were glad indeed to see them again, although under sorrowful circumstances.

MRS. JOHN U. WHITLOCK, Reporter.

High Point. At the morning hour for worship last Sunday a quartette, composed of Mesdames Allred and Briggs, Messrs. Harris and Fidler, sang "O Be Joyful" very beautifully, and the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, delivered an eloquent and earnest sermon on the subject, "Sacrificing Near Egypt," using as a basis for his discourse Pharaoh's words to Moses after his request to be allowed to leave Egypt: "I will let you go that you may sacrifice to the Lord your God in the wilderness, only you shall not go very far away." That indecisive attitude, the sin of neutrality, is more often a disgrace than a virtue. Can we afford to be neutral on the important questions of the day? The man or woman, young or old, who has no settled convictions about life, lives always in the valley of the commonplace. In the spiritual realm no decision is a wrong decision. To every one who has reached the age of responsibility there come moments when we must decide vital questions. No decision relative to our service in church work is wrong. A lot of people stray into sin without knowing why. Jesus said: "He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad. No half-hearted service in the kingdom of God brings victory. John Bunyan's Mr. Facing-Both-Ways was not a Christian at all. No man can serve two masters. Christianity must be all or none of life; any attempt to cheat God is wrong. John the Revelator said to the church at Lasdiece, "I would to God that you were hot or cold." Wholehearted Christianity is virile and contagious. Look at the large army of strong, powerful, masculine men who profess it. It is cowardly to drift along with the tide. We must leave the unbelieving, be a separate people, retire into the presence of God, and enter into communion with Him. What we do with the kingdom of Christ must be decided now.

At the evening service the minister delivered the initial sermon of a series for the month of October on "Bible Questions Often Misunderstood." At this time he spoke on "Bearing Crosses," which was a very helpful discourse. The topic for next Sunday evening will be "The Unpardonable Sin." At last Sunday's evening service Rev. E. Lester Ballard sang "A Vision," by Bond, with beautiful effect.

The executive board of the Woman's Auxiliary held an enthusiastic meeting Monday afternoon with 19 members present. Mrs. S. S. Coe presided, and the program for October as given in the Yearbook was presented. A motion that all members of the Auxiliary purchase Yearbooks for their individual use was carried. Plans for the bazaar, which will be held October 31st in the assembly room, were announced by Mrs. Ben Moore, chairman. Two meals will be served, tickets for which will be sold previously at 60 cents per plate, and various articles of embroidery, crochet, and fancy-work besides children's handmade clothes and various articles suitable for Christmas presents, potted plants, flowers and seeds, jelly, canned fruit, etc., will be displayed for sale. The treasurer reported a balance in the treasury of $130.00, after paying $100.00 to the College Scholarship Loan Fund, $40.00 for September thank-offering, $50.00 to Mrs. Taylor for general fund and $50.00 for our monthly pledge to Mr. J. S. Pickett, treasurer building fund. The general Auxiliary meeting will be held next Monday afternoon at the handsome home of Mrs. C. C. Robbins, south of the city. Circle No. 7, Mrs. Ben T. Moore, chairman, volunteered to furnish flowers for the pulpit each remaining Sunday of October.

The first fall meeting of the Men's Brotherhood will be held Thursday evening at the church at 6:45 o'clock, when a worth-while program will be presented and supper served by a group of the Auxiliary members.

High Point will lose two most prominent and useful ministers, Rev. Chas. P. Coble, of the Presbyterian church, and Dr. L. T. Wilson, of the First Baptist church, having announced their resignations within the week. Dr. Wilson came here four years ago from Nashville, Tenn., and has added 700 to the membership in that time. He will go to Lakeland, Fla., December 1st, to become pastor of a prominent church there. Rev. Mr. Coble, a native of Guilford County, has been pastor of the Presbyterian church for 16 years, and during that time the congregation has erected the most imposing and handsome church in the city. He is a consistent and consecrated Christian gentleman of the highest type, and the relations between his church and ours have always been most friendly and cordial. It is with the deepest regret that we have learned of the departure of these earnest, outstanding leaders of their respective denominations from our city.

We are greatly pleased to know that Mrs. Juanita Moffitt Cox is improving in a satisfactory manner from a recent serious operation at High Point Hospital, and in a short time will be able to be removed to her home.

The senior class of High Point College has decided to present as their memorial gift to the college 10 cement lawn benches, a sundial, bird-bath and crystal gazer for the campus. This will be a timely and appropriate gift, which will add greatly to the attractiveness of the campus.

Misses Helen Hayes, of Henderson, and Virginia Pickens, who are teachers in the Asheboro graded school, spent the last weekend in the city.

Mrs. R. T. Pickens and daughters will go to Asheboro Saturday evening, October 12, to attend the wedding of her niece, Miss Adelaide Armfield and Mr. John Hunter, Jr., of Winston-Salem, which will be an elaborate social event in the M. E. church, followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Armfield.

Midway, Haw River Circuit.—Mr. Trollinger has filled all his appointments at this place, and filled them well. This Conference year is fast coming to a close; we hope that he can go with a good report, and that Conference can see fit to return him.

The second Sunday in last month the County Sunday school convention was held at this place. A large crowd attended and enjoyed the good talks made.

Our Sunday school is moving along nicely, with very good attendance and much interest.

The young people meet in Christian Endeavor each Sunday night with very good attendance. The C. E. social was held last month in the home of the writer.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

MRS. G. W. APPLE, Reporter.

Bethel, Mocksville Circuit.—It has been some time since you have heard from Bethel through the Herald. This report will cover about three months. We have been busy, if we have not made much progress. The Sunday school is doing fine. We held Children's Day services in August. It was functioned by Mrs. Willie Foster. It was given by the little ones and they did fine. Collection, $5.

The fifth Sunday in June we had the District Rally. The devotional was conducted by Rev. N. G. Bethea, followed by a number of other preachers, Sunday school superintendents and workers. The talks made by different ones on the phases of work, such as organization, good leadership, etc., were splendid. The singing of solos, duets, and quartets was fine. The entire day was filled with good things.

The third quarterly conference met on July 6 at Dulins church. All churches were represented. Mr. C. S. Summers was elected delegate to Annual Conference.

The revival meeting was held August 18. Bro. Glenn Madison came on Monday and did the preaching until the close on Friday night. The attendance and interest was good all through the meeting. I am sure all appreciate Bro. Madison's work to the fullest extent. We had several conversions and reclamations, with one accession.

The Ladies' Aid is still very busy in doing what it can toward raising money for the erection of our Sunday school rooms.

The C. E. Society is still growing. While it is composed of the young, the older ones are interested and help them.

Our fourth quarterly conference will be held Saturday, October 12, at Elbaville. Bro. Taylor will be with us. Glad to have him. We hope all the churches will be represented and have good reports.

Our young people are scattering. We miss them so much. Miss Elva Cartner and Billie Howard are in High Point College; Hubert and Glenn Cartner at State; Robert Crofts in Raleigh, and our pastor, J. W. Braxton, at Duke. Six leaving at one time when we have so few hurts. We feel our loss is their gain.

Success to the Herald.

REPORTER.

Spring Hill, West Thomasville Charge.—The series of meetings came to a close Friday night. Bro. Curry brought some inspiring and reviving messages. All feel very thankful for the good he accomplished. There were six professions and five joined the church.

Rev. T. J. Whitehead filled his appointment Sunday morning with an interesting sermon on "Essence of Religion." He said in part that the real thing of religion is uprightness and serving the true God. The things that people offer and do are merely expressions of religion. Pilate crucified Christ because He did not follow their doctrines. The world today wants justice. Are we just to our fellowman and are we as church members just? Jesus said return good for evil. Essences of religion are love and helpfulness to our fellowmen.

Miss Bessie Swaim gave a picnic at her home for her class of little boys and girls Saturday afternoon. There were 37 present. They had lots of fun and a beautiful table.

Forty-eight new chairs have been placed in the choir and electric lights have been connected since our last report. For these we are very thankful.

The people of the community met the 28th and cleaned off the cemetery and worked on the church grounds.

REPORTER.

Mount Lebanon, Randleman.—Our special meeting which has been in session for ten days, came to a close October 1. Rev. M. C. Henderson, of Cherryville, did the preaching. He preached some very forceful sermons, which were greatly appreciated by the large congregations attending. All the churches of the town joined in and helped to make this a great meeting. There were 17 converts. Six persons have expressed the desire to unite with the church.

The revival services began at Level Cross the first Sunday in October. Bro. G. F. Mil-laway is doing the preaching.

Attendance at Sunday school Sunday was 101, with $5.58 collection.

On Saturday afternoon and night the Ladies' Aid Society held its annual Dahlia Show and supper. Prizes on flowers were not offered this year, but the Dahlias were never more beautiful.

We received from the supper $91.34. Our expenses were $11.35, leaving a profit of $79.99. Miss Mattie Julian is our president and deserves much credit for the work done during the year. Each member, too, has done her best.

The fourth quarterly conference will be held at Mount Lebanon Friday evening, October 11th, at 7:30. It is hoped that all churches will be well represented.

Conference will soon be here and we hope to have our church debts paid in full. The end of the year is a good time to show our pastor how much we appreciate him; (that is if we have not already done so). So let's send him up to Conference with a report that he'll be proud to read and the president glad to hear.

REPORTER.

Draper.—Our church is improving. Everybody enjoyed the sermon last Sunday night. We had a rally day program last Sunday morning and everybody enjoyed it. Songs and recitations were enjoyed by all who were there. Mrs. W. M. Keaton and Mrs. Nora Chilton and Mrs. W. H. Troxler got up the program. Mr. Lewis Craig read the scripture lesson. Our pastor, Rev. W. T. Totten, made a good talk. Mr. Jasper Combs led the first prayer.

REPORTER.

Thomasville.—Our Sunday school is going steadily forward. Attendance was off somewhat in Christian Endeavor Sunday night, but we are looking forward to a larger number next Sunday night.

An Auxiliary has recently been organized in our church. The officers for this organization are as follows: Mrs. J. W. Baity, president; Mrs. Ella Williams, secretary; Mrs. D. R. Connell, treasurer. The officers for Circle No. 1 are: Mrs. A. H. Ragan, president; Mrs. Hedrick, treasurer, and Mrs. Blanche Loftin, secretary. The reporter was elected president of Circle No. 2 and she appoints her officers.

Our revival started the fourth Sunday in September and closed last Thursday night. Rev. M. P. Chambliss helped our pastor during this meeting. We were very glad to have him with us, for he delivered some fine sermons. Every one, I believe, who attended these services received some good from them. On the fifth Sunday night Mr. Chambliss preached to the children. He made so plain to them the difference between the good life and the bad life that 25 of them gave their hearts to Christ. We want to thank the Thomasville Male Chorus for their splendid music and we extend to them a cordial invitation to visit us at any time.

We are glad to know that Mr. Powell, our pastor, is feeling better than he did last week.

Mrs. S. R. Westmoreland is at home from the hospital. We will be glad to see her in her old place at the church again.

JUANITA DORSETT, Reporter.

NOTICE

Those in the first-year course will notice that "Ministerial Ethics and Etiquette" has been added by the faculty, though it is not listed among the first-year books in Journal. Examination on this book will be given on the night preceding the opening of the Conference.

R. C. STUBBINS.

KENTUCKY—PINE RIDGE

Our program has been very full indeed since the opening of school. The first two weeks of school are always busy times, but this year we are trying to complete the installation of our water and sewerage system, our plumber friend unexpectedly quit the job and so we are in a very upset condition, consequently, the burden was much greater.

September 10, we had 118 guests for dinner besides our own school family of about the same number. The Chamber of Commerce of Winchester, Kentucky arranged for a Good Will Tour over our new road and by previous arrangement, they stopped with us for dinner. Before leaving us their twenty-two piece band played several selections; two very encouraging and interesting speeches were made by visitors and the Superintendent of Alvan Drew was also given a hearing, followed by singing and yelling by our students; souvenirs were generously distributed by our guests then they went on leaving us very happy.

September 11, to 20, we had a very interesting series of Evangelistic meetings, Rev. F. K. Barss of Arlington, Ohio, being the principal speaker. He brought us messages every morning at chapel, and every evening in our high school auditorium. On Sunday, we had an all day meeting in our tabernacle with quite a number of visitors from surrounding communities. In many of the meetings there was a very definite manifestation of spiritual power and there were many who renewed and deepened their consecration and quite a number who for the first time made their surrender to the Lord. Bro. Barss and his good wife endeared themselves to our folk and we all appreciate their splendid interest.

September 20th, our annual school and Community Fair was held in A. D. S. buildings. There were four nearby schools besides ours represented. Prizes were given for the best exhibit of school work, singing, hog and chicken calling, running, etc. There was also an interesting exhibit of farm products. Dr. Taylor, a very capable representative of Berea College, Kentucky, was present and made a very excellent address.

September 21 and 22, Superintendent of A. D. S. visited in Estill county, about thirty miles from Pine Ridge. In a certain section of that county there are five of our former students, four of them graduates of Alvan Drew school, teaching public schools—Mr. and Mrs. Luther Patrick, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Callihan and Joseph Elkin. I had the privilege of preaching in two churches of that community where these young people are co-operating and making their lives count for much good.

September 25 and 26, I saw sights that made my heart glad. We had arranged with the Kentucky Board of Health to hold a clinic at Pine Ridge. Everybody and everything connected with Alvan Drew school was put at the disposal of those in charge. Dr. C. B. Kobert with a secretary and a trained nurse from the State Department, and Dr. J. L. Cox and another nurse of our county were in charge. People came from many different sections of the county and some outside of our county, for examination, advice and treatment. There were seventy-six operations for removal of adenoids and tonsils and one for trachoma. For two days and nights we turned the auditorium of our grade school building into a hospital. Expressions of satisfaction and appreciation were heard from many. One father said to me, "I would not have them tonsils back in my boy's throat for two hundred dollars in gold." Dr. Kobert and others commended Alvan Drew school very highly for our part in the undertaking, especially the fine spirit of helpfulness shown by our students.

September 29 th. A sacred concert by a twenty-eight piece band from Winchester. Shortly after the Good Will Tour made by our Winchester friends, the chairman of the committee in charge informed me by phone that they had some money left after paying all expenses on that trip and the leader of the band had suggested that they go back to Alvan Drew school and give the folks of that community a sacred concert on Sunday afternoon. We had frequent showers that day which greatly interfered, but the band came and gave us some wonderful music and in spite of the rain, there were more automobiles here than we ever saw before at one time at Pine Ridge. So it goes. Will you believe me when I tell you we have been in a rush?

Next on the program—I am planning, in response to invitations, to visit Winchester tomorrow to speak at ten A. M., to faculty and students of Kentucky Wesleyan College of the M. E. Church, South, and at 12:15 to the Chamber of Commerce and Rotary Club and business men of the city. They want me to tell them the story of Pine Ridge and I greatly appreciate the opportunity.

Pray for God's continued leading and blessing in the work.

THOS. R. WOODFORD, Supt.

NOISE

Noise, noise, noise, noise,
Noise that murders peace and poise.
Noise of traffic on the street,
Noise of midnight tramping feet;
Noise of klaxons, hooters, drills,
Noise of singer's maddening trills;
Noise of ponderous, clattering vans,
Noise of milkmen's rattling cans;
Noise of fiends who slam the door,
Noise of the loquacious bore;
Noise of vendors, lacking sense,
Noise of cat on neighbor's fence;
Noise of clicking type machines,
Noise of gigglers in their teens;
Noise of jangling telephones,
Noise of drums and saxophones;
Noise of dishes, yapping dogs,
Noise of roosters, cows and hogs;
Noise of radios, phonographs,
Noise of boisterous, raucous laughs;
Noise of rusty, grinding wheels,
Noise of sirens, pianos, peals;
Noise of actors' rant and roar,
Noise of airships when they soar;
Noise of riveters, striking clocks,
Noise of vacuum cleaners' shocks;
Noise of ghostly, creaking doors,
Noise of lusty sluggard's snores;
Noise of shunting trains at night,
Noise of fire-trucks that affright;
Noise of ambling trams and cars,
Noise of revelers after hours;
Noise, noise, noise, noise,
Noise that murders peace and poise.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Greene

Mrs. Mary Jane Chilcutt Greene was born July 20, 1845, near Brown Summit in Guilford County and died August 25, 1929, at her residence, 802 North Eugene Street, Greensboro.

Mrs. Greene had lived long enough to see many of her loved ones laid to rest. Her husband, William Greene, died 28 years ago, and in the past few years Mrs. Greene passed through the dark shadows of bereavement twice in the death of two of her three daughters, Mrs. Jennie Greene Weatherley and Miss Nancy Adams Greene.

On November 16, 1924, Mrs. Greene met with a very unfortunate accident which resulted in a broken hip. For the past five years she had been an invalid. During this time she made a profound impression upon the community by her patient and uncomplaining attitude towards her affliction. The little children of the neighborhood hovered about her and affectionately called her "Grandma." Her birthday was always remembered by the many friends in her immediate vicinity. She will long be remembered in the hearts of all who watched her during those days when faith was put to a great test. Mrs. Greene was a constant reader of the Bible and among her possessions she valued nothing so much as an old well-worn Bible which had belonged to her father who had read it through 121 times and was in the midst of the 122nd reading when death took him.

Mrs. Greene is survived by her daughter, Carrie, and four grandchildren, Cecil, Harry and Aileen Weatherley, and Mrs. Blanche Weatherley Neal.

On a beautiful summer afternoon, Tuesday, August 27th, the earthly remains of Mrs. Greene were laid to rest in the quiet, peaceful little cemetery beside the Fair Grove Methodist Protestant Church near Brown Summit.

Green

Mrs. Margaret Huneycutt Green, born in Stanly County, N. C., September 8, 1872, died September 26, 1929. She was converted when a child and joined the M. E. church, to which she was faithful until she saw fit about 15 years ago to place her membership in the First M. P. Church at Albemarle with her husband. Forty-four years ago she married Mr. S. R. Green. To this union were born eight children, six girls and two boys. One son and the six girls and her husband remain to mourn her going.

Mrs. Green was one of the most faithful of church members. She was a member of the Ladies' Aid Society, chairman of the sick committee. She was always at her place unless hindered by circumstances over which she had no control. To the mid-week prayer meeting she was especially faithful, she gave in her testimony only a few nights before her death, saying that she was trying to make each day better than the one before.

She was loyal to her pastor and his family, and had an unusual pride in the appearance of the parsonage; she wanted her pastor and his family to have as good as she had.

She was killed in an automobile accident while going with her brother to see a sick relative. We can't understand why she should meet with such a tragic death, but we will understand it better by and by.

The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. J. L. Trollinger.

Her pastor,

J. R. ANDERSON.

Mann

Mrs. Lula Lane Mann departed this life October 2, 1929, aged 47 years, six months and 28 days. She was married to Eugene Mann August 30, 1898. To this union were born four children: Swanna, Edgar, Verla and Alene. The last one preceded her to the grave six years ago.

Lula was converted in early girlhood and joined Mount Olive Baptist church, where she remained a member until about six years ago, when she came to Center M. P. church, where she remained a faithful member till called home.

Besides the immediate family she leaves two brothers, two uncles, two aunts, a number of nieces and nephews, and a host of friends to mourn her passing.

The funeral service was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. Talton Whitehead and her body laid to rest in Center cemetery.

J. A. BURGESS.

Ingold

William H. Ingold died September 23, 1929, being 60 years, one month and 23 days old. He was a faithful member of Rock Creek M. P. Church. He was a good citizen, a good neighbor, a loving husband and good father. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, two sons and ten grandchildren. The funeral was conducted by the writer, and his body laid to rest in Rock Creek cemetery.

J. A. BURGESS.

Johnston

Rarely does the going of a member evoke so many expressions of regret and of sympathy for the church as the going of Miss Mamie Johnston. Hers was an unusual life, so competent, so willing, so active. She was a veritable church Dorcas—full of good works.

I think we of the local church did not realize how many duties had been given her until we awoke to the fact of so many vacancies made by her going. Going over the list of officers and places of activity she filled, it seems that the number of these was not determined by reaching the limit of her capacity or willingness to fill such positions, but only by exhausting the supply of such positions to be distributed. There is absolutely no place in church activities that she could not fill, and her willingness was equal to her ability. She was a master worker.

Castling about at her going, it seemed there was no individual on whom her mantle might rest, but on the group of us. No one of us may take up and perform all the tasks that were hers, but each taking on more, we hope to go on with the work.

However, hers was not all works, but faith as well. She lived on a high plane of faith and Christian experience. She was happy both in service and in worship. With joy she drew water from the wells of salvation. Her life was a psalm of praise. To her, being a Christian meant being spiritually-minded, walking not after the flesh but after the Spirit. With her the Christian life had both the form of godliness and the power thereof.

Such a life could not be other than a spiritual pillar in the church. Her presence and participation in public worship added spiritual power. To follow her leadership in song or in prayer was to come close up to the throne.

Her going is a great loss to the community, a greater loss to the church, but the greatest loss is to her loved ones and to her home. My heart goes out in deep sympathy for these. My prayer is that the Comforter may sustain them by His grace and keep them by His power, doing for them that which the sympathy of human friends cannot do.

T. M. JOHNSON.

Russell

Lucinda Reynolds Russell died July 19, 1929, aged 69 years, 11 months and 6 days. She was married to Leach Russell January 25, 1877. To this union were born eight children, three boys and five girls. She had been a member of Lovejoy church for over 50 years.

She was a good mother, a faithful wife and a good citizen. She will be missed by her community and all her friends. Her home was the preacher's home and she will be missed by all.

We have lost our dear mother,

She has bidden us all adieu,

She has gone to live in heaven,

And her form is lost to view.

Oh, that dear one, how we love her,

How hard to give her up,

But an angel came down for her

And removed her from our home.

But we can go to meet her in that home above.

J. W. HULIN.

Rigsby

William Rigsby, one of Chestnut Ridge's oldest members, died September 23, 1929.

Funeral services were conducted by the writer from the home September 24. The remains were then taken to Chestnut Ridge cemetery for burial.

Bro. Rigsby first joined a church in Belmont, later transferring his membership to the First M. P. Church, Burlington. About 12 years ago he transferred to Chestnut Ridge church where he remained a faithful member until death.

May God comfort the bereaved ones.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

Morgan

Mrs. Ruby Frances Lassiter Morgan, wife of Leslie H. Morgan, of Asheboro, died September 6, 1929, at the Memorial Hospital after a week's illness, aged 20 years, four months and 28 days. Surviving besides the husband are one small daughter, Ruby Louise, and an infant daughter, Peggy Frances; her mother, Mrs. E. J. Lassiter, and two brothers, Clifford and George Lassiter, all of Asheboro; six sisters, Miss Chloe Lassiter of Marion, Mrs. John Vuncannon of Mechanic, Mrs. W. C. Hicks, Mrs. J. N. Trogdon and Mrs. J. O. Trogdon of Asheboro, and Mrs. W. H. Briles, of Java, Va., with a host of other relatives and friends to mourn her departure.

Mrs. Morgan was industrious, cheerful, and of a happy disposition that made her home happy to her family and with all she came in contact. She told her loved ones goodbye, and that she was going to heaven.

She has passed to the land where every wall is of jasper, every gate of pearl, and every street of pure gold.

The funeral services were held at Science Hill Friends church in Randolph County on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Edward Suits, assisted by Rev. O. T. Tillman and Prof. J. W. Lank.

The music was especially sweet, the organist playing softly as the funeral party entered and the quartettes rendered by the Bulla brothers were very touching and sweet. The funeral was largely attended, being estimated at 1,500 or more people.

The floral designs were numerous and lovely and attested the esteem in which she was held and were in charge of her classmates and cousins. Pallbearers were also her cousins.

Her remains sleep in the beautiful church cemetery near the home of her birth awaiting the resurrection call.

Fare you well, my dear companion.

Fare you well, my darling mother,

All my thoughts are buried with you,

All my thoughts go onward with you,

Soon your footsteps I will follow,

To the land of the blessed,

To the land of the hereafter.

MRS. G. T. ROYALL.

SCHOOL STUDIES IN NORTH CAROLINA

"English" appears to be the subject most universally pursued by white boys and girls in North Carolina high schools, according to the records compiled in the office of the State Department of Public Instruction. A total of 88,303 or 98.4 per cent of the total white high school enrollment included this subject in their course of study during the school year 1927-28.

The study of Mathematics ranks second among the subjects pursued by these students—85,306 or 95 per cent taking that subject. The Social Studies, including Civics, History and Economics was desired by the next largest number, 70,355 or 78.4 per cent of the total enrollment.

Science comes in as the subject of fourth choice by having 57,165 students, or 63.7 per cent of the total, pursuing it. General Science leads in this field with 23,800 students enrolled in such classes. Then follow in order Biology with 18,301 students, Geography with 7,294 students, Physics with 4,144 students, Chemistry with 2,543 students, Physiology with 319 students, and Botany with 134 students.

The languages, not including English, are studied by about 50 per cent of the total high school children enrolled. A larger number, 20,252, study French than Latin or any other language. Only 78 pupils studied German.

More than 10,000 girls took courses in cooking and 9,627 in sewing; and 3,610 boys pursued courses in Agriculture.

The following number of boys and girls pursued courses in respective subjects: Commercial subjects, including Bookkeeping, Stenography, Typewriting and Business Arithmetic, 7,991 or 8.9 per cent of the total; Manual Training, 1,669; or 1.9 per cent; Mechanical Drawing 627, or .7 of one per cent; Bible 828, or .9 of one per cent; Art 391, or .4 of one per cent; and Music 3,378 or 3.9 per cent. —State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

ON THE "PERILOUS"

Last Wednesday eve, 18th, one-half hour before sunset, I was at work near by cellar house (storage), and suddenly a strange noise above in the leaves of a maple tree, and also an oak tree, and at the same time a report of the sound of a "22" rifle; also, at once the report of another rifle shot.

By the sound the shooting was about 100 yards west of where I was. I am not able to describe the ruffling sound (soft) that the bullet made as it hit the leaves, passing, but perhaps it might be called fluffy. By the sound it seems that it brushed against the bark of the oak tree. By hearing the gun shot at once connected with the strange noise in the leaves of the tree I could account for the occasion. I only heard the noise of one bullet.

This late tragedy says that there has been not less than two bullets shot at me. Others have heard bullets passing overhead near, but I do not hear well.

I wanted to write some letters to some of the friends, but perhaps the editor will help me to a cheaper route.

Two months ago I was hardly able to take interest in my work—and felt like a slave—but now, if danger could be banished, it seems that I would, at once, take surprising interest in my humble occupation. My occupation is strictly lawful, and I do not see the least reason for any persons of any age to have hindered me in my work.

I will be glad for any friends to ask me any sort of questions in connection with the things of which I write. A singular thing with me now is that while I am made to suffer by the appearance of destruction I seem to take more than common interest in an occupation, local, that only fits the taste and hands of this one person. It seems that covetousness was and is the main cause of the severe troubles that vex me these days.

—England's Prime Minister, Mr. MacDonald, is visiting President Hoover on international business. This is something new in the relationship between England and our country, but it is doubtless the best way to reach an understanding and promote friendship between two peoples.

—The textile mill troubles at Gastonia and Marion are not yet settled. Judges and courts and the governor's personal representative are taking a hand and it is to be hoped a just and as far as possible an amicable settlement may be reached. Nothing can be done to make up for the loss of life.

—Representatives of four churches of Greensboro met Monday night to hear a man describe the excellences of Cole's Hot Blast stove, the stove company paying to the churches represented 25 cents for each representative present and also paying a bonus of $5 to the church having the largest number of persons present. Calvary church had 132 present and won the bonus.

—Bro. T. G. Coble, who suffered a stroke of paralysis, is reported as gradually improving.

—Miss Angeline Causey reached her 93rd birthday last Monday. She is now living in the home of Mrs. Henry Hunter. She is still mentally alert and appreciates calls from her friends.

WANTED: A PASTOR

1. Who will spend more time in his study and give us better sermons.

2. Who will spend more time visiting. He should visit all his members three or four times a year, even on country charges, and should take meals and spend the night.

3. Who will stay at home more and look after his wife and children better.

4. Who is well trained for the work of church janitor.

5. Who will be content with the parsonage and its furnishings just as they are, for a preacher should not have the comforts and conveniences of life, for all these things do his members seek after.

6. Who will always keep out of debt, yet never discuss money before his people.

7. Who will not ask for a vacation, for "the devil never takes a vacation" and my pastor should be like him, of course.

8. Whose children are all good—if there is any meanness to be done mine will attend to that.

9. Who will always dress well, yet not too well, for his members would think he did not need his salary.

10. We cannot promise to pay the salary in full, but "may be have many souls for his hire," is the phrase that will ease the consciences of many of our members.

Yours for the best pastor in Conference.

OUR CHILDREN'S HOME

Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Broomfield, personal thank-offering, $500.00; Mrs. S. W. Taylor, treasurer for department of W. H. M. S., $118.46; Grace Baraca class, $6.50; Grace Sunday school, $6.66; Canaan, West Thomasville, $2.39; W. S. Cecil's class, clothing child, $5.00; Canaan, Denton, $2.43; Flag Springs, Why Not, $1.25; Spencer S. S., $5.00; Mount Carmel, Forsyth, clothing child, $5.00; Junior S. S. class, Enfield, 75 cents; Hickory Grove, Guilford, $2.50; Harris Chapel, Vance, $2.28; Gillburg, Vance, $2.00; Miss Jessie Johnston, Sunday eggs, $1.60.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Mr. W. H. English, of High Point, had plush-covered bottoms put in 26 chairs. The Woman's Auxiliary of Charlotte, clothing child, 5 dresses, 2 slips, 2 pair bloomers, and 3 pair socks.

This morning we drove to Julian, at the call of the church there, and loaded into our car the fruits of their Harvest Home Day held last Sunday. There were several cans of fruit, vegetables, rice, one hen, sugar, potatoes, onions, one bushel apples, one bushel pears, two 24-pound bags of flour, 10 pounds corn meal, two bushels seed oats, and 20 ears seed corn. Bro. Samuel Diviney gave the seed corn. It came from stalks with two ears to the stalk. There were also three dollars in cash. This was a splendid donation, and we had a delightful short visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hanner, who helped us to load it in the car.

When we reached home today and opened the mail we found, among the letters, one telling us that a certain fine Philathea class in a country church is sending us, in a few days, 15 half-gallon cans fruit, 17 quarters of apples, 13 quarters of corn, two dozen quarters of beans, six quarters of tomatoes, one can preserves, and one can grapes. That sounds good, and it shows that the friends back home are thinking of us and planning to help feed our children this winter. We thank you every one for your gifts of money and produce and clothing.

Harvest-Home

Be sure to get up that Harvest-Home offering of grain, fruits, vegetables, chickens, and other things such as you use in your home.

The two bushels of seed oats today are very valuable to us, and if about 20 other farmers would donate that much it would meet our immediate need. We are also needing rye for seed.

Get together your offerings and send them to us, or let us know and we will send for it. Thank you.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON.

A HAPPY SURPRISE FOR US AND OUR CHILDREN

Last Friday morning when wife, daughter and I were hastening away on a mission for our church, the mail came. We tossed it on the desk to await our return. But we noted a letter from the president of the General Conference and seized it, as we ran, wondering what our chief was writing us about. Upon opening the letter imagine our astonishment to find that it contained a check for $500.00, and imagine our delight when we read the letter and found that so large a check as that was really intended for the boys and girls of this Home.

Wife took the letter and read it aloud, and we rejoiced together because of the timely relief to us, and because of the comfort and joy this splendid gift from Doctor and Mrs. Broomfield would bring to our large family of children. We just held a praise service as we hastened along in our car, and we are happy yet to think that the dear Lord directed the minds of these His servants to send so liberal a thank-offering to His little ones.

This, in part, is the letter which accompanied the check: "I arrived home this morning from a ten days' tour in the Eastern Conference. Among my mail was a check for $1,000 in payment of a mutual insurance policy. Knowing that it would be paid to us this month, Mrs. Broomfield said that she was so thankful to God for sparing my life thus far, that she wanted to give the entire policy in a way that would express our gratitude. In casting around for needs within our denomination, we decided to give $500 to the Children's Home to be used for clothes and shoes for the boys and girls. Mrs. Broomfield was the beneficiary, and to her belongs the credit for this thank-offering. I heartily agreed with her suggestion. Remember us kindly to all the boys and girls in the Home."

This is the largest personal gift that has came to the Home since last Thanksgiving, and none but those who love children would make such a gift here. We thank Doctor and Mrs. Broomfield for their liberal offering and for their loving consideration of the orphan boys and girls being cared for by the Methodist Protestant Church.

They have set a worthy example to other Methodist Protestants throughout the denomination to respond with thankful hearts and open hands to these little ones at Thanksgiving. We now have 102 bright, interesting children, and we are trying by your help to make a happy home for them.

Faithfully yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Supt.,

The Annual Conference

It comes! It comes apace,
As strong men run a race.
It comes, an eager throng.
It comes with purpose strong
To do with all its might
The things it sees are right.

Great things will come in view,
Hard things for men to do.
They'll feel the need of prayer
And take the greatest care
That truth and right may win
In spite of error's din.

The wisdom from above,
With hearts of human love,
Will find or make a way
To do the things they may.
What God would have us do
Can't fail if we are true.

It's great to work with God
And simply bear a hod:
What honor do we have
To bear the gospel salve!
The greatest work on earth
It leads to soul's rebirth.

When we exchange our views,
From pulpits and from pews,
May truth come forth to view
And show the thing to do.
If human wisdom fail,
May truth of God prevail.

The Flow of Money

The flow of money is like the flow of water: sometimes there are floods and sometimes there is drought. We know these facts, but we have difficulty in explaining them, both in the case of the rain (water distribution) and in case of money. But both phenomena are under the domain of the law of cause and effect. There is a natural cause of floods and a natural cause of drought. Then there is a natural cause of abundance of money and there is a natural cause of scarcity of money. Men have tried by artificial means to produce rainfall, but have not succeeded to any great extent. They have succeeded better in controlling the distribution of water by building reservoirs and diverting the flow into new channels. Reservoirs for money have been formed, millions of purses and bank vaults, and millions of men have spent the major part of their time and effort in trying to divert the flow of money into their favorite reservoirs. Not a very noble pursuit when money is sought for unworthy aims, but all who succeed in any measure do so in accordance with the laws of nature. Some of it may be ignoble nature, but it is nature still. Some money-seekers grow rich by supplying base demands, rich in purse, but it is a kind of riches that destroys the soul like a canker. Money to be clean must be gotten in exchange for that which is pure and good and equitable in quantity. There are traps set which can catch only filthy lucre. But a man may set a trap for clean money. This he does when he offers a fair equivalent for what he expects to receive. But sometimes it happens that men offer good goods and find no buyers. Laborers offer honest work, but can find no employers. Money is lacking. What has become of it? It has been diverted to other channels. There is a natural cause for this diversion, but often it is a cause that is not creditable to our human nature. The desire to grow rich quickly at somebody else's expense, or the desire to possess some object that one cannot afford, or other unworthy motive, leads people to spend their money wastefully, leaving them unable to purchase what they need and must have to live. Hard times are often the fruit of folly. Money is scarce because money has been wasted.

The Overworked "Nearest Quarterly Conference"

Our fathers, in framing our system of church government, found some problems a little hard to dispose of. One of these was the problem of the new church, to decide whether it should be received or not be received into the association of recognized Methodist Protestant churches. They decided to pass this question on to "the nearest quarterly conference." It so stands in the constitution to this day. The justice of the law in some cases may be questioned. Then there was the question of disposing of the property of an extinct church. They decided that that problem should be handed to "the nearest quarterly conference" for solution. This rule has since been changed, and now the Annual Conference is authorized to administer such an estate.

Mothers' Aid

This is the name of a charitable enterprise undertaken by benevolent ladies of our state. It helps widowed mothers to keep their children at home and care for them instead of sending them to an orphanage. It impresses us as a very worthy charity. Not only does it cost less to care for children in that way than by sending them to an orphanage, but it is better for the children of worthy mothers to be left under mother's care, and must be infinitely preferable to the mother to be able to keep her children with her. We believe the State in its care for the unfortunate would do well to adopt this as one of its methods. The cost of administration might be reduced to a minimum by combining with the benevolent ladies who are willing and glad to look after such mothers without charge.

THE COUNTRY CHURCH

The country church of my childhood days! I can almost hear "the voice of the clear ringing bell," as it seemed to say, "Come! Come!" to the little white church on the hill—the church so dear to my childhood—the spot that still holds memories of some of the most pleasant and profitable years of my Christian experience.

The country church—out under the serene influence of the country skies, where the very air seems charged with healing peace, where we may live in constant companionship with the mighty forces of nature and nature's God. Here hours of quiet may be spent in contemplating the great thoughts of God; and the inner life, which as the master power of our lives can gather its greatest strength and rise to its most sublime ideals.

The country church has given to the world some of its greatest preachers and missionaries.

No other factor has played a more significant part in the development of the splendid manhood and womanhood of our country than the little country churches. Their influence cannot be estimated.

The country church can and should be the first and strongest of all agencies in furthering the advancement of rural life.

The country church is of supreme importance to the social conditions of the community, and should provide for the natural social and religious instinct of the boys and girls by supplying them with wholesome recreation, through organized play, clubs, and socials of various kinds.

The country church must have a sympathetic interest in the recreational, educational, civic and moral life of the community. The church exists for the community and like her Lord, exists not to be ministered unto but to minister. The great church is the church that most effectively serves the community in which it stands.

It must be directly interested in the lives of the people, their homes, their occupations, their schools, their ideals of character, as well as the salvation of their souls.

The church should be made and kept attractive. Its building and equipment, its organizations, and its ideals for membership and work should be arranged so that they will attract the people of the community.

Every country church should have a bulletin board in front, with the name of the church and the pastor's name on it. Announcements of the church services should be put on it. In the religious, as well as in the business world, "it pays to advertise." "God's people have not yet learned the value of publicity in church activities."

Our church papers, Methodist Protestant Recorder, METHODIST PROTESTANT HERALD and the Missionary Record should go into every home represented in our country churches, that its members may be well informed concerning our denominational work.

The early country church was once simply "a meeting-house"—a place to meet God and one another. Conditions have changed so greatly and so rapidly in recent years that work in the country church is no longer simply a difficult problem; it is a positive challenge to every interest. To meet this challenge the country church must be the center of religious, educational, social and economic welfare of the community.

It must have regular church services, a well organized

Sunday School, Woman's Missionary Society and Christian Endeavor Societies, and the most earnest co-operative effort to make them as efficient as possible.

If we can convince our people in our country churches that they can have the best churches in the world they will have them!

There is enough talent, if developed, to furnish splendid leadership. The great need of the church today is trained leaders. Our Leadership Training School, which is held annually at High Point College, offers splendid training for just such leaders as are needed in our churches.

If all the pastors and a goodly number of the church workers avail themselves of the opportunities offered by our Leadership Training School the problem of leadership for the country churches will have been largely solved.

The country church, whose members practice the great principles of evangelism, personal work, tithing, etc., will move forward to do great service for the Kingdom of God.

The most heroic pages of church history are those that tell of the "Heralds of the Cross," who went into the wilds of foreign lands and carried the glad tidings to those who had never heard of Christ, and won souls for Him.

Every church should have a live, working Missionary Society to continue carrying on the great work of Christ at home and abroad.

One of the best ways of promoting the country church's finances is to adopt a business-like system of finances, which consists of an annual budget carefully prepared and an "every member canvass" made to meet it. Duplex envelopes in which to pay weekly pledges is the best method of securing adequate and regular finances of the church.

The country church needs preachers who appreciate country life, and who are especially trained to work in country communities. The country preacher must know the country and country people. The plants, flowers, birds, insects, crops and the stars overhead must reveal God and man.

Christ delivered His messages to farmers in terms of their farm activities: the sower who went forth to sow; the grain of mustard seed; the wheat and the tares; the sheep that had gone astray; and all the other matchlessly simple stories of the Kingdom conveyed truths to farmers in the language of farm life.

To learn to appreciate a beautiful landscape or nature scene, and to have joy in things that grow is to come to know the real happiness of living in God's great outdoors—the country. So often "having eyes we see not or ears to hear, we hear not."

It is remarkable how much of a country-life book the Bible is! Word pictures suitable to rural life adorn its sacred pages and happy is the country church's pastor who finds and uses them.

The opportunities of the country church are unlimited! The last Federal Religious Census shows that there are 29,644,541 people in the South who do not attend any Sunday School, only 20 per cent of the population of the South do attend Sunday School.

Out of the 2,897,000 population of our own state only 689,363 are members of any church.

What an opportunity! "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few."

Correction.—In Contest Article No. 2 please change "Leaders who are capable of teaching" to "Leaders who are capable of leading." The judges will please note.

WHY DOES THE CHURCH LOSE SO MANY MEMBERS?

In an address given before the General Conference of the United Brethren church at its recent meeting in Lancaster, Pa., Dr. J. A. Lytor made the startling statement that six out of every ten members received into that church on confession of faith were lost to the church. He claimed that the same was practically true of other churches. The discussion was so timely that we are reproducing its substance for our readers.

There will always be those who, through lack of genuine faith, will fall by the way. And yet may it be not possible, that if they had been properly helped and guided, they would have been led deeper into the life of Christ and have developed into steadfast Christians.

Another reason may be the lack of impressiveness in their reception. Too much form is out of place, but too little is liable to leave the person without a sense of the importance of the step taken. Too often the minister and session fail to impress upon the person the meaning of the step and the binding nature of the vows taken. This fact cannot be too strongly emphasized.

Another cause for this falling away is that new members are neglected and left to make their own way into the activities and the social life of the church, or drop out with the impression that they are not wanted. They are disappointed and stung by the little attention which they receive after they have been admitted. Too many ministers and members are in such a mad chase to get new members that the moment they receive them they leave them alone and go after others.

One of the greatest causes for the loss of members is a lack of faithful pastoral work. So much administrative and executive work is now demanded of the minister that he has neither strength or time for faithful pastoral work. Christ sent His disciples out, not only to evangelize but to feed His sheep and lambs. Pastoral duties are sadly neglected in the modern church.—The United Presbyterian.

—November 3rd, World's Temperance Sunday, will mark the launching of a new educational program by the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, with the objective, "Every Methodist child pledged to total abstinence, law observance and support of law enforcement." A good move for any denomination.

—Please pray for our Annual Conference. Tremendous responsibilities will have to be met. This will be an extraordinary session, made so by its problems. Let the members prepare themselves by earnest prayer for the responsible part they must take.

OUR RESOLVE

“Not a week, not a day, shall pass without an honest effort and an earnest prayer to close this year in the highest honor to God.”

Quarterly Conferences

West End, October 9.—Only a part of the business could be transacted because the stewards had not been able to complete the membership canvass on finances for next year. All business will be completed in an adjourned meeting to follow later. Owing to the erection of their Sunday School building, which was made necessary by their growing work, this church is under a heavy financial strain. However, by the united support of the congregation they should be able to carry their indebtedness, and pay out in due time. Some changes will likely be made in their program for next year in order to reduce their current expenses. This church has a splendid field for service and the years ahead should find it a strong and influential organization. The Sunday School is prospering and the Woman's Auxiliary is functioning well. Pastor's salary will be paid.

Tabernacle, October 11.—This conference was held at Tabernacle Church on the afternoon of this date. The full business was transacted, and all reports indicate that the charge is in a hopeful and normal condition. Julian Church will pay all claims in full. We expect Tabernacle Church to be on the honor roll in several particulars. The interior of this church has been worked over during the year. It is one of the largest and most attractive of our rural churches. An agitation for Sunday School rooms has been on here for some time. They would add much to the efficiency of the work and we trust that this addition may ultimately be made. The church is located in a prosperous community, with a large background, and should be made a prominent church center for that section. The parsonage is to be put in good condition, with the expectation that the pastor will occupy it next year. Salary will be paid in full on this charge.

Randleman, October 11.—We met for this conference at 7:30 p. m., in Mt. Lebanon Church. The attendance was encouraging, with all churches represented. Revival meetings on the charge in most cases were good, one having shortly closed at Salem, which resulted in about thirty conversions. This church has recently been recovered and painted, and now presents a pleasing appearance. We suggest that an attractive marker be placed on the near-by highway, indicating the location of the church. The reports on the Sunday Schools of the charge were highly gratifying. In nearly every case the schools have had encouraging growth during the year, and all, with, perhaps, one exception, contribute regularly to the Children's Home. Lebanon Church is talking Sunday School rooms. We believe that they will make this addition at no distant date. There is an active Aid Society here, and a Woman's Auxiliary, we believe. Randleman charge is making progress.

Mocksville, October 12.—The conference of this charge was held at Elbaville Church in the afternoon at 2 o'clock, with a good attendance from three churches. Two churches were not represented. The charge is considerably in arrears on pastor's salary and budgets, the closing weeks now will change this considerably. We are sure that earnest effort will be made to pay salary, and we were greatly pleased to have assurance that Bethel, Elbaville, and probably Union Chapel, will pay college assessment in full. The parsonage trustees reported that the parsonage had been repaired, and that all indebtedness against the property had been cancelled but about $4.00. This little balance is to be paid promptly. The parsonage is located in Mocksville, and is good property. It is the wish of the charge to have it occupied by the pastor next year. The Sunday Schools of the charge are in good condition, and growing. Elbaville added rooms last year, and Bethel is working toward this. These two churches have active Aid Societies, also C. E. Societies. Mocksville is one of our oldest charges, and it is gratifying to find the work in hopeful condition. An interesting and important future of this conference was the licensing of Brother Howard, (we failed to get his initials) to preach. He is a member of Bethel Church, a student of High Point College, and promises much, we believe, to the church.

State Street

October 13, Sunday.—We visited both of the churches on this charge, preaching in the morning at Yadkin College, and in the night service at State Street Church. This is one of our honor roll charges. State Street has already paid all budgets, and Yadkin College is forging ahead to this goal. We predict that they will arrive in due time. Neither of these churches has a large congregation, but it would be difficult to find more loyal and more faithful groups. State Street has splendid housing equipment, but with it is a heavy building indebtedness which is causing them disturbing concern. Some plans are being considered which will work relief for them, we trust. This church has made gratifying progress since its organization only a few years ago. At the close of the service here the officers of the church for the ensuing year were elected, and will be duly installed before the close of this year.

South Lexington

The afternoon was given to this charge. At 3 p. m., we were with Mt. Carmel in a preaching service. The house was well filled and we were heard with helpful attention. The programs of the conference were presented and an earnest appeal made for the budget. We are hoping that this church may be on the honor roll in several particulars. Their entire budget would seem to be within their reach. Our impressions on our first visit to this church are favorable. We understand that they are talking a new church. This is a hopeful sign. A well equipped building would help them greatly in their work.

At 5 o'clock we met with the South Lexington Church in a business conference. Thus we came to the end of a very busy day, if not a "perfect" one. We were in home territory on this trip, and enjoyed seeing the neighbors and friends of our earlier days. Brother Willard Philips' voice sounded very familiar, as we walked into the church at Yadkin, and heard him in his closing remarks on the Sunday School lesson.

We enjoyed our visit to all of the churches dealt with in this report and we are gratefully appreciative of all the kindnesses shown us, both by pastors and people during these visitations. We wish also to express our appreciation of the faithfulness of the pastors on all of these charges.

Conference Program

We are publishing this week a provisional program of the conference. It is subject to some possible changes before the final program is printed for conference use, and, of course, to any and all changes that the conference may wish to make. This program is another sign of how close we are to the end of this conference year. Truly "the time is short," and what we do must be done quickly. Brethren of the ministry and of the laity, please leave no stone unturned now. Much that is necessary to close the year well has been put off until these last weeks. Only three remain now. Let us make them weeks of much prayer, and much earnest effort and co-operation that God's expectation in us shall not be disappointed. We can't do more than our best; we dare not do less. We urge every pastor to see that each church has an itemized statement of its financial allotment to all causes. It sometimes happens that only a few dollars more would pay "in full" some allotment, and enable a church to go on the honor roll for that cause. At any rate, the church should know exactly what its financial standing is, and we trust that pastors and stewards will see that there is no lack here. And we want to urge again that we pray much over our financial problems and necessities. Those who are closest to some of our financial problems feel most keenly the seriousness of them. But God is still our refuge, and he can "make all grace abound toward us," that these needs may be abundantly and timely met. Let us call upon Him in the confidence that He will help us.

Appreciation

We wish to express our appreciation to pastors and people for the kindness with which they have reacted to our efforts in promoting the conference programs. They have not always done all that we have urged upon them, more, we think, because of difficulties than unfriendliness to our efforts. It is many times true that things essential to progress move slowly, both in the church and in other fields of endeavor. We are learning to work in harmony with that fact, and be content with a sympathetic response until actual changes necessary to larger progress can be accepted and executed. We are encouraged to believe that we have had this sympathetic response, and we most heartily express our appreciation of it.

Fourth Quarterly Reports

Blanks for this year will be mailed in a very few days. We trust that pastors will give thoughtful care to the filling out of this report and get it back to us by the date indicated on the blank. We can not complete our message to conference until we get the facts contained in these reports. Thank you.

HE BEING DEAD YET SPEAKETH

"By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, by which he obtained witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts: and by it he being dead yet speaketh."—(Heb. 11:4.)

Abel's influence did not cease when his body was laid in the ground. He was righteous, he had heroic faith and the Word says God testified of his gifts. He still speaks. God has given us examples of men who still speak though their bodies have long ago crumpled to dust. Cain, Abel's brother, still speaks. He speaks of the outcome of jealousy retained in the heart—jealousy as cruel as the grave—jealousy which brought forth murder. Judas speaks of covetousness and treachery—he coveted, he betrayed and ended in self murder. His hands were doubly stained with blood—that of his Lord and his own life.

We, too, will speak of something when our bodies moulder back to mother earth. What we will speak of later will be determined by the way we live now. "If we are worldly today our death will accentuate the fact and the folly of such a life will shout itself from our casket. If we are selfish today that sort of living will speak to others about it from our gravestone. If we are moral cowards and fear to take our stand out and out for Christ and righteousness now, that kind of conduct and character will be talked of in connection with us. . . . Every man turns preacher when he dies. No one can escape the fate of being ushered into the pulpit and shouting out some to those who are coming after us. Say! When you are dead what will you speak to others about?" This gives food for thought.—Herald of Light and Zion's Watchman.

MY BIBLE AND I

We've traveled together, my Bible and I,
Through all kinds of weather, with smile and with sigh;
In sorrow or sunshine, in tempest or calm,
Thy friendship's unchanging, my lamp and my psalm.
We've traveled together, my Bible and I,
When life has grown weary, and death e'en was nigh.
But all through the darkness of mist and of wrong,
I've found thee a solace, a prayer, or a song.
So now, who shall part us, my Bible and I?
Shall ism or schism, or new lights who try?
Shall shadow for substance, or stone for good bread,
Supplant its sound wisdom, give folly instead?
Ah, no, my dear Bible, revealer of light,
The sword of the Spirit, put error to flight!
And still through life's journey, until the last sigh,
We'll travel together, my Bible and I.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE TALE OF A DOG

Bennie's father didn't have very much money to spend for things which were not necessary. There were small feet for which to buy shoes, and mouths to feed, and coal to buy, and a roof to keep over the heads of the family.

Just the same, Bennie longed above all things for a dog—a real live little playmate which would wag its tail and bark joyously when Bennie played with him. Sometimes the little boy would ask his father for a dog, and then Bennie's father would sigh and say:

"Perhaps I can manage it some day, son. I had a dog when I was a lad and we were great pals."

Then Mr. Brent would tell the story Bennie loved to hear of old Bounce and his knowing ways.

One day Bennie and his father were walking down Main Street when the boy discovered what appeared to be a wonderful bargain in a toy show window. He was so excited that the words came tumbling out very fast.

"See, see, Daddy," he cried, "there is a dog that is most as big as a really, truly one, and you'd think it was alive, wouldn't you?"

And sure enough, it was a beauty! The coat was of a shaggy brown cloth which had every appearance of the natural coat of a well-cared-for dog, and there were white spots right where they ought to be, and very natural glass eyes, and even little claws. A placard beside the dog said:

Big Bargain

This remarkable toy dog, originally was $10, but through an accident, the tail was torn off and destroyed, and so the dog is now offered at the amazing price of $1.

The clerk was just placing the sign card in the window, and he smiled to see the eager-faced child gazing in at the store offerings.

"Please, Daddy," pleaded Bennie. "I've got the dollar my grammy gave me when she was here visiting, and I do want to buy that dog—please let me!"

And Mr. Brent couldn't refuse, for he liked dogs himself. So the two of them went in, and sure enough, it was an even bigger bargain than they thought.

A little string hung out of one side, and when this string was pulled, the dog pushed out a red tongue and wiggled its ears and even the stump of the little tail that was left.

"I don't care," cried Bennie, "if this dog has lost his tail. Mother can sew the cloth over the end of it, and lots of dogs have little stub tails anyway."

So the storekeeper handed the dog over the counter, and Bennie gave him a dollar, for although he didn't have his dollar with him, his father loaned him one until they got home, as both agreed that someone would buy that dog quickly if they didn't.

Bennie soon named his new pet "Rags," and he carried him home under his arm, stopping every little ways to pull the string.

After the family had duly admired Rags, and his mother had operated on the tail with a needle and thread, making Rags almost as good as new, Bennie took him out on the front lawn, for it was going to be great fun to show this treasure of his to the other boys. He knew they would marvel at the wonder of Rags, and he even thought he might charge for the fun of pulling the string. Any boy ought to be willing to pay an apple or a couple of marbles or a glass alley for such a privilege.

While Bennie was thinking this over, a very handsome little bull dog came trotting down the street, and as he came opposite Bennie and Rags, he paused and eyed Rags rather fiercely.

Perhaps Bennie should have known better, but he didn't. He just pulled that string, and Rags stuck out his tongue and pricked up his ears and wagged his tail—that is, what was left of it.

No one will ever know just what the bull dog thought, but perhaps it was something like this:

"Well, I declare, if there isn't a new dog over there on the grass, and I suppose he thinks he owns the street now, or he wouldn't be laughing at me and sticking out his tongue like that! I dare say if I had a bone he would have the impotence to try and take it away from me."

And perhaps these reflections were too much for the thoroughbred bull dog there on the pavement, for with one wild yelp and a leap through the air, he landed right on top of Rags like a bundle of animated fury! In the onslaught, Bennie was bowled right over, and he got a nasty scratch on one cheek from the paw of the bull dog.

Almost more quickly than it takes to tell it, the whole place was littered with bits of cloth and the curled hair with which Rags had been stuffed, as well as odds and ends of what had once been a very wonderful toy.

Bennie burst out crying, "Oh, my nice, nice doggie," he wailed, "my poor, poor Rags!"

"Dearie me, what in the world has happened!" cried a voice right above him. "What have you been doing? You naughty, naughty Chubby, I'm surprised at you!"

Bennie stopped crying long enough to look up and to see a silvery haired old lady grasping the offending bull dog by the collar.

"I really believe," went on the old lady severely, "that I shall give you a good spanking for destroying the little boy's toy. Whoever heard of such a thing? But," she added more mildly, "that won't put his toy together again, even if I did it."

"Please don't whip him, lady," he entreated. "He didn't know that my toy doggie wasn't a real one, and I am sure he didn't mean to scratch me, for he just knocked me over when he jumped on Rags."

"Tell me about Rags," she directed crisply, and Bennie told her the whole story, although his lip quivered now and again when he mentioned how he had wanted a dog, and the dollar his grammy had given him, and the fun he had thought he would have.

"And now," he quavered, the tears starting again, "I prob'ly will never, never have another dog, for my daddy says we can't afford to buy a live one!"

"Well, well, well!" cried the old lady, "did you ever! Who ever heard of a boy who didn't want a dog. Is your mother home?"

"Yes ma'am," replied Bennie politely, "and I am sure she has the chairs dusted off this morning, for I saw her doing it, and so she will be glad to have you come in and see her."

"Thank you," smiled the little old lady, "I'll go right in."

Bennie's mother wasn't expecting callers, but she received this one courteously, and Mrs. Brent really looked very neat and attractive in her fresh gingham dress and clean white apron.

Soon the strange lady was telling her all about Chubbie, and what a well-behaved dog he usually was. She expressed real regret that he had lost control of himself and destroyed the little boy's toy.

Chubby, she explained, belonged to her own grandson who was obliged to go on a long journey on account of his health, and the little old lady was to go with him—away across the ocean to a great and famous doctor whom they hoped would make the little boy well.

But this might take a year or even longer, and both of them had been worrying about what would be done with Chubbie when they went away. The sick little grandson had felt badly lest Chubbie would miss him and be unhappy, and they had been wondering if they couldn't find somebody who would love him and take care of him.

"And," went on their sprightly little caller, "I believe that a boy who would beg not to have Chubbie spanked even when he had lost his nice toy and got scratched on his face so that it drew the blood, would be a first rate master for Chubbie. So if you are willing, I should like to give Chubbie to your own son.

"Then, of course, it costs something to feed a valuable bull dog like this and Chubbie is fussy. So Hugh, my grandson, and I will be very glad to give Bennie a five dollar gold piece on his birthday, and on Bennie's birthday, and on Christmas Day as long as the dog lives. That will help with the license and give him a new collar occasionally.

"If you are willing, I should like to have Bennie come to my house this afternoon at 3 o'clock, for I shall be home then, and Hugh and I can explain to him about feeding the dog and just how to give him a bath, and Hughie will show Bennie some of the tricks he has taught Chubbie, for really he is quite a knowing little fellow."

Bennie could hardly believe his ears. Was it possible that such a lovely, lovely thing could happen to him as this? And before he knew what he was doing, he had run across the room and seized his mother's two hands in his.

"Oh, Mummie, Mummie," he begged, "please say 'Yes.' Please, please."

And, of course, Mrs. Brent did say "Yes."

And that's how it came about that Bennie changed a cloth dog which only could put out its tongue and move its ears and a bit of a tail when a string was pulled, for one which could handle his own tongue and tail—what there was of it, and ears to suit himself. And, of course, Bennie and Chubbie were just as good pals as old Bounce and his father ever had been!—Selected.

SAVED FOR WHAT?

For what are we saved? Every true believer answers at once, "We are saved from being lost forever." For this God sent His Son into the world "that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." We are therefore saved from wrath, from judgment and the guilt of our sins, because the Lord Jesus Christ died for our sins and tasted death in our stead. We are also saved to live a holy life unto God. The people whom God has redeemed He has redeemed unto holiness. Furthermore, we are saved to serve and to walk even as He walked. Above all we are saved for glory.—Selected.

THE MAKING OF "BEN HUR"

Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll, the agnostic, was riding along in a train. General Lew Wallace, happening to pass the compartment of Ingersoll, was invited to come in and sit for a chat. General Wallace answered, "All right, colonel, what shall we chat about?"

"Lot's of things," answered Ingersoll. "Is there a future life? I don't know, do you? Is there a God? I don't know, do you?"

Ingersoll paused and looked keenly at General Wallace. The general was embarrassed by the abruptness of the question. He replied, "Really, Ingersoll, I have never given much thought or study to the questions you propound. I had a Christian training and I have always accepted them tacitly."

"Indeed!" answered Colonel Ingersoll. "Why man, you surprise me! They are vital issues. I have studied the subject thoroughly. Every man ought to. Now, take my advice and look into the matter. You will find that you will agree with me."

General Wallace says: "I went from this interview embarrassed and mortified. I had not felt competent to discuss such an important matter with such a learned thinker. I made up my mind that I would never place myself in such an embarrassing position again. I plunged into study, reading every authority available. After years of study, instead of agreeing with the great agnostic, I wrote 'Ben Hur.' It is my reply to him."

THE LOVE OF CHRIST

What is Thy love, O Christ? A dew
That falls to comfort and renew;
A sun that flushes into flame
My heart whene'er I hear Thy name.

What is Thy Love, O Christ? Ah, this:
A partnership of joy and bliss;
Communion full of tenderness,
And gentle as a child's caress.

What is Thy love, O Christ? A wall
About me to protect my all;
A sword to drive my sin away;
A shield to guard me every day.

What is Thy love, O Christ? Ah, me—
I cannot tell; it's like the sea,
So boundless wide, it has no shore,
We sail its depths for evermore.

—George H. Lora.

LOVE AND LIFE

Defraud not your brother of the tribute from your soul; conceal not the warmth that is in you. One day you shall be glad that your heart did not hide its gold. Is there any remedy for the body like love? We call it a spiritual thing. Doubtless, but its power is over the physical. Tell me that some one loves me, and you have given me a new draught of life. "Water of life," our Lord calls it. How many an early victim would have been kept alive by a deeper draught of love! Hast thou and alabaster box? Break it, O my soul! Hide it not; hoard it not; wait not to garnish the sepulcher; pour it on the living head. Thy love was made to shine before the cross; take heed that it linger not behind.—George Matheson.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

Saturday—Preach the Word. II Tim. 4:1-5.

To the Leader

The purpose of this meeting should be to lead young people to see the true importance of taking part in the Christian Endeavor meeting every week. The taking part is not for personal gain, but an opportunity to serve.

If possible, plan the meeting with the idea of giving reluctant members something which they can do. Try to show them methods by which they may participate in their own way. Have the lookout committee extend a special invitation to those members who do not usually take part. Have the scripture read a verse at a time by different young people. Give clippings to members whom you think will take part in no other way.

Use hymns which will convey whole-hearted co-operation and unity.

The Leader's Talk

Since the founding of Christian Endeavor it has always stood primarily for the expressional agency of youth. Christian Endeavor is not limited to the expressional side—for much study, reading and thinking are brought into each meeting. We can hardly imagine a Christian Endeavor meeting in which young people do not participate. Such a Christian Endeavor Society would lose its place of value in the church, and would be defeating its own purpose.

For the sake of individual gain, participation is necessary. Our physical bodies require exercise for physical efficiency. For spiritual well-being we must have the expression of the spiritual self. We must take part in spiritual activities. Then for our own sakes we must take part in the meetings of our own society. Our society will be judged by the public by the individual participation. We should recognize the responsibility that rests on us as members of any organization, but especially the one whose purpose is to be gained through self-expression. It then becomes our duty to take part in order to help others by our experiences and knowledge. Our sincerity in the cause of Christian Endeavor may be tested by the manner in which we respond to this duty.

Thought-Provokers

1. What may be gained by taking part?
2. Is it a duty to take part in the meetings? Why?
3. How may we improve our meetings?
4. Why is it hard to take part in the Christian Endeavor meeting?
5. What can the leader do before-hand to encourage participation?
6. What are the most common reasons for failure to take part in the weekly meetings?

Quotations

Christian Endeavor taught me how to think on my feet. It taught me how to express my thoughts in words. It helped me to forget nervousness and timidity.—A Washburn.

It was when I realized my responsibility to take part in the meeting that I began to grow in spiritual life. That made me study to find something worth while to say.—Markham.

A young man who takes part in the meeting discovers by so doing he is confessing Christ, that the eyes of others are upon him, and that he must keep his life clean.—M. M. Morrison.

Christian Endeavor teaches young people how to study the Bible. It encourages Bible-reading. It sets their feet upon God's ways. It raises up a generation of church workers.

TITHING EDUCATION MADE EASY

Any church may now put on a Ten Weeks' course of tithing education, right in the midst of its other activities, and at a ridiculously small cost.

The Layman Company, which has distributed many millions of pamphlets on the tithe, now announces an attractive new series, at so low a price that distribution to an entire church through ten weeks costs only two cents and a half per family.

A set of samples and full particulars will be sent free of charge upon request.

Please give your denomination, also mention the Methodist Protestant Herald.

This report is for two weeks. I haven't entirely recovered yet from an attack of laziness I had years ago. I really believe that I am improving, even if I have a poor way of showing it.

Brethren, if you will send in all money received by you by the first of November, you will help lighten the work of your treasurer. You will be anxious to hear his report at Conference, and he is anxious for you to hear it; but if you hold back your collections until late in the Conference session it will be almost impossible for him to make up his report and submit it to Conference.

The work of the treasurer is every day work. He sends out receipts immediately. He keeps his books posted to date, gives out information as asked for, and makes out weekly reports to the Herald. The office is no sinecure, whatever that is. Come on, churches, and make the best financial showing in the history of the conference.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

ANNOUNCEMENT OF EXECUTIVE MEETING

The North Carolina Branch of Woman's Missionary Work will hold an executive committee meeting on Thursday during Conference. This meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. W. Bates, near Calvary Church, at 2 p. m. November 7.

All departmental and other secretaries, please come prepared to make reports. They cannot do this unless auxiliary secretaries report to them.

Mrs. Bates, chairman of districts, and Mrs. Brown, corresponding secretary, are very anxious to have reports from each auxiliary, especially those newly organized, or recently merged according to the new plan. Please send reports to Mrs. George R. Brown, Reidsville, N. C.

On Thursday night of Conference the service will be in charge of the Missionary Branch. A pageant will be presented by the young people of High Point College, and other items of the program will be interesting and helpful. It is hoped that many of our women who attend the missionary executive meeting, and others, will plan to attend the Thursday evening session.

MRS. W. C. HAMMER, Pres.

SIXTH DISTRICT RALLY

The Sixth District of the North Carolina Branch of the Woman's Missionary Work will have a meeting at 2 p. m. Sunday, October 27, at Midway Church on Haw River Circuit.

The following churches compose this district: Draper, Haw River Circuit, Flat Rock Circuit, Kernersville Circuit and Reidsville.

The chairman, Mrs. J. H. Allen, is anxious to have a large delegation of women from each church attend the meeting, as an interesting and instructive program is being prepared, and it is a very vital matter with our North Carolina Conference to have all our women behind the whole program of the church.

Mrs. C. W. Bates, chairman of districts, and others, will present various phases of the woman's work. Further announcement of the program will appear in next week's paper.

MRS. J. H. ALLEN, Dist. Chmn.

—Bro. H. A. Garrett, former superintendent of the Children's Home and later agent for High Point College is now living at the old home farm, taking care of his aged parents. He has a flock of sheep, a herd of goats, besides pigs, cows, chickens, and pigeons. We recently visited his interesting farm. We saw something the like of which we had never seen elsewhere: a pig-pen about thirty by sixty feet fenced in with rock. One part of the wall was an immense rock weighing tons. Bro. Garrett has been elected delegate to the Annual Conference.

THE INNER POWER

Far-seeing men expect that some day all our machines will be turned by power derived from the interior heat of the globe. To an almost complete extent the world's work will be done by the energies stored up since the creation in earth's flaming heart.

The cool crust on which we live is cool for only a skin's thickness. The temperature in the last thousand feet of earth's deepest wells rises fast. At Fairmont, West Va., a temperature of 170 degrees Fahrenheit was found at the bottom off a 7,500-foot well, and at Longmont, Col., a temperature of 212 was found at the depth of 6,600 feet. Only a little increase in the difficulty of obtaining cheap energy from coal, and a way will be discovered by which the earth's heat will be tapped for use in our homes and factories, our automobiles and air-ships.

And in the meantime every one of us may apply the same principle in spiritual matters. If we are living surface lives, they will have little energy. We must go down to the depths of thought and feeling. We must base our existence on the most profound principles of religion. Shallow considerations of fashion or ease or ambition must have no weight with us. We must pierce to the bottom of spiritual problems and daily duties. We must get to the inwardness of things. We must abandon the exteriors of life and seek its heart in God. —Amos R. Wells.

HYDROGEN CAN BE SPLIT

Hydrogen, the gas that keeps the Graf Zeppelin in the air, is not an indivisible element, as we have been taught for a hundred years. It is really made up of two elements, which scientists will refer to as parahydrogen and orthohydrogen.

Dr. K. F. Bonhoeffer, a young German scientist, made the discovery that hydrogen is divisible. He performed an experiment before the convention of the American Chemical Society, held recently at Minneapolis, Minn., which proved beyond a doubt that hydrogen is divisible. Scientists say that his discovery is "the greatest chemical achievement of 1929" and that it means that chemistry textbooks will have to be rewritten. —Current Events.

WET "AUTHORS"

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment has published widely in the newspapers a list of 163 more "authors" who will assist the association in its fight against the Eighteenth Amendment. I am interested in seeing how many of the 163 I have ever heard of before. There are twenty-one of them. The remaining 142 are totally unknown to me.

Nor is this because I am an ignoramus in such matters, for I have been a voluminous book reviewer for more than a third of a century. I have a library of twenty-four thousand modern books, and in other ways I am pretty well acquainted with present day American writers.

But that list will fool many readers. —Amos R. Wells.

Employer—Oh, indeed, and who's dead this time?

Funnyunk—Coogler, sir.

CLEARING UP A MYSTERY

Com. Donald B. MacMillan, famous Arctic explorer, has returned to Wiscasset, Maine, after spending the summer making explorations in Labrador and Baffin Land. He discovered two ancient stone houses which he feels certain were built nearly 350 years ago by Sir Martin Frobisher's men. Sir Martin was a famous English navigator who lived in the time of Queen Elizabeth. He tried to find a Northwest Passage to India. He was the leader of three expeditions (1576, 1577, 1578) that reached Labrador and Baffin Land. He thought he had discovered gold there and left five of his men to build a fort to protect the gold mines. It has always been assumed that these men were killed by Eskimos soon after Frobisher left them.

However, Commander MacMillan believes that relics he found in one of old stone houses show that the five men built a big boat in which they hoped to return to England. Probably the boat was crushed by ice and the men then built the second house for shelter. Pottery and other relics of the time of Queen Elizabeth were found, as well as traces of a shipway down which the explorers probably launched their boat. —Current Events.

CHOOSING A NATIONAL FLOWER

Over three-quarters of a million votes have been cast in the American Nature Association's nation-wide poll to choose a National Flower for the United States. November 30 is the last day that votes may be sent in. By that time it is thought that at least one million Americans, young and old, will have expressed their choice. Schools, clubs, and business organizations are showing a keen interest in the poll. Why not take a vote in your school? Then report your "election returned" to National Flower Editor, American Nature Association, Washington, D. C.

Thus far the Wild Rose has a big lead over all other flowers, with 339,965 votes. Other flowers rank in the following order: Columbine, 143,235; Violet, 78,309; Goldenrod, 63,701; Phlox, 29,252; American Beauty Rose, 12,230; Daisy, 10,665; Dogwood, 9,691; Mountain Laurel, 8,764; scattering votes, 18,330. —Current Events.

—In Pueblo, Colo., prohibition officers raided the farm of a moonshiner discovered the Lord's Prayer printed on a large poster above three barrels of mash and, above the still, another card bearing the Twenty-Third Psalm. Quite an unusual find was this in Pueblo, but one does not need to visit Colorado to find allies of the moonshiner sitting in the amen corner at church, singing, "I am bound for the promise land." —N. Dedication of the State University Library will take place Saturday, October 19, 1929.

—This special session of the 71st Congress is the 24th special session of both houses of Congress in American history. The very first session of the First Congress was a special session. The Continental Congress, by resolution, had provided that the first session of Congress under the Constitution should begin March 4, 1789.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Winston.—The Mission Club held its monthly meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Madelyn Long, with 12 members, one new member, and three visitors present. Mrs. Archie Smith, president, presided, with Mrs. J. E. Kirk reading the scripture and Miss Ruth Hill leading in prayer.

The study-book was completed and the club also completed their budget. Various reports were made and it was decided to have a social in the near future. The meeting adjourned to hold its next meeting with Mr. Beverly Milloway. During the social hour contests were enjoyed, after which delicious refreshments were served.

MRS. J. E. KIRK, Chairman.

Winston.—The Philathea Class met Monday evening at the church with 12 members and one new member present.

Mrs. Roy M. Hauser presided and conducted the devotionals with Miss Nannie Watson leading in prayer. Various reports were read and a weiner roast was planned for Thursday evening, October 17, at the home of Mrs. W. C. Tise, on the Country Club road. New officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Roy M. Hauser; vice-president, Mrs. A. A. Moser; teacher, Miss Nannie Watson; assistant teacher, Miss Minnie Dean; secretary and treasurer, Miss Leota Loggins; assistant secretary and treasurer, Miss Macie Scott; reporter, Mrs. W. C. Tise.

During the social hour delicious fruit was served.

High Point.—At the morning hour for worship last Sunday the pastor, Rev. R. I. Farmer, chose for the subject of his message, "Longer Cords or Stronger Stakes," from the text in Isaiah 54:2: "Enlarge the place of thy tent; spare not, lengthen thy cords, and strengthen thy stakes." He said in part: It has been the dreamers who have blazed the trails to success, and men with a vision who have accomplished the greatest work of the world. I well remember the oft-repeated expression of one of my professors in college: "Christianity is the investment of one human life for another." Isaiah's audience was crowd of exiled Jews in Jerusalem who seemed to be content to live in the same borders. He urged them to dream of larger things, and to lengthen the cords. In a small, red cottage in Leicester, England, lived a cobbler by profession, afterwards a teacher and preacher, and on the wall of that humble cottage hung a map of the world, which he studied. This text fired William Carey to become the first exponent of missions, and go to India. His motto was "Expect great things from God, attempt great things for God." I am dreaming of the possibility of enlarging our tent, and as a church we have only touched the surface of our possibilities of service. The spirit of maturity says, "Hold fast to what you have." The spirit of youth is daring and courageous, and cries, "Let us enlarge our tents." Tradition would say, "Stakes, then cords, but God says, 'Cords, then stakes.'" As a church we must enlarge our fellowship, improve our opportunities for touching the youth of our community, and bring the thousands of unchurched people into the fold of Christ. A Scotchman said to his son, "Sandy, take longer steps and not wear out so much shoe-leather." It is not so much a question of larger sails, but of more power within us. Oliver Wendell Holmes in his striking and unique poem, "The Chambered Nautilus," says:

"Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul,
As the swift seasons roll!
Leave thy low-vaulted past!
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast,
Till thou at length art free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's un-resting sea."

At this service Mrs. J. Gurney Briggs sang "The Lord Is Long-Suffering," by Perry, and the choir rendered the lovely anthem, "How Beautiful Upon the Mountains," by Harker.

At the evening service a large audience greeted Rev. Mr. Farmer, when he spoke on "The Unpardonable Sin," the second in the series of Sunday evening discussions of "Bible Questions Often Misunderstood." Great interest is being shown in this unusually interesting series of sermons for the month of October.

The topic for last Sunday's service of the Junior church was led by Miss Margaret Poole, on "Work, for the Night Is Coming."

The Woman's Auxiliary held a very delightful meeting on Monday afternoon at the lovely home of Mrs. C. C. Robbins, two miles south of the city. The attendance was splendid; the drive through the crisp and bracing autumn air of "October's bright blue weather" to this charming and hospitable home in its setting of brilliant foliage was greatly enjoyed. The program for October as outlined in the Yearbook, was presented after an opening prayer by Rev. Mr. Farmer. Mrs. C. L. Whitaker read a part of I Acts, and Mrs. J. H. Allred sang a solo.

Our workers in Japan, China, and India were sketched in a very interesting manner by Mrs. R. I. Farmer, and her husband then told of the men and women who are nobly giving their time and efforts to the work of the homeland, particularly Dr. and Mrs. Thos. R. Woodford, of Alvan Drew School, Pine Ridge, Ky., the latter being a sister of the late Dr. E. H. Van Dyke and a relative of the famous Dr. Henry Van Dyke, who has written so many beautiful and helpful messages to cheer and brighten the world; of our own Children's Home and the consecrated workers, Dr. and Mrs. A. G. Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dixon, Miss Vista Dixon, and others; of Rev. Homer Casto, that consecrated and courageous Christian gentleman of Bethel Home, Weaverville; the Pittsburgh, Pa., work among the foreign population of that large city; the work of Mrs. Painter at Dillonvale, Ohio, and the newly established Home for Business Girls in Baltimore. After the business was concluded, the gracious hostess served a delicious salad course and tea. A collection was taken for the kitchen sink at Bethel Home, and the sum of five dollars was contributed.

Circle No. 2 of the Woman's Auxiliary will meet this (Thursday) evening with the chairman, Miss Young, at High Point College.

Rev. and Mrs. R. I. Farmer will be at home to the members of the congregation and friends next Friday from 3 to 5 o'clock and 8 to 10 p. m. at the new parsonage, 628 Colonial Drive. At 8 o'clock there will be observed a brief dedicatory service.

We are pained to announce the illness of two dear and highly esteemed members, Mrs. B. F. Montgomery, who suffered a stroke of paralysis last Tuesday at her home on South Main street, and Mrs. T. T. Ferree, of Steele street. Earnest prayers are being made for their comfort while thus afflicted, and for their early restoration to health, if it be God's will.

Mr. D. A. Neese has gone to Philadelphia for treatment of his eyes, from which he has suffered for several weeks, and we are much pleased to learn that he is improving slowly.

Wyatt A. Pickens, who is touring South America with the Pan-American Highway Congress, writes his mother of an interesting experience. While crossing the Andes mountains at the highest point, 10,000 feet above sea level, which is more than 3,000 feet higher than our own Mount Mitchell, an airplane passed overhead at an altitude of another 10,000 feet. It was inaugurating air service between Buenos Aires, Argentina, and Santiago, Chile, which will be regular now. Later in Santiago he met the pilot of that plane, who is vice-president of the Pan-American Airways. He is a Mr. Montgomery from Marion, S. C., and we can imagine the pleasure with which those two homesick young Carolinians greeted each other in that far-away land—"ships that pass in the night," and speak each other in passing. Mr. Montgomery says that the Andes mountains are no harder to cross than the Alleghany's. While in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil Wyatt was cordially entertained by Dr. Frank E. Perkins, formerly of High Point, whom many of our townsmen will recall. He is a dentist in Rio, has a well-equipped office and is prosperous. The party from the United States crossed the equator October 4th, when the weather was clear and cool, and the sea calm. They expect to land in New York about November 1st, after a short visit to Caracas, Venezuela.

Burdine Memorial, Greenville, S. C.—Sunday was a good day with us. We had two new members and five visitors at Sunday school, making 19 present, although we had seven members absent for various reasons.

At 11:15 Rev. R. L. Leonard preached. This was the first preaching service we have had. His text was taken from Matthew 16:18 verse, "And I say also unto thee, that thou art Peter and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." He used for his subject, "The Church." He brought out in his message: 1. Peter's confession; 2. Jesus' answer; 3. The church, a body of believers; 4. Motive; 5. The mission.

Before the sermon we sang that grand old hymn, "How Firm a Foundation."

Mr. Leonard has consented to preach for us next Sunday and any other time we want him. Bro. Leonard is one of our own, reared in Liberty Hill church. He sings well, which added to the service.

We were glad to have Miss Treva Beeson, of Knersville, N. C., with us for Sunday school and preaching. She is employed as matron in an orphanage here. We appreciate her presence and wish it were possible for her to attend every Sunday.

If any of you know of a Methodist Protestant in Greenville, S. C., we will appreciate your notifying the writer.

MRS. J. LEE POOLE, Reporter.

Kistlers Church, Cleveland Charge.—On the first Sunday morning a small but willing crowd assembled in our church for the regular morning services. Our Sunday school was conducted as usual. The lesson was discussed from all standpoints. The report of our school was very good.

Bro. Ridge brought to us a most uplifting message, based on love. His text was from Nehemiah: "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved." This message was more to the unsaved, but it was enjoyed by all. Bro. Ridge made his sermon so plain that I think the children understood and enjoyed it.

After this we observed Communion service, and were glad to see a large number commune. Following this Bro. Ridge revised our church record.

We are always glad to have Bro. Ridge bring Mrs. Ridge and children with him. They have a hearty welcome in our church and we hope they will come many more times. We were also glad to see so many visitors attend our services.

We are all looking forward to the coming of Bro. Taylor the third Sunday at 2 p. m. We hope a large crowd will be out to hear Bro. Taylor. I am sure the evening will be well spent and enjoyed.

Best wishes to all.

FLORA IVESTER, Reporter.

Asheboro.—At the morning service yesterday we received three more new members by letter: Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Clemmons and daughter, Evelyn, from the First Church, High Point. We are indeed glad to have them in our church. This makes three entire families we have received during the last month. The Sunday school attendance was better yesterday than a week ago and considerably better than a year ago.

A week ago the writer was in bed with a deep cold and Dr. R. M. Andrews occupied the pulpit at the morning hour and Brother Robert Lloyd at the evening hour. Our people were glad to hear each of these. You all know who Dr. Andrews is, but Brother Lloyd is not so well known. He is a licensed preacher living here and working in an office. He is doing a fine work in our church as a teacher of young men in the Sunday school. If he were to enter the regular work, giving his entire time to it, I am sure that he would make good in the ministry.

Conference will soon be here, but there is much to be done yet. We are almost out on the Annual Conference Budget except the deficit on the Gratitude Gift, and counting what the women have raised together with the offerings on special days, we are fairly well along on the General Conference budget. So far we have received 40 members this year with one letter in hand and with some to unite on profession of faith and possibly some more by letter before Conference. While we have received a goodly number, yet we have lost several by removals and one by death this year. A man who recently united with our church said yesterday, "You have the finest organization in your church I have seen anywhere and we are thoroughly enjoying attending the services."

Something new for our evening services is a story, a recitation or a song by some of the younger set. Lucy Clyde Ross led off a week ago with a good story and Allene Lamb gave a good story last evening.

Our annual congregational meeting and the fourth quarterly conference will both be held on Monday evening, October 21. The congregational meeting will go as far as the discipline will allow it to go and the quarterly conference will finish the business.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

Hope, Chatham Charge.—Last Sunday our pastor, Rev. A. O. Lindley, filled his appointment and, as usual, brought us a good message. He always brings us earnest, helpful messages.

Our Conference year is nearing a close. We have only one more preaching service before Conference. We are not as well up with our financial obligations as we would like to be, but we hope by some means or other that we may be able to meet them.

Our church officers will be elected next Sunday night. Sunday school officers have already been elected. Mr. A. A. Johnson was re-elected superintendent and we are hoping for the best Sunday school this year that we have ever had. We had a larger number in attendance last Sunday than usual and interest seems to be increasing. We are very glad to have Mrs. Howell, of Burlington, and Miss Margaret Shaw, of Wilmington, teachers in Bonlee school, work with us in Sunday school.

Our Auxiliary is still making progress, and each circle is active. We are proud of the work our women are doing through this organization.

KARA ANDREW, Reporter.

Davidson.—Our fourth quarterly conference will be held at Chapel Hill on next Saturday, October 19th, at 1:30 p. m.

All officials who have an interest in the success of the charge and the extension of the kingdom will be expected to attend. Our faithfulness is the measure of our interest. Bro. W. A. Lofin, who was reported very sick last week, is improved. To our many friends who have enquired, will say: Mrs. Reed has returned home from a five-weeks' stay in Greensboro and is gradually improving.

Our hearts were made sad last Thursday at the tragic death of little Lloyd Surratt, who was nearly three years old. He was the son of Bro. and Sister Lee Surratt. Lloyd and his father were very chummy. He often accompanied his father on his lumber truck. Bro. Surratt had just loaded his truck and was calculating the load when little Lloyd in an effort to climb on the truck, pulled a plank off the truck, it falling on his head, knocking him back on other timber, crushing his head, causing instant death. Bro. and Sister Surratt's spirits were crushed by the untimely going of little Lloyd, as well as all of his relatives and friends. The tenderest sympathies of the entire community go out for the bereaved.

He was tenderly laid to rest at Gravel Hill church to await the resurrection morn. The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. E. A. Bingham, of Denton.

W. D. REED.

Bethel, Alamance Charge.—Our pastor, Bro. Burgess, continues to give us splendid sermons twice a month. We always enjoy his sermons.

We are having a good Sunday school, but we hope to make it better, and we can if every member will do his part to the best of his ability.

Our Woman's Missionary Society is very active. We have had unusually good attendance this year due partly to the fact that we have a contest for attendance. Last Sunday the society held its monthly meeting at the home of Rev. G. W. Holmes. This was a good meeting. One interesting feature was a short address by Rev. J. E. Carroll on the subject, "Missions, Our Duty and Privilege." The next monthly meeting will be held with Mrs. A. L. Foust the second Sunday in November.

On next Sunday, October 20, the annual thank-offering meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society will be held at Bethel church at 11 o'clock. There will be only one service. We hope to receive a good offering.

The fourth quarterly conference will be held at Bethel next Saturday, October 19. Mr. W. H. Foust is delegate to the Annual Conference.

REPORTER.

West Forsyth.—The first Sunday our appointments were with the Baltimore and Stony Knoll churches and last Sunday we were with Union Hill church, all three of them in Yadkin county.

The ordinance of the Lord's Supper was observed at each of the services for the past two Sundays. We had a large congregation at Baltimore church on the first Sunday morning. After the service we went to the home of Bro. W. S. North, according to previous invitation and enjoyed a splendid dinner with this good family. From there we went to Stony Knoll for the service at 2:30 p. m. A fairly large congregation was present for the service. On our way home we were privileged to spend a while in the home of Bro. Jim Patterson and family.

We had the largest congregation of the year at Union Hill last Sunday morning for a regular appointment. We were pleased to have Rev. Jim Ring, of the Friends church, worship with us and assist in the service. We also had the wife of a Baptist minister and two sons of a preacher of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in the congregation. In addition to these we had the father of a Friends minister and brother of a Methodist preacher. After the service the pastor and family went to the good home of Mrs. Turner Norman, one of the faithful members of Union Hill, where we enjoyed a splendid dinner. Union Hill held the election of church officers last Sunday and re-elected the present officials for the coming year.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Whitman, perhaps the oldest member of Pleasant Hill church, who died at the home of her son, Bro. Julius Whitman, at midnight last Saturday night, were held at the church Monday morning at 11 o'clock. The funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. W. F. Grabs, pastor of the Moravian church at Bethania. Mrs. Whitman was 90 years, 10 months and 20 days old. She had been confined to her home for the past six months, having suffered a serious injury in a fall at her home, from which she never recovered. Two sons, J. A. and J. E. Whitman, members of Pleasant Hill church, and two daughters, Mrs. John Kearney and Mrs. W. H. Ball, survive, besides 20 grandchildren and 32 great-grandchildren.

The pastor and family have received a number of donations for our dining table since our last report. For these gifts we desire to thank Bro. W. S. North, of Baltimore church; Mrs. Mary Ellen Long, of Pleasant Hill church, and Mrs. Tom Allen, of Tabernacle church.

Our final revival meeting for this year on West Forsyth charge will begin at Pleasant Hill church next Sunday morning. There will be three services during the first day: at 11 a. m., 1:30 p. m., and 7:30 p. m. In addition to these three services the pastor will meet his regular appointment at Tabernacle church in the afternoon at 3 o'clock. This service would have been suspended if it had not been so near the end of the Conference year. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed to meet the requirement of the church law. The Lord's Supper will be observed at Pleasant Hill at the morning service. We are expecting Rev. M. P. Chambliss, of Fountain Place church, Burlington, the engaged help for the meeting, to arrive in time to begin preaching at the first service next Sunday. However, assurance of his arrival for the Sunday services has not been given at this writing.

This writer trusts that the two delegates whose first names are "Jonah" mentioned in one of our pastor's reports in the Herald last week will not run away from duty as did the original Jonah, and that their pastor will "put them on the right ship" for the seat of the Annual Conference.

Now, all together, one more earnest effort to finish up the year's work before Conference. C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Rehoboth, Granville Charge.—The church celebrated its 100th anniversary the first Sunday. It was a bright, sunshiny day and the attendance was fine. The floral tributes added to the occasion. But for one thing, we would have been happy; death had entered the home of Mr. H. D. Floyd and taken his wife.

A very inspiring message was presented by Rev. G. W. Holmes. His text was "The Kingdom of God." He pictured to us what a beautiful world, and how God had made everything so good for us at the beginning of time. Then, on account of sin, trouble began. An angel spoke to Adam and Eve: Where art thou? They had hidden, because sin had befallen them. Adam said: "That woman thou gavest me did sin." God stripped them of their clothing and drove them out of the garden. God has spoken to you and me: "Where art thou?" in the church, in the community, and in the home. Are you doing good, or are you hindering God's kingdom?

If we have sinned, then there is a remedy. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved."

We are putting too much time on material things. Seek first the kingdom of God, and all things shall be added. He still rules and has all things under His control. He breathed life into man, and it is He who takes us to His own.

A picnic dinner was served on a long table, and everybody enjoyed it immensely.

In the afternoon, Lawyer Hicks read a historical paper which he had prepared. This was very fine. We had to hurry through so as to have the church for the funeral. Mrs. H. D. Floyd, a well known and beloved woman, died last Friday and was laid to rest on Sunday afternoon at Rehoboth cemetery. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. H. F. Fogleman, assisted by Rev. G. W. Holmes. She always looked on the bright side of life and your association with her made you feel happier. She will be greatly missed in the community. A large crowd of friends and relatives were present at the funeral. They paid their last respects by contributing numerous floral tributes, which presented a beautiful scene. We extend to the family our heart-felt sympathy.

Another member has passed away, too. Mrs. William Breedlove. She was in her 86th year. Pneumonia was the cause of her death. She was a woman of true worth, always patient, gentle, kind and loving—never forgetting to serve others, even in her trying hours.

Sincere sympathy is also extended to the bereaved family.

Conference will soon be here, and we wish to have a good report for our pastor. We desire greatly his returned for the coming year. REPORTER.

Rand'eman Charge.—A real pounding on September 28. About 7 p. m. a large number of New Salem and Mount Lebanon members came to the parsonage. A great number of cars lined up in front of the parsonage, and such a pounding! I think it was the largest we have ever received. They seemed to know just what we needed, and they brought it. We cannot mention all that came or articles brought, but the Lord knows each of them. May He richly bless each one. We hope to be of some help to them along the pathway of life.

The meeting began at Level Cross the first Sunday. Bro. Millaway did the preaching, and he did it well. All enjoyed having him in our midst again. There were three converts and two were reclaimed. Will receive some in the church on the fourth Sunday.

T. A. WILLIAMS.

Burlington, First Church.—Our reporter will doubtless give a full account of the evangelistic services that ran for two full week in our church. However, I want to say just a word about the meeting.

A business meeting of the church voted for the pastor to do the preaching. I undertook to do this, fully realizing something of the difficult undertaking, but with the resolve to do my best by the grace of God and with the co-operation of the church. So we began on Sunday, September 29th, and continued through Sunday evening, October 13th. With the exception of the two services on Sunday, the 6th, when I was ill and unable to preach, I did all the preaching, failing to have a service one evening because of rain.

There was no remarkable stir during the meeting. We were not able to count any large number of converts, but the attendance was good throughout and the series of services closed Sunday evening with about as large a congregation as we had during the two weeks. At this service in the closing moments, a young married man came to the altar, made his confession and surrender and gave his name for membership. A fitting climax to the meeting.

I have scarcely ever enjoyed preaching a series of evangelistic sermons better than I did this time. The co-operation of many of our church people was all that could be asked. Some of them were present for every service, including even the stormy night. Many others missed only two or three services. The fine attendance and co-operation of the people was an inspiration to the preacher. We believe the church has been greatly helped by the meeting, even though there was not a large number of professions or additions. In all, on profession of faith and by certificates, eight annes were received yesterday for membership.

Dr. T. C. Amick, of Elon College, has our thanks for preaching for us at 11 o'clock, and Rev. Mr. Galloway, of the M. E. Church, for preaching at the evening hour the day the pastor was ill.

I want also to say that the good service rendered by the choir, led by Bro. W. T. Way, is appreciated by the pastor and, I believe, by the church.

Burlington First Church is hoping to send to Conference a 100 per cent financial report, as has been the custom for a great number of years. L. W. GERRINGER, Pastor.

October 14, 1929.

Alleghany, Davidson Charge.—On the second Sunday Brother Reed preached a good sermon, after which he administered the Lord's Supper. This being the last Sunday service for this Conference year, new officers were elected, as follows: Superintendent of the Sunday school, Mr. Foster Loftin; stewards, N. L. Fine, F. M. Cook and Bradley Loftin; class leaders, G. T. Loftin, N. E. Loftin; the old board of trustees was re-elected. We hope that each one will take his place and do his best and that the church will do its part. The Sunday school superintendent is a young man and faithful to the church, and if all will help we can have a good Sunday school. Let us try to encourage him and not to discourage him, for that hurts.

Let us all be kind to one another and forgive one another and if it is the Lord's will that we live to see another year, let us try to do more praying God's richest blessings on all.

Brother Reed will be at Alleghany the 23rd at night. ABIGAIL COGGIN.

Albemarle.—The Ladies Aid Society held its regular meeting Tuesday, October 8, at the church with Mrs. J. R. Anderson and Mrs. C. B. Efrd as joint hostesses. At this meeting, officers for the coming year were elected.

Plans were made for staging our Annual Floral Show, and bazaar, on November 2, and committees were appointed to look after the details for this, our greatest endeavor of the year. This will make the fourth consecutive year that we have held a Flower Show, and each year greater interest is manifested in it. Prizes are donated by the merchants of the town and are well worth striving for.

The bazaar, which is held in connection with the Floral Show, offers beautiful handmade articles, at nominal prices, and we believe that this year, we have a greater display than ever before in this line.

After the business hour a delightful salad course was served. Decorations and favors carried out the Halloween idea very successfully. MRS. J. U. WHITLOCK, Reporter.

Lexington, State Street.—Last Sunday was another good day and a full one for us. The morning services were good in every way and well attended. Our pastor's message at the 11 o'clock hour was one of the most helpful and touching, the text being, "Jesus came into the world to seek and to save that which was lost."

President Taylor was with us and preached for us at the evening hour, and also presided at a meeting of the workers' council and business meeting after the regular service. The message brought by Bro. Taylor was one of great interest and inspiration. The subject of the address was, "The Name of Jesus Exalted Above Every Name." The presence of Bro. Taylor is always welcomed by all our folks at any time. His kindly and sympathetic interest is felt from the moment he enters the door.

The election of church officers for the coming year was held at the business session of the meeting Sunday night. Only a few changes were made. Mrs. C. L. Koonts, our esteemed and efficient pianist, asked to be relieved of this duty for a year, but the suggestion was met by so much protest and seemed so impossible to us all that Mrs. Koonts was prevailed upon to withdraw the request. So many of us are so slow to express to each other the gratitude that we feel many times for faithful service and for help received that probably Mrs. Koonts does not realize how much her work means to us and to visitors who come in. If some of the expressions of pleasure and appreciation made about her splendid talent were made to her she would see that there was no chance for her to quit, even for a year.

The sixth district of the Federation of Women's Clubs met in our church one day during the week before last. The counties included in the district were well represented and a most enjoyable and helpful session was the result. Our pastor gave the address of welcome and led the opening prayer. Dinner was served in the church dining room. Many expressions of gratitude and appreciation for the fine spirit of hospitality shown by Mr. and Mrs. Bethea have been heard from out-of-town members of the club as well as from Lexington folks.

A series of revival services are being held at South Lexington this week. Bro. Bethea is preaching and Mr. Wayne Curtis, of Burlington, is directing the singing. The services began Sunday and already the prospect is good for a successful meeting. Prayer for the success of the meeting is requested.

Our revival services will begin next Sunday with Bro. Bethea doing the preaching. The dates of the meetings were exchanged by Bros. Bethea and Isley that the people of the more central part of the city might have the privilege of attending revival services being held this week at the First Baptist church here. Mr. Marshall Mott, of Winston-Salem, is doing some unusually good and effective preaching there and the singing, directed by Horace Eason, of Shelby, is much enjoyed and very helpful.

Miss Swannie Herndon, of Greensboro, niece of Mr. Bethea, spent a few days week before last visiting at the parsonage. She was with us in the services during the Sunday she was here and was very active and helpful. We hope she comes often. Among the most interesting and altogether delightful people that have ever visited Lexington have been the numerous and sundry folk from numerous and sundry places visiting the Betheas.

REPORTER.

Fair Grove, Why Not Circuit.—Bro. Trogdon preached for us Sunday night and, as usual, gave us a good thought. We hope he will return as our pastor for the next year.

The past year has been one of the best years in this church: good attendance at church and the best in some time at Sunday school; eight members have been received, five by profession and three by letter.

The officers elected for next year are: Trustees, W. R. Groves, W. A. Cagle, J. A. Auman, E. R. Auman and C. E. Stuart; class leaders, J. E. King, Mrs. J. A. Auman, Mrs. C. E. Stuart; stewards, E. W. Auman and Mrs. J. E. King; treasurer, Mrs. E. W. Auman; Sunday school superintendent, E. W. Auman; assistant, L. E. Cagle; reporter, Mrs. L. A. King; Sunday school teachers will be elected soon.

We were glad to have Mrs. Trogdon with us Sunday night. MRS. C. E. STUART.

Laurel Hill, Fallston Charge.—We had excellent attendance at Sunday school Sunday morning. The people are taking much interest in the Sunday school. We can frankly say that our Sunday school has prospered much for the past year under the leadership of Mr. A. A. Sain. We certainly have a band of small children at Laurel Hill. May God help that they may be trained in our Sunday school the way they should go. The fifth Sunday in September a primary band was taken to a community singing at Olive Grove from Laurel Hill, sponsored by Misses Lois and Vangie Willis. The little folks enjoyed being in the band as much as the people enjoyed hearing them play. It would be a fine thing if we had singing conventions for the primary children as well as for senior choirs.

Our pastor, Rev. J. M. Morgan, delivered to us Sunday morning at 11 a wonderful, inspiring sermon. It was enjoyed by all.

Rev. Mr. Morgan has been with us at Laurel Hill six years and we hope that he will be with us six more. We want to thank conference for sending to us such a wonderful man as Bro. Morgan. Our church has made much progress since he has been with us. During the time we have not been disappointed a single time, neither have we been disappointed in a single sermon that has come from his lips, but each one is more inspiring and better. Conference will soon be here and we hope that all dues will be paid up in full and that neither we nor our pastor will be ashamed of our report.

The fourth quarterly conference will be held at Macedonia church on Saturday before the fourth Sunday in this month. Let all get busy and think of all the good things the Lord has done for us in the past year and then pay up our dues to the church so that our charge will go over the top. Then we can expect more and greater things of the Lord next year.

We elected officers at our church Sunday, as follows: Mr. A. A. Sain, Sunday school superintendent; Mr. J. W. Alwran, assistant superintendent; trustees, Messrs. D. H. Sain, W. A. Sain, A. A. Sain, W. C. Hull and H. P. Sain; this retained all the old board; stewards, Messrs. E. S. Wright, B. A. Sain, A. E. Brackette, A. B. Willis, and Clarence Willis; this also retained the old board; class leaders, Messrs. A. A. Sain and J. W. Alwran; secretary and treasurer, Mr. H. P. Sain; church reporter, Miss Lois Willis.

The Sunday school teachers were not elected but will be on next Sunday.

We were very glad to have several visiting members to worship with us Sunday morning and extend to all a hearty welcome to visit us any time possible.

We are very sorry to know that one of our good Christian ladies is now in Lincolnton Hospital, Mrs. H. P. Sain; but we trust and pray that she will soon be able to return and worship with us.

With best wishes to all for the new Conference year.

LOIS WILLIS, Reporter.

Draper.—Rev. W. T. Totten does some good preaching for the church. Everybody enjoys his sermons.

The Christian Endeavor is still growing; many were present last Sunday.

One of our members, Mrs. Maggie Pate, has been sick, but is better.

Sunday school starts at 9:45, and preaching service starts at 11 o'clock, and service at night at 7:30 o'clock. REPORTER.

Effland, Orange Charge.—Having been re-elected reporter I will try to fulfil my duties as best I can. All officers of the church were elected or mostly re-elected the first Sunday night.

Mr. Williams brought us a good sermon at that time. We have only three more appointments before Conference. Much is yet to be accomplished if our Conference year ends up as we would like to have it. We will be very much disappointed if Conference doesn't send our present pastor back to us. This year ends his fifth year with us and you know when we ask for him back that he is one of the best and has won a place in the hearts of the people of this charge as a whole.

Our Sunday school is growing in attendance. We had 115 last Sunday. Come on, folks, let's make it 150 or more by the end of the year.

Best wishes for a very successful Conference. MRS. E. S. TAYLOR, Reporter.

Lebanon Church, High Point.—With the Conference year drawing to its close we do lift our hearts in gratitude to our dear heavenly Father for His loving providence over all through another year. In humility we offer our thanks for the grace that has sustained us and lifted us up in the day of battle; for every victory that can be counted ours, through Jesus Christ, in the work of His kingdom.

In some respects our church has had the most successful year on record. In some other respects there is room for improvement. Let us hope that improvement can be made during the coming year.

Last Sunday at 11 o'clock an installation service was held. Our pastor preached an excellent sermon, in which he pointed out the responsibilities of officials and also their opportunity for doing good. The following officers were installed: Trustees, C. B. Welch, W. C. Montgomery, H. E. Pitts, A. J. Payne, W. L. Lee, Percy Payne, G. A. Blair; stewards, S. E. Montgomery, W. E. Grissom, Clarence Pierce, Dale Montgomery, E. C. Blair, R. A. Cook, C. M. Brown, D. S. Hedgecock, W. B. Hutches, Vetra Willard, Manley Craven, J. B. Huff. Mrs. V. L. Smith is our pianist for the coming year, with Miss Erma Suits, assistant, and Mrs. C. B. Welch is our reporter. Messrs. Briggs and Hassell are class leaders.

A meeting of the Ladies' Aid will be held at 7:30 at the church this Wednesday evening.

The fourth quarterly conference will convene next Monday evening at 7:30 at the church. As this is a very important session of business it is hoped that all members will be present and all reports in hand ready for prompt action. And let us not forget to pray for guidance in the transaction of these important matters, guidance of the Holy Spirit, that this work of love may be done in love.

REPORTER.

October 14, 1929.

Chestnut Ridge, Orange Circuit.—We had a very large crowd at preaching Sunday at 11 o'clock; our pastor, Mr. Williams, delivered a fine sermon. Communion service was held; we were glad to see the large number partake of the Lord's Supper.

Church officers were elected for the coming year, as follows: Class leaders, J. S. Faucett, S. E. Holmes, J. S. Minnis, W. A. Pender, W. S. Sykes; trustees, W. S. Dodson, S. N. Hayes, R. C. Minnis, C. H. Pender, C. A. Sykes, G. P. Sykes, D. M. Sykes, J. E. Thompson, P. F. Tapp; stewards, J. C. Dodson, J. E. Holmes, C. H. Jones, O. F. Jones, J. M. Minnis, W. A. Moore, D. A. Pender, C. H. Sykes, E. C. Sykes, Mrs. Annie Belle Sykes; Sunday school superintendent, J. T. Hobbes; church secretary and treasurer, Mrs. C. A. Sykes, Mr. C. H. Jones; reporter, Miss Annie Squires.

We are glad to say that our church is under repair work at this writing; we trust that it will soon be completed.

The fourth quarterly conference will meet at Chestnut Ridge church Saturday before the fourth Sunday in the month. We are especially anxious to have a good attendance at this conference.

We are hoping Conference will be so kind as to send our present pastor back to us. He has served us faithfully for five years; we would be very sorry to give him up.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.

Canaan, West Thomasville Charge.—Our church has progressed in building and in interest since we have had a report in this paper. We have built four nice, large rooms, furnished each with chairs and tables or desks. We have remodeled the auditorium and the front. In front we have put a concrete porch and steps all around it. The church has been painted white with the doors stained brown.

On roll we have about 115, with an average attendance of about 75.

At our service Sunday, October 13, we, with the help of our pastor, Bro. T. J. Whitehead, elected our new officers for the coming year.

During the summer we have had several interesting events, among which were a circuit rally, a lawn party, and a very successful revival. During watermelon season we gathered together 25 watermelons and sent them down to the Children's Home. We also had a teachers' training course, given by Bro. Whitehead, lasting one and a half weeks. Being very interesting it was enjoyed and appreciated by every one.

PREPARING THE WAY

A minister who once preached in a little out-of-the-way town where there was a good deal of struggle and hardship to get along, a great deal of close-fisted shrewdness and poverty in general, having been there a good many years, at last made up his mind to resign, and, to the surprise of his congregation made the startling announcement one Sunday morning:

"Brethren and sisters, it seems the Lord does not love this people. He never takes any of you to heaven. There hasn't been a funeral here for five years. It does not seem to me that you love one another—nobody ever gets married. I haven't had a wedding for a decade. It does not seem to me that you love your pastor, for you never pay his salary in full; you eke it out with scabby potatoes and wormy apples—hm 'and by their fruits ye shall know them.' I am going to a better place; I have been appointed chaplain to the penitentiary—and 'I go to prepare a place for you.'—The Pathfinder.

—Some good meetings were reported last week. And the organization of a new Sunday school in Greenville, S. C., is noted. Our people there are going ahead with determination. They are fortunate in having a large lot for sale if they decide to build elsewhere. The brother who gave it years ago showed his faith by his works.

—The editor enjoyed worshipping with Tabernacle people last Sunday. Bro. Isley had invited Rev. Lamrence Little for the morning service, and he made a strong appeal for the teaching function of the church. He did not depreciate preaching, but thought there had been a great lack of attention to religious teaching. Church buildings have been planned and built with only preaching in view. Now the error is seen and is being corrected by churches of vision. Religious teaching in the churches is the more necessary because in our country the separation between church and state has practically removed religious instruction from the state schools. There was good attendance and untiring attention to Bro. Little's address of fifty minutes. We arrived before the end of the Sunday school and saw an orderly group of 147 people. We are glad to know they are thinking of Sunday school rooms, and hope that when they get down to it they will find themselves surprised at the ease with which general co-operation will enable them to do it. The ladies are organized in circles and are doing things. Bro. Isley announced that this week would be observed as Harvest Home week, offerings being contributed for the Children's Home.

—Albert B. Fall is in Washington for trial for an offense committed when Harding was president and Fall was a Cabinet member; that is, if he was really guilty. The wrongs of the past are hard to get away from. Our evil deeds follow us. How much better it is to leave them uncommitted.

—A letter mailed in Hertford, N. C., five years ago has just reached Greensboro, its destination. The person addressed left the city years ago, but this letter will follow. Uncle Sam may be liable to receive claims for damage. That letter might have had a mighty importance to some young man, and the young woman to whom it was addressed. We would advise Uncle Sam not to take the risk of such dilatoriness again. His reputation for promptness in service will suffer if nothing else happens to him.

"How much?"

"Half a dollar."

"Correct."

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY OBSERVANCE URGED IN EUROPE

At a meeting of The Continuation Committee "Life and Work" conference held at Bisenach, Germany, in September, Bishop Irinaus of Novi Sod presented resolutions urging the churches to give sympathetic cooperation to The Golden Rule Sunday movement, and to adopt all measures tending to secure attention and financial support from the public on behalf of the projects for the under-privileged children of the world. The resolutions, which were seconded by Principal Garvie of Scotland, were unanimously passed.

In Geneva at a meeting presided over by Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, forty-five prominent men and women, representing fourteen nations of the world, went on record as commending the observance of International Golden Rule Sunday. A provisional committee was appointed to encourage a more effective observance of the day and arrange for a representative meeting to be held in Geneva in the Autumn of 1930 at which time consideration will be given to the organization of a permanent International Golden Rule Council.

JOE

Our street once had a boy
 Who went and came as Joe;
 A handy boy, a useful boy
 As any boy you know.

He mowed the neighbors' lawns,
 He used the garden hoe,
 He raked the autumn leaves,
 He shoveled off the snow.

For years he kept it up,
 As faithful as the clock.
 The people paid his price,
 Did not his wages dock.

But now a change has come,
 Our Joe is Joe no more;
 He's lengthened out his name
 And does not do a chore.

He's now the honored mayor,
 Our town has found him out;
 It took from us our Joe
 And brought the change about.

NUMBER 50

Story of Your Life

Be a spectator of your life,
Buy a ticket and take it in:
There never was quite such a show
As when your deeds are on the screen.

The creeping infant makes you smile:
Were you ever a squab like that?
How simple and feeble and foolish you look
As you pull at the tail of the cat!

More days pass and your cunning grows,
Also your power to do your will:
You see yourself at the sugar bowl,
Or climbing outdoors over the sill.

The shifting scenes bring on school days,
You see yourself in merry crew,
With books and ball and noisy sports,
Always looking for something to do.

The days of youth go fleeting by,
You pass on to the days of care;
You give up the days of play for work,
And take your place with those who dare.

How real does life now seem to you!
What fearful tests it brings about!
With bated breath you watch yourself,
And keenly fear you won't hold out.

You're deeply asborbed in your career
Through all the days of responsible life:
You see defeat and victory,
You wonder how will end the strife.

How terrible a close the story might have!
What shameful scenes might yet come in!
You lift a prayer to God in Heaven:
O Lord! May I be saved from sin!

Providence or Improvidence?

When we returned to North Carolina 35 years ago we talked with an elderly man about the prospects of the Methodist Protestant Church. We soon learned that he was content to be a mere spectator of the course of events rather than an actor to determine what should come to pass. He advanced a view regarding the purpose of Providence in the Methodist Protestant Church which was new to us but by no means acceptable. He said he believed the Methodist Protestant Church was raised up by Providence to care for the poor people out in the country that were neglected by other denominations. That would be a worthy mission, but we saw for the Methodist Protestant a much larger field than that would indicate. We believed the Methodist Protestant Church adapted to men everywhere; in cities as well as in the country; to the rich as well as the poor; to the learned as well as the ignorant. And we urged our Annual Conference to try to plant a church in the county seat of every county in North Carolina, and to make known everywhere our distinctive beliefs and principles of organization. We felt that the responsibility for the spread of our church is upon us, under the guidance and blessing of Providence, and that if we simply resigned ourselves to a presumptuous trust in Providence, we were simply inviting merited failure. To us it appeared the greatest and most culpable improvidence to indulge in an unwarranted trust in Providence. We believed that the Methodist Protestant Church could if it would. The situation invited us to energetic and hopeful action. With a common-sense creed and a fraternal spirit in our form of organization we could make a strong appeal not only to Americans but also to men of democratic spirit everywhere in the world.

The events of the last 35 years have confirmed us in our belief. We have not seen the Methodist Protestant Church planted in every county-seat in this State, but we have seen it enter Asheville, Lincolnton, Shelby, Caroleen, Bessemer City, Charlotte, Concord, Albemarle, Spencer, Lexington, Thomasville (three churches), High Point (four churches), Greensboro (four churches from one 35 years ago), Julian, Siler City, we believe Liberty belongs to this roll, Pinnacle, Reidsville, Burlington (two churches), Glen Raven, Graham, Efland, Mebane, Whitakers, and perhaps a few others. Some of these churches and others, as Henderson and Asheboro, have in this period erected greatly superior houses of worship. This period of our history proves that the Methodist Protestant Church can move forward when it determines to do so and employs the rational means of progress. Providence helps those who help themselves. Instead of trying to lay the sponsibility for any failure of ours on Providence, let us shoulder the blame ourselves and thank Providence for the chance He still gives us.

During this same period of 35 years we have seen such a development of the democratic spirit in a number of foreign mission fields as to lead the native Christians to desire and demand freedom from foreign control in their religious activities. The spirit that produced the Methodist Protestant Church is still marching on. We cannot say with Napoleon that God is on the side of the strongest battalions in a material sense, but we can say that God is on the side of those whose cause is just in purpose and righteous in method.

In view of what we have been able to do in the past, let us thank God and take courage. Let us not yield to any fatalistic notion that God does not wish us to do much, but let us open our eyes to the greatness of our opportunity, and let us fear only to be remiss in the tasks with which God honors us.

THE COUNTRY CHURCH

(CONTEST ARTICLE NO. 6)

The country church has been a great factor in extending the Kingdom of God.

By it untold numbers have been pointed to the Lamb of God that "taketh away the sin of the world." It has been, and is yet, a center in the community in which it is located for the gathering of the people.

It has been supplied, in the main, by ministers from its own members, and in addition to that furnished numbers of ministers and members to the towns and cities around it. But after all is the average country church prospering as it should today? Are the majority of the country churches located best for all concerned? Is it possible for some of them to remain just where they are, and just as they are, and succeed? The writer thinks not, and gives as a reason, the failure of the church in keeping pace with the many other changes around it. Roads have been changed, highways have been built, modes of travel have been changed. Stores, banks, railroads, schools, colleges, and many other things have been consolidated.

I also read in The Progressive Farmer that some one favors the consolidation of the small counties of this state, giving as a reason for it, the reduction of taxes.

Now if stores, banks, schools, and other institutions can profit by consolidation, why not churches do likewise. The only hope, the writer believes, for some of our weaker churches is to be found in consolidation.

Advantages of Consolidation

In union there is said to be strength. A scattered force can never do what a concentrated force can do. By consolidation, better and more up-to-date churches could be built. We would have better church choirs, better Sunday Schools, in fact, every department of the church would be greatly improved, proving to all, "in union there is strength." This would go far towards making the country church an ideal place for all to meet on the first day of the week. But someone says this change would make the distance greater for some to travel, which might be true, but what is four, five, six, seven, or more miles in travel these days. But someone says all do not have automobiles, which is true, but I recently read that 97 percent of the church people in this country have automobiles, so go on, brother, and help build the consolidated church, and it may be by the time the church is finished the other three percent will have wheels ready to roll.

Location of Churches

Many mistakes have been made in locating churches, therefore we should go slow and consider well before locating. I know of churches built just a little more than out of sight of some good road or highway; surely such mistakes will not be made again. Would a business man who locates for dollars and cents, make such a mistake? I think not, but if he did, he would either relocate or go out of business.

Near some good up-to-date school building, or highway, or some well-traveled cross roads, would in most cases, make an ideal place for the country church.

Cemeteries

What will we do about them? says someone. Well, I am sure that the cemetery is precious to the memory of all, but should the cemetery forever decide the question as to where people should worship? Could our precious dead speak to us, do you not believe they would gladly say, "go on and build your church where you can do the most good." Take care of the cemetery where it is, and put the church where it ought to be. Church people and others who are interested should get together and get up a better plan for taking care of the cemeteries.

One better plan would be to buy bonds in a sufficient amount to yield in interest enough annually to pay for the upkeep of the cemetery, and then go on and help build the consolidated church, and thereby do two good things instead of one.

Revivals

I am sorry the country revivals are not what they once were, and I fear never will be again until the people return to the old time plan, with an all-day service with dinner on the ground. But it is to be hoped when we get the consolidated church, composed of two, three, four, or more churches, and run a meeting day and night for two or three weeks we will be thoroughly convinced that these little short meetings in our country churches, half attended have been far from what they might have been.

Keeping the Church and the Church Grounds

After becoming king, one of the first acts of Hezekiah was to have the temple of the Lord cleansed. Don't let a dirty church cause people to go somewhere else to worship. Do like Hezekiah says, "Bring out all the uncleanness found in the temple of the Lord." In the next place beautify the grounds around the church. A green lawn, with shade, walks, and drives will add much to the grounds of any country church, and in addition to that, a good marker should be erected, telling the name of the church, and who worship there.

Taking on New Life

Imagine, if you will, the up-to-date church, ready to open for the first service, well advertised, what would take place. See the people coming, old and young, both from the town and the country, all to see that better church, with added faith, hope, love, and life in every department, all rejoicing as they march on to victory.

Good people, in passing over the country in which you live, be looking out for that church lot on which to build a consolidated church, which will be instrumental in bringing multiplied blessings to this, and the following generations.

THE CONFERENCE OF THE EUROPEAN PROTESTANT CHURCHES AT BASLE

August 23-24, 1929

By REV. KENNETH D. MILLER

Pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Madison, New Jersey

"The Protestant churches of Europe are not 'struggling churches' in the sense that they are struggling to maintain their existence. They are struggling; but they are struggling to conquer the world for Christ."

With these words Dr. Merle D'Aubigne of the Federation of Protestant Churches, of France, struck the key-note of the conference of European church leaders held at Basle in August. Turning to the Swiss, British and American delegates, he continued: "What we need now is not the healing of our wounds, but NEW LIFE. And what we ask of you, Brethren, now, and of your churches, is not that you provide ambulance service in the rear, but rather that you take your places by our side in the ranks of a United Protestantism."

The applause which followed these words indicated that Dr. D'Aubigne had expressed the mind of the delegates present.

There were gathered at Basle 85 representatives of the Protestant churches of Europe and America. That it was indeed a representative gathering is shown by the fact that it included delegates from 47 different churches, from 25 different countries, and 19 different races. They had gathered at the call of Central Bureau for relief of Evangelical churches of Europe to review the situation of European Protestantism. It was a result of a similar conference held at Copenhagen in 1922 that relief work of the Central Bureau was inaugurated. During the seven-year period, approximately $1,000,000 had been raised and distributed to the war-torn Protestant churches. Physical suffering of ministers and other Christian workers had been alleviated; Protestant welfare and educational institutions had been rescued from bankruptcy; new methods of work had been introduced and new leaders trained.

The purpose of the Basle conference was to study the situation of the Protestant churches once more and to discover whether further aid is needed and if so, what form it should take. It was generally felt that 1929 marks a turning point in the development of European Protestantism. "Relief work will be needed here and there for some time to come, but for European Protestantism as a whole it is not so much emergency relief that is needed now, as constructive plans for the strengthening of the program of the churches"—such seemed to be the consensus of opinion. This conviction was summed up in the following resolution which was unanimously passed by the conference:

Resolution

"The Conference of European Protestant Churches assembled at Basle August 23-24, 1929, wishes to express its profound gratitude to the Churches of Switzerland, Holland, Great Britain, the Scandinavian countries and North America for their generous contribution for the relief of their sister churches in Europe, which has made possible the beneficent work of the Central Bureau for Relief of the Evangelical churches of Europe.

"Under the wise and devoted guidance of Dr. Adolf Keller, the Central Bureau has not only relieved our distress and saved many of our works of benevolence from extinction, but, more important still, has afforded us visible evidence of the moral and spiritual support of our brethren in Christ in our time of trouble and distress.

"After a careful review of the situation of European Protestantism the conference is convinced that a continuance of distinctively relief work for another five-year period is needed.

"Conscious of the necessity of conserving the full value of the relief work already accomplished, the conference desires to express its conviction that, when the temporary emergency task for which the Central Bureau was originally created is accomplished, it will still be necessary to continue and extend the type of constructive work already undertaken by the Central Bureau.

"For the accomplishment of such a program there will be needed some continuing organization as well as continued support.

"The work as outlined for the next five years would run along the following lines:

A. Relief Work.—Stabilization of the welfare institutions of the Churches, (Orphanages, other children's institutions, hospitals, clinics and sanatoria, homes for the aged, etc.); assistance to families of underpaid ministers, to needy students, etc.

B. Constructive Work.—Encouragement and support of the established missionary and evangelization work as well as assistance on behalf of new Protestant movements in various countries.

The "Leadership Program," scholarships to students and young ministers; exchange professorships and fellowships.

Building up the social welfare program of the churches.

Training of deaconesses and other women workers.

A continuing relief program of a limited nature, but of fundamental importance, and a permanent program of assistance in making the Protestant churches more effective,—this is the task which the Central Bureau is asked to assume. A conference of representative American church leaders is to be called shortly to consider ways and means of incorporating this permanent program of aid to the European churches into the benevolence program of our various churches. Meanwhile, however, the Central Bureau is asked to carry on its distinctively relief program for another five years.

Several general reasons were advanced for the necessity of the continuance of relief work. All of the Protestant churches of Europe are feeling the pressure of a united and aggressive Catholicism which threatens to engulf the Eastern Orthodox churches and in some places to sweep away the gains of the Protestant Reformation. Our European brethren call for no bigoted fanatical opposition to Rome. They do feel, however, that a divided Protestantism is at a peculiar disadvantage today before a unified and confident Catholicism. They are calling for some visible evidence of the world solidarity of Protestantism and they see in the relief program of the Central Bureau as well as in its constructive program, an opportunity to prove that the Protestant churches of the world are determined to stand together and not permit the weakest units to suffer for lack of help from the whole body of Protestantism.

On the other hand, the delegates at Basle reported, their churches were threatened by Bolshevism. In eastern Europe, the churches are feeling directly the force of Bolshevistic anti-religious propaganda centering in Russia, and all over Europe the indirect influences of a materialistic paganism are gnawing at the vitals of religious faith. Reaction on the one hand,—revolution on the other. These are the forces which stand strongly opposed to Protestantism. It is recognized that the strength to oppose these influences must be found within the churches themselves. They ask us to help them to help themselves, to demonstrate the spiritual unity of Protestantism, to assist in putting the Church of Christ in Europe on the forward march.

Protestantism is facing great opportunities for service among the Ukrainians, Czechoslovaks, and Hungarians, especially. The young Ukrainian evangelical movement is apparently facing unlimited possibilities. It deserves the support of world Protestantism in its early struggles. At Kolomea, Poland, for instance, a Protestant Church building has stood unfinished for over a year. In its present state it is a reproach not only to the Ukrainian movement but to the whole Protestant world. For $5,000 this church can be completed, furnished, and equipped and become a demonstration of the strength of united Protestantism.

At Stanislawow, a new central kitchen is needed for Dr. Zoeckler's welfare institutions. As it is, the 450 children and the other inmates are fed from the basement of an old tumble-down cottage. An isolation ward for contagious cases is an imperative need, for in all Galicia there are only two or three half-way adequately equipped hospitals, two of them Roman Catholic, and one Jewish.

In Papa, Hungary, the theological library desperately needs replenishing. It is fifteen years since they have been able to buy new books.

In Feketic, Yugoslavia, the orphan asylum of the Reformed Church needs only temporary aid to enable it to become a strong, efficient institution.

In northern France, additional ministers are needed for work among the Italian, Hungarian, and Polish immigrants. Pastors' salaries have been stabilized at $400 a year for unmarried men. This is hardly a "living wage." In Belgium the situation is worse.

These are but a few examples that come to me on the spur of the moment. It took a day and a half for the delegates from the needy churches to outline their situation to the conference. Countless specific tasks which remain to be done might be enumerated, for the doing of which the churches of Europe find themselves too weak and for which they ask our help.

On behalf of our European sister churches, therefore, the American committee of the Central Bureau for relief of the Evangelical churches of Europe turns to the churches and church members of America, and asks them to demonstrate our Christian solidarity. As we have stood by our brethren in their fight against extinction, so let us stand by them in their struggle to win the victory for Christ and His Church!

Reformation Sunday this year will be celebrated in November 3. Let us on that day recall to mind what the Reformation has meant to the cause of Christ, to civilization, to America. And then let us consider the problems of confronting the Reformation churches on the continent of Europe today, and do what we can to help them to solve those problems.

A PREACHER WANTED

The following questionnaire was received by Dr. David H. Scanlon, minister at the First Presbyterian Church, Durham, N. C., regarding a brother minister of the Synod of North Carolina:

1. How old is he and is he married or single?
2. How many children has he and what their ages?
3. Are any of his children unruly or uncontrollable?
4. Does his wife take active part in church work?
5. How long has he been preaching?
6. What churches has he served and where?
7. Give name of clerk of session or some prominent member in each served.
8. Where was he educated? Is he a D.D.?
9. Is he orthodox?
10. Has he any oratorical ability?
11. Does he speak fluently or does he hesitate? Has he any impediment in his speech?
12. Does he read sermons or confine himself closely to his manuscript?
13. Is he a deep doctrinal, logical preacher and teacher or of the shallow type?
14. What is his height, weight, build? Portly or slender?
15. Has he a strong personality and is he a graceful speaker?
16. How is he socially? Does he make friends?
17. Is he a good pastor?
18. Is he studious or of the opinion little preparation is necessary for his people?

19. Is he deeply spiritual?
20. Is he a good Sunday-School man?
21. Is he level headed, cautious and tactful?
22. Any musical talent in family?
23. Is he wide-awake, aggressive and progressive?
24. How long has he served present charge and what salary does he receive?
25. Are there any invalids in family?
26. Why does he desire a change?
27. Has he any deformity or physical defect?

And the Reply

Doctor Scanlon's reply follows:

Dear Brother:

I have answered your enclosed questionnaire as best I could, and return herewith. If I can serve you further in this matter, please feel free to call on me. I would suggest, however, that I would be in a better position to advise you as to this brother's adaptability to your needs, if I had information on the following points covered by the questionnaire found below; or, if you prefer, you may fill out same and enclose to the Brother in question, as it may assist him in arriving at his duty in the matter:

1. Why did your last pastor leave?
2. Has there ever been any dissension in your church?
3. What salary do you pay, and is it paid promptly?
4. Are your members faithful in attending public worship as a whole?
5. If not, what per cent are "absent spirits?"
6. How is the mid-week prayer service patronized?
7. What per cent of your elders and deacons lead in prayer?
8. Is the congregation responsible to the pastor's leadership?
9. How many tithers in your church?
10. Do the people enjoy strong sermons on stewardship and missions?
11. Are the members cautious and tactful in dealing with the pastor?
12. What is the average height and build of the congregation?
13. Are they generally of pleasing personality?
14. Do they prefer deep doctrinal sermons, or a spiritual, helpful, livable gospel?
15. Will the people as a whole throw themselves zealously into soul-winning with the pastor?
16. How many pastors have you had, and the length of each pastorate?
17. Are there any chronic kickers in the church?
18. Does the Session ever discipline members for drunkenness, gossip, dishonesty, or the neglect of such Christian duties as church attendance, forgotten family altars, etc.?
19. What proportion of your church offerings go to Missions, and what do you spend on your own church?
20. Would you recommend your church as an attractive and inviting field for a pastor?
21. Are the people willing to follow their pastor or are they inclined to let him go it alone?
22. Do the parents accompany their children to Sunday School, or do they send them?
23. Do your people have family pews in church, or do the children go home after Sunday School?

OUR RESOLVE

“Not a week, not a day, shall pass without an honest effort and an earnest prayer to close the year in the highest honor to God.”

Meeting of Boundary Committee

October 16, Wednesday.—This meeting was held according to appointment, with every member present except one. The committee organized by electing Dr. Dixon chairman, and Rev. George L. Curry, secretary. (We were led by a wrong impression in announcing Brother Millaway as chairman. Dr. Dixon was chairman of the committee last year, and was elected again to succeed himself.) Several representatives from different charges were before the committee, and a number of boundary changes discussed. But no definite arrangements were agreed upon. The committee adjourned to meet again at a later date.

The chairman will, no doubt, give notice of this meeting through the HERALD this week. All persons who are interested in boundary charges will have access to the committee at this meeting.

Thomasville

October 16, Wednesday.—We were here at night with the First Church in the fourth quarterly conference. We found the church in hopeful condition. Nineteen members have been added during the year. The Sunday School enrollment is nearly 300. The Woman's Auxiliary has fifteen active members, and they think the new order an improvement over the old. The church has one C. E. Society with fifteen members. Finances are considerably in arrears, though the closing efforts will change this considerably, we trust. The pastor will be paid in full, and we hope that considerable increase may be made in budget totals. The charge paid last year for all purposes, $12.00 per member. An increase of 40 cents over that amount would pay their budget in full this year. We would like to see Thomasville, First, an honor roll church. Brother Brice Garrett, son of Rev. J. N. Garrett, was recommended to the annual conference as a candidate for the ministry. The conference closed, to meet in an adjourned session at the call of the pastor, to complete the work of the year. Brother Powell has been faithful to his duties here, and we trust that the final reports may be gratifying, both to him and to his people.

Midland

October 17, Thursday.—We were with Brother Hulin and his people in a night service at Love Grove Church. The new building that has been erected here this year is brick veneered, 40x60, with four Sunday School rooms,—two at the front and two at the rear. The building is well constructed and attractive in appearance. New seats are yet to be put in, and painting done. The church cost about $5,000, we believe, and all bills are paid. Brother Hulin and his people are to be greatly congratulated upon this achievement. All the churches of the charge were represented in this service, and a conference with the brethren gave us hope as to the budgets. We have confidence that there will be some budget honor roll recognitions for this charge. We hope, also, for full payment of pastor's salary. Brother Hulin is giving his usual good service to this work.

Charlotte

October 18, Friday.—We had no appointment here, but stopped, in passing, to pay our respects to the parsonage family. We found them well and happy, with baby Harrison the liveliest member of the group. His perfect physique and perfect health makes him a bundle of abounding energy. Some slight repairs are being made on the interior of the church, which will facilitate the work of the Sunday School. We found, also, a kindergarten in progress at the church. Some inquiry was made in regard to our North Charlotte lot. It is still available for us, and though we may not need it for a church, it would seem that we should hold it, so as not to lose the $332 that has been paid on it. Brother Harrison is looking further into the matter.

Cleveland

October 19-20, Saturday and Sunday.—These two days were given to this charge. On Saturday we were at Mt. Moriah, preaching at 11 a. m., and holding the fourth quarterly conference in the afternoon. All five of the churches on the charge were well represented, and a full conference program kept us busy for most of the afternoon. The parsonage trustees, through their chairman, reported that the parsonage has been wired and lighted, and that a small indebtedness was due for some outbuildings. The amount was ordered apportioned to the different churches on the basis of pastor's salary. The pastor's report showed 90 conversions during the year, and 31 accessions. The Sunday Schools are running normally, with all but one contributing monthly or quarterly to the Children's Home. Oak Grove reports an active C. E. Society—with 65 members. The finances of the charge are most heartening. The pastor is paid in full by all churches but one, and the very small balance due at that place will be paid promptly. Budget receipts will show a large increase over former years. Four churches—Kistlers, Oak Grove, Mt. Moriah, and Pleasant Hill—will pay college assessment in full. Two churches—Oak Grove and Pleasant Hill—will pay A. C. B. in full, and the prospects for this are encouraging at Kistlers. Three churches—Oak Grove, Pleasant Hill, and Kistlers,—will pay superannuate assessment in full. All budgets for next year were ordered apportioned to the different churches on the basis of pastor's salary. This was a forward step for the charge, and was in harmony with the pastor's recommendation. Consolidation of Kistlers and Pleasant Hill is being talked. The contemplated location impressed us very favorably. These two churches, together with the pastor, will work this matter out carefully and prayerfully. Oak Grove church is beginning to think of a new building. We predict that at no distant date the old building will be replaced by a modern brick structure. The people here are well able to do this if they make up their minds to it. The parsonage is hard by this church, and is one of our best in the conference. One room has been designated by the charge as, “The president's room.” We are very grateful to the charge and to the parsonage family for the comfort of that room during this visit. Pastor Ridge is giving himself unsparingly to this work, and the people are highly appreciative of his labors. He is likewise well supported in his work by his splendid family. Cleveland is destined to become one of our best charges.

Brother Morgan was with us Saturday and Brother Phillips Sunday, also Brother Ivester and Brother Grant, two licensed preachers of the charge. Brother Grant is secretary of the quarterly conference. We were glad to see these brethren.

Two More Weeks

Then the conference. Much is to be done during these remaining weeks to close the year well. But much can be done in this short time. We know of one charge that paid the pastor nearly $700 on one day. Since it is our practice to put off much of the finances until the closing weeks, we are expecting large increases during these few remaining days. And we have certainly never needed these increases more than we do now. I can not say this too strongly. If our people ever mean to go the second mile in their loyalty and liberality toward the church, this is the time for them to do it. Let every church do the unusual this year in helping to meet these pressing financial needs of the conference. And please, brethren, let no pastor go to conference without his salary.

Details

There is a good deal of detail matter to be attended to as a part of the closing work. The church register is to be revised and left in proper order for the succeeding pastor; subscriptions to the church papers are to be looked after. Many expire about this time, they should be renewed, and a list of subscriptions prepared for the incoming pastor. Church officers are to be elected and installed, including Sunday School officers; and with all, the many items that go into the pastor's report are to be collected and the report prepared, so it will be ready when conference opens, and as complete and accurate as it is possible to make it.

It is easy for pastors to overlook these details; but they are important, and should be given proper attention as a part of the closing requirements.

Prayer

We must of necessity be much in work during these closing days; but let us not fail to be much in prayer, also. God can crown the year with larger success than we have dared to expect. And we surely need to be much in prayer for the conference sessions. Issues new and large are facing us, besides the regular routine, incident to each recurring conference. For these things we shall need, and must have, the help of God, or we shall not be sufficient for them. Let us all, ministers and laymen, be much in prayer, in public and in private, for the blessings of God upon us during these closing weeks and in our coming conference sessions.

Reports

Blanks for the fourth quarter are now in the hands of pastors. Please let us have them, brethren, by the date designated on the blank. Thank you for this promptness.

WHEN THE CHURCH DEALS WITH PUBLIC QUESTIONS

Someone asks, "Where shall the line be drawn? Has the Church a right to speak on everything?" In answer, we remark that the church has not tried to speak on everything, and that many technical phases in all public issues must admittedly be left to experts. The Church is not likely to pass upon affairs about which she knows nothing. When, however, she does see the evil human consequences of social courses, she is likely to see them more sharply than any other organization, and has a right to speak forth.

Whatever line is to be drawn ought to have to do with the method of her action. The Church would run into extreme peril if she should have recourse to lobbying, for example, for lobbying is likely to involve a bargaining which sooner or later slips into moral compromise.

Now, as soon as one writes in this fashion, somebody rises to say that, if we allow one church organization to speak up after this manner, we have to allow all other organizations the same right. Of course we do, and that is what I am calling for. Any attempt at prophetic utterance, in the nature of prophecy, has to come out in the open. If the Roman Catholic Church believes that certain ecclesiastical policies should form a part of state policy, let her come out and say so. There is a danger when any church, Protestant or Roman Catholic, attempts to influence public action by any form of procedure other than public utterance. Neither Protestant nor Catholic has a right to put ecclesiastical pressure upon individual citizens, if this pressure cannot be acknowledged and defended in open discussion. A Methodist bishop, for illustration, would have a right to call upon the members of an annual conference to support a public measure aiming at the public welfare, but he would deserve to be cashiered if he led the preachers of the conference to believe that their individual response to his appeals would determine the kind of appointments they would receive.

So with any other form of ecclesiastical pressure. The individual church member or minister must be left to decide his own course for himself, but the Church has a right in a collective and corporate capacity to make utterances which are to be put before citizens for their consideration.

To sum it all up, prophecy is a public function. Amos and Isaiah spoke on the streets. It is of the essence of Christian procedure that things are not to be done in a corner. In the sphere of public discussion it is the right and duty of the Church to speak prophetically.—Francis J. McConnell in Federal Council Bulletin.

—In return for debt which the Protestant church owes Christian Endeavor, a divinely ordained movement born in the heart of the late Francis E. Clark, the Saint Francis of our generation, and now led forward into a new era of power and service under the noble leadership of one of the world's greatest souls, Daniel A. Poling, Christian Endeavor asks only to be more largely used, more fully trusted, more prayerfully supported, and more dilligently directed. What illimitable resources of spiritual power are locked up in the hearts of four million Christian Endeavors! Let the church pay its debt to Christian Endeavor by making use of this noble organization to the utmost measure of its capacity for service and to the mighty enlargement of the church's capacity for leadership.—Rev. W. H. Foulkes.

EDDIE TAKES THE THROTTLE

Eddie's my chum, and some times I don't know what to think about him. He just stands there and doesn't do anything, leaving everything for me to do. Like the day we wanted to ride the cab of the steam engine down at the railroad station. There we were, watching the smoke coming out of the stack and listening to the steam as it escaped from the valves. And we would have been there yet, if I hadn't asked the engineer to give us a ride.

I asked him nice and he would have done it, I guess, if it wasn't for the rules.

"Nope," he said. "I'm sorry, boys. I understand how you feel, but it's against the company's orders to let anybody ride with me in the cab."

Eddie looked glum and so did I, but I just didn't stand there, like he did. I went over to the news stand, acting like I was going to buy a paper, but I was only trying to show the engineer that I didn't feel so badly about his refusing us. When I got back to where Eddie was standing, there was another man there, acting pretty excited. He had a bundle of letters in his hand.

"Here's a bunch of special deliveries for Mr. Heywood," he was saying to the engineer. "And I believe they are the reports he has been waiting for. He left an hour ago for the lookout station, and he won't be back for two days. Somebody has got to take these letters to him at once."

"I can take them as far as Copicut," replied the engineer. "But the lookout station, as you know, is up on top of the hill, and I couldn't exactly leave my train to deliver letters, no matter how important they were."

"That is true," agreed the man. "I guess the only way is to take them myself. I'll ride in the cab with you."

"Say, mister," said Eddie, as the engineer moved over to make room for his passenger. "Do you mind if I say something?"

"No," replied the engineer. "What is it?"

"How is it you can't let us ride in the cab and you can him?"

"That's a fair question, and I'll give you a fair answer. This man is Mr. Marston, the local agent for the railroad, and the rules about you don't apply to him."

"What's all this about?" asked the agent, looking at us for the first time.

"Two boys who want to take a ride in the cab."

"It's against the rules."

"That's what I've told them. Well, it's time to be going."

He looked down at the track and began to ring the bell. The train would have moved out and left us standing there, I guess, if I hadn't jumped forward and said: "How about next time, Mr. Engineer?" Not that my remark meant anything but the sound of my voice made Mr. Marston turn around again, and as he turned around, he must have had a wonderful idea, because he said:

"Wait a minute. Why can't I let these boys take my place? They want a cab ride, anyway, and when they get off at Copicut, they can take the letters up the hill to Mr. Heywood."

"That's a great idea," agreed the engineer; and Mr. Marston could tell by the way we climbed aboard that engine that it was all right with us! Eddie didn't say a word! It was all up to me to talk with Mr. Marston, and get the description of Mr. Heywood so that we wouldn't give the letters to the wrong man. But I noticed when we pulled out of the station, Eddie was watching the engineer pretty closely, to see how he worked the levers.

It was up to me, too, to start asking questions, or the engineer would have thought we were dumb, just sitting there watching the scenery go by. So I got interested in valves and levers and began to ask pretty keen questions. The engineer answered them all, and I nodded my head whether I understood or not. But Eddie just saw there. He listened all right, but you could tell by the way his eyes were open that a lot of it went away over his head.

Pretty soon the engineer turned to me and said:

"Let's have a look at the return addresses on those letters. Seems to me all of them aren't from the same party."

He turned away from the cab window, and as he took the letters he said to Eddie:

"You keep your eyes open, and if you see anything on the track, close the throttle and put on the air breaks."

Then he winked at me.

Eddie didn't see the wink, so he climbed up into the engineer's place and stuck his head out of the cab-window as if he was a veteran and this was his home stretch of track. He even put his hand on the throttle, and that made me smile.

Three minutes later, while the engineer was still looking at the return addresses, Eddie ducked his head in suddenly, threw all his weight on the throttle, closed it completely, and then ripped down the lever that put on the air emergency brakes.

"There's an auto—on the track!" he gasped.

"The throttle!" shouted the engineer.

"I did," replied Eddie. "And the brakes are on!"

We could hear them screeching and hissing as we tore down the track toward the automobile. They slowed us up, though, quicker than you could imagine, and we came to a dead stop so suddenly that all of us were thrown against the control board of the engine. None of us could tell whether there had been a crash or not. I was afraid to look, but the engineer put his head out of the window, took a swift look and then pulled it back into the cab again.

"Thank goodness we came to a stop in time," he said. "For there is a woman at the wheel, and she has fainted."

We got out, and while Eddie ran to get a cup of water at a farmhouse, I helped some men who had come running up to push the car off the tracks. The men helped to bring the woman back to consciousness and then one of them said he knew her and would drive her safely back to her house. He said that she was the only one for miles around who still used the old road, which accounted for her being on a crossing that was usually deserted. She must have got stuck in the middle of the track, then lost her nerve when she saw the train coming.

"Well," said the engineer. "Lucky, that's all. Let's get on. Remember, we still have those letters to deliver to Mr. Heywood."

We got up into the cab again, me looking as if we were real engineers so as to impress the crowd, but Eddie just standing there like a boy looking the engine over for the first time. That got me a little peeved. I was just going to say something to him about looking a little more like a railroad man, when the engineer spoke to him first:

"Go ahead," he said. "See what you can do."

"You mean—start her up?"

"Sure! You stopped her, didn't you?"

So Eddie took off the brakes and opened the throttle.

"Ring the bell," instructed the engineer.

So Eddie rang the bell—and off we went, with him at the cab-window, looking—well, if I had been there instead of him, it would have looked great!

"Say," I said to the engineer, when we got going pretty fast again. "What's the idea of letting him do something and me standing here doing nothing. I'd like to have a chance once in a while."

The engineer looked at me and then looked at Eddie, who was still at the throttle. He must have seen the difference between us—I mean Eddie is so quiet and I'm so active: because when he turned around to me again, he said:

"Grab that shovel."—Selected.

CHINA FAMINE CONDITIONS ACUTE

Harrowing accounts of the famine continue to come from China. The rain, long waited for and much over-due, came down in floods in certain areas early in August. Roads were turned into rivers, railroads were crippled and rivers in many places overflowed their banks, doing considerable damage. Perhaps the worst flood is that of the Yellow River which, as reported from Peking, August 22, washed away a thousand feet of embankment and flooded an area in western Shantung fifty miles long and from five to ten miles wide.

In many sections, however, no rain has fallen, making probable an increasingly terrible famine during the autumn and winter.

The relief work has gone forward just so far as the funds have allowed. The Committee deeply regrets that of the $4,000,000 earnestly asked for last winter, less than one-quarter has been contributed. Remittances to China down to September 20, 1929, have totaled $722,750. One of the relief projects in hand is a canal some twenty miles in length which is giving work to famine sufferers who, with their families, number about 250,000 men, women and children. When completed, the territory that will secure an unending water supply will be 400,000 acres. Not only will that population be certain of food, but abundant crops will help feed other areas not so favored.

The Peking Week in China for August 3 reports the death by typhus of thirteen foreign famine relief workers, in Kansu alone, all American, French and British missionaries and priests. Cannibalism has been verified by the China International Famine Relief Committee.

A graphic description of the terrible conditions was published by the New York Herald Tribune of September 8 from the pen of Edgar Snow, who has just visited one section of the nearer famine district. The conditions seen and photographed were far worse than his anticipations. He began and concluded his description with the remark, "And so this is what foreigners in Shanghai refer to as the 'so-called famine.'" He summarizes his observations as follows:

"Relief investigators themselves conservatively estimate that 2,000,000 people will have died before the end of this year, as a result of the four years' seige of China's dark terror. Others place the figure much higher. Certain it is that nothing less than an immediate international response to the appeal for help, coupled with a willingness to co-operate, which the Chinese Government seldom has evidenced in the past, can avoid starvation on a scale unparalleled in this century.

"And yet, there are those in Shanghai who continue to refer to the misery in China's far northwest as the 'so-called famine,' and even write letters home advising their friends not to be taken in by all this 'starvation propaganda!'"

The American Red Cross admits starvation conditions but declines to help.

LAYMEN, YOUR NEW PASTOR

Brother Layman, Sister Layman, an open letter to you: Conference is over and a new Conference year is begun.

You have a new pastor. Even if the Conference has returned your pastor of last year to you, we can read his mind and heart thoroughly enough to know infallibly that he returns to you with a fresh conception of his work, a new vision of the ministry, a determination to make this the best year of his ministry.

What will he find in you? An assistant, a promoter, or a clog, a liability? Have you already given your "new" pastor a hearty, a sympathetic greeting? Have you made him feel that you are pleased he is to be your spiritual guide, your friend, companion? Have you opened your home and your heart to him? Or, are you standing off, critical or at best, indifferent?

Don't do that. Do you ever stop to think of what your pastor's vocation does to him? Your pastor has given himself to a cause. He has given up all, he has surrendered his very life (and can he do anything more?) to be the minister you now have. Where is the minister's home? He has none—none save in the hearts of his people. Denied that, he is in deed orphaned. Denied your open hand, your welcome, your understanding, to whom can he go?

Receive your new pastor with cordiality. Let your heartstone and your heart be a home for him today; he will go tomorrow. He is part of a system of appointments (and disappointments). His only enduring home is in the hearts of the people whose minister he is. Make him glad with your open hands, your prayers and your open door, your appreciation, and your co-operation. Almighty God will bless that combination.—Central Christian Advocate.

24. Do your people criticize their pastor before their children, or do they pray for him with them?

25. What constructive work has your church ever done in your community?

26. How many souls has your membership led to Christ since your church has been without a pastor?

27. What special opportunities does your church offer for the investment of a minister's life above that of other churches?

Prayer.

Inspirational verse.

Hymn—"Prayer Changes Things," or "Into My Heart."

Leader's Talk

We as Christian Endeavors have a wide field of opportunity in worship. Worship has too long been looked upon only as just the part of the service before the sermon or in some like manner. We need to come to a more definite realization of what worship really is and then try to make others see the same way.

Someone has said that at the point where our knowledge goes the furthest, there is God. Worship then is intended to get the social group or the individual to move up their conception of God. Worship must come as the result of a certain felt longing and spiritual desire. Worship then is a search for the true meaning of life. If this be true we find the three main factors in true worship to be: (1) the objective, worship which makes us look up toward God, learning more of Him; (2), the subjective, worship that makes us look inside to our inner selves—making the worshiper the main thing; (3), spontaneous worship, that refuses to be bottled up, but overflows in service. The way to the highest and noblest worship is upward, inward and outward.

We, then, need to help the church put on better worship programs; need to be responsive in the worship services; and need to enter more completely into private worship.

Topics

A. Public Worship:

1. Psalms 95: 1-6 as a basis.

a. Places to worship together, sing and praise God.

(1) Sunday School.

(2) Regular church service.

(3) Christian Endeavor or other young people's meeting.

b. Great need of creating a worshipful attitude in all of these services.

B. Private Worship:

1. John 4:20-24 as a basis.

a. The ability to worship anywhere.

b. Attitude of worship.

c. Outstanding benefits of private worship.

d. Need of private worship.

C. Prepared Worship Services:

1. Leader.

a. Power of leadership.

b. Personality.

2. Group.

a. Likemindedness.

b. Confidence in the leader.

3. Benefits.

a. Saving of time.

b. Often more effective.

(1) Avoids confusion.

(2) Gives opportunity for outward participation by all.

D. Spontaneous Worship:

1. The constructiveness of spontaneity.

2. Genuine experiences.

To Be Answered

1. How may the spirit of worship be developed in our society meetings?

2. What is the chief difference in the Catholic and Protestant worship service?

3. What is the relation of a regular time and plan to worship?

4. In what ways is worship helpful to us?

5. Discuss the worship program in the church.

Prose and Poetry

The human heart expands and grows nobler in the presence of beauty, goodness, and love. And this is what worship is, the contemplation of these things.—Harrel.

Worship is the cry of the human soul for companionship with God. It grows out of the hunger in the heart of man for fellowship with his Heavenly Father in whose image he is created. Maus.

Worship includes thanksgiving, confessions, aspiration, intercession, and all these should be worked into the worship service. The main point in worship is to intensify and make real the presence of God.—Harrow. Love thyself last. Look near; behold thy duty.

To those who walk beside thee down life's road;

Make glad their days by little acts of beauty, And help them bear the burden of earth's load.

Love thyself last. Look far, and find the stranger

Who staggers 'neath his sin and his despair; Go lend a hand and lead him out of danger, To heights where he may see the world is fair.

The interest of friends of the Henderson church in everything relating to the progress of the church has been manifested in many ways from time to time. The education of young men for the ministry, the building of the original Grace Church in Greensboro, the erection of the publishing house, and now the college, have all been objects of their good works. Will not other members of our denomination throughout the State work with them to the utmost of their ability to achieve an object for which they and others have so long labored—the establishment of a college upon a firm foundation, and placing of our denomination in a position to do its part in the task committed to it and to every branch of the church—the extension of the Kingdom of Christ on earth?

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

SIXTH DISTRICT RALLY

The Sixth District of the N. C. Board of the Woman's Missionary work will have a meeting at 2 p. m., Sunday, October 27, at Midway Church on Haw River Circuit.

The following churches compose this district: Draper, Haw River circuit, Flat Rock circuit, Kernersville circuit, and Reidsville. We are anxious to have all these churches represented at this meeting. Mrs. Bates, chairman of districts, and Mrs. Minnis and others will be on the program. Mrs. Minnis will have costumes and curios of India with her.

Come and bring others with you.

MRS. J. H. ALLEN, Dist. Chairman.

NEWS FROM HOLLISTER

The Woman's Auxiliary met in the home of Mrs. E. W. Crawley, October 10. Mrs. Spencer, the president, presided over the meeting. Mrs. E. T. Ellington had charge of the program and a very interesting program was given. The roll was called by the secretary, Rev. C. L. Spencer.

There were thirteen members present and two visitors.

Mrs. Hawkins gave a reading on "Our Work in Japan." Miss Florence Crawley gave a reading on "Our Work in India." Rev. C. L. Spencer read an article on "Our Work in the Homeland." Miss Velma Hardy gave the last chapter in the study book. It was a very interesting chapter.

Various plans were discussed as to how to raise money for the auxiliary. We decided to have an oyster supper and bazaar sometime soon. We also decided for all the members to pick cotton one day and give the amount to the auxiliary. A prize was offered to the one that picked the most. There was a tie; Mr. Spencer and Mrs. Hardy picked exactly 100 pounds each. This is a very good way for the rural auxiliaries to raise money.

After the program and business meeting we were dismissed by prayer by Mrs. W. A. Ellington.

During the social hour the hostess served delicious refreshments. Our next meeting will be with Mrs. Hawkins, on Tuesday after the second Sunday in November.

KATHLEEN SHEARIN, Cor. Sec.

The Virginia Conference of the M. E. Church, South, by a vote of 170 to 132 asked the General Conference of that church to lift the ban against the use of tobacco by ministers. We wonder why that conference took that backward step.

FOUNDER'S DAY

When the writer suggested through the HERALD some months ago that something be done to give the old bell that had been used at Yadkin College a place of dignity and usefulness in High Point College it was not dreamed of the matter culminating into such a great day as Founder's Day at High Point College proved to be on last Thursday. The program was so arranged that the history and memory of Yadkin College was the outstanding feature. The speakers were all Yadkin College students. Mr. E. E. Raper, of Lexington delivered the address at the 11 o'clock hour.

After this address the old Yadkin bell was formally dedicated to High Point College and christened "Old Yadkin." At this part of the program the speakers were Mr. Z. I. Walser, of High Point, and Mr. Z. V. Walzer, of Lexington. Messrs Walser are grand sons of the late Henry Walser, whose influence was largely responsible for the establishing of Yadkin College, and who was chairman of the Board of Trustees until his death.

After these very fine addresses Dr. Andrews, president of High Point College, with very fitting words spoke in behalf of High Point College and accepted the bell. The veil was removed from the bell by Miss Elizabeth Hamner and Miss Ruth Curry, students of High Point College, and daughters of former Yadkin students. After it was unveiled Mr. Wm. Snotherly, also a student of High Point College, and a son of a former Yadkin student, rang the bell, thus being the first to ring "Old Yadkin."

All former Yadkin students and visiting friends were the guests of High Point College and were served a bountiful dinner in the dining room. At 2 o'clock the former students of Yadkin College gathered in the college hall where the Hon. W. C. Hammer and Profs. Holmes and Totten, once teachers at Yadkin College, were the speakers. All the addresses were fine and fitting. They brought to our memories so many pleasant thoughts of the great old school that meant so much in its day.

An Alumni Society to be composed of former teachers and students of Yadkin College was organized. Among other things the Alumni Society decided to do was to place "Old Yadkin" upon an appropriate tower on the campus of High Point College, and to erect a monument of Yadkin College.

The society is to meet again next June in a business session and banquet and all Yadkin students are urged to be present.

In the spirit of Yadkin College,

GEO. L. CURRY.

—Seven men tried in Charlotte for killing Gastonia's chief of police were declared guilty by the jury. Judge Barnhill sentenced all to prison terms of various lengths from 20 down to five years. An appeal was taken.

ANOTHER MEETING OF BOUNDARY COMMITTEE

The Boundary Committee met on October 16, as per the announcement of the President of our Conference.

The committee adjourned to meet at the President's parsonage, 126 Tate St., Greensboro, N. C., on Monday, October 28, at 1:30 p. m.

If you have any request to make of the committee, or if you have information which the committee should have, please put the request or the information in writing and mail same to Rev. S. W. Taylor, D.D., 126 Tate St., Greensboro, N. C. You will need to be prompt as the time is short. Thank you.

Faithfully yours,

A. G. DIXON.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Graham.—The evening hour for worship the second Sunday was given over to the men, as it had been previously announced in the church calender. Mr. Harvey White, Graham, was the outside speaker, with Messrs. C. P. Holt and P. S. Dixon, of the home church. The topics so ably discussed by these men were, "Man's Place in the Home, Church, and Community."

On Wednesday evening, October 16th, a church meeting was held in which all officials for the coming year were elected, and on last Sunday morning the officers were duly installed by the pastor. It is hoped that this installation service will cause every one to feel a greater responsibility toward the duties relative to the office he is to fill during the coming year.

Our very efficient Sunday school superintendent, Mr. J. L. Amick, who has served for a number of years, has as his successor Mr. P. S. Dixon. Let us co-operate with Mr. Dixon to make this a year of greater interest and achievement for the Sunday school.

Three women presented the program last Sunday at the evening service. Mrs. S. S. Holt had as her theme, "Woman's Place in the Church," and Miss Pauline Nicholson, Mebane, told of "Woman's Place in the Community." These discussions were indeed interesting and helpful.

The fourth Sunday, October 27th, will be Decision and Rally Day in the church and Sunday school. Give the pastor and superintendent a boost. Place a smile on their lips and a song in their hearts by coming and bringing someone with you.

REPORTER.

Fairview-Glen Raven.—On last Wednesday night Bros. William Coffin and Grover Anderson, of Fairview, came over to the parsonage and delivered a nice pounding, consisting mainly of home-canned fruit. There were about 40 quarts of various kinds. The good wives of the above-named brothers were the prime movers in raising this elegant collection of fruit.

Theresa Coffin, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Coffin, who figured in the pounding, has had scarlet fever. She is improving, but not rapidly.

The last quarterly conference for this charge was held Sunday night at Glen Raven. Both churches were well represented. Bro. Joe Troxler was elected alternate. The salary and conference claims are not up to date. Indications are that most of salary will be raised, probably all. Some interesting discussions and actions were features of the conference.

WM. H. NEESE.

Burlington, N. C., R. F. D. 4.

Mebane.—Our revival services began the first Sunday in October. The pastor, Rev. W. M. Loy, preached at the morning hour. The sermon was excellent, and special music, a duet rendered by Misses Elizabeth and Edna Nicholson, was very impressive. The Lord's Supper was observed at this service.

Rev. J. R. Hutton, of Greensboro, came for the evening service and did the preaching for the entire ten days with the exception of the 11 o'clock hour each Sunday. Rev. Mr. Hutton brought the congregations strong and inspiring messages that were enjoyed by the people of the different churches in Mebane as well as our own. Special music was enjoyed at the morning and evening services on the second Sunday. Last Sunday our pastor received one person into the church on confession of faith.

The election of church officers and Sunday school superintendent will be held this Sunday.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet at the church this (Tuesday) evening at 7:30. The Ever Ready Circle will have charge of the program.

REPORTER.

Asheville.—Second Sunday was banner day in our Sunday school; 108 in attendance. Under Miss Verda McIntire the primary department is doing wonderfully. The Juniors under Mrs. Paschall, are growing in number and interest.

The church attendance is splendid and interest increasing, especially since Rally Day, and our people are realizing that we are not so low in number as it had seemed. Even the reporter has awakened from his sleep.

Our primary department gave us a most interesting program last Sunday, assisted by the Juniors.

The Christian Endeavorers gave a play and musical in the Sunday school auditorium last Friday evening from which they realized a nice sum to go on their pledge. In the cast were Misses Nancy Clouse, Elma Fawcett, Louise Hanner and Mrs. F. W. Paschall. The music was furnished by the orchestra, Miss Novella McIntire at the piano. Miss Verda McIntire, clarinet; Ray Foster, violin; Mr. J. A. McIntire, violin; Mr. Jarvis Eller, xylophone; Mrs. H. B. Harmon was accompanist for several solos by Mr. Richard Hanner, and Mr. Leno Solary.

Our Brotherhood is to meet with the president, Mr. E. C. Fawcett, No. 19 Rosewood avenue, Tuesday evening for their monthly meeting. Circle No. 3, of which Mrs. E. C. Fawcett is chairman, will serve dinner to them. Our last month's meeting was held with Mr. H. O. Charnock, Circle No. 2, Mrs. Charnock, chairman, serving dinner.

Our Auxiliary, of which Mrs. J. A. McIntire is president, held their last meeting at the home of Miss Eula Taylor; an enthusiastic crowd they were. Eighteen members were present. We have four circles and each circle is responsible for certain objectives each month: greeting strangers, cleaning church, laying flowers, serving dinners to the Brotherhood; also each circle is raising their share of money for different things. The reports combined totaled $60 at this meeting.

In our circle work we are not unmindful of our sick. We call and send flowers every week. Mrs. Charnock, our devotional chairman, always has an interesting and helpful meeting; also a good program.

We are glad to have our Sunday school secretary, Miss Nancy Clouse, back with us after an enforced absence—an operation for appendicitis.

The Girls' Auxiliary, under Mrs. Paschall's leadership, is doing splendid work. They met this month with Mrs. E. A. Bolick.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet this month with Mrs. E. C. Fawcett, No. 19 Rosewood Ave.

We are happy to announce that one of our Auxiliary members, Mrs. Everhart, is the proud mother of a son. They are in the Pritchard Memorial Hospital. Mr. Everhart is a popular member of the Southern Railway force here.

In the midst of our joys are our sorrows. Last Thursday one of our members, Mrs. Capehart, passed away after an extended illness. She was always so cheerful and patient in her affliction it was an inspiration to visit with her. The funeral was held in our church Saturday at 10 o'clock. She was laid to rest in her old home cemetery at Flat Creek, beyond Weaverville.

We are to have some new members join us next Sunday.

I must apologize for being so long absent—I will try and do better hereafter.

REPORTER.

Pleasant Grove.—Rally Day was observed Sunday at the 11 o'clock hour. The children and young people of the Sunday school gave a splendid program; all acted their parts well. The collection was $24.

Brother Williams preached another one of those good sermons Sunday evening.

The nominating committee appointed to nominate new officers for the new year met at the home of Mr. B. E. Kennedy Monday night. Those on the committee were Mrs. Wilson Myers, Mrs. Robert Kennedy, Mr. B. E. Kennedy and Mr. B. E. Payne, with Mr. I. A. Teague as director. The nominations are ready for the election and installation service Sunday. It does not seem possible this year is so near gone.

We are glad to know Mrs. Homer Veach is able to be back at home from Guilford General Hospital, where she underwent an operation. Hope she will soon be back to her place in church.

REPORTER.

Orange Charge.—The fourth quarterly conference will meet at Chestnut Ridge church Saturday, October 26th, at 2 p. m. Important business on hand. Please be there promptly at 2 p. m.

Work is progressing rapidly on Chestnut Ridge church. Hope to finish covering and painting the church this week.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

West Forsyth.—Our fourth quarterly conference will be held at Union Hill church October 26, beginning at 11 a. m. Rev. A. L. Hunter, pastor of Pinnacle charge, will preach the sermon. The Union Hill people will provide dinner at the church and the business of the conference will be transacted during the afternoon session, which will begin at 1:30 o'clock. Election of an alternate delegate, instructing the delegate, fixing pastor's salary and apportioning it to the different churches will be items of business for the conference. The pastor is anxious that a full attendance of the officials of the six churches may be had.

We cannot refrain from reporting a little pounding which the pastor and family received last week from Bros. Holt and Emory Long, members of Pleasant Hill church, who operate the grocery and dry-goods store in Bosier. In addition to items of groceries, there was a handsome pair of socks for the pastor. During the afternoon preceding the pounding Bro. Holt Long did repair work on our Ford for two or three hours, donating this also. They have the sincere thanks of the pastor and family for these gifts.

We are expecting our efficient reporter for Pleasant Hill church to report the services at that church last Sunday.

Our last appointment for this Conference year will be met at Harmony Grove next Sunday morning. We will have the election of church officers and the Lord's Supper at that service.
C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Henderson.—During the Sunday morning hour of worship, our pastor delivered a most fitting and earnest sermon on the first verse of Romans, 12th chapter: "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." At the conclusion of this service the church officers were named, and assembled at the altar for the appropriate installation service. Mrs. Sturges Collins, of Manson, N. C., sang most beautifully "Come, Ye Blessed," by Scott. Special mention was also given the large number of C. E. members present, and favorable comment given the splendid work these young people are doing. We pray for them and hope for greater things for their future.

A joint meeting of Circles Nos. 1 and 3 was held with Mrs. J. B. Fox on Monday afternoon, October 14th. The program for the month, as given in the yearbook, was presented. Following this each circle held their business sessions separately. At the close of the meeting an ice course was served.

Thursday night, October 17th, Circle No. 4 met at the home of Miss Lettie Finch. Mrs. H. A. Jordan presided. The devotionals were conducted by Mrs. R. A. Hunter. During the business period, reports were given and committees appointed for the sale of Christmas cards, and plan for the annual bazaar were made. The circle voted to order the yearbook to use for their meetings. The treasurer reported $165 on hand and the circle voted to pay up their entire quota for the year. During the social hour a salad course was served.

We are glad to report Mrs. S. R. Watson is at home convalescing from a recent operation. We pray for her complete recovery.

The Auxiliary will meet Monday night, October 21st, with Mrs. L. R. Gooch.

REPORTER.

Liberty Hill Church.—The C. E. Society met October 20, 1929, and the meeting was called to order by Ruth Pearson. Miss Romaine Poole was appointed chairman. The following officers were elected: President, Herman Compton; vice-president, Ruth Pearson; secretary, Lottie Harrison; treasurer, John McClinton; C. E. singing clerk, Ruth Pearson; C. E. pianist, Annie Pearson; corresponding secretary, Romaine Poole.

The president, Herman Compton, appointed the chairman of the following committee: Look-out committee, Ruth Pearson; prayer meeting committee, Romaine Poole; missionary committee, Theron Davis; flower committee, Miss Lula Pearson; Sunday school committee, Annie Pearson; press committee, Lucille Davis.

The society is doing very good work now, but we hope it will be better. Miss Ruth Pearson was the president last year and she was true and faithful to her work. She did her best for the young people.

LUCILLE DAVIS, Reporter.

Pleasant Hill, West Forsyth Circuit.—The revival meeting began at our church Sunday, October 20; at the 11 o'clock service we were very glad to have our former pastor, Rev. C. H. Whitaker, with us, who delivered the message at this hour. The Lord's Supper was observed at this service and a large number responded to the invitation given by the pastor, Mr. Way. Dinner was served on the ground at 12:30. Preaching was held at 1:30 in the afternoon. This early hour was set because of Mr. Way's appointment at Tabernacle church at 3 o'clock. Rev. M. P. Chambliss, of Burlington, who has been engaged to help in these revival services, delivered the sermon in the afternoon. He used as his topic: "Love That Saves." Another service was held at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. Chambliss used as his text, John 3:16. The attendance at this service was large, and everyone seemed to be very attentive and interested in his message, which he brought to us so earnestly and interestingly. We were delighted to have with us, during these services, so many visitors from other church. Especially did we welcome those from the other churches on this charge. We hope they will continue to come and be with us during the remainder of this meeting. Services will be held during the week at 2:30 in the afternoon and 7:30 at night. We are hoping and praying for a glorious revival this week.

On last Monday we were called together to pay our last tribute to one of our oldest church members, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Whitman, of Pfafftown. Her age was 90 years, 10 months and 20 days.

We are very sorry to report the illness of two of our church members of this community, Mrs. Lena Long and Mrs. Mary Ellen Long. Their conditions seem to be very serious, but we pray that if it be God's will they will soon be on the road to recovery. We are also sorry to note the declining health of another one of our church members, Bro. John Speas, of near Brookstown. We also want to remember him in our prayers.

The Ladies' Aid Society of this church met Tuesday night, October 15, at the home of Mrs. J. D. Anderson. At this meeting it was decided to have a "thank-offering service" at the church on Sunday night following Thanksgiving day. This service will take the place of the regular monthly meeting. During the social hour fruits of different kinds were served to those present. About 15 members were present for this meeting. A number of visitors were present who also enjoyed the splendid meeting.

The fourth quarterly conference of this charge will meet on Saturday, October 26, at Union Hill church. Rev. A. L. Hunter, of Pinnacle, will preach at 11 o'clock. Following this, dinner will be served. The business matter, which will be very important, will be attended to in the afternoon. As this will be the last quarterly conference of this year's work, every official member is urged to be present.

LOLA LONG, Reporter.

Gibsonville Church.—It has been some time since we had a report from Gibsonville church but the work has been going on just the same. We have had a marked increase in attendance at Sunday school and a very good attendance at the church services since the weather has gotten cooler.

New shades have been put on the windows; one may sit in the auditorium and look toward the preacher or speaker and not have to squint his eyes because of the bright rays of sunlight beaming through the windowpanes. A new roof has been put on the church which adds much to the appearance. The church is being painted on the outside; when the work is completed the church will look almost like a new one on the outside.

Next Sunday is "Rally Day." Every class in the Sunday school will have a part on the program. Everybody is invited, everybody is welcome. The following is a copy of the program:

Instrumental music.

Song by school—"Jesus Calls Us O'er the Tumult."

Responsive reading by Men's Bible Class, Psalm 1.

Prayer, entire school standing.

Recitation—Welcome address, by Primary Department.

Song—"The Rally Call," by Girls' Class.

Exercise—"Loyal and True," by Intermediate Class.

Song—"Be Good As You Can Be," by Beginners.

Recitation—"Scouts Rally," by Boys' Class.

Recitation—"It Isn't Your Church, It's You," by Boys' Class.

Song by Young Ladies' Class.

Quartet—"Young Men's Class."

Address—"Life of Dr. Forlines," Women's Bible Class.

Work of the church, by pastor.

Song—"Take My Life and Let It Be," by School.

Recitation: "Excuses," by Primary Department; Young Ladies' Class; Young Men's Class.

Song—"Sunbeams," Primary Department.

Recitation—"Your Part," by Primary Department.

Offering.

Song—"True-hearted, Whole-hearted," by School.

Benediction.

The program will be given at the regular Sunday school hour, 9:45 a. m.

A Sunday school superintendent and treasurer will be elected next Sunday morning.

REPORTER.

Bethel, Flat Rock Circuit.—The hundredth anniversary of Bethel Methodist Protestant church, Flat Rock circuit, was fittingly celebrated on the first Sunday in October. The morning was given to inspiring recitation of the part this church has played in the religious and moral life of the community through its long years of service. There was an opening program of music, climaxed by two numbers by the Higgins quartet. After the devotionals, Bro. W. N. Pegram, of our First Church, Winston-Salem, formerly a leading member of Bethel, spoke on the value and power of the church, both in individual and community life, and expressed his own faith in a fervent testimony of the goodness of God. Bro. R. W. Jones read a paper that portrayed the establishment and early development of the church, showing how the faith and efforts of its founders made sure a church of power and service. Bro. J. C. Preston, of Stokesdale, gave a timely and searching address on the principles and purpose of Christian gratitude, using the Biblical episode of the healing of the ten lepers, as a case where faith may be stronger than appreciation. The pastor spoke from the text: "Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations."

At the noon hour the ladies of the church and community spread a picnic dinner, conspicuous both for abundance and variety. This part of the program was greatly enjoyed; nothing gives people a sense of common brotherhood more than eating together.

The afternoon was given over to a community singing, which was highly successful and greatly enjoyed by a large audience. The church was glad to welcome choirs from High Point, Winston-Salem, Cofax, Stokesdale and other towns and communities. This splendid musical program was made possible largely by the efforts of Bro. F. M. Pegram.

We were disappointed that Bro. W. F. Kennett and his son, Dr. Paul Kennett, could not be with us. The prayers of the church go out for this father and son who are so affectionately remembered in this community.

Orange Charge, Notice.—Do not forget the fourth quarterly conference is to meet at Chestnut Ridge church Saturday, October 26, promptly at 2 p. m.

Harvest-Home donations are to be collected for Our Children's Home and stored at the following places: R. C. Minnis Cafe, Hillsboro, N. C.; parsonage, Edfand, N. C., and some place in Mebane (to be announced later.)

Anyone having produce of any kind which they can donate to the Children's Home, please send to one of the above places by Wednesday, November 30th.

Hurry up! Let's make a liberal donation from Orange Charge for the orphan children.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

Winston.—Nearly another year finished. The fourth quarterly conference was held Monday evening at the church.

Much interest is being taken in the mid-week prayer service. The children are attending as well as adults. Many things are learned at prayer service that help us to be better. Some are not interested in church affairs as much as need be. In the church bulletin Sunday were these words:

"It's a knock at yourself
When you knock your church;
It isn't the church—it's you."

When every one goes ahead and helps pull the load—a success will be the reward.

The Auxiliary meets this week. The four circles are doing splendid work, suppers are being given and other things worked out to raise the budgets of the various circles. When women can't raise money there's not much use of anyone else trying—if so, their name would be failure.

We regret very much to announce that the wife of our pastor, Mrs. H. F. Surratt, has been sick for several days; a speedy recovery is hoped for by all.

Sunday services were splendid at church school, church worship, and Christian Endeavor. A very goodly number attended and the services were good. An effective anthem was given by the choir at the morning worship. The pastor made his sermon very striking and it is hoped some thought of it later. He chose to call it "How a Christian Ought to Contribute."

At the evening worship he talked on "Taking Men Alive." There were many things to be learned from that also.

The Junior Department has planned a get-together party, which will be of interest to all who are eligible to attend.

Zoar, Mecklenburg Circuit.—Rev. N. M. Harrison of Charlotte filled his last appointment at Zoar Sunday at 3 o'clock, and as usual brought us a good message. The crowd was small but was attentive and enjoyed his sermon.

We are far behind with our finances. I think the good work of the stewards will make things look digerent at the close of the conference year.

Our Sunday school is holding up very well. Attendance is very good. I am sorry to report that our faithful superintendent, Mr. W. C. Hartis, is very sick. We ask the prayers of Christians that he be restored to health.

The officers were elected Sunday for the coming year. Trustees, Mr. J. D. Atkins, T. J. Atkins, W. W. Osborne; class leader, Mr. W. H. Jones; stewards, T. J. Atkins, Mrs. W. W. Osborne, Miss Lillie Atkins; superintendent, Mr. W. C. Hartis.

One new member was received Sunday, Mr. Guy Osborne.

We extend our thanks and appreciation to Rev. N. M. Harrison for what he has done and meant to the people at Zoar. He will long be remembered by them.

The last quarterly conference will convene at Stallings Saturday, October 26.

REPORTER.

Spring Hill, West Thomasville Charge.—There were one hundred on roll at Sunday school Sunday. The church officers and Sunday school superintendent were elected for the coming year at the 11 o'clock hour. At this time the Lord's Supper was celebrated with a good number present.

Mr. George Berrier, of Cavanaugh, delegate from this charge to Annual Conference, visited us Sunday and made a short talk on Sunday school. He was welcome and is invited to come again.

The fourth quarterly conference for this charge will be held at West Thomasville Church Friday night, November 1.

Bro. Whitehead will be with us two more Sundays before Conference, but we certainly hope Conference will see fit to send him back. During the past year he has built up the church in many ways, as organizing a C. E. Society, Ladies' Aid, and provide the church with the Cokesbury hymnals.

REPORTER.

South Lexington Church.—The work at our church is moving along very nicely. Everyone is working hard to finish up the year with a good report. The revival meeting came to a close Sunday night with a very good meeting. Rev. N. G. Bethea did the preaching during this series of services with very forceful sermons. During the meeting there were 16 who professed faith in Christ and six united with the church, making a total of 44 new members this year. We are very grateful for the interest and co-operation shown us by the people. Rev. Wayne Curtis, from Burlington, N. C., a widely known evangelistic singer, was with us to direct the singing; also he brought us some very helpful sermons.

On Tuesday night after the fourth Sunday in October the fourth quarterly conference will meet with the people at Mt. Carmel church. This is very important as it is the last conference; every member is urged to be present and get all reports in good shape for the Annual Conference, which meets at Greensboro in November.

Now officers are to be elected at our church Sunday. As we finish up this Conference year let us all ask ourselves the question: How have I spent the past year? Pray for us that we may do more work for Christ.

REPORTER.

Draper.—Everybody enjoys Rev. W. T. Totten's preaching. There were many present last Sunday morning.

Rev. J. S. Riddle is now carrying on a tent meeting here in our town. The tent was about full last Sunday night. There were two converted Sunday night.

We hope Rev. W. T. Totten will be with us another year.

MRS. M. A. CHANDLER, Reporter.

Pinnacle and Mt. Zion Charge.—Report of fourth quarterly conference: Bro. Hunter decided to hold this quarterly conference on Sunday and see if there would be any improvement in attendance. There was 80 per cent of the officials present beside almost a full house at Pilot Sunday evening at 2 o'clock.

S. T. Lane is delegate to Annual Conference. The conference voted unanimously to instruct Bro. Lane to work for the return of Bro. Hunter to this work. Every church on the charge reported pastor paid in full.

Bro. Hunter made a general report covering a period of six years; during that time he had witnessed 150 professions, received 100 into the churches and held 82 funerals. Then he reported that he had filled all appointments, held one revival meeting and made 100 visits during the last quarter.

Bro. J. T. Whitaker, of Pilot, was duly elected alternate delegate to Annual Conference.

C. W. ALLEN.

Enfield Charge.—The special revival services at the Enfield church came to a close Sunday night. Due to the unforeseen beginning of revival services at the Episcopal church it was necessary to close earlier than was anticipated. Rev. L. W. Gerringer was with us and did the preaching from Monday night. His gospel messages were on a high order and greatly appreciated by all. While the visible results of the services were not all that we had hoped for, yet the value of such a series of services is inestimable in the spiritual life of a church. It was a pleasure to have Brother Gerringer in our home during his stay in our midst. The treasurer of the church gave Brother Gerringer a check for $42 as an expression of our appreciation of his labors for Christ and the church while in our town.

The Ladies' Aid is having a chicken salad dinner and bazaar at the hut Thursday at noon of this week.

The annual business and get-together meeting of the Enfield church will take place Monday night, October 28th. The church officers for the coming year will be elected at this time.

The officers for the Whitakers Chapel church will be elected Tuesday night, the 29th, following prayer meeting.

The fourth quarterly conference will convene on Friday night before the first Sunday at 8 o'clock, at Enfield.

Mr. Stanley C. Whitaker is the delegate from this charge to the Annual Conference.

J. CLYDE AUMAN, Pastor.

Mt. Zion, Pinnacle Charge.—We are very glad to report a good increase in Sunday school attendance and also offerings.

Bro. Hunter preached one of his very best sermons last Sunday. "The Four Pillars of Faith" was his very interesting subject, and was enjoyed by a large congregation.

On Tuesday night of this week the stewards will have a call meeting for the purpose of planning to straighten up the church business before Annual Conference.

Bro. Hunter appointed a nominating committee to nominate the officials of the church for the ensuing year. This includes Sunday school superintendent and all officials of Sunday school. Next Sunday night there will be a regular church meeting and the committees will submit names, after which all officers will be duly installed.

All members of the Missionary Society are urged to be present at a meeting to be held immediately after Sunday school next Sunday.

C. W. ALLEN, Reporter.

Hollister, Halifax Charge.—We had splendid attendance at Sunday school Sunday. There were 97 present. We hope to have 100 next Sunday. We have been having a contest in our Sunday school for the past month. The men were to get all the new members they could and the ladies were to do likewise. The side that got the least number of new members was to give the entire Sunday school a supper. The ladies received the most new members, so the men are to give the supper. This supper is to be given next Friday evening at 7 o'clock. We are expecting a good supper from the men.

The officers for Sunday school were elected as follows: Superintendent, Mr. R. H. Arrington; assistant superintendent, Mr. E. T. Ellington; secretary, Mr. Lean Knight; pianist, Mrs. W. E. Knight. Most of the teachers were re-elected.

Next Sunday will be our last appointment before Conference. This will be the time for the election of church officers. We will be glad to have all members present.

KATHLEEN SHEARIN, Reporter.

Palestine, Flat Rock.—Our year's work has come to a close. Our beloved pastor filled his last appointment today for this year. But we are hoping and praying that it will not be his last, for we shall be disappointed if Pastor Pegg doesn't come back. I do not think Conference should move a pastor under five years at least, especially when a people has such a good pastor as we have. Why change?

Was real glad to have Mrs. Pegg, little Sarah Edwards Pegg and Miss Edwards, Mrs.

Pegg's sister, with us today; also several visitors from Bethel and other churches around. Come again.

Sorry to report that little Luman Sharron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Sharron, is real sick.

The reporter missed the quarterly meeting Saturday and doesn't have financial reports to give.

Our Sunday school is continuing. The attendance is very good and interest is good. Our secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Aaron Sharron, is on the sick list; am sorry.

The Christian Endeavor Society is running each Sunday night with an average attendance of about forty present. Although it seems very hard to get our young people to take part, am sure a great good can be accomplished by our society if we can only get a little co-operation from all our church people.

Pastor will be with us tonight and encourage us a little.

Best wishes to the Herald.

(MISS) GRACE R. TUCKER, Reporter.

Shiloh, North Davidson. Our conference year is rapidly drawing to a close. The fellowship that we have had with our beloved pastor and with one another has been sweet and beautiful. Brother Troxler has led us in green pastures of spiritual food and the mountain tops of vision and glory, and also we have walked together in the valley of service. We, as his people, love him, and are praying that the Lord may see fit to send him back to us next year.

Sunday we had our last morning service for the year. Brother Troxler preached a forceful sermon on "The Living Christ." Our Christ is not a dead Christ, but one who is alive, and said "I am with you always, even to the end of the world."

We had several visitors yesterday. Among them was Mrs. Ernest Smith, from Greer's Chapel. We welcome every one of them and give them a hearty invitation to come again.

We had a very interesting workers' council meeting on Monday night. When our present superintendent first assumed office more than 15 years ago the Sunday school enrollment was less than 100. It took two or three years to reach 100. The present enrollment is 420. Our attendance has been from 275 to 295. The record attendance for the year was made on the fifth Sunday of September, with a little more than 400 present.

About 20 years ago Shiloh paid on the pastor's salary $97, with $4 being the highest amount paid by any one member. The present amount paid on pastor's salary is more than $700, with some members reaching $75 each. Some of our fine young men and women give $25 and more.

Our C. E. societies are doing great things for the Master. They number nearly 40 members and have already raised $150 on the General Conference budget besides the other money they have raised this year. But, best of all, they are giving themselves to the Master in the days of their youth.

On October 17 Bro. W. J. Berrier reached his 70th birthday. His sons, J. B. Berrier, J. R. Berrier and W. C. Berrier, all of Florida, came to help him enjoy the day. At the noon hour he, with all of his children except one, also the pastor and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Troxler, sat down to a dinner table bountifully supplied with good things to eat. The only cloud on the horizon of what seemed a perfect day was the absence of Tom, who had been almost an invalid for several years, but who is now a practically well man. He had spent several weeks here in September while recuperating from a serious operation, and could not get off from his work so soon after going back. When the boys left Jacksonville, Tom said: "Boys, I'll be thinking about you at 12:30." So at exactly 12:30 every knife, fork and spoon was laid down, all arose and the pastor led in a tender and beautiful prayer for the absent boy, after which the meal was finished. We hope that Bro. Berrier, who has been like a father to many of us, will be spared to enjoy many more happy birthdays.

MRS. WILEY L. SHOAF.

High Point.—The new parsonage was the scene of a delightful house-warming on last Friday evening when Rev. and Mrs. Farmer, Mary Elizabeth and Joseph, were "at home" to the members of the congregation and other friends. It was an informal affair, and gave every one an opportunity to see and examine the new minister's home. At 8 o'clock an unique and impressive dedicatory service was observed, when the minister and his guests joined in a responsive reading, and the house was dedicated "to symbolize always that best and truest use of all material blessings, which shall truly light the way to the life more abundant," "to suggest always that building of substantial character and worthfulness of life, that upbuilding of all true and fixed purpose, constant usefulness and helpful service, which builds up the stability of human society," and "to exemplify not only the outward, but the inward qualities, of beauty, thoughtful sincerity, appreciative kindness, loyal goodness, and wholesome purity." The keys of the parsonage were then turned over to Rev. Mr. Farmer and family by Mr. John S. Pickett, chairman of the parsonage trustees. It is worthy of mention here that he and Mrs. Pickett presented the handsome bed-room suite in the guest room, which gift is greatly appreciated by the pastor and family. A program of lovely music, both vocal and piano, was then presented under the direction of Prof. Ernest B. Stimson. A large number of guests was present on this happy occasion to inspect this comfortable and commodious home, which was built by the contractor, Mr. S. P. Montgomery, and to extend good wishes for the comfort and happiness of its occupants.

At the 11 o'clock service last Sunday morning, just prior to the election of church officers, Sunday school superintendent, etc., the pastor delivered a timely discourse on "The Layman Who Counts," from the text in Exodus 18:21, "Moreover thou shalt provide out of all the people able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness." At the beginning of the sermon he said that he was not going to talk about Capt. Rankin, who counts the money, although his post is an important one, which he has filled very acceptably and efficiently for a long period of years, but he wished to talk about laymen and laywomen who make things go. The church needs folks with New Testament vitality, who will settle down to a definite program and will not allow anything to swerve them from their purpose. The layman who counts is saved by the grace of God. He is always found in his place at services on time. The loyalty of a congregation will make a minister great. The difference between a grave and a groove is a matter of depth, and you might as well begin one as the other. A layman who counts has a passion for souls, to win them to Christ. What is evangelization? It is simply spreading the good news of salvation.

At the evening service the third sermon of the series on "Bible Questions Often Misunderstood" was delivered by Rev. Mr. Farmer on "Christian Perfection and Sinlessness."

It is a source of great regret to the congregation that Mr. E. L. Douglas decided for business reasons to give up the superintendency of the Sabbath school. He has been an efficient and faithful leader, and his loyal service so cheerfully performed is much appreciated by his fellow members. Dr. S. S. Coe, chairman of the nominating committee, announced the name of Mr. Arnold J. Koonce to take his place, and he was duly elected. He has served a assistant superintendent for several years, and is well qualified for the responsibility of this important post.

Five Circles of the Woman's Auxiliary held meetings on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock with the following hostesses: Mesdames S. D. Shelton, C. L. Whitaker, R. H. Shaw, J. C. Whitesell, and R. T. Pickens, and despite the stormy weather the attendance was good. The study-book, "The Desire of All Nations," by Dr. Egbert W. Smith, which has been given in the Circle meetings for the past six months, has been finished, and a new one to be decided on by the executive committee, will be taken up next month. Tickets for the chicken dinner and turkey supper on October 31st are being sold rapidly. On the same day theazaar will be held, and a large variety of attractive and useful articles of fancy-work will be displayed for sale.

Circle No. 1, Miss Margaret Snipes, chairman, composed of girls of the high school and college, will meet Thursday evening with Mrs. S. S. Coe, 219 Hillcrest Drive. These girls will sell slaw-cutters at an early date.

The Christian Endeavor Society will hold a Bethel Home service Monday evening, led by Miss Dennyce McAdams. Articles of bed-clothing or money will be donated by the members to this worthy and highly deserving home in Weaverville, N. C.

The fourth and last quarterly conference of the church year is called for Monday evening, November 4, when reports from all the different organizations of the church for the quarter and also the work of the entire year will be heard. A very important meeting of the Board of Stewards will assemble on Tuesday evening to close the financial report of the year before Conference convenes in Greensboro.

The minister will discuss "Shrinking Earth and Expanding Skies" at the mid-week prayer service, and all members are urged to attend.

Next Sunday, October 27th, has been designated Volunteers' Pledge Day, and the stewards will be at the church before and after the hour for worship to receive pledges for next year's work. On the following Sunday, November 3rd, the Every Member Canvass will be made, and every family, whose pledge is not received before, will be visited by their steward during the afternoon.

We are much pleased to receive two new members into our fellowship. Misses Katie Edwards and Madie George, who are resident nurses in Guilford General Hospital, and they are gladly welcomed.

The junior church members are deeply grateful for the contribution of $7.00 received last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. D. McPherson and son, Holt, have moved to their pretty and attractive new home on Woodrow Avenue. Garland, the other son, is a senior at the University of North Carolina.

Mr. R. T. Pickens and daughter, Lucille, drove to Chapel Hill Saturday morning to attend the opening exercises of the beautiful new library building, which was erected at a cost of $625,000, and is by far the most imposing on the University campus. Dr. A. Norman Ward and Prof. Sam Schofield, of Western Maryland College, were glimpsed in the audience. A large number of notables, men and women, from various parts of the country were present. The speeches by Pres. Harry W. Chase, Gov. Max Gardner, Louis R. Wilson, who has been librarian at the University for nearly 30 years and whose dream of a life time was realized in the opening of that magnificent building, of Andrew Keogh, who is librarian of Yale University and also president of the American Library Association, were intensely interesting. These exercises were held in Memorial Hall, which is hallowed ground for the writer, for she has there been present when a brother and two sons have received their diplomas. In the afternoon the ball game between Carolina and Georgia in the magnificent Kenan Stadium was a colorful and novel scene to one who had never witnessed the like before. There was an audience of 2,400 people, which nearly filled the vast stadium, and although Carolina was humbled in defeat by the stronger team of Georgia, it was a wonderful game, featured by clean sportsmanship throughout.

—The Kentucky Conference held its 62nd session at Hubbardstown, W. Va., August 22-25. This is a small conference with only 13 pastoral charges, one of which is Pine Ridge, seat of the notable work done by Dr. Woodford with the Woman's Home Missionary Society. The president is Rev. D. A. Hewlett, unanimously elected. One minister's name was removed from the roll because of his failure to attend conference. It was voted to receive the graduates of Alvan Drew School on their standing in the school. The conference voted to raise the allotment for the endowment of Westminster Theological Seminary.

—New York legislature repealed the prohibition enforcement law, but the courts have found another law which authorizes them to proceed against liquor-sellers. A judge holding court in Dutchess County recently sent 21 men to jail for selling liquor, the decision being that this is a public nuisance.

—Our Theological Seminary at Westminster, Md., had 13 graduates this year, one of them being a Chinaman from Peking. Year after year our church's debt to this institution is increasing. It should be endowed to add to its efficiency and insure its permanence.

CONFERENCE FACULTY MEETING

An executive meeting of the Conference Faculty will be held in Calvary Methodist Protestant Church, Greensboro, N. C., November 5, 2 p. m., after which examinations will be given for any who wish to be examined on the different studies. The afternoon will be given to this work and at the evening session there will be three short addresses on the following themes: "Conducting the Worship Service," Rev. H. F. Surratt; "Preparing and Delivering the Sermon," Rev. T. M. Johnson, D.D.; "Pastoral Work," Rev. J. E. Pritchard.

All members of the Conference Class are urged to be present as well as those who are expecting to enter.

J. E. PRITCHARD, Chairman
N. G. BETHEA, Secretary.

—Edison invented devices for the production of electric light 50 years ago October 20. He counts this the greatest of all his many inventions. The inventor was honored this week in Detroit, Mich. Madame Curie, discoverer of radium, came all the way from Paris to show honor to the great inventor. President and Mrs. Hoover were present and gracefully yielded the seats of highest honor to Mr. and Mrs. Edison. Who of us is not glad that the distinguished inventor is an American? His life illustrates what can be done by prolonged thought, rational experiment, and skillful effort persisted in.

—Our Christian brethren at Elon College last week celebrated the founding of the Christian Church by dedicating a memorial to Rev. James O'Kelley. The Christian Church sprang off from the Methodist Episcopal Church a generation before the Methodist Protestant Church did; both on account of church government.

—Mrs. Nettie Burroughs of Henderson, sends a renewal of her subscription from Simco, Ontario, Canada.

Mr. J. W. Whitehead, Alamance, two bushels Irish potatoes.

Mr. W. F. Grabbs, King, N. C., about five bushels of pears and two dollars in cash.

Mrs. Curtis L. Koontz, for Sunshine Circle, State Street, 95 pencils.

Spring Hill S. S., W. Thomasville, one dozen pencils and one dozen pencil tablets.

We feel that this is a splendid report, and we are thankful to all those who hoped to make it so.

If anyone has money for the Home, which has been collected from any source, and which you wish reported before conference, and to conference, please get it to us, on or before November 4. Thank you.

Concord, Saxapahaw has a splendid Harvest Home donation already gathered together for us. We are to get it this week. And we know of other churches and charges which are working to this end.

Get your produce together such as grain, chickens, vegetables, canned fruits and such other things as you may. Send to us if you can, if not let us know where to go and we will send for it.

Trustee Meeting

The annual trustee meeting of the Home was held yesterday here in the Home. It was a good meeting, and so plans were laid which will mean better things for the Home.

Sickness

We have two children who are sick at this time. This is really the most serious sickness we have had since taking up the work one year ago. Please pray that Martha Routh, one of our twins, and Robert Campbell, one of our small boys, may be speedily restored to health.

And pray for us that we may have strength and wisdom for every task here.

Yours in His blessed service,

A. G. DIXON.

Our Finger Prints

This plastic world receives our prints
And holds them till the Judgment Day:
The record of our every act
Is firmly held in hardened clay.

We're writing not on liquid sheet,
Nor sketching forms on beach of sand:
We grave in stone the thing we are,
To point us out with surest hand.

In life's review our deeds are seen,
No one denies what they declare,
Our fingers prove beyond all doubt
That our own hands did place them there.

—We reprint from the first issue of this paper published 35 years ago two articles, "Our Working Theory," and "What This Paper Hopes to Do." Our experience of these 35 years confirms us in the view that our working theory is correct.

What This Paper Hopes To Do

It hopes to look into every one of our churches, Sunday Schools, C. E. Societies, Missionary Societies, and other auxiliaries of the churches, and by a proper appreciation of the work done by even the most obscure worker awaken a deeper sense of the importance of work for Christ by the Church, and lead to greater enthusiasm in such work.

It hopes to encourage free thought, just sentiment, and right action in all matters of public interest.

It hopes to bring to its readers in the course of a year a large fund of useful knowledge in many departments of life.

With all its serious purposes, it hopes to contribute something to the entertainment of its readers in their moments of leisure.

In short, it hopes to aid in bringing the Methodist Protestant Church to that position of power and influence among the people which its principles seem destined to exert in the future history of mankind, and to make every man, woman, and child within the range of its influence better, happier, and more useful.

It is meant to be your organ, both of expression and impression. It would develop authorship as well as readership. It would give you an opportunity to be heard as well as an opportunity to hear. It would be a telephone line connecting you and your church with every other M. P. church and church member in the North Carolina district,—not a common, everyday telephone line over which men talk all sorts of things, but a line dedicated to your highest thoughts and noblest sentiments; to that which is worthy to be communicated, whether from the inner world of your own consciousness or from the outer world of common observation.

Our Working Theory

The great end of all church work should be the establishment of the Kingdom of God. Preaching, writing, teaching, all moral action, in fact, should be made conducive to this great end.

The Methodist Protestant Church exists for the realization of the divine kingdom in the life of man on earth. All its institutions and agencies should be so constructed and so directed as to aid most powerfully in bringing about that grand result.

So much is clear. But the question of the policy best adapted to gain the end in view is one about which there may be uncleanness of thought and honest difference of opinion.

By his very position in the past the writer has been forced to give much serious attention to this question. Believing that the doctrinal teachings of the Methodist Protestant Church are true, and believing in the adaptation of its polity to the spirit of the American people, he formerly wondered much that the merits of its creed and polity have not given it an immensely greater influence and hold among the American people, notwithstanding the facts of its comparatively recent origin and scattered membership.

Later and more extended observation of the world, however, has convinced the writer that true and attractive principles count for less with the majority of men than attractive personalities. The old fallacy of judging a man's deity or his religion by his earthly condition has not ceased to mislead.

And a wider knowledge of the history of the Methodist Protestant Church has convinced the writer that it has largely failed to provide the means of culture which are necessary to make the members of the church generally, ministerial and lay, forcible and attractive exponents of its beliefs and usages.

This failure has been in part due to the difficulties of the case. A small membership scattered over many states could not well do more in the beginning than was done.

Early in the history of the church a sense of their feebleness led the annual conferences to form a union (through the general conference) to provide the means of education for the people of the church. As a result of this union, we have today our Sunday School and Christian Endeavor publications, two general church papers, and one college.

These are doing much for our people. Yet it is a fact that should startle every one of us into thoughtfulness that the great masses of our people are untouched and unreached by any of these. Clearly something more should be done.

But what does the case call for? More church papers and more colleges receiving their charters from the General Conference? More papers and more colleges, but I am not ready to say that they should be under the control of the General Conference. "A debating society never successfully led an army."

WHAT I SAW IN ROME

I saw people kissing the big toe of the statue of Peter.

But let me go back. I had already visited many of the cathedrals of Europe and from them had gained a new idea of the vast part played by the Catholic Church during the centuries. I began to wonder if I did not need to readjust my opinion of that institution, now that I was seeing it at closer quarters. Possibly it had elements of value and service to mankind that I had overlooked. Possibly it was sloughing off some of its dark excrescences and looming into purer and more substantial and spiritual proportions.

With such interrogation points in my mind I landed in Rome. It is true that in some Catholic cathedrals in France and Italy I had listened to services by the church dignitaries that had sounded largely like the hollow shell of religiosity, but I went to St. Peter's Cathedral, that immense spectacle of architectural splendor. There I walked in its vast interior, with its paintings and carvings and mosaics dazzling the eye from walls and ceilings, when, lo, I saw a person approach the dark bronze statue of "Saint Peter," take a handkerchief and gently brush the big toe and then kiss it! Oh, I had in my earlier days heard of people kissing the said portion of Peter's pedal extremity, but I had heard nothing of it in recent years and the matter had settled somewhat into the realm of fiction in my thoughts. But on this occasion it suddenly broke into reality and I stood there and watched. It was not an exceptional case, but it represented a custom. I saw one person after another solemnly approach the figure in a kind of reverential manner and go through the strange performance. My amazement increased as I saw one of the priests, or a member of one of the holy orders, with his black robe and hat, follow the example of the rest. One little woman could barely, by stretching upon tip toe, lift her lips to that coveted toe. Of course, the toe was flattened by such multitudinous rubbings and osculations.

As I stood there in that central shrine of Catholicism, in Rome, next door to the Vatican, I felt that that silent procession to that bronze toe was a stupendous incident of Roman Catholicism, and one that ought to startle Christendom. I thought of Peter in the house of Cornelius, when certain persons bowed before him, becoming horrified and forbidding such worship, reminding them that he was human like themselves, and I could imagine that Peter now, if he should speak concerning such toe-kissing, would speak in words of thunder that would shake the church of Rome to its foundations.

I saw another sight. As I was walking along the big plaza in front of the Vatican I saw a taxi drive up and a silent figure step forth. He was old and thin and bent and clad in black official robes. He did not wait for his gentleman companion to alight or settle with the chauffeur. His face and step seemed set towards the great Cathedral doors up yonder at the head of the steps. His face and movement said to me strongly that he had only one thought and that was to get inside that Cathedral. He was feeble and moved with difficulty, but his lips were compressed, and he seemed conscious of nothing except his purpose to get into that sacred place. I guessed that he had come a great distance, possibly from his parish in some distant country, now to fulfill a long growing aspiration.

I determined to watch him—not with a cold curious eye. I was profoundly interested. I wanted to see the magnet that was drawing that feeble old dignitary with such a powerful pull. He kept ascending the portico's steps, mindful of nothing around him. On through the doors he slowly but persistently pushed his way—almost as if he feared he might die before reaching his destination. I noticed that as he pressed into the vast interior he headed for a certain place. He had no eye for high marble columns, wonderful statuary, or gorgeous paintings. It was that shrine yonder in one of the side walls towards which he moved. I could not describe all the gilded paraphernalia within that inclosure. There are many such shrines along the walls, each one in honor of some noted Catholic saint, little miniature chapels with altar lights, etc., etc., and usually with a statue or picture of the special saint.

In front of each of these shrines are usually one or more "stands" where persons may kneel facing the shrine, with a place for the elbows, as the devotee kneels and rests his face in his hands or gazes upon the shrine with its representation of the saint.

This aged priest made for that "stand." He almost threw himself upon it and there upon his knees with his head buried in his hands, before that particular saint, he remained. He seemed wrapped and lost in his silent devotion. Which of the saints was he worshipping? I know not, but the sight of people of all classes in the Cathedrals of Europe bowing in such worship—each before his particular favorite saint—and especially the sight of this old dignitary, brought home to me as never before the fact that the worship of the Catholic Church seems largely the worship of saints rather than of God.

But yet another scene greeted my eyes. My guide book mentioned the "holy Stairs" as one of the sights of Rome. They were the steps, so I was told, up which Martin Luther climbed, a part of the way on his knees, and the rest of the way upright on his feet.

I approached the sacred edifice and as I entered the door there, rising before me, was a very long flight of stairs—about twelve or fifteen feet wide. But I saw something else that transfixed me in the doorway. People were on that stairway on their knees. Yonder about one-third of the way up the long flight was a woman. She was on her knees and was lifting one knee to the step above her and then the other knee and there, for a while, she remained. As she climbed, she lifted herself slowly and with difficulty, but all her face was turned with a sort of passionate and almost rapturous longing toward the distant top of the stairs. After reaching each step ahead of her she paused and kept gazing and gazing towards the top. She seemed to dread being in too big a hurry on those blessed steps. If she reached that sacred objective at the top, it must be only after a long and patient climb.

There were people on the steps at various stages. There before me, at the bottom, was a young mother with two little children. She knelt on the floor step and indicated to the children that they must do the same. The little ones obeyed but understood it not and looked here and there with listless and uninterested expressions. After a while the mother lifted herself on her knees to the next step and the children followed.

Of course I was impressed with the earnestness and persistence and devotion of these people in their efforts to be religious. They put to the blush many of us Protestants in our careless and indifferent religious exercises.

But as I looked upon these silent straining climbers I felt only sympathy and sorrow for them, and a sort of admiration for their earnest devotion. But my thoughts were mainly of the great world-institution—the Roman Catholic church—which was training its millions of obedient subjects to regard such ceremonies as acts of worship. How hostile it all seemed to all that Christ and the apostles taught regarding the worship of God in spirit and in truth. It seemed a degradation of worship and human beings. I had known that such things were being practiced by Catholics, but I had known it in a sort of vague, superficial way, but now I saw these things enacted right before my eyes and they burnt themselves into my very soul.

Suppose the Catholic Church should throw the weight of its tremendous influence towards teaching its millions of adherents to worship, not saints nor any human beings, but God alone, not through images, but through Christ and Christ alone. The Catholic Church in all these contrivances is at least giving recognition to that universal yearning of the human soul for worship. What is Protestant Christendom doing in this regard? What are Southern Baptists doing; we are multiplying rattling machineries, with vast organizations. We are erecting fabulous buildings, and feeding the eagerness of our people for statistics and credits. But real, genuine spiritual worship—both private and public—is not receiving the attention from us that it deserves. Here is the storm center of our needs. When we get the hearts of Southern Baptists opened up in habitual communion with God we will have opened up the fountain from which will flow the streams of every form of religious activity.—Eldridge B. Hatcher in The Word and Way.

A BRIDGE-BRAINED GENERATION

Life is well lived when it is symmetrical. Every real personality covets both size and proportion and balance. Lopsidedness and littleness are eager to achieve the best. Christianity definitely makes for this. It is an inward state of peace and joy, as well as an outward expression of human relationships. The intelligently Christian person has large and varied interests. Millions have been saved from soul starvation by their study of the Bible and by the practice of definite Christian duties. For the Christian has a brain as well as a body, and a spirit as well as a body, and a spirit to dominate both.

A few evenings ago, at a stimulating social gathering of a group of young married people, college graduates who have already achieved personalities and prosperity, I heard one business man say, "I like to play an occasional game of bridge, but I can't stand for the way so many people are giving all their spare time to it. Most social gatherings turn at once into bridge parties, as if in confession that they have no resources for entertainment in themselves. I think the present fashion is an insult to people's brains. Have we forgotten how to talk? Are there no common interests for educated men and women aside from cards? Don't they know how to play? Frankly, I am disgusted with this bridge-brained mood."

That remark was made in the midst of an evening full of pleasant chat and laughter, discriminating discussion of people and books and things, the exchange of clever jest and repartee and the reading aloud from Isaac Walton's "Compleat Angler," and from the poems of Sidney Lanier. There was no pious talk; yet eyes flashed with appreciation, and glances of understanding were exchanged, as the profound spiritual significance of Lanier's "Clover" and "Ballad of Tree and the Master" were being read. Those young people know themselves to be spiritual beings. There was religion in their social relaxation.—Wm. T. Ellis.

THIS IS THE LAST

The Budget Council makes this final appeal on behalf of the budgets. We are now in the last days, and our receipts, whatever the amount, will soon be in, and our records made. Thirty reports are in from pastors at this writing—slightly more than one-third of the total to be received. Four report that budget receipts will be less than last year; fifteen report about the same; nine report more than last year. If we can have enough charges like that, our balance will be on the right side of the ledger. And surely it needs to be there! Another creditor notifies us this week that he will need the two thousand we owe him right away. What are we going to do about it? The full budget is the answer. If we can raise our $26,550 our worries, so far as these small pressing annual conference obligations are concerned, will be over. PLEASE help us do it! Let us make these remaining nine days worth thousands of dollars to the conference. Everybody "on" now, and everybody "going" for $26,550! Then we'll be happy.

THE BUDGET COUNCIL.

NOTICE

Wednesday night, November 6th, is the opening night of the 102nd annual session of the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church. It is also designated by the Program Committee as Young People's Night. The Board of Young People's Work deeply appreciates this courtesy and will put on a program that will be beneficial to all.

We are most fortunate in securing a pageant for this occasion. The pageant is entitled, "The Quest of Youth," and is under the personal direction of Mrs. H. W. Maier of Thomasville, N. C.

This short article is to give a very cordial invitation to our people to attend this pageant, especially Christian Endeavor Societies and all young people who may not be members of a society.

The time is Wednesday, November 6th, 7:30 p. m., and the place is Calvary Methodist Protestant Church, Greensboro, N. C. Every one is invited.

FRED W. PASCHALL, President of Board.

The time has come in our history when the annual conference in many cases should feel itself strong enough to provide for the educational needs of its own people. Through this general dependence of each on others we may all go down together. Each annual conference should look closely after the educational interests of its own people. Each annual conference that can should have a paper of its own and a college of its own. More depends on this than words can make any one realize. Our success as a denomination depends on the general education of our people, and the practical and successful way to educate the people, with the education of the pulpit, the press, or the school-room, is through the division of our vast territory into comparatively small fields, as our annual conference districts, and then the earnest co-operation of all the working forces in each for the people of that field.

This is our conviction, the theory we are willing "to walk out upon." It is this that has led us to undertake the publication of this paper.

ONCE MORE

"Not a week, not a day shall pass, without an earnest effort and an earnest prayer to close this year in the highest honor to God."

Asheville

October 23, Wednesday.—It was a great pleasure to be with Pastor Paschall and his people in their prayer meeting on this date. The usual prayer meeting attendance was present, and to us, at least, the service was helpful. It was gratifying to find the work growing. Brother Paschall and his accomplished young wife are giving themselves devotedly to the work, and are proving efficient workers. The church gives promise of progress under their leadership. Brother J. S. Williams and his wife were in the service. It was a pleasure to us to see them. Our visit there could hardly be called an official one, but rather an occasion of fellowship and worship in passing.

Weaverville

October 24, Thursday.—We were on this charge in the quarterly conference, which was held at Clark's Chapel on the night of this date, with all the churches represented by officials, and a goodly number of other persons present. Reports indicated active Sunday Schools at each church, with two contributing regularly to the Children's Home. Weaverville church has a splendid Aid Society, with 17 members, and a Home Missionary Society with nine members. The finances were found greatly in arrears. Clark's Chapel was slightly ahead on pastor's salary, but with no budget credits. Mt. Zion was next on salary, and with a small payment on the A. C. B. Weaverville church is out on the A. C. B., and has a good credit on the G. C. B. besides ranking well up with the charge on salary. Some slight repairs are needed on the parsonage, and the trustees were instructed to have have this done at an early date. The parsonage is well located, and with the necessary improvements, it should be a very desirable place to live. Brother Joiner, being new in the work (this is his first appointment) has no doubt labored against handicaps that are incident to first undertakings. Despite this, we trust that the year may have lasting compensations for his labors.

For some reasons, we do not know whether it was our fault or the fault of some one else, Weaverville church did not get proper recognition on the conference honor roll last year. We were informed on this visit that this church paid all claims in full, and that being the case, it should have had honor roll recognition. The omission was not intentional, whoever is responsible for it. The church was in no resentful spirit about it, but naturally they expected what was due them. We are glad to make this statement in their behalf, and in this way atone as much as possible for the mistake.

Democrat

October 25, Friday.—We were with this charge in the fourth quarterly conference on the afternoon of this date. The conference was held at Pleasant Gap Church. This church is high up on the mountain, and is "beautiful for situation," though a little difficult to reach. Only two of the five churches were represented. The pastor reported that there had been 24 professions of faith on the charge during the year, and two accessions. He has written 125 letters and cards during the year in the interest of the work, and traveled 11,608 miles. The meager salary has made it necessary for the pastor to work all during the year and to travel back and forth daily from his home at Democrat to Asheville. The charge is without Sunday Schools, C. E. Societies, or women's organizations. It is difficult to see how we can ever make any progress here unless a living can be provided for a pastor. This the charge has not done, and the conference has been able to render but limited assistance. We see but little hope for this work unless some changes take place. A full-time pastoral service and a liberal support on the part of the people is one remedy. Consolidation is perhaps another. Brother Bell has given three years of sacrificing service to the work, and has won the confidence and esteem of the charge.

Four ministers were with us in each of these conferences, —Joyner, Bell, Paschall, and Ridge. Glad to have them. A brief call at Bethel Home added to our pleasure on this visit. The sunshine of the Home, Mr. Altman, was in his usual happy spirit. We did not have time to see other patients. Brother Casto, the moving spirit of the place, was not in upon our arrival, but came shortly. He is doing a great work there, and merits all the help that we can give him.

An interesting feature of this mountain trip was a visit in the home of one of our members at Pensacola, Mr. A. G. Wilson. He is the son of "Big Tom Wilson," noted bear hunter and the man who found the body of Prof. Mitchell who lost his life on the mountain which bears his name. The story of the hunt for the body of Professor Mitchell, as it was told by "Big Tom Wilson" to a reporter for the Asheville Gazette, is in the possession of Brother A. G. Wilson, and is a very interesting narrative. He, too, is something of a bear hunter, having killed to date 111, just three less than his father killed. He prefers that his father should hold the record.

On our return from the mountains and back to Greensboro, we came by Fallston and spent Saturday night with Brother Morgan. While there we went over to Shelby to see Bros. Morris and Carson. Brother Morris is a patient at the Shelby hospital. We found him quite ill, though perhaps slightly improved. He will be remembered in the prayers of his brethren throughout the conference. On Sunday morning, we stopped at Bess Chapel, and worshiped with them in Sunday School and the preaching service which followed. Owing to a severe cold, we declined to preach, though very cordially invited to do so by Brother Henderson, the pastor. An attractive new brick church has been erected here this year at a cost of about $9,000, all of which has been provided by negotiable bank notes. In these days of heavy church debts, it is refreshing to find some that build on the "pay as you go" plan. The church is 35x52, and has eight Sunday School rooms, and a good basement for the heating plant. The heater is installed, and was in use Sunday. A picture of this church will likely appear in the HERALD this week. We most heartily congratulate Pastor Henderson and his people upon this splendid achievement. Brother Love was at his country appointment, so we missed him as we came through Lincolnton. A few minutes stop with Brother Bethea at Lexington completed our visit with our pastors on this return trip. A cold, and the heavy work ahead, hurried us home, after an absence of ten days.

We enjoyed our visits with these charges and these pastors. The trip seems to have been a fitting climax to the winding up of the year's work. Pastors and people were generous in their hospitality and thoughtfully kind in providing for our care and comfort. Our grateful thanks to them. Brother Ridge accompanied us on our mountain trip. He proved a good chauffeur and a pleasing traveling companion.

That Annual Question

Moving? We are all concerning ourselves with that question now, pastors and people alike. It is a very serious question and one that we can not treat lightly or with indifference. Results, both to pastors and churches, are so important that only careful and prayerful consideration should determine the answer. It is an issue that should not be allowed to swing on some trivial or personal hinge. The minister is God's man, and the people that he serves is God's people. Making the pastoral relation therefore, and breaking it, should be determined in the Christ spirit. Would unnecessary hurts be caused by a change? Then be slow to make it. Would the interests of the Kingdom be best served by a change? Then insist upon it. Our system of connecting pastors and charges is not an arbitrary one. We have no authority by which we can say to this man, "Go," and he must go; and to another "Come" and he must come. Our system is one of mutual agreement, so far as that can be possible, between pastor, church and conference, and the success of this system depends, in no small part, upon the reason for changes and the harmony with which pastors and charges break relationships. We are all human, and human limitations and imperfections become very assertive at times, even in matters that vitally concern the work of the Kingdom. Let us all pray very earnestly that in this matter of pastoral supply the touch of God may be much upon the clay.

Budgets and Salaries

In a very few days we shall know how much thirty thousand Methodist Protestants will lay upon the altar of God's church for the purposes of his Kingdom. And likewise, how many pastors are to go up to conference with full salaries. Let us hope that not one shall be lacking in this. And let us hope also that no charge shall fail to raise every possible dollar on the budgets. The call of the church for material support is God's call for faithfulness on the part of his stewards. May the commendation of God be upon us because of our response to this call. "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully."

What Counts on the Budget

All money raised by the women for work outside of North Carolina, and that goes through the treasurer of the general church, counts. This is their "New Century Service" budget. Money raised by the women for purposes in North Carolina does not count. This is their "North Carolina" budget. Follow these directions, and your charge will get proper credit. No money that the women raise counts on the A. C. B.

Finally

This will be our last weekly message for this conference year. In this last word of this last message we ask for this one thing: The earnest, constant prayer of the church for the blessings of God upon us in our conference session. Whatever else we may do, it should be a time we will draw near to the Lord that He may draw near to us. God greatly needs today a church that is charged with His spirit, and if we will offer our conference to Him for this purpose, He will say to us with a new emphasis, "Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." There would seem to be no better time nor way to move the church out anew for God than to have a real heart warming during our conference session. This, I think, would be putting the emphasis where God wants it, and would lead to a solution of many of our problems. Let the people back home pray; and let those who attend the conference pray for God's presence with us when we meet on the sixth day of November.

The Lord bless every pastor and every charge in these closing days; set right any misunderstandings that may have arisen anywhere in the work; take all hurts out of all hearts; remove from our minds any unwarranted anxious fears; grant us a solution for all local and conference problems; and remove all difficulties that hinder us from closing this year in the highest honor to Him whose we are and whom we serve.

"The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge."

With the fullest appreciation of the faithfulness of pastors and the co-operation of the people, I am,

Fraternally yours,

S. W. TAYLOR.

PASTORS, PLEASE NOTICE

Report blanks were mailed out last week. If you failed to get yours, please let me know, and I will try to get others to you before you come to Conference.

Just a few suggestions:

1. Don't report cents. If any item is more than fifty cents, call it a dollar. If less than fifty cents, disregard it. We cannot print odd cents in the Journal without extra expense. To include cents in your report makes extra work for the statistical secretary. Please don't do it.

2. Since last Conference many of the Missionary Societies have been combined. And a readjustment will have to be made of their financial and numerical reports. We should have had new blanks printed to take care of these items, but having some on hand, I did not feel that we ought to throw them away. A new blank will be printed next year. This year report the combined membership heading column "Missionary Auxiliaries." And combine the amount paid by the Societies.

3. In the Information Blank you will of course report the name of the President of the Missionary Auxiliary if the Missionary Societies have been merged. Strike out one or the other of the spaces provided for that information and write in President of Missionary Auxiliary.

4. Please hand me the money due on Conference Journals as soon as you reach the seat of Conference. Don't make me run after you. If you can mail it, all the better.

C. W. BATES, Secretary.

NEVER DESPAIR

Things at their worst are certain to mend,

The longest of lanes must at last have a turn.

Keep steadily on, and you'll find at the end

The goal is before you for which you yearn.

There's a silvery lining to every cloud;

When night's at its deepest, 'tis nearing the morning;

Though darkness may seem the whole sky to enshroud,
The sun will break forth, the glad heavens adorning. —Anon.

A BROKEN BUCKLE

"Dr. James Hamilton," says a writer in the Congregationalist, "tells of a gallant officer who was pursued by an overwhelming force, and his followers were urging him to greater speed, when he discovered that his saddle girth was loose. He coolly dismounted, repaired the girth by tightening the buckle, and then dashed away like our Sheridan on his famous ride from Winchester. The broken buckle would have left him on the field a prisoner; the wise delay to repair damages sent him on in safety and amid the huzzas of his comrades.

"The Christian who is in such haste to get about his business in the morning that he neglects his Bible and his season of prayer, rides all day with a broken buckle. 'He rides for a fall,' as the English say, and if he is tumbled into the dust, he has nobody to blame but himself."—The Sabbath Recorder.

THE CHURCH OF MY DREAMS

This is the church of my dreams. A church adequate for the task, the church of the warm heart, of the open mind, of the adventurous spirit; the church that cares, that heals hurt lives, that comforts old people, that challenges youth, that knows no divisions of culture or class, no frontiers, geographical or social; the church that inquires as well as avers, that looks forward as well as backward; the church of the Master, the church of the people, the high church, the broad church, the low church, high as the ideals of Jesus, broad as the love of God, low as the humblest human, a working church, a worshipping church, a winsome church; a church that interprets the truth in terms of its own times and challenges its times in terms of the truth; that inspires courage for this life and hope for the life to come; a church of all good men, the church of the living God.—John M. Moore in Federal Council Bulletin.

HOW HEART-SOIL IS MADE HARD

Hearts become hard in the same way that footpaths do—by constant tramping upon them. Vain and silly thoughts trip swiftly and tirelessly back and forward. Every indulgence of the flesh stamps as with feet of iron. Rejected reproofs, omitted duties, broken promises, march ponderously upon their sensitive surfaces. As a cattle path across a meadow is lower and harder and blacker than the green sward it divides, so is the path of a bad habit upon the human heart. No grass or grain can grow upon the cattle path, nor can the good seed of the Kingdom sprout in the track of an evil habit.—Selected.

OUR STORY PAGE

ALICIA'S GARDEN

Alicia was a little girl who until she was five years old had lived in a beautiful house in the suburbs. Flowers and greens were her delight. Nothing made her happier than to go into the garden with her mother and admire and watch the pretty blooms. Then when Alicia was five years old her father's business had made living in the city necessary so the Grant family had left the happy garden with all its beautiful flowers and fond memories and had gone to dwell in a great big apartment house in the heart of a crowded busy city where there was no room nor time for gardens. At first Alicia had been interested in all the new sights. Department stores; elevated trains; subway stations; auto busses, and crowds of people all hurrying to and fro gave her plenty to look at and think about; but when the newness of the city wore off, Alicia found herself missing suburbs and the garden.

Her mother noticed that the little girl was growing pale and thought that the city air did not agree with her, but Mr. Grant said: "I know what ails the child. I was the same myself when I was a youngster. She's homesick for the greens. I'll have to see what I can do about getting a garden for her."

"But there is no room for a garden here," objected Mrs. Grant. "Why we haven't even a yard to hang the wash. All our clothes are dried in a drying-room."

"I'll have to think," said Mr. Grant. "Some way must be found to bring the roses back into Alicia's cheeks."

That evening Mr. Grant came home carrying a mysterious long package under his arm.

"I'll give you three guesses," he said, kissing the little girl.

"A doll?" But her father shook his head. "No."

"A tea set?"

"No; one more guess."

Alicia felt the package, but its box-like shape gave her no clue. "I give up," she said. So Mr. Grant took off the string and the paper and showed Alicia a pretty window box filled with green moss. "Here is a garden for you," he said. "The ground is already for you to plant seeds and little plants. When you and Nurse Annie go out for a walk you must keep your eyes open for pretty blooms which you might plant in your window garden. This garden will be for your very own. You must tend it, water, see that it is kept free from weeds and choose the flowers that shall grow in it. Do you think you can?"

"Oh, Daddy, I'm so happy. Of course, I can. I'll have the prettiest garden that ever was. Oh, I just want to buy some seeds and begin planting them." The little girl's eyes fairly shone with her happiness and her cheeks were pink with excitement. Her very own garden!

All during dinner the talk centered about the garden and Alicia's plans for it, and when bedtime came Alicia was a little disagreeable and peevish about being led to bed. Her mother thought sadly that this was not the first time she had noted traits of sullenness in her little daughter, and she told her while undressing her for the night that the garden had been bought for a good girl and that its blooms were meant only for people who were happy.

Alicia thinking only of her own pleasure and the garden dropped off to sleep. Imagine her surprise to hear a tapping on the floor and on opening her eyes to see in the half light a brown elfin figure sitting on the post of her bed. Without any preamble the little figure began: "You have a garden."

"Yes," cried Alicia, forgetting to be frightened when she remembered her new garden, and realized that this little fellow was friendly and knew all about it.

"But you are neglecting it."

"Why, I got it only this very evening," declared Alicia, indignantly. "I haven't begun to work on it yet."

"The garden I mean," said the little fellow, "You have had for five years." "Nonsense," cried Alicia impatiently and forgetting to be polite. "I'm only a little past five years old now."

"Just so," said the visitor. "This garden has been yours ever since you were born." Alicia began to listen attentively. "It is the garden in your heart. No, don't interrupt," as he saw the little girl open her mouth to answer. "Let me tell you about it, for very evidently you have never heard of this one of your most precious possessions. In your heart is a garden, which you and only you must tend to. God prepared this garden on the day of your birth, but its development is in your hands. You can say whether roses of rare beauty shall bloom in the garden of your heart, or whether weeds shall crowd out the more precious blossoms."

"But how," cried Alicia bewildered. "I-I-I don't understand."

"Kind thoughts and kind words are the seeds. They blossom into flowers of goodness and beauty. Sullen ways, disobedience, disagreeableness, these are the weeds that crowd goodness and beauty from your heart. Their growth leaves tell-tale lines upon your face, for in your face people can read the story of the development of the garden in your heart. Flowers of obedience, happiness, cheerfulness and kindness reflect themselves in smiles upon your lips and roses in your cheeks. Watch your garden carefully. Beware of weeds. Tend carefully the precious blossoms."

"But tell me—" began Alicia, but the little elf had vanished. Instead Nurse Annie stood beside the post on which he had been sitting, inviting her little charge into the warm bath which she had drawn. Alicia was about to pout and be a little disagreeable at having to get up, but suddenly she remembered her dream—and with a smile she jumped out of bed and Kissed Nurse Annie "good morning."

"I do declare, it's the garden that has made her a happier child," said the nurse to herself, thinking of the window box.

Of course, the window box did give Alicia much to think about and something to be happy over. Excursions to green houses outside the city to search for small plants, and trips to florists on the edge of the country to buy seeds gave life a new interest, but with it all Alicia hugged the memory of her strange dream very close to her heart. Perhaps it were true that she had a garden in her heart. Every time she found herself being unpleasant she remembered the weeds that might choke the life out of the beautiful flowers and being sweet and good very soon became a habit with her. Shining eyes, smiling lips and rosy cheeks brought a glow of happiness to her parents who noted the change in her with delight.

"It's the garden," declared Mr. Grant, discussing the child with his wife one evening. "She has been a different child ever since a bit of green country came into the apartment. Of course, her trips out into the country have helped bring color into her cheeks too. I knew she missed the flowers."

"Perhaps," assented Mrs. Grant. "It seems as if her very soul were flowering with the window box. I think," added Mrs. Grant, who like most mothers had a deep kinship with fairies. "That maybe there is a garden of happiness in our little girl's heart."—Selected.

TIPPING THE LORD

"How would you like to be a porter?" said Henry to his friend Timothy while bowling over the roads one day.

Timothy, busy with driving, shook his head decidedly.

"Why not?" persisted his friend.

"Mostly tips. When I deal with a man, I want him to pay me my due, eye to eye; not slip anything into my hand behind my back."

"I wonder if that is the way the Lord feels about it," quietly remarked Henry; and he looked innocently toward the distant woods. The car stopped short. A man simply can't drive when the fragments of lifelong habits are battering his conscience raw.

"Just what do you mean now?" And Timothy looked a bit frightened as he asked the question.

"Only this. When we give to the Lord without any fixed rule, just when we please and just as we please, I wonder whether He doesn't feel a bit like a heavenly porter. And perhaps we come to feel like the passengers, and fall into the habit of giving Him whatever spare bit of change we may have handy, 'the blemished and the torn' that Malachi tells about. I wonder if it wouldn't be better for the Lord and for us if we just looked Him in the eye and gave Him according to some fixed rule."—W. S. Woodhall, in "Tipping the Lord."

THE ETERNAL ONE

Thou great One! what shall we say of Thee. To be permitted to think of Thee is itself a blessing. Thou art far away from us, and yet Thou art near. What an eternity was Thine before creation began! No beginning. Life with no time to mark it. A sun there was not to shine. Thou thyself art light. We speak of Thee as being alone in the ancient past. But solitude pertains not to Thee. Thou art three as well as one. Happy therefore Thou wert in the midst of a communion which we cannot know. What a day is Thine! the eternal Sabbath of the Lord. Thou Sovereign of the ages and of the worlds, Thy stray creatures look to Thee. Thou hast forgiveness for the repenting, joy for the sad in spirit, purity for the unclean. All power comes from Thee and all life. Thou holdest in Thy hand the cup of mercy. Men drink. They are well . . .

The collective pain which may torment one during his sojourn in time is absolutely nothing compared with the blessedness of an eternity. The sorrow of earth is but the midnight cry of an uneasy sleeper, the slight scratch of a pin, the flight of a shadow. How strange that even good men should brood over their troubles! An immortal is worried and wounded with trifles. The heir of heaven is depressed because of an angry word, a cold look, a dark providence. The one fact that all the evils of life will end quite soon, and that forever, is sufficient to stay up the soul while here. It is evident that the endless is not made a permanent topic of human thought, but I presume, however, that there are minds that may be said to have a tendency to that which is eternal. They live in the future while as yet they live here. The powers of the world to come centralize and govern them. Such men as Howe, Edwards, Whitfield, and Wesley, were of this class. Persons of this stamp diffuse an immortal fragrance around them. They see that on the gates of the heavenly city and the palace walls, on every glittering spire and dome and arch and pillar, the word life is written; and the great clock of eternity strikes off its hours; but no toll of death is heard in all that land . . .

Glorious land! how many sigh to reach thine abode! In exile we wander here; in darkness; in the midst of death. No day finds us well; no hour is radiant with the light of the eternal morning. How the spirit tires in its toilsome way; wishing that repose might come quite soon. We long for a righted nature; for a vision of complete life; for a Divine Presence to beam upon us. What a moment that will be when first we reach heaven! The soul embosomed in bliss; at home in the land of eternity; living with God!

HOW I ASCERTAIN THE WILL OF GOD

Surrender your own will.

1. I seek at the beginning to get my heart into such a state that it has no will of its own in regard to a given matter.

Nine-tenths of the trouble with people is just here. Nine-tenths of the difficulties are overcome when our hearts are ready to do the Lord's will, whatever it may be. When one is truly in this state, it is usually but a little way to the knowledge of what His will is.

Do not depend on feelings.

2. Having done this, I do not leave the result to feeling or simple impression. If I do so, I make myself liable to great delusions.

Seek the Spirit's will through God's Word.

3. I seek the will of the Spirit of God through, or in connection with, the Word of God.

The Spirit and the Word must be combined. If I look to the Spirit alone without the Word I lay myself open to great delusions also. If the Holy Ghost guides us at all, He will do it according to the Scriptures and never contrary to them.

Note providential circumstances.

4. Next I take into account providential circumstances. These often plainly indicate God's will in connection with His Word and Spirit.

5. I ask God in prayer to reveal His will to me aright.

Pray.

Wait.

6. Thus, through prayer to God, the study of the Word, and reflection, I come to a deliberate judgment according to the best of my ability and knowledge, and if my mind is thus at peace, and continues so after two or three more petitions, I proceed accordingly.

In trivial matters, and in transactions involving most important issues, I have found this method always effective.—George Muller.

INCOMPATIBLE

If thou desire that inestimable grace of true faith, detest that insatiable vice of damnable covetousness; it is impossible that one heart should lodge both. Faith possesses thee of what thou hast not; covetousness dispossesses thee of what thou hast. Thou canst not serve God unless Mammon serves thee.—Francis Quarles.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By Elizabeth Hanner

President C. E. Society, High Point College
NOV. 3: "MAKING MY BODY A FIT TEM-PLE FOR GOD"

I Cor. 3:16, 17; 6: 19, 20

(Consecration Meeting, also Dixie Endeavor Day)

Daily Scripture

Monday—Filled with the Spirit. Eph. 5:18
 Tuesday—A strong body. Judges 14:5, 6.
 Wednesday—Using the body aright. Rom. 6:12-14.

Thursday—Cleanse the body. II Cor. 7:1.

Friday—Restoring the body. John 5:1-15.

Saturday—The indwelling God. John 17:23.

To the Leader

Why not let this be a night for the young men and let them have charge of the meeting?

Short talks might be made on the various athletes of the Bible, "Elijah, the Long-Distance Runner," "David, the Sure-Shot," "Samson, the Strong Man," and others.

If a doctor or a nurse is available it would be well to have a short talk by one of them on "Bodily Health and Spiritual Efficiency," or some subject relating to the topic.

Use some of these hymns: "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "Make Me a Channel of Blessing," "Jesus Calls Us," and "I Would Be Like Jesus."

The Leader's Talk

We should indeed be very thankful that we have come through in our religious thinking—that we no longer believe it necessary to torture our bodies for an indefinite time, in order that our souls might be saved. We now see the close correlation between our bodies and our minds.

This is a great topic for this particular season—the football season. It is a time when physical excellence is being lauded. This excellency can only be obtained by adhering to the training rules.

In the scripture lesson we find the fact again emphasized, that the body is the temple of the Spirit. A building should always be fit for the person living in it. Are our bodies fit places for our souls? This is a question which confronts each of us individually and one we must sooner or later face squarely. Paul said: "Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost, which is in you?"

Topic Talks

I If My Body Is His "Temple."

- Clean.
- Attractive.
- Strong.

II. How to Keep the Body Fit.

- Think healthy thoughts.
 - Bright, cheerful, optimistic.
 - Clean, wholesome.
- Eat Wholesome Food.
 - Grave-diggers.
- Sensibility.
- Exercise.
- Sleep, regularity.
- Avoid hurtful things.

III. Jesus Grew.

- "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man." Luke 2:52.

1. Misrepresented.

2. Jesus the (a) rugged, strong, (b) outdoor man, (c) manly.

3. Jesus' attitude toward body: (a) healed sick, (b) fed hungry, (c) thought bodily welfare necessary.

For Discussion

- Cleanliness next to Godliness.
- The importance of physical excellency in football game in relation to physical fitness for game of life.
- The relation of good health to the higher spiritual life.
- Does Christian Endeavor appeal to the red-blooded boys and girls of today? Why, in either case?
- Do you know of any great lives lived in frail bodies? Discuss them.
- Fit bodies that are not used as temples for God.

The Poet

Health and strength are both in thine own keeping—life and death.

Morally right is physically best;

Thou mayest poison all the springs of health.

Abridge life's lease, and die before thy time.

Or lengthen out three score years and ten

By peaceful joy and temperate exercise.

—Anonymous.

From cellar unto attic all is clean;

Nothing there is that need evade the eye;

All the dark places by the world unseen,

Are as well ordered as what open lie.

Ah! souls are houses; and to keep them well,
 Nor, spring and autumn, mourn their wretched plight.

To daily toil must vigilance compel,

Right underneath God's scrutinizing light.

Come, Savior, Jesus, from above!

Assist me with Thy heavenly grace;

Empty my heart of earthly love,

And for thyself prepare a place.

O let Thy sacred presence fill

And set my longing spirit free.

Which pants to have as other will,

But day and night to feast on Thee.

Henceforth may no profane delight

Divide this consecrated soul;

Possess it, Thou who hast the right,

As Lord and Master of the whole.

Conference Comes Soon

All money for the Home which is to be reported to Conference should certainly reach us by November 5th. We cannot very well include offerings, which come after that, in this year's report to Conference. So please be prompt in sending us any offerings which may be in hand, or which may be taken next Sunday. Thank you, and God bless you.

Faithfully yours,

A. G. DIXON.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

First Church, Concord.—I have done only a little writing and no reporting during the last three months. Nevertheless, it has been one of the busiest periods of my life. The church was kind to grant us a vacation in August and we entered upon it about the middle of the month, going first of all to Florida for a visit among our relatives and friends and to attend the J. M. Hendry family reunion, of which I am honored to be the sixth son and the 11th child. It was a perfect day in every way. Almost 200 were present.

On September 1 I returned as far as Greenville, S. C., where I was joined by the Palmer Sisters, of Linwood, N. C., in a tent evangelistic meeting which continued for 18 days. There were some 30 conversions effected and a general season of uplift among the Christian people. A church has been organized there. The beginning is small but promising; not a large following, but a good, substantial one.

On September 25th we began and continued until the 6th of October a series of meetings here in our own church. Rev. Robert Short, of Roberta, did the preaching, which was much enjoyed by our people.

October 7th I joined Brother Curry at Welch Memorial for a ten days' revival. I enjoyed it immensely. I trust that some good was accomplished.

You will see that from the above activities that I have been elsewhere more than at home. Yet the work has been cared for and is moving on. Our Sunday school is reputed to have held the best all-summer-attendance ever in its history. The work of the Woman's Missionary Society, under the efficient leadership of Mrs. E. L. Litaker, the president, is progressing in a fine way.

Rally Day will be observed the first Sunday in November. Rather late, but is as soon as we can hold it.

The remaining days of the Conference year will be filled with every sort of legitimate activity in an effort to meet all claims in full for the year. This we hope to do as in former years.

Sunday a week ago we received four members into our fellowship. One came by letter from the First Baptist Church and one by letter from Trinity Reformed Church, this city, and two on profession of faith.

G. H. HENDRY.

Bess' Chapel.—We had an excellently attended service last Sunday. Rev. M. C. Henderson delivered to us a splendid sermon. We were glad to have several visiting members worship with us and extend to them and others a most hearty welcome at all times.

Our Sunday school is getting along nicely and it seems that the interest is growing steadily. Sunday school officers were elected as follows: Mr. D. P. Beam, Sunday school superintendent; Mr. B. L. Hanner, assistant superintendent; secretary and treasurer, Mr. W. A. Hull; Sunday school teachers, Mr. John Hanner, Mr. Kenneth Beam, Mrs. B. L. Hanner, Mrs. Bryan Hull, Mrs. M. C. Henderson, Mrs. Dorcas Bess.

The church officers will be elected at the last quarterly conference, which will be held Friday, October 25.

We thank God for our new church and today we owe it all, first to God, second, to our pastor. During his stay with us he has been an untiring worker, sacrificing time, means and recreation for our benefit. He most certainly lives up to the Scripture which says, "Faith without works is nothing." We thank Conference for sending him to us and sincerely hope he will remain with us.

Conference will soon be here and we hope that all dues will be paid up in full and that neither we nor our pastor need be ashamed of our report.

Our Christian Endeavor Society is thriving wonderfully. Miss Blanche Hauser is president; Mrs. C. P. Eaker is in charge of the Junior Department. We have been trying to make the meetings interesting and befitting, aside from clippings, short readings, prayers and the usual singing we have had debates, special music, and talks from the members. The society is giving a play entitled, "What Happened to Judy?" at the local high school building Saturday night, October 26.

Our Ladies' Aid is still in full sway for the upbuilding of God's kingdom.

Among the visitors Sunday we were glad to have Mr. Beverly Bess and Mrs. Minnie Bess Mansfield, of California and Indiana, formerly of our church and community. A reunion was held for them at their old homeplace.

We regret very much that two of our faithful church members are right sick. Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Hanner; but we trust and pray that they will soon be restored to health.

Best wishes to all for the new Conference year.

REPORTER.

Grace Church.—The Grace Auxiliary met in the chapel on Monday afternoon with a large attendance. Dr. S. K. Spahr led the devotional, which was followed by a beautiful solo, "A Perfect Prayer," by Mrs. S. B. Zeigler. The program hour was filled by Miss Gladys R. Thompson, of the faculty at North Carolina College for Women, who told interestingly of the customs of the Mexican woman. She spoke from her personal experiences and observations while a teacher for several years in a Mexican mission. Miss Thompson said she found the women very appreciative and most hospitable when you visited in their homes. There are three distinct classes of vast differences, she said: the very poor class, the middle class, and the aristocrats. The Mexican wife can not go in public places except with her husband, mother or mother-in-law. The principal foods are beans and a flat cake similar to our pancakes, which is rolled and used to "fork up" the beans. She says they eat the beans for every meal. Laughingly she related her experience in asking the cook to substitute oatmeal for breakfast one morning, thinking the girls in the school were tired of beans. The oatmeal was served, the girls ate it gladly, then, looking around, cried out, "Oh, we want our beans, too!" One of the brightest, most promising girls of the school was killed by her father because she was seen talking through the window to her suitor. Fathers try to keep their daughters from marrying because the women have such a hard life. Miss Thompson explained that there was nothing done about murders of this kind—it was nothing unusual. She was asked if she was not in danger, too. She said the American woman could feel fairly safe, but during the last year there, they were in danger because of the revolution.

The program was closed with a solo, "A Song to the Sun," by Mrs. Zeigler, with Mrs. J. Norman Wills, accompanist.

The women of Grace are much indebted to the program committee, Mrs. Paul Rawlins, Mrs. Millikan and Mrs. Wills, for the splendid programs we are having.

The attendance prize was won by Circle No. 3, Mrs. W. S. Jones, chairman.

MRS. J. M. STONE.

Rehoboth, Granville Circuit.—The Rehoboth Missionary Auxiliary held a thank-offering service, October 20th, in connection with the regular preaching service. Mrs. Maude Wrenn Hight presided over the meeting with Mrs. William Floyd at the piano. The following program was rendered:

Doxology, by congregation.

Prayer by Mr. K. E. Parrott.

Special song, by Miss Sue Harris, Mrs. Maude Hight and Mrs. Henry Greenway.

Subject: "How Can We Help Mission Work?" First, by prayer, Miss Crystal Bobbitt; second, by study, Mrs. Richard Harris; third, by giving, Master Derwood Hight; fourth, by going, Mrs. Ed Fuller.

Song, "Bring Them In," by children.

The program was concluded by our pastor, Rev. H. F. Fogleman, who made some splendid and timely remarks on mission work. The members of the Missionary Auxiliary extend thanks to all who in any way helped to make this service a success, and especially to our pastors, who has always co-operated with the missionary activities in every way. He has indeed walked among us with humbleness and sincerity.

REPORTER.

Burlington, First Church.—The year's work is fast drawing to a close. A good-sized congregation was present for the morning service yesterday. Besides the sermon by the pastor the installation service was held and new members received. Nearly all of the newly-elected officers gathered about the altar and entered into the covenant as prescribed in our conference journal; the congregation also stood and entered into this covenant with the officers.

At the morning service the following members were received: Mrs. Glenn A. Huffman, Mr. Julius Coble, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Barnwell, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Smith, Miss Nettie Mae Smith, and Rev. and Mrs. F. L. Gibbs. The latter two are making their home in Durham at the present, but wanted their names in a Methodist Protestant church, and since there is no M. P. Church in or near Durham, they decided to place their membership in Brother Gibbs' home church. The church is glad to receive these new members.

In the fourth quarterly conference held October 24th, it was seen that we are right much behind financially but it is hoped that a hundred per cent report will go up to Conference. This has been an unusually difficult year for the Burlington church. Because of the failure of real estate companies and the shutting down of a large cotton mill the depression has been felt very keenly by our church. People without work, and others losing their homes because of the failure of real estate concerns could not be expected to make large or liberal contributions to church enterprises. And in addition to that our church purchased a nine-thousand-dollar site for a new church last year and we are having to pay for that. However, notwithstanding all this, I believe that the First Church of Burlington can be depended upon to do the worthy thing and carry her share of the load.

It has always been this pastor's custom to retire from the meeting when it came time to instruct the delegates as to pastoral supply for the next year. I followed my custom this time. Later I learned that the delegate was instructed to ask for my return. I appreciate this confidence. And if it is the Lord's will and the decision of the Conference, I shall be glad to give my service unreservedly to the Master's work in the First M. P. Church of Burlington just as I have for the past two years.

As I have prayed for the work here I have tried not to forget the entire Conference. The problems of the other pastors and of the churches are my concern, too. You all have my sympathy and prayers in these closing days of the Conference year when so much needs to be done.

May the Lord bless and direct in our Conference in Greensboro.

L. W. GERRINGER, Pastor.

Burlington, N. C., Oct. 28, 1929.

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—Yesterday was a good, but sad, day for us, as we realized Conference is right at hand. Our pastor has been with us two years; we have learned to love him and his family and it is going to be hard to give them up.

We reorganized our Sunday school October 20th with a few changes, and church officers were re-elected October 27.

As this is my first report since being elected to this office I pray that you all will bear with me and pray that I may please the people.

MRS. JEWELL HARRISON,
Reporter.

Pleasant Grove.—The fourth quarterly conference was held last Wednesday evening. The conference was very harmonious; the attendance was good and most of the officers had written reports. Mrs. I. A. Teague was elected alternate. The conference voted unanimously for the return of our pastor, Brother Williams, and his wife. They have made many warm friends and we are hoping and praying that the Annual Conference may see fit to send them back to us next year.

We are glad to note Miss Maud Kennedy is improving at the High Point Hospital where she underwent a serious operation last Thursday; hope she will soon be able to be back home.

The Brotherhood will meet next Saturday evening at the home of Mr. J. E. Veach.

REPORTER.

Siler City.—Sunday, October 20th, our pastor, Rev. J. C. Russell, brought us a splendid message on "Unwelcome Angels." We always enjoy the good sermons that Mr. Russell brings to us.

The C. E. Society had a business meeting and Halloween social last Friday night at the church. The object of the business meeting was to elect new officers for the ensuing year. They are as follows:

President, Cletus Whitehead; vice-president, Marvin Phillips; secretary and treasurer, Miss Clatie Andrew; assistant secretary and treasurer, Miss Sallie Smith; corresponding secretary, Miss Minnie Cooper; pianist, Miss Minnie Cooper; assistant pianist, Miss Verdie Shaw Fox.

The society then turned the meeting over to the social committee, which had a delightful time in store for us. Refreshments consisted of pumpkin pie and fruits.

The two Philathea classes have invited the Baraca and Bible classes of the Sunday school to a Halloween party to be held at the church Thursday night.

We expect the Conference to send Mr. Russell back to us for the coming year. We also wish the Conference a real good meeting.

MINNIE COOPER, Cor. Sec'y.

West Forsyth.—Our last appointment for this conference year was met at Harmony Grove Church last Sunday and the service was attended by the largest congregation since the revival meeting there last June. The election of officers was held and all of the officials who served the past year were elected with the exception of one of the church trustees. During the Sunday school, officers were elected for the Sunday school for the coming year. Bro. G. B. Craft was re-elected superintendent. The secretary, Miss Todd, was also re-elected. The school elected Bro. Smith (I did not learn his initials), a new-comer in the community, as assistant superintendent. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper was administered and an unusual number of people participated, more than at any previous communion service during the year. After the service the pastor and family were invited to the home of Bro. David Todd, who lives with his daughter, Mrs. W. T. Luper, both of whom are members of Harmony Grove. The occasion was the celebration of the 88th birthday anniversary of Bro. Todd, who is perhaps the oldest member of Harmony Grove Church. There were about 300 people present for the dinner.

The fourth quarterly conference for West Forsyth Charge was held at Union Hill church last Saturday, October 26. Rev. A. L. Hunter, pastor of Pinnacle Charge, was present, according to previous arrangement, and preached the sermon during the morning session, delivering a helpful message on the subject of courage. We were also glad to have R. C. Stubbins, pastor of the Forsyth Charge, present at both the morning and afternoon sessions, and, of course for the dinner also. It is needless to say that he maintained his reputation as a Methodist preacher during the "devouring" of the dinner. The women of Union Hill church provided the splendid dinner, for which they have our sincere thanks.

The business session of the quarterly conference began at 1:30 o'clock. Four of the six churches on the charge were represented. The business of the conference was transacted in a harmonious spirit. The report of the pastor was rendered while Rev. R. C. Stubbins acted as chairman. The report gave a brief summary of the year's work, showing an addition of 33 members during the year; a total of 430 pastoral visits, and $791.84 received on salary. Reports from Sunday school superintendents revealed that all of the Sunday schools on the charge are in good condition. One Sunday school reported an enrollment of 41 and an attendance on a particular Sunday of 39. Harmony Grove church reported improvements on their church, consisting of painting on the inside and outside, at a cost of $90. Bro. J. E. Douglass, of Union Hill church, was elected alternate delegate to the Annual Conference. The pastor's salary was fixed at $1,000 for the coming year, and apportioned to the six churches in the same amounts as for the past year. The pastor withdrew from the conference while the matter of instructing the delegate was taken up. Rev. A. L. Hunter was called to preside during this period. By a vote the conference instructed the delegate to ask for the return of the pastor for another year. The conference adjourned with prayer by Rev. R. C. Stubbins.

We will meet our final appointments for this conference year at Baltimore and Stony Knoll churches next Sunday. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be administered at both churches, enabling the pastor to report the observance of the Lord's Supper four times at each of the six churches on the charge during the year. With these services we will complete a very pleasant and, we believe, profitable year's work on West Forsyth Charge.

Miss Lola Long, the excellent reporter for Pleasant Hill, will doubtless report the revival meeting held last week. I wish to express my appreciation for the splendid hospitality which was accorded the pastor and the helper, Rev. M. P. Chambliss, during the week. We visited and enjoyed meals in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Speas, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Whitman, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Long, Mr. and Mrs. U. Walter Long, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Long, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hunter. We could not go into all the homes where we were invited, and the pastor and family are scheduled to go to two other homes this week, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Long, and Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Sprinkle. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Long are members of the M. E. Church, but are fine neighbors of the pastor and family. The pastor and family were delighted to have Rev. M. P. Chambliss as our guest during the meeting with the exception of one night spent with Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Hunter.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Chestnut Ridge, Orange Charge.—Brother Williams brought us another good sermon Sunday afternoon. This was his last appointment for this year. A good congregation was present and the service was enjoyed by all.

The last quarterly conference was held at Chestnut Ridge church Saturday, October 26. This quarterly conference was one of the best that has been held on this charge in many a year. The conference voted for the return of the present pastor, and we hope the Annual Conference will see fit to send him and his family back to us, for we have learned to love them and feel we can't let them leave us.

We are behind on pastor's salary, but we hope before Conference it will be paid in full.

We were very glad indeed to have Mr. Miller, superintendent of Efland high school, to worship with us Sunday. His address was enjoyed by all. Come again, Mr. Miller.

The work on the church here is about completed, and will be finished this week, I think.

May God richly bless the Annual Conference, and make this the best Conference year yet.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.
ANNIE SQUIRES, Reporter.

Oct. 28, 1929.

Greensville Circuit, Hobbs Chapel.—Our home-coming service was held last Sunday. Bro. Cowan preached at the morning service. He gave us some good and timely advice. In the afternoon two babies were baptized, officers were elected and installed for the coming year, and the church roll was called. There was special music, and Mrs. Tom Barnes favored us with a solo.

Last Saturday our fourth quarterly conference met here. There was a goodly number present. Bro. Spencer, from Halifax Charge, was present, and presided at this conference. He preached at the morning service, using for his text, "Every man must give an account of himself to God for the deeds done in his body." This was one of Bro. Spencer's usual good sermons.

The quarterly conference instructed our delegate to bring Bro. Cowan back. If it is the Father's good pleasure, we trust that the stationing committee may see fit to return Bro. Cowan as our pastor for the coming year. He is a good preacher, an excellent pastor, he has no "pets," and likes to visit and help all.

May the spirit of Christ accompany each delegate and minister to the coming Annual Conference, and may Christian fellowship and brotherly love reign through the entire session of the Conference.

REPORTER.

Orange Charge.—Quite a number of the people of Hebron Church and community visited the parsonage Wednesday night, October 23rd, and left a supply of articles suitable for the kitchen and dining room. To one and all we express our thanks.

The fourth quarterly conference met at Chestnut Ridge Saturday, October 26th. The business was transacted harmoniously. Bro. D. A. Pender was elected alternate delegate. He thought it would not be possible for him to serve, so he resigned, and Bro. B. F. Wilson was elected. The conference instructed the delegate, Bro. C. A. Bivins, to ask for the return of the present pastor. We appreciate this vote of confidence.

We are trying to wind up the year's work satisfactorily. The time is short now. Hebron, Union Grove and Effand are getting in fairly good shape financially. Chestnut Ridge is somewhat behind, but still working. We are hoping to make a creditable showing for the entire charge.
B. M. WILLIAMS.

Rehoboth, Creswell.—Since our reporter, Miss Norma Tarkington, moved away, we've had no reports from Rehoboth Church. We have had a good many things worth reporting. I'll mention a few.

We've had regular services by our beloved Bro. Hethcox; observed Easter, Mother's Day, with wonderful sermons and special music; we had to give up our Children's Day for want of children.

Rev. J. B. Hurley, M. E. preacher from Pleasant Grove, assisted Bro. Hethcox in a revival meeting, which began August 5 and closed the second Sunday night. There were two accessions to the church and much good was accomplished. We had some wonderful sermons by Bro. Hurley. Bro. Hethcox conducted the singing, which was excellent.

We had a visit from our president, Bro. S. W. Taylor, in September. Surely he was at his best; we were happy to entertain him in our home, and will ever remember his sermon and often ask the question, Will we ever have that pleasure again? Wish our preachers could come oftener and stay longer.

Now we are getting ready for Conference; we must have Bro. Hethcox return; he is more precious to us as the years pass by.

With love and best wishes to all who know me.
SALLIE CHERRY DAVENPORT.

Mt. Zion, Pinnacle Charge.—Our Sunday school is progressing, however we are expecting it to take in new life under the leadership of the new superintendent, O. P. Jones. The writer has known Bro. Jones from childhood, and during all the years since he has been affiliated with our church he has been spoken of as, and known to be, a very scrupulous member of the church and Sunday school, with the expected progress of his church and Sunday school at heart. Therefore it is expected by the entire membership of the Sunday school that Bro. Jones will enter his new field with much zeal and that the school will grow both in attendance and efficiency.

Bro. Hunter held a regular church meeting Sunday night and the officers of the church and Sunday school were duly nominated and elected as follows for the ensuing year:

Stewards, O. P. Jones, S. T. Kallam, E. S. Stone, J. D. Mikes, J. N. Jones, W. E. Jones, S. T. Lane, O. W. Barber, F. G. Fowler, J. R. Stone, R. S. Barber and Wilbur Lane. This board of stewards elected Bro. E. S. Stone as chairman.

Church trustees, O. F. Hauser, F. G. Fowler, S. T. Lane, O. P. Jones and J. R. Stone.
Class leader, W. D. Wall.

Mrs. W. E. Jones, Mrs. E. S. Stone, and Miss Lola Barber were duly elected as general interest stewards.

Sunday school superintendent, O. P. Jones; S. T. Lane, assistant.

Secretary, W. E. Jones.

Reporter to church paper, Mrs. W. E. Jones.
Pianist, Miss Lettie Wall; assistant, Mrs. Ed Jones.

There will be a regular installation service next Wednesday night and every officer of the church and Sunday school is urged to be present in order that they may be duly installed. At this meeting the church book will be revised and corrected.

And now just a word about my leaving my home church and changing locations. First, I shall forever hold sacred thought of Mt. Zion and what it has meant to me and my family. Since I first can remember I have attended church and Sunday school there, and while, perhaps, my parents didn't realize the great importance of Sunday school as some, I thank God for the influence of the church on my father as he used to lead me by the hand down the aisle of Mt. Zion to my first Sunday school. I have had, as probably most every willing worker in every church has had, many jobs in church and Sunday school at one time, and I have thought a good many times that my willingness might be being imposed upon, but I must say that, in spite of the fact that though many times during my period of acting Sunday school superintendent the attendance and interest would be somewhat slack, that the work has been a joy to me.

When I definitely decided I was ready to submit myself to the will of my Master I considered every call that has come to me through the church as being divine and have tried as best I could to do the work that has been assigned me, and I want to take this opportunity of reaching some that I probably will reach no other way before I move away; that I am very thankful for the interest and co-operation that has been extended me during my work as superintendent, steward, reporter, secretary of quarterly conference, and that I appreciate every effort that has been put forth in my behalf. I expect to move six miles south of Greensboro, N. C., and shall for a while at least attend the M. E. church (Rehoboth) and I want all Christians to think of me as attending church and taking part as I am called on. I want the prayers of all good people that I may continue steadfast and raise my boys up through the church and Sunday school.

As this is probably my last report in an official capacity, I want to say that I shall continue to support my church in my very feeble way, and shall take the Methodist Protestant Herald in order that I may stay informed as to the activities of my home church through its reporter. May the Lord add his blessing to my efforts as an humble servant of my church, which I love. I pray that the work will never grow slack and that great and good work will be accomplished in the future at Mt. Zion.

C. W. ALLEN.

Pleasant Hill, West Forsyth Charge.—The revival meeting which began at our church Sunday, October 20, was brought to a close Friday night, October 25. Rev. M. P. Chambliss was the pulpit help. In spite of the rainy weather the first of the week, services were held twice each day: in the afternoon and at night. Due to sickness in the community and the bad weather, we did not have large crowds at any of the services except on Sunday and Sunday night. The church was practically filled Sunday night. Mr. Chambliss preached well at all services. His sermons were instructive as well as interesting. He had a special message for the mothers on Wednesday afternoon and one for the children Wednesday night. A goodly number was present at both of these services. The sermon Wednesday night was especially interesting, not only to the children, but to the adults, as well. We feel that this was one of the most successful revivals held at our church in several years; thirteen new members were added to the church.

The fourth quarterly conference met at Union Hill church Saturday, October 26. All the churches on the charge were represented except Tabernacle and Harmony Grove. Rev. A. L. Hunter, of Pinnacle, preached in the morning, using as his subject, "Encouragement." A picnic dinner was served at 12 o'clock. The usual business was transacted in the afternoon.

We are glad to report the condition of Mrs. Mary Ellen Long is some better. There seems to be no improvement in Mrs. Lena Long.

LOLA LONG, Reporter.

Porter.—Rev. C. H. Hill filled his last appointment in this Conference year here yesterday and, as usual, with a very interesting and helpful sermon. It is always rather sad for the last appointment in the year to come around, and we hope if Conference sees fit it will send Mr. Hill back to us again. We have all earned to love both Mr. and Mrs. Hill very dearly and realize they have been a wonderful help to us.

Our pastor's salary has been paid and some over. Other claims are behind some yet. We regret this; however, some more may be paid in yet before Conference.

Our work in general has been fairly good this year. The interest at times has not been what we feel it should have been; still our aim is, from year to year, to do more and more.

Officers have been elected for the coming year. The same officers were re-elected with the exception of Sunday School secretary. We now have Miss Letha Mabry for secretary.

We have organized a Christian Endeavor, but it seems the young people are not interested as they should be, but we're hoping they will soon all take hold and make it really worth while.

MRS. W. T. BRASWELL.

Albemarle, N. C., Route 1.

Asheville.—Last Sunday morning we were happy to welcome into our church membership Mrs. A. E. Bolick. She has been very active in different phases of the church work for several months, especially helpful in the Primary Department and choir. Others to join—Harry Pratt, Milton Adams, Junior Eller, and Ruth Drake, four active members of our Junior Department. At our evening service Daniel Taylor, another active member of the Junior Department, joined. We are justly proud of these live wires.

At our Wednesday evening prayer service was our Conference president, Rev. S. W. Taylor. He conducted the service, talking particularly to the young folk. Scripture, Prov. 22:4—By humility and the fear of the Lord are riches, and honor and life. His talk was impressive and inspirational, showing that by two things—humility and fear of the Lord—three things are gained: riches, honor, and life. He referred to the beautiful Christian life of the late Dr. Thomas Hamilton Lewis, whom to know was to love.

Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Williams were also at the prayer service after an absence of weeks.

The executive session of the Woman's Auxiliary is to meet with Mrs. E. C. Fawcett Monday afternoon.

The election of officers for the ensuing year was held Sunday after the morning service. Mr. E. C. Fawcett is our Sunday school superintendent. We are sure this is a good move. Mr. Fawcett has our church at heart.

The Juniors are to have a Halloween party at the parsonage Tuesday evening; the Primary Department have their party Wednesday afternoon at the church.

The Christian Endeavor Society is having its party at the home of Mrs. E. H. Pratt Friday evening. In our recent contest Mrs. Pratt's side lost—so are entertaining the winners.

The last quarterly conference of the year is to be held Wednesday evening in the Sunday school rooms. There are several things to be discussed and a full attendance is desired.

REPORTER.

Mt. Pleasant, North Davidson Charge.—We had our regular 11 o'clock service Sunday, October 27, with Rev. R. S. Troxler as pastor. He preached on "The Living Christ." He preached splendidly as he always does. At the end of the service Mr. Troxler and his family sang "Four Square." We had communion Sunday, as we always do after a quarterly conference.

Saturday was our quarterly conference, with a goodly number present.

Our Sunday school is moving along nicely with 135 on roll. We had 104 present Sunday, with $6.25 collection.

We elected our church officers Sunday with J. R. Stone as superintendent.

We are planning on giving a play for the benefit of the church real soon.

Two classes of the Sunday school have a contest on hand which begins next Sunday. We are hoping by this act to increase our Sunday school average. We seem to be growing in number and interest.

As Conference is around the corner, we are leaving it to the delegates to get us a pastor for the coming year. We hate to see Rev. R. S. Troxler leave us because he is a splendid preacher. We all love him.

The young people are planning on organizing a C. E. Society in the near future.

The W. F. M. S. is almost paid up for the year.

One of our members, Mrs. Felix Mendenhall, is on the sick list, but seems to be improving.

The Workers' Council will meet Monday night at the church.

We need the prayers of all the readers of the Herald. Good luck to its readers.

RUTH PAYNE, Reporter.

Harmony.—The Missionary Society held a thank-offering program Saturday evening at 7:30. The attendance was not so good, but a very interesting and effective program was rendered.

The fourth quarterly conference was held at Harmony church the third Sunday afternoon in October. Several delegates from Yarbrough's Chapel were present. It is said that this conference was one of the best of the year.

We were all glad to have Rev. and Mrs. D. D. Broome with us the fourth week-end in October. He preached two effective sermons; a large crowd attended both the morning and evening services.

Sunday was communion day at our church and a large crowd communed.

The young people's Christian Endeavor Society held its regular meeting Sunday evening at 6:30. The society was very much encouraged by the large number present. We wish to see this many out every Sunday evening.

The members of the church met Sunday morning after the 11 o'clock service in order to elect new officers for the coming Conference year.

Our Sunday school is still going on nicely and we hope that it will continue to do so during the coming winter months.

As we all know, the Conference year is almost at its close, but let's all pray that the passing one may end in great success and the coming one be more successful.

We, the members of Harmony church and Sunday school, have been very fortunate this year by having Rev. and Mrs. D. D. Broome with us. We feel sure that these two good people have been a great help to our church and the community as well, for during this year they have visited in many homes and have made friends wherever they did so. We are all hoping and praying that Conference will send them back to us.

We are sorry to report that one of the smaller members of our Sunday school had her leg broken while returning from school. This little girl is an active member of the Junior class of our Sunday school and all of her friends hope that she will soon be able to be back in Sunday school and school.

REPORTER.

Friendship, Haw River.—Brother Trollinger preached a beautiful sermon the third Sunday morning. We elected our officers for the coming year, also. Sunday we elected the officers for the Sunday school, which were as follows: Superintendent, Mr. George Maxwell; assistant superintendent, Mr. E. O. Stanfield; secretary, Odell Lambeth; assistant secretary, Staley Gordon; pianist, Mrs. George Maxwell. All of the teachers were re-elected.

Our next and last appointment before Conference will be the first Sunday afternoon in November.

We hope to have Brother Trollinger with us the coming year to help us carry on God's work.

(MISS) MARY SUE WAGONER.

Lexington.—The past Sunday was a very full one for us, and one which will be remembered as one of the best in our history. The series of revival services came to a close Sunday morning. Our pastor had done some very helpful and inspiring preaching during the week just ended and that and the earnest work done by him and many faithful Sunday school teachers and workers of the congregation resulted in an addition of 17 new members on last Sunday morning. These were almost all children of the Sunday school, but all proved by their earnestness and intelligent response to questions asked them by Mr. Bethea during an address and object lesson Sunday morning that they were fully conscious of the step they were taking and the importance of it.

We were pleased to have quite a number of visitors with us in the morning services. Mrs. W. A. Shoffner and her young son and his wife from Burlington, and Mrs. Wyrick, of Melane, daughter of Mrs. Shoffner, spent Sunday at the parsonage. Mrs. Shoffner is Bro. Bethea's sister. Mrs. Wyrick delighted us by singing two solos. All who heard her were impressed and helped, not only by the beauty of the music but also by the beautiful spirit of worship expressed by the singer.

Miss Ruby Warlick and Miss Hilda Amick, of High Point College, were also guests for the day at the parsonage. Miss Warlick is a niece of Mrs. Bethea.

Miss Lila Aron, one of our most faithful workers, who is now a student at High Point College, spent the week-end here with her parents and was in all the services Sunday. She is "company," too, now, and is always welcomed back home by every one.

Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. Forcum, members of the Women's Bible class, both brought a sister-in-law to the class Sunday morning. These ladies, Mrs. Byerly, sister-in-law of Mrs. Jenkins, and Mrs. Smith, sister-in-law of Mrs. Forcum, were guests of the respective families and showed the right spirit in coming to church instead of keeping their hostesses away by staying away themselves.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Lanier brought their fine baby, Harold, Jr., for baptism Sunday morning. Harold, Jr., has the distinction of being the first baby to be baptized in this church.

The church officials were installed at the close of the morning service.

The Missionary Society met at the church Sunday evening at 6:45 o'clock, Mrs. A. H. Evans, president, presiding. There was a good attendance and a good program. We were much pleased to receive two new members at this meeting.

At the close of the preaching service Sunday night a meeting was held at which time some of the matters of business were discussed and some of the quarterly conference matters brought up. Another meeting will be held next Sunday night which will be the regular quarterly conference and a business meeting combined.

REPORTER.

Asheboro.—A week ago last Sunday we received two more new members into our church, Mr. D. D. Almond coming to us by letter from Friendship M. P. Church, near Albemarle, and June Morris Letterloh coming to us on profession of faith. Yesterday we received Mrs. Norman Allred by letter from Brower's Chapel on Richland charge. We are hoping to receive a few more next Sunday.

The annual congregational meeting and the fourth quarterly conference were held a week ago. In the congregational meeting the officials for the coming year were elected. Then all present were made honorary members of the quarterly conference. Reports from the various departments were good. Finances are considerably behind, but will be better by Conference. Prof. T. E. Bulla was elected alternate delegate to Conference. Bro. L. F. Ross is the delegate.

Yesterday we had 216 in Sunday school, which was a considerable increase over the previous Sunday and over a year ago. The offering yesterday was a little more than $40, $35 of which will go to the Children's Home.

Last evening we had as the special attraction for the evening service the Kearns Brothers Quartette, who favored us with several selections.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

Enfield.—Our Ladies' Aid Society held its annual meeting at the hut with an average attendance. The nominees for officers for the new year were unanimously elected. We appreciate these officers, and may each member strive for an active part in the work of the society. The work of the past year has been worthy, but we feel sure a greater work can be accomplished.

A meeting was held Monday night at the church but for election of church officers. All officers were re-nominated for election, with the exception of two. There were some nominations from the floor. A full report of this election will be given later. After the business meeting a drama entitled, "The Church Over the Radio" was presented by Mr. Auman, Mr. and Mrs. Neal and two children. It was greatly enjoyed by all. Mr. Auman is every busy trying to present to us our duties to our church in just such interesting ways as this little drama was presented.

We are glad to note our Christian Endeavor Societies continued in interest and activity. The credit is due our pastor, Mr. Auman. As church members we appreciate the untiring efforts he has put forth to advance these societies. The young people, under the influence of his prayers and encouragement are doing good work, which of course means a big future for our church. Mr. Auman's greatest ambition is that the lives of these young boys and girls be saved. He has truly been faithful to this cause, and we are proud to call him our pastor. Our church is proud of its progress since he came to us two years ago. We are ashamed that we have done so little to help him in this work; but if he is sent back to us we will try in the future to be more loyal.

On last Wednesday night we were invited to meet with the Christian Endeavor Society of Whitakers. Miss Ruth Barnes, who was leader, had a well prepared program, each member of each society taking a part. After the program was over we were served delicious punch and cake. A lively contest provided fun for the social period.

We appreciate having met with these people, and hope we can be united again.

REPORTER.

Albemarle.—Mrs. C. M. Palmer presented to the church last week a beautiful white marble baptismal font, which was a very pleasant surprise to pastor and people. We are very grateful to Mrs. Palmer for this gift, especially so since she is not a member of our church. The font was given in memory of her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. D. Monroe Drye, and a former pastor, Rev. E. A. Plyler and wife. These names are inscribed on the base. A rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. Palmer for this beautiful and useful gift.

One of the most inspirational features of our Sunday school is the Men's Bible class, with Rev. Mr. Anderson as teacher. This class has increased its membership about 500 per cent during the last year. We don't have a class room large enough to hold them, so they have their classes in the assembly room. Last Sunday, their class occupied half of the room. It is a real treat to see the men of the community taking such an active part in the Sunday school.

Mr. A. S. Burleson has been confined to his bed for several days, but at this writing is improving rapidly. We hope he will soon be able to be out again.

The fourth quarterly conference was held Tuesday night, October 22. This was one of the most interesting meetings we have ever had of this kind. A large number were present, and the business of the church was transacted in a most amiable and congenial manner. Reports were especially interesting and informative. The entire congregation was enthusiastic for the return of our present pastor, Rev. J. R. Anderson, and a unanimous vote of approval was given him, with instructions that he had better come back. He has made us a splendid pastor for three years, and the membership as a whole feels that it is largely through his influence that our church has reached its present status. Mr. S. R. Green was elected delegate to Conference and D. F. Harkey, alternate, to take the place of D. F. Helms and J. E. Gantt, who were previously elected to attend and found that it was impossible for either of them to do so.

The annual floral show and bazaar, which is sponsored by the Ladies' Aid Society, will be held this year on Saturday, November 2. This promises to be an interesting affair, and we are expecting large crowds to attend, as this is an event only held once each year in this county. Many beautiful prizes are offered for the best entries, they being donated by the merchants of the town. Everybody is invited to attend.

Whitakers.—Since writing last, clover has been planted on the front and side yard of the parsonage as a winter cover crop preparatory to sowing grass later.

Our Missionary and Ladies' Aid Societies, ever vigorous in action, are planning to organize in the near future an Auxiliary in accordance with the general plan of the Church. The Girls' Circle of this organization has already been organized, officers elected, and Miss Mary Braswell selected to direct their activities.

Rally Day services were held the third Sunday night in the church auditorium at the preaching hour. The decoration with autumn leaves and cut flowers was attractive. The program did not allow a dull moment. The offering was creditable.

Brother Henry Braswell is delegate-elect to Annual Conference.

At the beginning of the Conference year the quarterly conference voted that the pastor devote one Sunday each month to Rose-neath church and Speight's Chapel. In the members' conference in each of these churches last Sunday there were encouraging signs of hopefulness in each of these churches, although the membership has been greatly weakened by death and the moving away of members. Officers were elected and plans made for some activities. This will be reported as they are put in operation.

T. M. JOHNSON.

Union^o Chapel, Granville Charge.—A special program was given by the Woman's Auxiliary Sunday night, October 20. Printed invitations were mailed to the ladies that do not attend our regular meetings and a number of them were present to hear the talks and reports on the different phases of the missionary work. Mrs. Russell Overby explained the new plan. Miss Doris White told us about the work in the foreign field and Mrs. T. A. Stone gave a report on the work in the homeland. A financial report was given by Miss Emily Floyd. We had several special selections and two splendid readings were given by Miss Blanche Van Dyke and Christine Edwards. Miss Van Dyke gave in a very charming manner "The Record's Appeal," which was published in the last issue of the Missionary Record.

At the last church service five new members were added to the church: Mr. and Mrs. James Woodlief and Miss Sallie Woodlief by letter, and Margaret and Cora Lee Pulley by baptism.

Officers of the church were elected Sunday morning at the regular church service. The text for the morning was "Other men have labored and ye have entered into their labors." Christ was cited as one who made the supreme contribution to the enrichment of life. Communion was observed at the close of the service.

The leader for C. E. Sunday night was Miss Mildred Stone. A special feature on the program was a duet by Mrs. R. M. Edwards and Miss Blanche Barkley. The society will give a Halloween party at the home of Mrs. Walter Edwards Thursday night.

The fourth quarterly meeting met at the church Saturday morning. The stewards reported pastor's salary and A. C. B. paid, and only part of the G. C. B. paid, but they hope to get the balance. The quarterly conference instructed for the return of the pastor, Rev. H. F. Fogleman. Mr. W. W. Grissom is delegate to Conference. REPORTER.

Moriah.—Rally Day services were held yesterday. Rev. F. L. Gibbs, of Durham, was the speaker at the 11 o'clock service. He brought a very interesting and helpful message, using as his subject, "Venturing Into An Unknown World." Our Rally Day collection amounted to $17.14.

Church and Sunday school officers were elected in the second Sunday morning as follows:

Trustees: J. W. Sharpe, C. C. Moser, R. V. Kirkman, Sr., C. T. Dorsett and Sample Glass. Stewards: J. S. Wood, E. P. Sharpe, C. F. Scott, J. F. Jobe, John Sharpe, Jr., C. C. Sharpe and A. V. Kirkman.

Class leader: J. W. Moore.

Pianist: Dezier Moser.

Assistant pianist: Emma Lewis.

Sunday school superintendent: J. F. Jobe.

Assistant superintendent: J. S. Wood.

Secretary and treasurer: Mary Kirkman.

Assistant secretary and treasurer, Rebecca Sharpe.

Church reporter, Mrs. J. S. Wood.

The Mothers' Sunday school class entertained the Young Ladies' class Thursday night at the church. A picnic supper was served, followed by a very delightful social hour.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society is planning a Halloween social at the church on next Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The fourth quarterly conference will be held next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

In Loving Remembrance

We, the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Protestant Church of Albemarle, feeling that we have suffered a great loss in the death of Mrs. Odessa Milton Gantt, on August 2, desire to express our deepest love and respect to her memory.

Therefore, be it resolved,

That we, as individual members, hold in loving remembrance, her beautiful Christ-like spirit,

That her influence, faith and devotion shall inspire us to greater service to God, our church and the community.

That we extend to her bereaved family our heart-felt sympathy.

Be it further resolved that a copy of this writing be sent to the bereaved and family, the METHODIST PROTESTANT HERALD, and a copy be preserved in the records of the society.

Alley

On October 9 the gentle spirit of William P. Alley was released from his frail, suffering body. Several years he had been much afflicted, but was surprisingly patient through it all. In his going away Bethany M. P. church sustains a serious loss. Since his conversion 36 years ago, he has been faithful to his church vows, always doing what he could to help carry on the the Lord's work. Nearly, if not all these years, he served as either trustee or steward. Many a mile he has walked to gather up the pastor's salary. Often he has attended services when he was too ill to have been up. His love for his pastors has always been evident. His home was theirs, as long as his wife lived. We shall miss him, but let us be glad that he is freed from pain, that his poor palsied hands shall shake no more, and his aching heart is at rest. His age was 75 years, one month and a few days. Truly a good man has gone to his reward.

MRS. T. F. HUMPHREYS,
Wentworth, N. C.

Alley

The Bethany community of Rockingham county was saddened on October 9, 1929, by the death of Brother William P. Alley, one of the community's most esteemed Christians and citizens. For many years he had been a faithful and sincere member of Bethany Methodist Protestant church. His presence in the congregation and his faithfulness as a worker shall be missed by both people and pastor. His departure shall be deeply felt, but knowing his faith in Christ, we believe he is gone to join the Church Triumphant.

In 1878 he was married to Elizabeth S. Lester. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Pearl Allen, and one son, Augustus W. Alley, both of Winston-Salem, N. C.

The funeral was held at Mount Bethel Christian Church in the afternoon of October 11. The services were in charge of Rev. J. P. Pegg, pastor of Bethany church and Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk, of Kannapolis, N. C., a former pastor greatly loved by Brother Alley. Interment was made in the local church cemetery.

NOTICE TO TEMPERANCE SECRETARIES

I have at last received a limited supply of literature from the Anti-Saloon League. I think this will give you some suggestions and helps for your programs.

I shall be glad to send these booklets to those who will write for them, and then return them so others may have the benefit of using them.

If you have a W. C. T. U. organization in your community perhaps you could get some information from that source.

You will also find some splendid articles in our church periodicals, The Literary Digest and daily papers.

I wish that we might impress the importance of temperance on the minds of our young people in such a way that our boys would be stronger men and our girls better women.

Please plan a special temperance program right away and see how well your boys and girls enjoy it.

SECOND DISTRICT DEPORTS

District No. 2 held its Missionary Rally October 25 with Flat Rock Auxiliary. The chairman, Miss Crystal Bobbitt, called the meeting to order. Mrs. T. P. Hester conducted devotionals, reading Mark 6:1-13. Rev. J. B. O'Briant led in prayer. After calling the roll and hearing the minutes of last meeting, the chairman asked for reports from all auxiliaries represented. These reports proved most interesting. We have in the district more than 175 women active in mission work, 63 Records taken, young people's organization in three auxiliaries, all auxiliaries will raise their budget in full.

Rev. R. A. Hunter spoke briefly, commending the work and urged on to greater things.

We were very sorry Miss Bessie Blacknall could not be with us. She is a returned missionary from Alaska, and was to speak of her work there.

After a bounteous lunch, service was opened by singing "O Zion, Haste." Devotionals conducted by Mrs. N. F. Parham, of Union Chapel church, Rev. H. F. Fogleman offering prayer. Chairman introduced the afternoon speaker, Rev. W. C. Comming, of Henderson Presbyterian church. He spent several years in China as a missionary of his denomination. His address was very inspiring as well as instructive as to Christ's life and teachings in regard to missions. We appreciate Mr. Comming's visit and hope to have him appear one our program again.

Mount Carmel extended an invitation to meet in April. The invitation was accepted.

We were very glad to have New Hope church represented at this meeting by Mrs. L. W. Paschall and Mrs. Robert Paschall. They do not have an auxiliary but are interested. Meeting dismissed by Rev. Mr. O'Briant.

—Calvary Church has recently received a great benefaction from an unknown friend. This friend employed interior decorators and greatly improved the appearance of the pews and other woodwork of the church inside. We thought we knew who the friend was, but the suspected one stood up to vote thanks to the unknown donor of the good deed, leaving us to question our previous surmise. The problem now is to guess who. If we never know, we will carry about in our hearts a vote of thanks for every suspected one. The change in the church is striking and pleasing.

CALVARY CHURCH, GREENSBORO

REV. C. W. BATES
Pastor of Calvary Church

"No Man Careth for My Soul"

O son of man! Thy sore distress
That fills thy soul with bitterness,
That cries aloud in sheer despair,
And sees no hope in human care—

Thy sore distress is born of error,
And fills thee full of frantic terror:
Expand thy view to fullest light,
Let all the truth come forth in sight.

If human love and care are frail,
If they at times entirely fail,
There is a love that never fails,
There is a peace no storm assails.

Cast all thy care on Him who cares,
Whose mighty power no one dares,
Whose care provides for every need,
Whose love itself is fullest meed.

Conference Begins

A great number of autos were seen about Calvary Church on Tuesday afternoon. Inside the church were scores of men—members of the examining board, young ministers to be examined, and members of the Annual Conference who lived too far to come on Wednesday morning. Wednesday forenoon the number of autos had greatly increased and there was a corresponding increase in the number within and about the church.

At 10 o'clock President Taylor called the Conference to order and proceeded to conduct devotional service. This service was very earnest and impressive. The Conference sermon by Rev. N. G. Bethea followed. This, too, was earnest and impressive and prepared us for the communion service conducted by Dr. A. G. Dixon. This was a solemn and beautiful service with many participants.

An interesting furnishing for this occasion was an antique pulpit brought from near Creswell, N. C., said to have been

THE XENOSIS OF CHRIST

The Scriptures are very positive in setting forth that all Jesus became, endured and sacrificed was voluntary on His part. He might have become an angel or some other creature other than a man, if He had so desired. The mind that led to the self-emptying of Christ was held up for the emulation of the Philippians. The humility Christ assumed, the sacrifices made and the sufferings endured in atoning for a lost world reached the uttermost limit. The world marveled at the environments exchanged, sacrifices made and privations encountered when David Livingstone selected dark Africa for his field of service, and when Dr. Grenfell went to the bleak shores of Labrador to work for his God in that far off land. These were sacrifices worthy of the best that man can do; but contrasted with what Christ left behind, became here and suffered on man's behalf, other sacrifices pale into insignificance. He gave up the highest position possible for God to give him in heaven, came to this world of sin and sorrow and lived the humblest life and died the most shameful death possible for man to die. Through His death on the Cross He became an outcast from divine society, in the eyes of the world, and lost even His citizenship. Well did the poet of Methodism write, "He emptied Himself of all but love."

The word sacrifice has largely become meaningless in modern life. There are large numbers in every locality who will not deprive themselves of an early morning nap in order to attend Divine Services of any kind. Others will not give up even part of their Sunday visiting to teach a class in Sunday School and thereby help "feed God's lambs." Myraids more fail to remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy in their pursuit for worldly pleasure. The helpless flight into Egypt to save the life of Jesus—His death on the Cross, and His pathetic words, "The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath no where to lay his head," picture His complete self-emptying. Truly "He gave His all for us," what are we giving up for Him and His church? He manifested the greatest possible love by laying down His life.

Why did Jesus lay aside so much in heaven, make such sacrifices on the earth and die such a shameful death? The answer is plain and compelling, namely, There was need for it. To illustrate, some time ago I read of a famous churchman being conducted through a large glass factory. The churchman observed the men making the dirty molds with their own hands and inquired why this was not done by machinery. He was informed that certain work could alone be done by the human touch. This to the churchman was a parable of Christ's work on the earth. The human touch of tender sympathy, spontaneous love, and vicarious sacrifice alone could atone for a lost world, and win it back to God. After all other attempts had largely failed to save a perishing world, the great love of God prompted the gift of the only begotten Son. The churches scattered almost all over the inhabited world; with their spires pointing heavenward and the crosses towering above them, are silent witnesses to the power of the Gospel in the regeneration of a lost world. The prophecy that "He shall see of the travail of his soul and be satisfied," is fulfilling.

After picturing the self-emptying of Christ to redeem a lost world; and contrasting His sacrifices with that of men, a natural question would be, was it all worth while? The answer has already been partially given; in bare out-line of some of the results of Christ's work among men. But the answer is not left to guesses, or even inferences. The Scriptures are very positive in setting forth rewards, and Christ's reward is no exception. Paul wrote, "Wherefore God hath highly exalted him, and given him a name, which is above every name; that in (not to) the name of Jesus every knee should bow, and every tongue confess that Jesus is Lord to the glory of the Father." The writer to the Hebrews adds, "When he had made purification of sins, sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high; having become by so much better than the angels as he hath inherited a more excellent name than they." Christ's answer to Peter's inquiry should satisfy all misgivings about sacrifices for Christ's sake and His kingdom. "Then answered Peter and said unto him, Lo, we have left all and followed thee; what then shall we have? And Jesus said unto them; 'verily, I say unto you, that ye who have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit on the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon the twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. And every one that hath left houses, . . . for my name's sake, shall receive an hundred fold, and in the world to come inherit eternal life.'" God is not slack in fulfilling His promises, nor meager with rewards to the deserving. No one ever lost, not even St. Francis of Assisi, by noble sacrifice.

APPEAL TO SOUTHERN INDUSTRIAL LEADERS

"The industrial leaders of the South should take the initiative and hold conferences with their employees upon all matters of difference between them," said Bishop James Cannon, Jr., chairman of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church today in discussing the proposed Senate investigation of the "Textile Industry." "The Board of Temperance and Social Service of our church has taken no formal action concerning the Senate investigation," Bishop Cannon said, "but I personally think that if such an investigation is made it should not be confined to the South, but should take in the entire textile industry."

Bishop Cannon then said, "in March, 1927, there was given to the press an appeal to the industrial leaders of the South, which was signed by 45 Southern ministers and educators in their individual capacity. This appeal discussed briefly certain conditions in connection with the industrial situation in the South including the textile industry. Attention was called to low wages, long hours of labor, including night work, especially for women and children and the employment of children who had not completed even minimum school requirements."

"This appeal made more than two years ago before any of the present industrial troubles had arisen and for the very purpose of preventing such strife, urged Southern employers to take the initiative in the discussion of matters calculated to produce friction and conflict in industrial life and called upon labor to give whole-hearted support to secure the best results. The signers of the appeal also pledged their own active efforts to aid in securing understanding and co-operation. Some industrial leaders recognized the timeliness of the appeal and the sincere concern of the signers. But there were others who bitterly attacked not only the statements in the appeal but also the motives of the signers."

"Speaking for no one but myself I still believe that the appeal to the industrial leaders of the South offers today the best method for the permanent settlement of Southern industrial difficulties. Let employers take the initiative and hold conferences with their employees upon these matters of difference. Can there not be an agreement on certain items such as a minimum 54 hour a week, no employment of women and children at night work, no night work between eleven and five or midnight and six, and no employment of children who have not completed minimum school requirements. Surely questions like these need and must finally have full consideration of employers and employees for the sake of common humanity. It is to be noted that an unusual proportion of employers and employees of the South are members of Christian churches. Christ's Law of Love, His teaching concerning human brotherhood,—of the obligation of men to consider the needs and rights of their brother men—this not only should be the standard in their dealings with each other of all those who call Christ Master and Lord, but Christ's standard must and finally will dominate the entire social order, and will prevail in the life and work of the world."

WHO KNOWS?

Are we living in a universe largely unknown to us and consequently unused? Possibly legions of angels might be at our command if we only understood, and the Great Teacher had some things not complimentary to say about our unbelief. The tremendous progress made in the natural sciences during the past fifty years is not unrecognized, but these advances have been largely in material ways. Some honest investigation has been made. We have tried to find the laws of what the fathers called the spiritual realm by a study of mind and have tried to get the key to the mind by study of animal actions, only to be led to believe that man is not so much as we had supposed—just a behaving animal. Once in a while the unseen "breaks through" and makes us question. If some of the answers are so fantastic as not to appeal to most of us, simply rejecting that solution still leaves us with the problem unsolved.

The writer had an experience that is set forth in the following story. But first it may be well to look at some of the dramatis personae. For brevity's sake the writer will designate himself by the perpendicular pronoun. To describe oneself in all particulars is a dangerous undertaking if the description is to be wholly accurate, but it is undisputed that the party of the first part is past middle life, has had a liberal education, has been entrusted with some administrative tasks, but has chiefly delighted in being a pastor and is a member of Conference. His friends have said that he has a judicial temperament and therefore forms his judgments on evidence.

The party of the second part, whom we will call Smith because that is not his name, had a liberal education, was always a student, was of a very kindly disposition, and spent all his days as a pastor in the same Conference.

These two men were not chums. Their work, with the exception of two or three years, had been in widely separated portions of the Conference, so they seldom met except at the annual sessions. There were no known common interests except the ministry in general. More than half a hundred men in the Conference were as intimate with the writer as was Smith. This fact is emphasized in order to give force to the unsolved riddle. But to the story.

It was now much more than a year since I had seen Smith. I had not heard from him, and so far as I know his name had not been mentioned to me by any one. As I look back on the case I can find no reason why I should think of him. No known law of association of ideas can account for what happened. So slight was my acquaintance with him that I could not have told offhand what charge he was serving.

A rather strenuous day's work was done and the plans were made for the morrow. So many things were crowding forward that it seemed necessary to get up earlier than usual. Just how early was left indefinite, for, weary as I was, I thought an added hour's sleep in the morning would be welcome. But the call of work was insistent and, while the hour was left indefinite, it was still to be early. Usually when necessary to arise at any definite time it has been possible for me to fix on the hour and awake at that time, or within a very few minutes of the time, and that without the use of an alarm clock.

I dropped off to sleep soon after retiring and slept soundly all night and without waking. I seldom dream, even when perplexing problems are pressing, and have no recollection of dreaming during the night. Just at break of day, twilight, I woke up and got out of bed. No one was stirring in the house, no one had waked me, yet I had a queer feeling as if some one had waked me up.

As I started to dress, Smith came from my study through the door into the bedroom. Whether the door was closed or open as usual, I have no recollection. I recognized him immediately. His walk was as I have seen it many times. His hands were as I have seen him carry them. There seemed something a bit peculiar about his clothes, but just what it was I could not say. It was hazy. I thought they were dark-colored, and they did not look just like a suit—somewhat like a robe about the shoulders. It puzzled me a bit. The prominent scar on his face, the mark of an operation some years ago, was plainly seen, as was the cant of his head, and the clearing of his throat as he was accustomed to do as he addressed his friends was noticeable—especially the movement of his nose and upper lip. The unusual thing was the appearance of his face, and this held my attention since it was so strange, and I must have registered distinct surprise. It was badly swollen and seemed as though swollen in welts or ridges, which ran nearly up and down. His complexion was an ashen gray.

So surprised was I that during all the time I did not attempt to speak to him. He greeted me, but I have no idea what words he used. I had the impression that he was greeting me in a friendly spirit and was especially interested in me as he often was before, but just the words I do not know, probably never knew. It was a sort of indefinite something, but later it remained with me something as a benediction or as one feels at the close of worship when one has been really worshipping for oneself.

The visit was not long and he was gone. Whether back through the study door or elsewhere, or how he went, I did not know. He was just gone. I had an indefinite feeling at the time that he just vanished, something like a dissolving effect in the pictures.

When he had gone I tried to value the experience. I was not dreaming, for I was wide-awake as I was some two hours later when I ate breakfast, and I went about dressing as I had been doing before the visit. I thought the visit had a sort of double meaning. It was just a little as if I had, for some reason, thought of my friend and had pictured him as I knew him. But then there was the face as I had never seen it, and the experience seemed much more objective—it was outside of and independent of myself.

I went about my work as I had planned the night before, but could not get away from the experience. Had it been a dream, I should have noted its contents and dismissed it from my mind, but this was not so disposed of. An hour and a half later at the breakfast table I mentioned something of the visit to my wife and told her I did not see why I should be thinking of Smith—I had no reason to. But the event remained very vivid with me. Two or three days later the paper came to the house and a half-dozen lines told that Smith had died at the hospital. I had not even heard that he was ill, and the usual shock that comes when one of our number goes over the river was accompanied by the unexplainable something which had occurred a few days before, and all the events of that morning came back to me. Again I mentioned the strangeness of the coincidence of my seeing a dying man.

Ten days or more had passed when I was calling on Smith's superintendent. Some mention was made of who was to supply the pulpit left vacant by Smith's death, and I volunteered the commonplace statement, this time from the heart, that Smith was a good brother and I was sorry to hear of his going. Then for the first time I learned that he had passed through an experience unusual in these days. Remember he was a man of culture and without quirks in his nature, thoroughly devoted to his work as a good minister of Jesus Christ. His last two days on earth were spent in a sort of ecstasy. He saw his Lord come to his room, and with Him he held familiar converse as did the worthies of old. But what was more to the point to me in all the story was the statement that during those days he spent much of his time praying for his brother ministers in the Conference, supplicating for them by name.

Was it while he bore me by name to the throne of grace that he came to my home and blessed me? Is there not here a great unexplored region with countless resources for the church when it is all better understood? "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."

The writer would like to know if others have had similar experience with their Smith during the weeks since vacation or at any other recent time.—Zion's Herald.

GOING SLOW WITH GOD

God is never slow from His standpoint, but He is from ours, because impetuosity and doing things prematurely are universal human weaknesses. It may not only be the result of our fallen conditions, but one of the infirmities in our very nature as creatures to be in a hurry. When we begin to learn the ways of God we have so many things to unlearn that there are some lessons which God does not begin teaching us till after we have passed the initial stages, and one of these deeper lessons is that of moving very slowly with Himself. It is not indifference, nor lagging behind; it is just the opposite of a dull and slovenly spirit, for it is a disposition entirely wide awake and energetic to keep in the order of God's will.

God lives and moves in eternity, and every little detail in His working must be like Himself, and have in it the majesty and measured movement, as well as the accuracy and promptness of infinite wisdom. When we deal with God we are not dealing with impetuous, short-sighted creatures. It is a great thing to really come to the knowledge as to who God is, and how we are to behave with Him. There is no hurry in a Being who sees and knows everything from all eternity. True, God often acts instantaneously, but it is the instantaneousness of mature and boundless wisdom, and not the quickness of a creature's hurry. It is also true that we are to "run the race set before us," and "run in the way of God's commandments," but we are to run with all our faculties calmly collected, with thoughtful deliberation. Running with God is a slow walk with the creature. We are to let God do the swiftness and we do the slowness.

The Holy Spirit tells us to "be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath." That is, swift to take in from God, but slow to give out the opinions, the emotions of the creature. We can never walk with God until we learn to go slow, to take time to pray, to think twice before we speak once, to watch the pace of His guidance, and measure our steps accordingly. Rebekah and Jacob were in a hurry to get God's fore-ordained blessing from the lips of Isaac, and paid the penalty of twenty years' separation and sorrow. Peter lagged behind Christ at the trial before Pilate, but his very tardiness was the effect of his previous impetuosity in boasting of his fidelity. Had he gone slow in his avowals of heroism, and taken time to weigh his words, he would have gone faster, and closer to the cross. The very recollection as to who God is, would produce a thoughtful, slow, quiet movement in all our dealings with Him.

We miss a great many things from God by not going slow enough with Him. It must be a secret joy in God to give Himself forth to those who love and appreciate Him, but God must always act like Himself, and if we fail to move in harmony with His attributes, and get the things He wants to communicate in His own way, He cannot change His perfections to accommodate our whims, and even if He should undertake to hear and bless us without regard to time and fitness it would do us no good, for the very blessings of God, if not conferred in God's way, would be curses, like eating raw meat or green fruit. There are glimpses into God's perfections, insight into wonderful truths, quiet unfoldings of daily opportunities, gentle checks of the Holy Spirit upon our decisions or words, sweet and secret promptings to do certain things, the quiet solving of hard problems and mental articulations of special words of strength, which we have often missed because we took our ear from God's telephone a little too quickly, or ran past the angle of vision, or wasted time by asking a question, or got in a feverish state of anxiety, or attempted to take God's work into our own hands. There is no telling how much we have lost spiritually, mentally, and physically, by not going slow with God.

There is a time for everything in the universe to get ripe. All thoughts, words, prayers, actions, providences, opportunities, blessings, spiritual experiences, divine revelations, all avocations, all dispensations, whether in nature, grace, or glory, have a time in which they get ripe; and to go slow with God is the heavenly pace that gathers up all things at the time they are ripe. What can be greater than to see God, or to hear Him speak, and we miss both by not going slow.

Going slow with God is our greatest safety. It is dangerous to live with a thousand live wires around us, against which we may jostle at any time by not keeping calm and thoughtful in our movements. In factories of multiplied and complicated machinery a man must needs move cautiously, and especially when wheels, bands, electric motors, and sharp-cutting instruments are running with lightning speed, and a wrong step, or a careless movement of the hand, may cause instant death. In many respects, we are moving amid just such unseen and complicated machinery; and walking quietly and slowly with God is the only safe way to escape the swift flying bands and pulleys of mighty laws, as well as demoniac snares.

There are more religious delusions at the present day than since the fall of man, and every one of them could be traced to a rash, impetuous taking up with thoughts and things, without taking time to wait on God in humility and teachableness of spirit. Doctrines are formed on one text of Scripture not half understood, while a dozen plain texts to the contrary receive no attention. New, wild, and extravagant teachers are rushed after like a Klondike gold field. All sorts of pious fads, religious delusions and visionary theories are hastily swallowed down, because people do not keep humble enough to watch God and trace His slow and peaceful footsteps. It is not merely going slow that is our safety, but it is loving to go slow; it is to lovingly prefer the deep, quiet, peaceful river of God's life to the rushing, noisy, exciting and wild things which always characterize men's foolishness. The soul that has the itch of impatience in it will sooner or later champ the bit, break the traces, or run over a precipice. The very center of the soul must be calm and peaceful, so that it can prefer God's way and God's time of doing things. Did we ever have to repent for taking time to wait on God, and did we ever fail to repent for not taking time to work in His order?

We must needs go slow with God in order to keep in a reverent and worshipping spirit. This is the way saints have turned their lives into a beautiful continual worship of God, by going slow enough to mix God in with everything, and tie all the events of life fast to His throne; by referring all things to Him, and with the eye of thought looking up to Him to dictate their services and their steps.

Some people pray too fast to get any answer from God, like nervous children that rattle away at their parents so rapidly that their words are not intelligible. They must quiet down and talk slow enough to be understood, before their wants or fears can be relieved. One of the curses put on Adam was that of "sweat," which expresses the hurried, over-heated or excited state of the body; and the Lord told Ezekiel that His priests must not enter the holy sanctuary with "woolen garments on them, or anything that would cause them to sweat," because the God of eternal and unruffled peace wants us to worship Him with a calm, collected, reverent spirit, and not with the sweat of creature-hurry in our minds. How can we speak to God in a reverent way or look to Him with adoring love when we have run ourselves into a feverish perspiration and precipitation of thought? Whatever we do accurately must take time and collectedness of mind, and there is no accuracy in all the world like keeping company with God, and yet nothing so free from bondage or tediousness. By going slow with the Lord we accomplish more than by going with a rush, because what we do is done so much better and does not have to be undone. It is done in a better spirit, with deeper motives, and bears fruit far out in the future, when all mushroom performances have been dissipated forever.—G. D. W., in "Simple Testimony," The Central Bible Truth Depot, London, England.

AN OUTFLOW ESSENTIAL

A Christian not in use is subject to rust and corrosion. The river Jordan runs into both the Sea of Galilee and the Dead Sea. The difference in the seas is not in their reception, but in their giving out process. The Christian who receives good impressions without corresponding expressions is a Dead Sea Christian. Stagnant, stale, slothful, and wicked are descriptive words of such characters. We are responsible to God for the fullest development possible of our lives. Our highest capacity is God's standard for our efficiency.—P. F. Squyres.

A SPECIALIST ON THE DANCE

Dr. E. S. Sonners, eminent specialist in nervous disorders, of Chicago and Los Angeles, makes this terrific indictment of the modern dance:

"I attack the modern dance as a reversion toward savagery. As a medical man, I flatly charge that modern social dancing is fundamentally sinful and evil. I charge that dancing's charm is based entirely upon sex appeal. I charge that dancing is the most advanced and most insidious of the maneuvers preliminary to sex betrayal. It is nothing more or less than damnable, diabolical, animal, physical dissipation.

"A young girl enjoys the dance because she is drugged by suggestive music and emotional over-stimulation into a drunkenness, a fanaticism, a frenzy that takes her back nearer to the beast we are supposed to be evolving from.

"Do brother and sister dance like that? Father and mother? Mother and son? Why is the long married husband wearied soon of dancing with his wife? I tell you, the basic spell of the dance is the spell of illicit physical contact.

"A man who has learned what true love really is—something more than physical, does not willingly dance the modern dance with a woman he truly loves, nor watch her dance with others.

"Under what other shield can a man or a woman. A youth or maiden, so promiscuously fondle so many of the opposite sex in a single evening? Or a life time?

"We doctors know there are mysterious currents, affinities that seem almost chemical. I am no prig or prude, and so I tell you frankly it is not safe to subject even the strongest men and women to the subtle temptation of the dance. A trail of broken homes proves this.

"The physical stimulation of the dance with its fingerings of the lowest and most primitive emotions, drugs the intellect and the spirit."

Conference Begins

used on one occasion by John Wesley, though some are skeptical on that point, thinking that it was Bishop Asbury. Any way it is an interesting relic.

Afternoon the President read his report for the year. The reading occupied 55 minutes, but we saw no signs of weariness or restlessness.

At 3 o'clock came the election of officers. Dr. S. W. Taylor was re-elected on the first ballot, receiving nearly all the votes. Rev. C. W. Bates was unanimously elected Secretary, Dr. Geo. R. Brown, Treasurer; Rev. H. L. Isley, Statistician; Rev. J. L. Trolinger, Reporter. Ballots were taken for lay member of the Stationing Committee, resulting in the election of Brother H. A. Garrett. The Committee on Appeals was composed of E. L. Douglas, Ferree Ross, Dr. W. R. Goley, Rev. G. L. Curry, and Rev. L. W. Gerringer.

The Conference then enjoyed a rare musical treat given by the musical department of High Point College, under the direction of Prof. E. B. Stimson.

The night hour was taken up in the presentation of a delightful pageant, "The Quest of Youth," written by Mrs. Rev. H. W. Maier and Miss Whitley.

Dr. J. H. Straughn and Dr. F. W. Stephenson, representatives of the General Conference, arrived Wednesday afternoon. Drs. Broomfield and Haddaway are expected later.

Much more next week.

WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH THE CHURCH AND THE WORLD?

Too much form and not enough Holy Ghost power in church services. Too few sermons on repentance and hell. Too many sermons made up instead of prayed down. Too many revivals that do not revive. Too many worldly church members with adorning on the outside and not enough spiritual adorning on the inside. Too many people reading daily papers and magazines instead of the Bible. Too many homes at play instead of at prayer. Too many church members at the picture-show instead of prayer meeting. Too many automobiles running on Sunday instead of standing in front of churches. Too many wives running automobiles instead of running a home. Too many young women wearing out silk hose instead of dishrags. Too many young men running automobiles instead of agricultural machinery. Too many fathers seeking gold instead of God. Too many parents turning the reins loose and letting their children run away. Too many people trying to see how much they can get out of the world instead of how much they can put into it. Too much lax living, fads and styles. Too many women selling their modesty for attention from the opposite sex.

Too much familiarity among the sexes. Too many people trifling with conscience. Too many movies, dances, short dresses and training of children outside of the Holy Bible. Too many wanting to be served instead of wanting to serve. In fact there are not enough people who want to be like Christ. —The Methodist Advocate, Jackson, Tenn.

SIGNED WITH HIS BLOOD

Your pardon is purchased, signed and sealed by the Blood of Jesus Christ. All there is for you to do is to come the way God has provided. Repent of your sins and accept the offered mercy and pardon, for God has already paid for the ransom. Jesus Christ bought your pardon and paid for it with His own Blood.

Get on your knees and pray the publican's prayer, "God be merciful to me a sinner." God will hear your cry and break the powers of the enemy and set you free, and you will have this wonderful salvation in your soul. You will be a new creature in Christ Jesus. Old things will pass away, and, behold, all things will become new.

The moment you come and accept your pardon, joy unspeakable will flood your soul. We sing a song in our Mission:

"Signed with His Blood—What could He do?
Signed with His Blood, for me and for you.
At the end of the road you may plead, some day,
For the pardon He signed, and you threw away."

THE GLORIOUS GOSPEL

How complete is the Gospel! It is no half-system of salvation. See where it finds the sinner—blind and groping in darkness, guilty and condemned, and under malignant power. It opens his eyes, brings him into marvelous light, and recovers him out of the snare of the devil; he is justified, washed, and advanced to an inheritance among the sanctified. Talk of development! There is more development here than in this boastful nineteenth century. A slave of Satan, now becomes a child of God! . . . What a wonder! From what depths of degradation to what heights of glory!—Bishop H. N. McTyeire.

GOD NEVER GIVES UP

L. A. Banks tells us about a trip he took through valleys and canyons and across mountain ranges. Long years ago the virgin timber had been cut and after Nature had restored a great deal of the beauty and verdure, a fire broke out which again left the place a barren waste. A sad sight it must have been after the fire had done its disastrous work, with the ghastly blakened stumps of the trees disfiguring the landscape. But after a generation had passed the forest was reseeded, and the valleys and canyons were filled with verdure, while the mountain slopes were again clothed with beautiful green timber. God had brought forth a beautiful harvest on this disfigured spot.

What courage this should give to the discouraged ones who have been defeated by sin, and whose lives have been robbed of their beauty and usefulness.

Perchance some, who have been about to give up hope of renewing their spiritual life, which had become like this devastated forest, may see these lines and take heart again. Discouraged ones, remember, "God never gives up." He will again cause the barren places to be filled with verdure, perhaps more beautiful than in former days. You may again bring forth fruit to His glory and become a delightful land, if you will but yield your life in glad surrender to Him.—Christian Life Missionary.

HIS LAMP

His lamp am I,
To shine where He shall say;
And lamps are not for sunny rooms,
Nor for the light of day,
But for dark places on the earth,
Where shame and wrong and crime have birth,
Or for the murky twilight gray
Where wandering sheep have gone astray,
Or where the light grows dim
And souls are groping after Him.
And as sometimes a flame we find,
Clear—shining through the night
So bright we do not see the lamp,
But only see the light;
So may I shine—His life the flame—
That men may glorify His name!

"LORD OF THE POTS AND PANS"

"Lord of all pots and pans and things since I've no time to be A saint by doing lovely things in watching late with Thee,
Or dreaming in the twilight, or storming heaven's gates,
Make me a saint by getting meals or washing up the plates.

"Although I must have Martha's hands, I have a Mary mind;
And when I black the boots and shoes, thy sandals, Lord I find.

I think of how they trod the earth each time I scrub the floor;
Accept this meditation, Lord, I haven't time for more.

"Warm all the kitchen with thy love and warm it with thy peace,

Forgive me all my worrying and make all grumbling cease.
Thou who didst love to give men food, in room or by the sea,
Accept this service that I do—I do it unto Thee."

HENRY'S PRIZE

On their way home from school one afternoon Henry and three of his playmates stopped every now and then to make snowballs to throw at some spot on a tree or fence or telegraph pole. They made believe that whoever hit the mark would get a prize.

When they came to Granny White's house Henry noticed a star-shaped thing half-way between the two parlor windows of the little frame cottage.

"Look, boys!" he cried pointing to the spot. "Let's see who can hit that star!"

"Whee, that's easy!" said one of the other boys, as he picked up some snow.

"This time it's my first turn!" shouted Henry and threw with all his might. But he had aimed a little too far to one side and the snowball crashed right against the window-pane.

Frightened at what they had done, Henry and the other boys ran away as fast as they could till they were a long way from Granny White's house; then they stopped all out of breath.

"Let's throw snowballs against that barn!" called one of the boys, but Henry did not feel like throwing snowballs any more. He kept thinking of poor old Granny White and the broken glass. She lived alone, and he wondered how she was going to keep warm with a big hole in her window. "I don't want to play any more," he said to the other boys, "I'm going home!"

He walked away as fast as he could toward Granny White's house. But when he reached it he could not bear to look at the parlor window. He went to the back door and knocked. Granny opened it with a smile on her kind old face. "Well, well, if here isn't Henry!" she said. "Come right in and get warm!"

Henry wondered how she could be smiling when one of her windows had just been broken. He sat down near the kitchen stove and turned to Granny. "I broke your window, Granny. But I didn't mean to. I was trying to hit that star on the front of your house between the parlor windows, and I missed it and struck the glass. I'm awfully sorry!"

Granny White smiled a pleasanter smile than ever. "You didn't break the glass, Henry," she said. "The snow must have been soft, for it did not go through the pane."

Henry was an astonished little boy when he heard that the window wasn't broken after all, and he was glad, too. "That's why you are smiling," he said. "You are so glad the glass didn't break and let in all the cold air."

"It isn't that alone, I am happy that you were honest and manly enough so that you came back to tell me you did it, because you really thought you had broken the window. I never should have known who threw that snowball, because when I heard it hit the glass and hurried to the parlor window there wasn't a boy or girl in sight!"

When Henry noticed that it was getting dark outside and told Granny that he must be going home she gave him a big bagfull of cookies and said, "Here, Henry, take home these nice, fresh ginger cookies for your supper. I was just baking them when you threw that snowball."

As Henry ran home he was very happy to think that he hadn't broken good old Granny White's window after all. But he was still happier that he had gone back and told her who it was that had thrown the snowball. Then, suddenly, as he hugged the bag with the warm, spicy cookies he thought of something funny: he was the only one of the boys that afternoon to win a real prize and he hadn't hit the mark, either.—The Youth's Companion.

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING MIGS

It had been a perfect party. They all agreed upon that. Every one of the old crowd was there and Martie Lee had been a perfect hostess—she always was.

Her elder sister Anne was always so willing to help by playing the piano for their games and then there was Lil always thinking of something different for them to do to make things interesting. No party was complete without Lil. Everyone seemed to do whatever she suggested.

Often Migs had wished that she was popular and the life of the party like Lil but it was not of her that she was thinking this morning. She was thinking of Migs herself.

She lay in bed with her arms behind her head and looked critically within herself.

"I'll have to do something about it. I simply can't go on being the quiet little stick-in-the-mud I am. No one would have missed me one particle if I'd not been at the party. Why I doubt if anyone knows I was there?" As that thought occurred to her she sat up in bed and looked straight ahead as if seeing herself.

"I didn't do one single thing but take my place in the games, eat ice cream and cake and take a piece of candy each time it was offered. I'm always like that."

"Well, I'm going to begin right now and change. Now this new girl that Martie gave the party for is different. I'm glad she seemed to like me a little. I'm going to study her and be a copy cat. She was simply perfect. Even her name Catherine Dunstan."

She made a grimace as she thought of her own name. Migs! They had always called her Migs though she had as pretty a name as any one could want, Mildred Lone Gray. She could not recall when she had been known by anything except the three initials.

"I'll have to put a stop to that too. I'm going to be Mildred from now on. I'm going to be different." Then as if suiting the action to the words she kicked off the bed covers and rose from the bed.

For a few minutes she stood before her mirror looking at her hair. Thick tawny rumpled hair parted at the side where a slight cowlick made it necessary.

She pushed it impatiently aside. "Old straight stringy stuff. Why didn't I have wavy hair like Martie or lovely curls like Catherine. Well I will have."

She was rolling her hair on curlers as she stood thinking of the changes she intended to make.

"I'll save my money and have a permanent curl put in this straight old hair of mine and I'll get Mums to make my new dress with a three ruffle skirt and that same fluffy collar that Catherine had and I'm going to talk more and laugh more whether I can think of anything to say or not. So there."

The ringing of the telephone interrupted her line of thought for a few moments. Mrs. Lee had called to ask Migs if she would go to town and the library with Catherine.

Martie could not go this morning and Catherine did not know her way about alone.

"What luck that she thought of me," said Migs to her mother. "I'm just crazy about her, Mums. Want you to know her too and she is coming by for me about 11 o'clock. Oh, I do hope she is going to like me."

But her smile faded as she tried to select a dress for the day. She pushed each one aside with a negative headshake. Every one hung so prim and straight on its hanger in the closet.

"Such prim dresses," she thought. "Why an old maid in her seventies might wear any of them. That plain blue with the white collar, plain as plain can be. It won't do."

She went over them again and stood and considered the green linen tailored suit that mother liked. "No; too tailored. I want to be fluffy like Catherine if I'm going to interest her and have her like me and it's evident she could."

Her eyes danced with pleasure at the thought that she had been chosen to go shopping with the lovely new girl.

"I must make her like me." Then not the tailored green or plain blue would do. She had only one dress that was in the least what she called fluffy. She took the rosy pink frock from its hook and looked it over. It needed to be washed and pressed but she could do it if she hurried.

Catherine was not coming for three hours. Wouldn't it be wonderful if she could get this new girl for her real chum—and she would. She would do everything she could think of to try to please her.

"Wish I'd worn this last night instead of that plain tan thing," she said as she sponged the pink dress which was almost the exact shade of the one Catherine had worn last evening.

While the iron heated she gave a shine to her pretty buckled pumps and sewed a flower at the front of her plain little felt hat.

All the time she was practicing a conversation with her new friend and imagine Catherine being present while she took part in such bright chatter as no one ever had heard Migs take part in. She was seeing a new Migs.

"Why, Migs dear, I thought you had plenty of street dresses," said Mother when she came into the kitchen and found her ironing the over-damp dress dry.

"Yes Mother. That's the trouble—too many. This is the only thing I have that is the least bit dressy and I want to look my very best. I do so want her to like me and this is the sort of clothes she likes. Think of it Mums. Martie can't go with her and she chose me out of all the girls to take Martie's place and last night she seemed to like me. Came and sat by me during the contest. She is so pretty and full of fun and dresses so beautifully and just everything."

Mother's eyes looked lovingly, understandingly at Migs. "Doesn't seem unusual to me that she should have chosen you to go to town with her," were the words that almost tripped from Mum's lips but she said nothing. She had been a girl not so very long ago and had never quite grown up enough to forget the joy of a new friendship with a much admired girl.

Migs did not notice her lack of a reply for she was telling Mums about her plans.

"I've decided Mums that I don't want my new dress tailored like the one we saw in the show window. I want it made like Catherine's. It has a three ruffle skirt and a lacy collar and cuffs and I'm going to save my allowance and get my hair curled. You should see hers; it's naturally curly and well, you'll see her soon and if I don't hurry she will be here before I'm dressed.

She hurried from the kitchen with her freshly ironed garments and came down into the hall fifteen minutes later looking very different.

Her hair seemed to spring away from her head in waves and her dress billowed about her. She was ready.

And not a moment too soon for there was a patter of feet upon the porch and a moment later Catherine stood before her.

"Oh," she said. Then she looked again at Migs then at the house number. "I must have made a mistake. I was looking for Migs Gray. Does she live here? Are you her sister?"

Migs held the door open and had begun to laugh. "This is just too perfect. You didn't even know me?"

Catherine was looking embarrassed. "I hope you'll pardon me if I made a mistake. You see I met so many girls last night I suppose I could have remembered Mig's sister."

"No, for she hasn't a sister. I'm Mildred Ione Gray and the girls call me Migs but I decided I'm going to be different in the future. I'm going to be like the others you know and not such a little stick-in-the-corner. So I've begun to make the change and I hope you'll like me better—"

"But why? I liked you so much more the other way I noticed you the minute you came in and told Aunty you were the sort of girl I had been looking for. I liked everything about you and when I talked to you and found you like to read and that you liked the same sort of books I do and all that I was delighted. Aunty and Martie said every one liked you and I said I wanted to know you better right away that I was afraid you were too good to be true and tried to be like other girls."

"But I did all this for you. I was so crazy to have you keep on liking me so I tried to be like other girls."

Catherine's happy laugh rang out. "Then you really are Mildred Ione Gray and it was Migs I wanted? Please be Migs won't you?"

Mildred Ione asked Catherine to wait a few moments and ran to her room. She was laughing too as she smoothed the wave out of her hair with a damp brush and put on her tailored blue.

She was smiling as she appeared before Catherine later ready to walk to town. Catherine was smiling too as she said: "Please don't ever try to be anyone but Migs. I know I'm going to like you a lot and if you will be my friend it's going to be great. Mildred Ione Gray may be a very nice girl too but it's Migs that I lived first."—Leader.

THE INFLUENCE OF EXAMPLE

An atheist who spent a few days with the saintly Fenelon said: "If I stay here much longer, I shall become a Christian in spite of myself." Fenelon had used no word of solicitation. It was but the quiet, convincing argument of a holy life, a consistent walk and conversation.

"I tried to be a skeptic when I was a young man," said Cecil, "but my mother's life was too much for me."

"My brethren," said an old African preacher, a good example is the tallest kind of preaching." And he was right! "There is an energy of moral suasion in a good man's life," said Dr. Chalmers, "passing the highest efforts of the orator's genius. The seen beauty of holiness speaks more eloquently of God and duty than the tongues of men and angels.—Selected.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

BY ELIZABETH HANNER

President C. E. Society, High Point College

NOV. 10: "UPROOTING THE CAUSES OF WAR"

Acts 17:24-31; Jas. 3:13-18; 4:1-3.

Daily Readings

Monday—Selfishness. Gen. 13:7-11.

Tuesday—Ambition. Gen. 11:4-9.

Wednesday—Greed. Judges 6:1-6.

Thursday—Lies. Eph. 4:25.

Friday—Pride. Dan. 4:28-37.

Saturday—Conquest. II Kings 18:28-37.

Suggestions to the Leader

For this meeting be sure to have a good poster in order that people will be attracted to come to the meetings. Invite people personally to be present. Try the idea of a visiting speaker again. This time try to get some soldier, business man, or politician.

If you want to try a debate, this is an exceptionally good time. You might use the query, Resolved, That all nations desire peace. Have someone who reads well recite the poetry from "Locksley Hall."

Any of the following hymns are good: "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations," "Work, for the Night Is Coming," "Faith of Our Fathers," and "The Son of God Goes Forth for Peace."

The Leader's Talk

The world, generally, is tired of war. We have seen nations sapped of their energy and the youth of the land sapped of their vitality. There go up and down the land daily men wounded for life by war. Hospitals have been filled.

At one time war was made much of all through the land. This is giving way to other things which are constructive rather than destructive. War is too expensive and also too futile.

We know that there is a genuine desire for peace. All over the country we hear the cry for peace. People everywhere are discussing it. This is a hopeful sign, for people are more concerned about this question than ever before. The causes MUST be eliminated.

Christian Endeavor can be, if it will, a unifying factor for world peace, because Christian Endeavor is a world-wide institution. We can help Christian Endeavor do this. Will we?

When Christian Endeavor in this country took as its slogan, "A saloonless nation before 1920," people laughed. Now Christian Endeavor has incorporated "world peace" in its three-fold Crusade with Christ campaign.

d. Taking a stand against war.

e. Interest in missions.

f. Prayer.

"More things are wrought by prayer
Than this world dreams of."

IV. The Christian in regard to war.

To Be Answered

1. Are wars ever justifiable? When and why?

2. How do ignorance and hate help to cause war?

3. What does the World Court hope to do?

4. Discuss military training in high schools and colleges. Justify your opinion.

5. To what extent do you think a nation should be prepared for war?

6. How may Christian Endeavor aid in promoting world peace?

Prose and Poetry

If my soldiers should really think, not one of them would remain in the ranks.—Alfred the Great.

My first wish is to see this plague of mankind, war, banished from the earth.—George Washington.

I doubt if war ever really settled anything. It unsettles everything. The more I study the world, the more I am convinced of the inability of brute force to create anything durable.—Napoleon.

It would appear that the lessons of the last six years should be enough to convince everybody of the danger of nations striding up and down the earth armed to the teeth.—General Pershing.

For I dipped into the future, as far as human eye could see,

Saw the vision of the world, and all the wonders that would be;

Saw the heavens fill with commerce, argosies with magic sails,

Pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales;

Heard the heaven fill with shouting, and there rained a ghastly dew

From the nations' airy navies grappling in the central blue;

Far along the world-wide whisper of the south wind rushing warm,

With the standards of the peoples plunging through the thunder-storm;

Till the war-drums throbbled no longer, and the battle-flags were furled

In the Parliament of Man, the Federation of the World.

Then the common sense of most shall hold a fretful realm in awe,

And the kindly earth shall slumber, lapped in universal law.

—Alfred Lord Tennyson, in "Locksley Hall."

RED SEAL LYE AS A BEVERAGE

A college president says that recently he came into contact with a man who acknowledged himself to be a moonshiner and bootlegger.

"Now, tell me the truth," said the college man. "Is there as much liquor being used in this country as there used to be?"

"No," replied the bootlegger, "not nearly so much and it is getting less all the time."

The college president wanted to know why.

"There are two reasons," said the bootlegger.

"First, they are hemming us in more closely all the time. Second, people are getting sick and tired of trying to drink moonshine stuff. I know moonshiners who order Red Seal Lye in five gallon lots and who use methods of quickly heating the mash which cannot be described. Anyone who tells you that there is as much liquor used in this country as before prohibition or as much as was used a year ago doesn't know what he's talking about."

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

South Lexington Church.—The last quarterly conference met with the people of Mt. Carmel church. Rev. N. G. Bethea presided over the meeting. The meeting was largely attended and was very interesting. The reports of both pastor and people were good. There was a unanimous vote for the return of our present pastor. We as a church and as a people are greatly pleased with the work he has done. We feel that his work has been a success. As we close this Conference year, may we be inspired and get a vision of greater and more work we can do for the Master.

The play given by the Ladies' Aid Society of our church proved to be a very good success. We are always glad to see the work of Christ and the church advancing.

Our Sunday school is moving on nicely. Officers were elected for next year. The officers were elected as follows: Sunday school superintendent, H. C. Koontz; assistant superintendent, W. A. Snyder; church reporter, Lena Hedrick.

May we all do more for Christ this coming year than in the past. Pray for us that we may do what God would have us do.

REPORTER.

Littleton Circuit, Hawkins Chapel.—The second Sunday in October the pastor, Rev. I. C. Smith, preached his last sermon of the Conference year. It was an enjoyable service. The Lord's Supper was served; glad to see as many still remember Jesus.

The pastor had a crowd invited to his home October 30 in honor of Hawkins Chapel and Corinth Christian Endeavor meeting. The guests were met at the door by ghosts. A color scheme of yellow and black was effectively carried out for decoration, and the black cat was not missing. Halloween games were attractively carried out and enjoyed by old and young. Later on the couples were called to the dining room and refreshments were served. The table was beautifully decorated. At the close they all sang "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," the pastor led in prayer. I'm quite sure they'll never know how much we enjoyed the occasion.

We had a splendid program the third Sunday. The leaders were Misses Erma Hawkins and Susie Hawkins.

We also can surely say we enjoyed the prayer service the third Sunday. The class leader asked Mr. E. B. Pair to lead it, and he seemed to have the attention of every one present.

REPORTER.

Midway.—Our Conference year has drawn to a close. Bro. Hutton preached his last time this year at Midway Sunday night. We hope to have Bro. Hutton with us another year; we feel there has been much good accomplished during the past year.

The election of church officers and Sunday school superintendent was held immediately after service Sunday night; also we finished paying our pastor's salary, which we are all glad to report.

Our faithful superintendent, Mrs. Palmer, was re-elected and we hope to continue to enlarge and better our Sunday school. We will be glad to welcome any new members to our Sunday school.

One of our Sunday school teachers got married right recently—Miss Louise Pinnix and Mr. Everette Walters. We wish them a long and happy life. They are living in Greensboro, but we hope they will continue coming to our church.

Midway Thimble Club met last Thursday with Mrs. John Suits, and will meet next Thursday with Mrs. J. C. Watkins. We hope all the club members will be present as we are doing some sewing for the orphan children, and we hope to finish it Thursday.

The members and friends "pounded" Bro. Hutton Sunday night; after he went into the church, the running-boards of his car were loaded down with good things to eat. It was quite a surprise for Bro. Hutton. He hardly recognized his car when he saw it so loaded down. It looked just like a tourist car.

We ask the prayers of all the Herald readers that we may do more for our Lord in the coming year than we have in the past.

STELLA YORK, Reporter.

Clark's Chapel, Weaverville.—Our Sunday school is still gaining ground. Both Sunday school and church were well attended yesterday, as it closed our last service for this Conference year.

Mr. Joyner brought us a splendid message, inspiring and good in thought. We thank him for his faithful efforts in church and Sunday school; and we also want always to bear in mind the helpful inspiration his wife gave to us while in our midst. We wish for them great future success.

At the close of the service church officers were elected as follows for the ensuing year:

Class leader, Mr. Hensley.
Superintendent, Mr. Walter Cheek.
Trustees: Mr. Joe Roberts, Mr. Robert Cole, Mr. A. F. Edmonds, Miss Setlla Cheek, Mr. Walter Cheek.

Stewards: Mrs. Austin Mackey, Mr. Fulton Roberts, Mr. Earl Garrison, Mrs. Verona Brittain, Miss Lula Cole, Mrs. Walter Cheek.
Secretary: James Cheek.

We are still having a mid-week prayer meeting, inspiring and good. We truly hope more can attend and that as winter comes on it will still be well attended.

We are testing out a new organ which we believe will give satisfaction and be a great deal of help.

Special efforts are being made to pay in full, for it is the end of the appointed time.

M. L. CHEEK, Reporter.

Why, not Circuit.—As the year is drawing to a close, and we have not said very much through the paper I trust I may find space to make a few closing remarks: We have had a fairly good year on Why-Not, but not what it should have been. We have some as loyal people on this work as you will find any where, but the masses are too much in league with the world to be soul winners. Therefore the kingdom is suffering today throughout our land because of that. Joshua failed to take Ai because one man had sinned. Oh, that all our members would serve God with their whole heart, then we would soon bring the world to Jesus Christ.

The workers on the entire charge seem to be harmonious, and the Sunday School at each church has been good through the year. Our special meeting has been very helpful to each church and we have taken in 25 members on confession of faith, some have joined by certificate. But the thing that grieves our hearts, there are so many we have not been able to bring to Christ.

When this goes to press I suppose we will be in conference, summing up the year's work, and planning the work for the coming year. The fourth quarterly conference instructed for the return of their present pastor. But we are praying that the will of the Master may be done in all of the assignments.

Brother Jefferson Auman, of Fair Grove Church, made Mrs. Trogden a present of a nice cedar chest of his own make. A beautiful thing, for which she was very thankful indeed.

We might say many more things but perhaps space will not permit at this time.

May the Dear Lord keep all his flock from harm while all their pastors are at conference.

JOEL B. TROGDEN.

Davidson.—Our last quarterly conference held. Reports were fair and the spirit of conference was fine.

The present incumbent was urged to return another year; this was emphasized by every member of conference climbing to his feet. Chapel Hill has paid pastor in full and over paid A. C. B.

Liberty has paid pastor's salary in full. Others will. Brother Pearly Walker said that he was a charter member of the church and had never seen a pastor leave the church at last appointment without his salary in full, and said he hoped this rule would be followed as long as he lived—fine.

Lost the nice present given by Brother Laneir. The finder will please return hoping for a reward.

W. D. REED.

State Street, Lexington.—This has been a good year with us here and while finances have been close all the year, our folks have gone forward with their work and there have been some advances made.

Our meeting recently held was well attended and there were 17 accessions as a result.

We are expecting all claims to be paid in full. Budgets have been paid some time and pastor's salary is in hand. The biggest draw back here is the big debt we have and that while the people are working at it well, it is a thing that keeps them from feeling as happy over their work as they would otherwise. We are only marking time on the debt now, looking for a better day.

Our reporter here keeps things reported so well that there is not much left for the pastor to say. But this must be said, there are many things given that remind us that we are thought of in more ways than salary. Since our last writing the following friends and members have sent us in things that have helped us in more ways than one: Mrs. F. J. Cox, Mrs. H. C. Rogers, Mrs. Kate Workman, Mrs. Yountz, Mrs. Ernest Walser, Miss Mattie Avent, Mrs. Ben Lee, Mrs. J. F. Burkheart, Mrs. J. B. Hayworth, Mrs. A. H. Evans, Rev. C. G. Isley and mother, Mrs. Finch, Miss Cora Totten, Miss Sallie Taylor, C. L. Koontz, J. A. Walser, Mrs. Grover Myers, Mrs. Flora Dale. We thank you, good people.

In our revival work this year at numbers of places we were given many things outside of the usual purse made up for such work and I would like to give the names of the donors but there were so many that put things in the car and I failed to get them all so will not attempt to call names, but we appreciated these remembrances much and the folks at home especially, for after being accustomed to such things as country people have to eat and then be shut off from it for five years, it makes the heart glad to get such things again. All the way from Halifax hams (from the real porker) to several big "Georgia hams" (the melon). Thank you, friends.

For all the kindnesses from every one we are grateful and we are praying that the church that we all love may go forward with greater zeal the coming year and that our annual conference may be marked as one highly spiritual in all its deliberations.

Sincerely,

N. G. BETHEA.

Flat Rock, Vance.—Bro. O'Brian continues to give us god's promises, each one better than the last. At his last appointment he used the text, "Let us pass over unto the other side," drawing splendid lessons from the storms we encounter in the crossing and the necessity of having Jesus with us; Of our going the limit of our own strength in combating the storms on life's sea. Also of the duties or rewards on the other side.

The fourth quarterly conference voted for Rev. Mr. O'Brian's return to our charge, and we certainly hope Annual Conference will send him back to us. His salary was paid at Flat Rock, but we are still some behind on budgets.

Our Sunday school is about as usual. Some are being kept away on account of illness in their homes. Seems every class has more regular attendance than Adult Bible class. The grown people should set the example.

The Woman's Auxiliary holds its monthly meetings, but interest and attendance are not near what we would like to see. They held their thank-offering service the first Sunday evening in October. A good program had been arranged with several speakers from outside our own church. Much credit for the success of the service is due the following: Rev. H. F. Fogleman, for his splendid address on the missionary work; Miss Frances Paschall, who rendered very touchingly a pantomime of "Abide With Me;" Miss Kathleen Paschall presided at the piano. To all, the writer feels grateful. The offering was $12.61. The Auxiliary treasurer has sent in $18 to the Branch treasurer, and we hope to send a little more before Conference.

The Ladies' Aid held its regular monthly meeting yesterday, and voted to buy a canvass cover for the piano and a small heater for each of the Sunday school rooms. They also discussed the purchasing of chairs for classrooms.

The Missionary Rally for this district was held at Flat Rock Friday, October 25. It was a good day, despite the cold reception the people received owing to the fact the heater had not been put up. At noon intermission the three pastors in our district—Hunter, Fogleman, O'Brian—proceeded to put up the stove. It was very humiliating to our members present that they should have to do it; but we are most grateful to them. Rev. W. C. Cumming was the afternoon speaker and every one enjoyed his address. He is a great teacher of Bible truths.

We regret to note the continued illness of Mr. S. H. Satterwhite, one of our most able and oldest members. He suffered a slight stroke of paralysis about four weeks ago and for last week has not been near so well. Much sympathy is extended the family. Miss Sallie Hunter Satterwhite, of Richmond, Va., is home for a brief visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Satterwhite, and to be near the bedside of her grandfather.

REPORTER.

West Forsyth.—Hear it? Hear it? Perhaps some of you are too far away to hear that harmonious sound going 'round, and round, entering every church and home on West Forsyth circuit. Well, now, I will explain to you. It's this: We are to have Rev. C. B. Way come back to us. None of you need try to get him; tell you in time. Bro. Way's work is very satisfactory and we must have him and his dear family come, or rather, stay with us. We are hoping and praying for a good Conference this year.

Mr. and Mrs. William W. Doub celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Saturday, September 2. The day was ideal. Two hundred and fifty persons were present. Relatives and friends from far and near composed the happy throng. A table 70 feet long had been built on the spacious lawn, and thereon was spread a bountiful feast of good things to eat. In the center of the table the large wedding cake decorated in yellow and white, and resting upon a mat of golden chrysanthemums was appropriate and beautiful. A short religious service was held just before the dinner by Dr. Pfohl, Rev. W. F. Grabs and Rev. Mr. Keiver. The lovely home was gracefully decorated with chrysanthemums and pots of autumn leaves placed here and there. Present was another happy couple whose golden wedding many of us attended almost one year ago—that of Mr. and Mrs. Junius Anderson, of Rural Hall, N. C. Every one was happy, but Mr. and Mrs. Doub seemed indeed as happy as upon their first wedding day.

The death of Mrs. Edwin Faircloth occurred on last Friday morning at her home. Her body was tenderly laid to rest Sunday morning in the cemetery at Pleasant Hill Methodist Protestant church, after a funeral in the church overflowing with sympathizing relatives and friends. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. Truly we can say a good woman has gone home.

And now for fear our efficient reporter from Pleasant Hill may think I am intruding I will just sign myself

A MEMBER.

Shiloh.—Our pastor, Rev. D. I. Garner, filled his last appointment with us for this year the fourth Sunday afternoon with a very good size congregation. After preaching, officers for the church were elected and the church book was revised. The following officers were elected: Trustees, E. E. Jordan, Eli Garrett, W. H. Garrett, J. F. Brown, C. U. Burrows; stewards, C. C. Hemphill, G. R. Hemphill, G. L. Whitaker, J. S. Pickett, J. A. Crowson; general interest stewards, W. C.

Kime, Lizzie Kime, A. L. Kime, Grace Garrett, Mae York, Gladys Pickett, George Pickett, Clarice Whitaker, Floyd Garrett; class leaders, Mrs. A. L. Kime and W. P. Pickett; organist, Gladys Pickett and Floyd Garrett; Sunday school superintendent, C. C. Hemphill; reporter, Mae York.

Although this year seemed short, we feel that much good has been accomplished. Twenty-two members were added to the church, and a Junior Christian Endeavor Society was organized through which much good is being done for the young people.

This year has been one for very good attendance both for Sunday school and church services. We are striving to make the coming conference year a more successful one than the past.

REPORTER.

Dulins, Mocksville Charge.—Yesterday was the closing service of this Conference year. We had a fairly good congregation in spite of the continuous downpour of rain. We have some regrets as we are considerably behind financially and will probably lose our faithful pastor, Rev. J. W. Braxton.

The officers were installed.

Our pastor has closed a successful year in spiritual things. One of the greatest things he has done, he has given the young people inspiration to give the world some service and really make something of themselves, and to set their goal on higher things and let some unworthy things go. We are thankful that we received a man with willingness and ability to lead us to higher and nobler things.

LEONA HENDRIX, Reporter.

Albemarle.—The goal for which our Sunday school has been striving was reached on Sunday, October 27th, when the attendance went over the 200 mark. Our superintendent, Mr. R. L. Leonard, was beaming with pride, as he has been urging the Sunday school to attain this mark before Conference. We are proud of the officers of our school, and we feel that without their fine enthusiasm we could never have accomplished what we have.

On Sunday night seven babies were baptized, children of the following: C. E. Fowler, two, Clyde Thomas, two, D. J. Hatley, one, B. C. Burleyson, one, and Rev. J. R. Anderson, one.

At the morning service on last Sunday, seven new members joined the church. They were: Miss Lois Couie, Mrs. Gertie Lipe, and her three children, Helen, Herbert and Mabel, Mrs. Clyde Thomas, Spence Hatley and Chalmers Russell. This makes a total of 54 members added to the church this year. We feel that this is a fine record, and we owe not a little of our success in this line to the untiring efforts of our pastor.

Our hearts were made sad on Tuesday, October 29th, when it was learned that A. S. Burleson had died suddenly in Charlotte. He had been sick the previous week, but had improved to the extent that he had returned to his work with the H. & L. Motor Express on Monday. He was riding on the express truck, in company with Fred Pennington and his son, Ira, when he suddenly threw up his hands and his head fell backward. Before he could utter a word he had succumbed, supposedly from a heart attack.

The funeral was held Thursday morning at the Methodist Protestant church, of which he was a member, and was conducted by his pastor, Rev. Mr. Anderson, assisted by Rev. Mr. Banks of the M. E. Church, and Rev. Mr. Bower of the Baptist. The vast crowd which attended, and the many beautiful floral offerings attested to the love and affection in which he was held by those who knew him best.

The many deeds of kindness and services which he rendered, especially to those who were sick around him, will never be forgotten. He was never happier than when he was waiting on some sick one.

He leaves to mourn his going a wife and three boys, two by his first wife, who died about five years ago, and one by his present wife; also, his mother and father, four sisters and three brothers.

May the Heavenly Father comfort those who are broken-hearted, and may this be just one more link in the chain that binds us to God and heaven.

MRS. JOHN U. WHITLOCK, Reporter.

Rehoboth, Granville Circuit.—This being the first Sunday, Rev. H. F. Fogleman gave us a splendid sermon. I heard several say: "What a good sermon."

Church officers were elected last third Sunday. All officers were re-elected but one.

The Ladies' Auxiliary met last at Mrs. Cawthorn's. A very large attendance and an interesting program rendered. A bountiful waiter of fruit was served by the hostess, which all enjoyed. Next meeting will be at Mrs. Will Cheatham's in November.

Our societies, we trust, may continue in interest and activity. Credit is due our pastor, Mr. Fogleman. As church members we appreciate the efforts he has put forth to make this work count. The young people of the entire circuit under the influence of his prayers and encouragement are pressing onward towards the goal, which is Christ Jesus.

Mr. Fogleman has been very faithful to his work, and we are glad to have had him for our pastor for the past three years. There have been many improvements during the time. We feel ashamed when we think what little we have done to help him in this work, but if he is sent back to us we will try to be more loyal.

REPORTER.

Mount Carmel, South Lexington Charge.—

This brings us to the close of one of the most successful years at Mt. Carmel. Our Sunday school is improving and more interest is being shown in the work. More people are seeing the need and gladness of prayer; they are letting each prayer make its due impression on their own hearts.

Sunday, October 20, Rev. Wayne Curtis preached an equally interesting and instructive sermon to Mt. Carmel people.

Rev. C. G. Isley filled his regular appointment Sunday, November 3. He preached a very helpful and inspiring sermon. This was the last appointment for this year.

During this year seventeen new members united with the church.

The C. E. Society is making much progress. Weekly meetings are being held.

The fourth quarterly conference was held Tuesday night, October 29. Many business matters were discussed. The pastor's salary was increased for the coming year.

The members of the Missionary Society have their thoughts and work at a high point of interest. Since we organized a short while back new members have joined us. We wish to thank them heartily for their names and for the spirit in which they gave them. May the faithful meetings give each member a new appreciation of the work. We urge that all people join and attend missionary societies, for Christ commands missions. If we were to attend meetings it would add to our obedience and interest, for no one can be interested in what they do not understand.

Sometimes we become discouraged, but may we remember there is always someone whom we can trust. Those who are nearest and dearest to us, those whom we trust with our happiness and our good name may lose faith in us, but it must be remembered that our Savior still cares. He is always willing and ready to help us.

BEAUTUS WAITMAN, Reporter.

Mizpah, Haw River Charge.—We have made no report in quite awhile, yet we have been very busy.

Our pastor, Rev. J. L. Trollinger, has filled all appointments. His sermons are all good and well delivered.

The church and Sunday School officers have been elected for the new conference year. Today a very impressive installation service was held. Our pastor explained fully the duties of the officers also the duties of the members, who are not officers.

Our delegate from Haw River Charge has been instructed to bring Rev. J. L. Trollinger back. We paid the pastor's salary in full and hope the budget will be paid in full before Rev. J. L. Trollinger goes to conference.

The C. E. Society elected new officers last Sunday night. The outlook of this society is very gratifying.

MRS. FRED E. JONES, Reporter.

High Point.—The Bazaar, chicken dinner, and turkey supper under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary on last Thursday, October 31, was a decided success. Approximately fifty dinners and 200 suppers, which were well-cooked and delicious, were served, and a large number of beautiful and useful articles of embroidery, crochet, and fancy work were sold in the bazaar—also, home-made candy, canned fruits, flowers, plants, and various other articles. The women were much pleased with the results of their labor, and the sum of $291.00 was realized after the deduction of all expenses. After the sale of the left-overs near Christmas time, this amount will be increased considerably, and will net more than $300.00. The Auxiliary has raised about $1,925 since the merger April 1. The eight adult circles, one Home circle, and the Junior Minion circle composed of 30 active children and 20 honorary members, are working together loyally and harmoniously. There are 177 active, working members in the eight circles of the Auxiliary. No group of women ever had a more loyal, tactful, and efficient leader than Mrs. S. S. Coe, our president, to her belongs much credit for our success.

The fourth and final quarterly conference for the year was held Monday evening, following a delightful Christian Endeavor supper. Rev. R. I. Farmer made a splendid report as pastor, giving many interesting statistics. The membership now numbers 719, a net gain of 21. Rev. E. Lester Ballard also gave an excellent report of his work in the Junior church, and other activities.

The Sunday School, Christian Endeavor Society, Stewards, Woman's Auxiliary and Treasurer Rankin made splendid reports of the work accomplished during the year. A most interesting feature of the proceedings was the unanimous vote to ask for the return of both Rev. R. I. Farmer and his valued assistant, Rev. E. Lester Ballard, and their salaries will be the same as last year.

M. E. L. Douglas is delegate to the Annual Conference, and Mr. L. R. Johnston, alternate. A large number of our people plan to attend the sessions at different times, driving back and forth.

A new plan of holding Church Night or Fellowship Night on Wednesday evening was discussed in the quarterly conference. A committee, previously appointed, reported through Mr. Richard H. Shaw, and presented some resolutions. The idea is to meet about 6:30 o'clock for supper, which will be followed by a short period of devotions, after which the various organizations of the church will hold their meetings. This plan has proved very satisfactory in many churches and localities. No definite step was decided, but every member is urged to consider it thoughtfully.

Draper.—Our last quarterly conference for the year has been held and everything went on nicely. Mr. W. M. Keaton and Rev. W. T. Totten will start to conference this week. Rev. Totten preached his farewell sermon last Sunday. Many were present for Sunday School and preaching. We hope Mr. Totten will be with us another year, everybody loves him and likes his preaching.

Sunday School starts at 9:45 and preaching service, 11:00 o'clock.

REPORTER.

St. Paul, Greensboro.—Since our last report we have held our Rally Day service, had good attendance and the children were well trained, and performed their parts well. Many thanks to Mrs. Brittain and Miss Flossie Jones for training the children so well. We were glad to have Rev. Brittain of the M. E. Conference come down and preach for us on Sunday, while he was attending the M. E. conference at High Point. He is a brother of Rev. N. Brittain, our pastor.

Our Ladies' Aid held their last meeting with Mrs. W. C. McCollum with about 25 present and four new members taken in. After the business meeting was over we were invited to the dining room, where ice cream and cake were served. Our next meeting will be held with Mrs. C. E. Wilson. We are planning to have a Thanksgiving program for this meeting, and hope all our members will be present.

The fourth quarterly conference was held October 25. Sorry Dr. Taylor could not be with us at this meeting as we expected, but he was away, but we were glad to have him meet with us last Thursday night to elect new officers for the new conference year. Mr. C. E. Wilson, our superintendent, asked to resign. We hate to give him up; he has been a faithful superintendent. Mr. S. H. May was elected for our new superintendent. Although he is not new for he served us twelve years once before. Mr. Rob Yates was elected assistant superintendent. Our Sunday School is moving along nicely; there were 144 present and over $9 collected Sunday.

We are expecting our pastor back for another year. He has served us three years, this will be his fourth year.

A good many of our members have promised to help Calvary Church take care of some of the preachers and delegates for conference, although some our members are still on the sick list.

MRS. J. S. WADE, Reporter.

Tabernacle, Tabernacle Charge.—Work here is moving along nicely.; Officers for the coming year have been elected and installed.

Brother Cecil M. Fields will be our Sunday School superintendent for another year. He has served us faithfully for the past year.

The Christian Endeavor Society meets every Sunday afternoon, at the church, with Miss Flossie Sizemore as president. This society is awake and doing things. After giving a lawn party during the summer and a pie sale Saturday evening they have about $40 in the treasury.

Our Woman's Auxiliary, with Miss Lelia Kirkman president, is divided into four circles and doing good work. We believe, more interest is shown in mission work than before our societies merged.

The Harvest Home week was observed. We have also sent money to Children's Home to refurbish Tabernacle room.

Since last report we have lost one of our older members by death, Brother Enos Smith.

We were glad to have Brother Will Haner and wife, of Julian, worship with us Sunday.

Miss Erma Suits, of High Point, a daughter of Rev. Edward Suits, is teacher of the first grades in our school here. We are glad indeed to have Miss Suits among us.

Pastor H. L. Isley filled the last appointment for this conference year Sunday morning. Brother Isley has served us well during the past two years and we hope to have him return to us for another year.

We are glad to have conference meet so near us this year. Quite a number of our members will attend.

REPORTER.

CHRISTMAS FOR PINE RIDGE

We are very glad to know that we have friends who want to help us in some special way at Christmas time. Some of them have already asked, "What do you want?"

First, let us say that we can buy the needed things at less than wholesale rates, as more and more we are being favored by manufacturers who are glad to sell us direct. So, it seems that cash donations should be mentioned first. We have a "Special Fund" into which we put all money sent direct to us, and it is used for the purchase of little extra things that are not really included in our budget allowance. Of course, we make a report of all expenditures and receipts at the end of the year to our Mission Board.

However, if it is preferable to send other gifts, we would suggest toilet articles such as tooth brushes and paste, soap, towels, combs also medicine generally used as home remedies, stationery of all kinds, gloves, stockings, handkerchiefs, etc. These will be distributed at the time we have the treats around the Christmas holiday.

We need a good new sewing machine. We can buy one for $42.50.

It would be wonderful help if we might have a small moving picture equipment.

We had very little fruit of any kind in our neighborhood this year, so we could make good use of apples and other fruits either fresh or in cans. We can also use staple groceries of any kind.

We have a constant use for gray or tan cutting flannel blankets for single beds.

Demand for second-hand clothing is increasing. When we find cases of real need we give them clothing without charge, but the greater part is sold in our store at a very low price and thus the school and the people both are benefitted. Children's clothing is most needed.

How to Ship

Freight and express shipments should be sent to Slade, Kentucky, but it is more convenient to us if you send them by parcel post direct to Pine Ridge, Wolfe County, Ky. Please be sure to mark shippers name on all packages sent, so we may make acknowledgment.

With grateful hearts for so many helpful friends.

ONE OF THE "SPECIAL DAYS" AND ITS SIGNIFICANCE

THANKSGIVING is one of the "special days" which, during recent years, comes to North Carolinians freighted with the spirit of goodwill, of cheerfulness, of happy greetings fragrant with friendship that means service where service may be needed. If we would enter into and enjoy the real spirit of Thanksgiving we must keep our minds and our hearts fixed upon the Star of Bethlehem's manger from which emanated a spirit of meekness, love and helpfulness unsurpassed in the history of mankind.

To rightly appreciate the spirit of Thanksgiving we must have the spirit of the Christ who called the little ones to Himself and said: 'Suffer little children to come unto Me and forbid them not, for such is the Kingdom of Heaven.' It is when we have the sweetness of love and the spirit of the Master in our lives that we brighten and cheer the lives of those around us. Each of us has an individual part to perform in life's drama; each has a duty incumbent upon him, each has a responsibility to meet. Our future success will depend on individualizing our allotted share of the service to be rendered in making the world a better place in which to live.

Few situations in life are more distressing than that of children without homes. No loss seems so great as that of parental love. Bereavement inflicts its stroke with acutest anguish when it cuts all the tender ties that bind the loving lives of father and mother to our devoted heart. Other sorrows, other losses we may bear with fortitude. Other bereavements, even, seem not to fill our spirit with such bitter humiliation; for they come to us in after-life, when we have somewhat learned to bear the lessons of grief, and when manhood or womanhood has brought us increased power of endurance.

Childhood, with all its ignorance of worldly sorrow, and with all its frailty of spirit, is overwhelmed by tribulation of being orphaned. The orphan, therefore, is entitled to peculiar sympathy and protection. The child bereaved of its natural guardianship and left, in its innocence and tears, to the mercies of a cold world, becomes the very symbol of defenseless affliction; and as such, it should receive the protection of every man's arm and the affection of every woman's heart.

To the North Carolina Orphan Association, it is the solemn consideration that God Himself has made especial promises of protection to the orphan, friends who will "stick closer than a brother." Friends who come in the hour of need and become vehicles of Mercy:—Truth and Justice flashing no rates of stocks or pageantry of kings, but making the circuit of the world with help for the destitute and honor for the lowly.

Those capable of estimating the value of the life of a child bereft of the blessings and comforts of a home, should realize what it means to enlist in the movement to swell the treasures of the orphan homes in the State at Thanksgiving, remembering that the Master Himself gave expression to the inspirational pronouncement, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." To those who are looking for some outlet for the joyful spirit of Thanksgiving we commend, to their consideration, the appeal of the North Carolina Orphan Association which is, once again, asking every citizen of the "Good Old North State" to contribute the income of one day out of 365 to the orphanage of his or her choice, on or before Thursday, November 28, the day set apart by the President of the United States and the Governor of North Carolina for the celebration of divine goodness.

The need for liberal Thanksgiving offerings has not been so apparent in a long time as it is this year. Let us rise to the dignity and demand of the hour by each doing his level best to bless the State and lift it to a higher plane of beneficence and good will. The Thanksgiving season is a most appropriate period during which our people may show their appreciation of the splendid service the orphan homes are rendering in the care, protection, training and education of orphaned children who might otherwise become a menace to society and a care upon the public.

Citizens of North Carolina, do your duty to yourselves, to your community and to the State at Thanksgiving this year and realize the full delights of service by making glad the lives of hundreds of bright boy and girls, bereft of parents, who are now under the fostering care of the fine orphan homes located in various sections of this splendid old Commonwealth.

Very respectfully,

M. L. SHIPMAN, chairman.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Gantt

Mrs. Odessa Milton Gantt, daughter of Mr. J. A. and Mrs. M. J. Milton, of Stanly County, N. C., died August 2, 1929, age 32 years, 2 months and 20 days.

She was converted in girlhood and joined the Stoney Hill M. E. Church. In 1923 she transferred her membership to the First M. P. Church in Albemarle, where she remained a faithful member until she was removed by the hand of death.

On August 12, 1915, she was married to Mr. J. D. Gantt, to this union were born four children.

Mrs. Gantt was a member of the Ladies' Aid Society, and a very fine personal worker. She lived a consistent Christian life, and was very useful in the church, her earnest prayers were inspiring, and her willingness to take her place in all of the activities of the church was often spoken of by others.

She will be missed as a faithful wife, and a loving mother, and by the church and her many friends.

She leaves four children and a husband to mourn her going. May the good Father in heaven throw an arm of protection around those children, and comfort the broken-hearted husband.

The funeral service was conducted at her home church at Albemarle, by her pastor, and her body was put away in the new cemetery at Albemarle, to wait the resurrection.

Her pastor,

J. R. ANDERSON.

Whitman

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Whitman departed this life October 12, 1929. Her age was 90 years, 10 months and 20 days. In the year 1857 she was united in marriage to James M. Whitman, and to this union were born eight children, four of whom are living. These are: Julius E. Whitman, J. A. Whitman, Mrs. John Kearney, and Mrs. W. H. Ball. Twenty grandchildren, 32 great grandchildren; two brothers and one sister, also survive her.

Mrs. Whitman united with Pleasant Hill Methodist Protestant Church, now on West Forsyth charge, at the early age of about 18 years, and remained a faithful member until death removed her from the church militant to the church triumphant. The last six months of her earthly life were spent in suffering. She sustained a serious injury to her hip in a fall at the home of her son, Julius E. Whitman, with whom she made her home for a score of years, and never regained her health, being confined to her bed during the weeks and months of suffering. The writer did not have the privilege of knowing her in health and to observe her active religious life, but we are assured by those who knew her best that her life was a righteous one, and was devoted to her husband, her children, her church and her Lord. During her long period of sickness she bore the affliction with patience, knowing that it was the will of the Father that she remain in the life of suffering for a purpose, that of testing the love and patience of her children and other loved ones. Just before midnight of Saturday, October 12, God spoke to her soul and bade it leave the body of suffering and take its flight to that City of God not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

The funeral services were conducted by the writer, October 14, at 11 a. m., assisted by Rev. Mr. Grabs, of the Moravian Church, and her body was laid to rest in Pleasant Hill cemetery beside the grave of her husband, who passed to his reward twenty years ago. May God's richest blessings abide with and comfort the bereaved ones.

C. B. MAY.

Surratt

The hearts of our entire community were filled with sadness on last Thursday evening, when the news floated through the air that little Loyd Surratt was instantly killed. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Surratt. He was born November 27, 1926, and died October 10, 1929.

His death came without warning and without pain. He leaves a dear father, a loving mother, four sisters, three brothers and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his loss. Oh! how hard it was to say our last good-by. It's hard, dear father and mother, but look and pray unto the Lord. All our help comes from Him and without Him we can do nothing. His earthly father needed and loved him, but his Heavenly Father's needs and love were far greater. While on earth we can never understand why dear little Loyd had to answer his last great call while so young. But remember, the Bible says, "Some day we will understand it all."

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. W. D. Reed, pastor, and assisted by Rev. E. A. Bingham, of Denton. His body was laid in the Gravel Hill cemetery. A large congregation of relatives and friends were present, and his grave was beautifully decorated with flowers.

May the bereaved ones have comfort
To think of Loyd in the Angel band
For he's gone to join the Angels
In that bright and blessed land.

When long years have rolled and past
And other friends have breathed their last
I know I will think with memory dear
Of sweet little Loyd's last year.

May the God of all comfort be your consolation.

FLORA and BRUCE SMITH.

Resolutions of Respect

At a call meeting of the quarterly conference of the First Methodist Protestant Church the secretary was requested to write the following resolutions:

Whereas, Our Heavenly Father in His all-wise providence has seen fit to remove from our midst our brother and co-worker, R. C. Boyd, who was so faithful as a member of this body and other work of the church;

Whereas, it is the desire of this conference to express our love and appreciation of his life and character, therefore, be it resolved:

1. That the First Methodist Protestant Church and Sunday school has lost one of its most devoted and loyal members. This loss is keenly felt in our Sunday school, where he gave his time, energy and financial help for the youth of our church and community.

2. That we extend to the bereaved family our sincere sympathy.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the quarterly conference, a copy sent to the family and a copy sent to our church paper for publication.

R. I. FARMER, Chairman,
F. R. AUMAN, Secretary.

Hornady

Whereas, God, in His infinite love and wisdom, has called our faithful member, Mrs. S. M. Hornady, to her reward, we bow in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, who doeth all things well. With sorrow the Woman's Auxiliary of Burlington records her passing. Her life's voyage ended, she followed the beckoning hand of her Pilot, "on the great highway that leads from darkness up to light—from night to day."

She was a faithful and zealous worker in the Master's service. May her life of loyalty to Christ be an incentive to higher and nobler living to all who knew her.

Therefore, be it Resolved:

That it rests not with men to determine the end of our present life, but with a far higher Power who knows when to translate from an earthly to a heavenly home;

That we continue to emphasize the full Christly life that leads to life eternal, and be it further resolved,

First, That we cherish with loving remembrance her many years of faithful service in church and mission work;

Second, That our hearts go out in tender solitude and sympathy to the family, of which she was ever mindful;

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be placed upon our minutes and that a copy be sent to the family.

MISS ILA STAFFORD,
MRS. J. G. ROGERS,
MRS. M. A. COBLE.

Arlindo W. Laneir

Brother Arlindo was called to his reward October 23, 1929, at the age of 36 years, 6 months and 10 days. He professed faith in Christ at the age of 14 years and joined Pine Hill Church; with his new experience came the call to the ministry. He grew to manhood, married a wife and entered business life. About this time the writer met him at a camp meeting at Chapel Hill and urged him to go to school and prepare himself for the work. He thought to do so, but after this no one gave him encouragement, so he continued in business. Soon his wife fell by the way. He felt that it was a chastisement from the Lord. Now he had three children and the way was more difficult, so he continued in business. Soon he became a victim of consumption that hurried him to the end of the way. He regretted his mistake, and said to the writer: "if you had been my pastor, I would have been in the ministry today."

He had a brilliant mind and was loved by all who knew him. He was an active church worker as long as he was able. His death was a triumph. With finger pointing upward he whispered: "I know it's all right now."

He leaves a father and three small children and a host of friends to mourn his going.

Funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. E. A. Bingham of Denton.
W. A. REED.

Coble

John Alson Coble, one of the oldest members of Tabernacle Church, passed away at his home in Graham last Friday, October 25, having reached the ripe age of 80 years. Before moving to Graham seven years ago, Mr. Coble was an active member of Tabernacle Church. Forty years ago with his own hands he helped hew the timber for Tabernacle Church. He is survived by two sisters and two brothers: Mrs. T. R. Lowe, Mrs. Mandy Staley, T. D. Coble, and S. A. Coble. A large crowd attended the funeral at Tabernacle last Sunday afternoon. The burial took place in the church cemetery.

H. L. ISLEY.

Hemphill

Mrs. Elizabeth Hemphill, one of the character members of Julian Church, passed from this life at the home of her son at Climax, October 6, 1929, being 83 years of age. She was converted in young girlhood and joined Shiloh Methodist Protestant Church, remaining a faithful member until death. Mrs. Hemphill was the first member that Julian Church has lost by death during the present pastorate. Truly a good woman has passed from us.

One son and one daughter survive: W. G. Hemphill and Mrs. R. U. Neese, both of Climax, also one brother, Samuel Devinney, of Julian.

The funeral was conducted at Shiloh Methodist Protestant Church by the writer, assisted by Revs. G. L. Milloway and D. I. Garner. Burial was made in the church cemetery.

H. L. ISLEY.

Mrs. Lula Craven Holland

Lula, a daughter of the late Rev. and Mrs. L. C. Nash, was married the first time to R. B. Craven. There were born to this union four children: Mrs. Robert Pinion, Miss Lorene Craven, Burl, Jr., and Beatrice, all of Concord, and still living. Mr. Craven died in 1920. She was married the second time to Robert Holland in June, 1927. Besides her second husband, she is survived by brothers and sisters as follows: Mrs. L. G. Lowder, Mrs. D. A. McLaurin, Miss Versie Nash of Concord; Mrs. C. B. Price and S. N. Nash, of Kannapolis; B. G. Nash and C. E. Nash, of Concord; and Rev. D. D. Nash, of Hopewell, Va.

Converted in childhood she united with the church, and for more than fifteen years was a member of First Church, Concord.

The sickness to which she succumbed was of only a brief duration. Just one week prior to her death she was attacked by high blood pressure and gradually grew worse until the end came Saturday night.

The funeral was conducted from First Methodist Protestant Church of Concord, October 14, by the Rev. G. H. Hendry the pastor, assisted by Rev. N. G. Bethea of Lexington, and Rev. E. G. Lowdermilk, of Kannapolis. It was a vast throng filling the church to overflowing, that came to pay their respects to this good woman. Flowers in abundance gave further evidence of the esteem with which she was held.

It was a sad funeral, but "we sorrow not as those who have no hope." Those who live for Christ today, will arise to live another day.

May the sorrowing ones trust in Christ and be not afraid.
G. H. HENDRY.

Robert Lee Bost

I shall ever remember this man as one who came to Christ in the late evening time of life. But although late it was so sincere and genuine as to be beautiful. His earthly life was about 58 years. His spiritual life is only little more than one year. It was a delight to his Christian friends and particularly to his loved ones that his life became so trustful and mellow with the grace of God ere he reached the sunset.

He had been a sufferer for about one year and although loving hands administered faithfully to the last, the end came September 10. The funeral was conducted from the home on Harris Street, Concord, September 12, by Rev. G. H. Hendry, his pastor, assisted by Rev. G. L. Winkinson of Kerr Street M. E. Church South.

He leaves a wife, Mrs. Vira Lowder Bost, one daughter, Mrs. N. B. Teeter, two step sons: H. E. and J. L. Beaver and two sisters: Mrs. W. F. Josie of Albemarle and Mrs. Washington Sides, of this county.

May the rich comfort of God sustain the bereaved.
G. H. HENDRY.

PILGRIMAGE TO HERO GRAVES

Next year the War Department plans to take 10,000 American women to Europe to visit the graves of their sons and husbands in the military cemeteries there, and in the two following years a like number are to be taken over for the same purpose—all at the expense of the government.

These patriotic pilgrimages were provided for by an act of Congress and the War Department is now busy preparing records and lists of the women entitled to go. The work, properly enough, is under the supervision of women, Miss Elsie Stommel and Mrs. Genevieve Ruth, of the cemeterial division. The number of women entitled to make the journey is estimated at 30,000. They will be taken from their homes and returned there without expense to themselves. The word "mother" is generously interpreted mother, step-mother, mother by adoption, or any woman who stood in loco parentis of the soldier.

These mothers and wives are not only scattered through every state in the Union but throughout many foreign countries. Many of them, it is said, have never been away from home in their lives. The ocean voyage on first class vessels will be a great event in their lives.—Pathfinder.

BETWEEN NEIGHBORS

Grenville Kleiser, of New York (a native of Toronto) wrote the following verses to Canada, and requested Dr. James L. Hughes, of Toronto (who is 82 years "young") to write a poem to the United States:

U. S. A. TO CANADA

Elder brother am I,
You are the younger son;
Held by ties of kinship,
We work together as one.

The web-like line between us
Needs not sentry or gun;
In mutual understanding,
We work together as one.

Some may boast of warfare,
Of strife we will have none;
In peace and fruitful labor,
We work together as one.

The race now set before us,
Alike with patience we run;
Girded with truth and honor,
We work together as one.

Elder brother am I,
You are the younger son;
Under the guidance of God
We work together as one.
—Grenville Kleiser.

Dr. Hughes responded as follows:

CANADA TO THE UNITED STATES

Side by side in harmony
We've lived a hundred years;
We thank you for your friendship,
And have no doubts nor fears.

But that, in Christian spirit,
We'll still be lovers true;
And so we send our friendship,
With joyous hope to you.

Let us be happy leaders,
To make the future bright;
Let us clasp hands and promise
To work for truth and right.

Let's trust each other truly
With faith and honor, so
Our hearts through all the ages
With brotherhood may glow.
—James L. Hughes.

Wasey—Did any of your family ever make a brilliant marriage?

Kudner—Only my wife.

Lawyer (to opponent): "You're the biggest boob in the city."

Judge (rapping for order): "Gentlemen, you forget I am here."

A young lady entered a stationery store and asked for a pound of floor wax.

"I'm sorry, Miss," replied the clerk, "We sell only sealing wax."

"Don't be silly," she remarked. "Why should anyone want to wax a ceiling?"

"Jim, I see your mule has U. S. branded on his right hind leg. I suppose he was an army mule and belonged to Uncle Sam."

"No, suh; dat U. S. don't mean nothin' 'bout no Uncle Samuel. Dat's jess a warnin'! 'bout U. S. stands fo' Un Safe."

The first offering above was made by a little boy, Daniel Pardue, whose mother read to him our request for prayer for Martha Routh and Robert Campbell. After praying for their recovery, he said, "Mother, please send them two piece of my money and tell them to buy some of my castor oil to make them well. So here came the two crisp one dollar bills to buy medicine for the sick. God bless little Daniel.

The W. S. Cecil class of Pleasant Grove is clothing Robert Campbell, and, reading of his sickness, they immediately sent along an extra five dollars to help care for him in his sickness. May the dear Father bless them.

Both of these children are better, though not well yet.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Rev. D. I. Garner came bringing a truck load from Gray's chapel, as follows: Mrs. Kime, of Julian, one bushel of potatoes, and Mrs. Brower, Bethel, 6 cans fruit. Gray's Chapel, 4 cans fruit, 10 bushels of potatoes, 2 bushels of turnips and 3 pumpkins; a fine donation.

Rev. B. M. Williams, pastor of Orange, called by phone and asked us to send for a load. And when our car returned it brought from Orange Circuit a bag of dried apples, bag of peanuts, bag of walnuts, 71 quarts of fruit, vegetables and preserves, 6 glasses of jelly, 2 packages of oatmeal, 5 bushels of seed oats, 15 pounds bacon, 3 24-pound bags flour, one 48-pound bag flour, one pair shoes, 2 gallons vinegar, 3 pounds Jack Frost sugar, 40 pounds granulated sugar, one package green peppers, one bushel green tomatoes, one pound butter, one gallon dried beans, one pumpkin, 10 bushels of potatoes, 2 suits of clothes, 6 tablets, 10 pencils, 3 pair pantaloons, 2 towels, 1 bathing suit, 3 dresses, 1 sweater, 2 blouses, 5 yards gingham, and 1 package of Hershey's breakfast cocoa. Others are making fine donations, but this is about the largest donation of its kind yet received.

Mr. W. H. English, of High Point, 3 splendid tables for our study room. These are excellent tables and are 3 feet 6 inches by 8 feet. Mr. English is a member of Wesley Memorial M. E. Church, but, passing this way and seeing our needs he had his men re-make 26 chairs for us, and sent us these fine tables which we needed very badly, but could not have bought such nice ones.

Mrs. E. F. Bulla, Asheboro, one dress, two shirts, one boy's coat, one girl's dress and a package of Octagon coupons.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pardue, 8 pair hose for boys.

Personal

Along with the things sent by Mrs. Pardue for the children she inclosed 5 pair of silk hose for the workers in the Home. It seemed like being back in the pastorate again to have someone remember us personally. Thank you, Mrs. Pardue.

This is our last report before Conference, Conference being this week. Any cash that comes in on Tuesday, November 5th, will count on this year's finances. Any received after that will have to go over to next year, unless, perchance, it is the wish of the brethren at Conference that we add amounts received at Conference to this year's report.

We are profoundly grateful to God and to His children throughout the Conference, for making it possible to care for His little ones here.

Sometimes the work is hard and so often things are discouraging; but after all it is a great service for the Master. It is your work and ours, and together we will do it for love of Him, and for the sake of helpless children.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON.

Conference is Over

Conference is over and I am going back
To make new rounds on the old beaten track,
To serve the same people and yet not the same,
For time's ever changing all things but name.

Conference is over and I go away
To seek my new field, and there I'm to stay
Till my work is all done in my new place
And I'm called forth to run a new race.

Conference is over, but the same task remains.—
To seek for lost souls in the course of life's lanes,
To lead the straying back to the way,
Out of their darkness into their day.

Major Acts of Conference

We have thought sometimes that we would like to give our readers a story of our Annual Conference's annual session complete in every detail, repeating every word said and telling of everything done. But it would take several papers the size of this to contain the full story. You can read this paper through in a few hours, but in the conference session there were almost six days of almost constant talk. We must content ourselves with an outline sketch. Your pastor or your delegate can give you more details.

Perhaps the most important work of all is that which has to do with our ministry. New ministers are to be received, invalided ministers are to be superannuated, active ministers are to be heard from as to the work of the past year and are to be placed for the work of the new year. All pastoral relations expire each year and every minister is to be re-assigned. This makes a great problem every year for the Stationing Committee, in our conference made up of two men, the President and one layman chosen for the purpose. Both of these men are usually well worn by the time they finish their task. It brings to them real distress after they have the scheme all arranged to have somebody come in with serious objections to what they propose, necessitating their making many changes, perhaps making the whole program over again. Their work requires the patience of Job and the wisdom of Solomon. This year the work seems to have been done without much friction. We refer you to the report of the Stationing Committee for the result. There are some changes, but we think not so many as usual. A number of preparing ministers were promoted in the course of study and four were ordained as elders and received as members of Conference. These were J. W. Braxton, J. E. Carroll, J. D. Cranford, and L. S. Helms.

A question of supreme importance was that of saving our High Point College from the strangling pressure of debt. It has been reported two or three times that the Finance Committee of the Board of Trustees have succeeded in plans to wipe out the entire debt if our people would contribute a certain quota, but these arrangements have failed and the debt still hangs over the institution. This has been unfortunate for the college. The debt is large because it took a large sum to build the buildings and conduct the school for five years, but we believe the debt can and will be paid if nobody grows panic-stricken. The Conference took this hopeful view, for they authorized the Board of Education to choose a field agent to solicit from benevolent people money for the debt, and also voted to ask our church people to contribute $20,000 a year for five years for running expenses. It is the hope that in this period of five years the debt can be lifted from the institution and a good beginning toward an endowment be made. It was the sense of the Conference that our college must be saved. Dr. J. C. Broomfield, President of the General Conference, Dr. F. W. Stephenson, Executive Secretary of the Denominational Board of Education, and Dr. J. H. Straughn, Treasurer and Promotional Secretary of the General Conference, expressed profound sympathy with our Conference in this matter and declared themselves ready to do anything in their power, officially or otherwise, to help save the day for High Point College. It may be that High Point College was opened prematurely from a financial point of view, but the attendance has proved that it was not opened before it was needed. To open prematurely is a pardonable mistake; we cannot say the same thing about allowing this institution to close prematurely. We think better things of our people than that they should consent to such a thing. President S. W. Taylor is chairman of a committee to secure the $20,000 a year and he is going about the matter most hopefully with the slogan, "A dollar a member, a dollar a member," by which he means an average of a dollar a member. We have over 29,000 members in our Conference district, and Brother Taylor's slogan is hopefully calling for over $29,000.

Another problem was that of refinancing the HERALD made necessary by the sale of the Publishing House and the application of the proceeds to the debts of High Point College. The revenue thus lost to the HERALD was $100.00 per month, a loss which the HERALD cannot stand unless it is made up from some other source. How to make it up was the problem. The Conference voted to raise the subscription price to $2.00 per year and to make a general effort to increase the circulation. We have hundreds of subscribers who have been subscribers for years some of whom say they would have the paper if it cost $5.00 a year. But we believe there are many first-class people in our church in North Carolina who have not learned by experience the value of the METHODIST PROTESTANT HERALD, and we hope this effort to extend the circulation will result in bringing them into our circle of readers. A committee on HERALD Subscription Goals was appointed composed of Rev. N. M. Harrison, of Charlotte, Rev. Roy I. Farmer, of High Point, and Brother J. F. Coble of Greensboro. (This com-

CONTINUING THE ANGEL'S MESSAGE

CONFERENCE SERMON BY REV. N. G. BETHEA

Text—And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.—Luke 2:10-11.

This message was in accord with prophecy, for the promise made from the beginning was that a Saviour should come, made to Abraham in Genesis 12:3. "And in thee shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." And again in Psalms 72:8, "He shall have dominion from sea to sea, and from river unto the ends of the earth." Isaiah says in Chapter 2 and second verse in speaking of the establishment of the house of the Lord that all nations shall flow into it. In the New Testament Scriptures as in Acts 13:47, "I have set thee to be a light unto the Gentiles, that thou shouldest be for salvation unto the ends of the earth." Time would fail me in giving all the references to His coming and the extent of His kingdom.

So this message brought by the angels is in accord in every way with that which was foretold by the prophets, and down to the minutest detail He is the fulfilment of God's promise to man.

After 32 years of study of the word of God in connection with the study of men and their methods, and their success as kingdom builders, your speaker is more firmly convinced than ever that what this world needs today above everything else is that we preach Jesus. Not as a great philosopher, though He was that and more; not as a great miracle worker, though none ever worked such miracles as He; not simply as one with spotless character, though none have ever reached such perfection as His; not as the greatest teacher,—accepting His teaching but rejecting Him,—though He spake as never man spake; but as the divine Son of God as well as man, bringing unto men the world over such a salvation from sin as we find in none other. A Saviour which is Christ the Lord!

The salutation of the angel to the shepherds was just such as Jesus often used when greeting His disciples. It is perfectly clear that the angel was familiar with Him before He came to earth in human form, for He used that term that Jesus used and is needed today just as much as it was then as we go out to meet people on the way of life to encourage and bless them, for we are authorized to preach a gospel that brings good cheer and that gladdens the heart of man.

Jesus met the ruler of the synagogue with a "Fear not" when his heart was sinking under the load of grief caused by the death of his child, but he had a message of hope and gladness that only can bring gladness to our hearts in the time of greatest sorrow. And there are many burdened hearts today that need this message to inspire them to come back and make a new trial of life and make the goal in the end that comes by acceptance of and obedience to this Saviour. Thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins! The fact that we are to proclaim a Saviour that not only saves us from sin, but is able to keep alive within us that which he places there makes Him unlike any other teacher or leader the world has ever known or ever will know. Other teachers may give us great truths and they go on with the passing of time. But here is one that gives us something that He is able to keep alive in us unto eternal life because He said, "Because I live ye shall live also." He would not be able to keep alive within us that which He gives were He not divine.

No wonder the angels sang His praises! They knew what they were singing about! They knew Him! Are we to know Him? Surely in a greater sense than the angels, for they knew Him as one who was going on a mission to save, but glory to His name, we know Him as those who have been saved by Him. Is that not a greater privilege? To know Him is not to doubt His power to save, and if we know that He saves us then we know that that which He does in and for us cannot be done by man, therefore that puts Him above man in that respect. Thank God that faith in Jesus Christ as the Son of God is not a misplaced faith. One of the great joys that come to a regenerated ministry is that there is no doubt as to the final triumph of the gospel that they preach, for they are preaching a Triumphant Saviour! One who has already arisen from the dead. Alive forevermore because He is the Son of God! The triumph of this gospel is that He saves me, as my advocate He keeps me saved. Then as I come in contact with the man on the road of life there is that to offer him that will inspire him to have faith in One who is mighty to save. No wonder that it is Glory to God in the Highest! Here is something that these angels know is truth, and they are telling their fellow servants on earth about it in such a way as to inspire hope and to send them on their way to a new day for the saving of the human family and bringing it back to God.

Then a regenerated world needs that which is in harmony with what has been brought. This same Saviour is that Ruler, for He is the Christ! A new kingdom set up in the hearts and lives of men. The kingdom of heaven is within you! A spiritual kingdom. He then is a spiritual ruler. So we preach the necessity of a new heart because this ruler must first set up His kingdom in the hearts of men if he would rule in their outside affairs. Behold your King, ye subjects of this spiritual realm. Then in beholding Him you see the perfection of all that is worthwhile. It must be completed in him if completeness is ever reached.

Men do not find fault with his teaching, why should they reject him? Not long since I asked a man to become a Christian and he said this: "I do not like your church members, so many are false to right principles of living that claim to be Christians. Got no use for the church." Then I asked: "What have you got against Jesus?" He was speechless. Brethren, have we held Him up as we ought? There is no reasonable answer that can be waged against Him. So much difference, unlike any other teacher, for we often say that man is intelligent, his ideas are good but his life is unsavory. Can we bring such charge against Jesus?

Back of all rejection of Jesus Christ in anyway is some kind of sin that is backing up the unbelief in such a way as to prove to the right thinking person and the close observer that the enemy of our souls is there, for He would have us turn from Jesus because the devil knows his mission and from whence He came. An examination of all cults and doctrines that would limit the power of Jesus Christ, shows there is a life some where that is not willing to be brought into harmony with his plans for holy living, or possibly an ambition that is not in accordance with the golden rule. Elimination of Jesus in some way and to deny Him in any way is to limit Him.

People need to be controlled,—and the enemy will eventually be controlled,—but as long as people are disobedient to

Jesus Christ, just so long will the enemy of man have sway in some one's heart. The mission of Jesus in the world was not simply to save men but to bring all things into subjection that the welfare of God's best loved creature be advanced. There has always been a tendency on the part of man to be disobedient since the fall in the garden. So the angels in bringing the glad message of salvation make it so complete that as you study the character of Jesus you find there completeness for every need, for man in his rebellious state works himself harm continually. The teachings of the great Teacher that man should love God with all his powers shows that we have no more right to abuse our minds with wrong thought than to abuse our bodies with wrong practices. So there is this thought that those who would eliminate by what is called mental reservation are dishonest in their pretensions, for if I subscribe to one thing and believe another, am I not dishonest? Am I honest when I pretend to subscribe to the creed of a church to get a position and then undertake to exploit my ideas that are not in accord with the teachings of that church? Am I not in the same category with Arnold, the name of which every honest school boy looks upon with disdain? I may be hearing a controversy here, but you will pardon me, brethren, I am not trying to raise a controversy but a standard of honest living in the ministry as well as uprightness of dealing in the business world. For when Christ is taken into consideration in all of our being as ruler then we will be in a position to preach and also to enjoy that peace which the angels proclaimed on that glad night. Let me preach the golden rule and the golden rule means the rule of Christ!

Never will the message of the angels be with power in your life and mine till Christ becomes the ruler in our hearts as in our outer life; and never will He be manifested in the true sense of the word until honesty and uprightness shall control in all the walks of life. No man would dare to speak from any of our pulpits boldly that he was not in harmony with the teachings and discipline of the church, but there are men today who for the sake of position are dodging the issue in such a way as to undermine the faith of those who are weak and causing the church not to prosper as it would otherwise do. If there are such in our ranks, and I am trusting that there are none, my advice to you would be to get under the flag where you can be honest, for even the world admires the honest man, for the world as well as the church knows that there is no bigger traitor to be found anywhere than the traitor in the pulpit.

Here is where our laymen should take a part also in encouraging the preaching and the living of Christ and Him crucified not only in the pulpit but in the pew. Not only a Saviour to save us from sin, but to save the best in us for time and eternity, not only a king to rule, to govern every power, but LORD OF ALL!

So brother layman, I have somewhat to say unto thee. Will you willingly say, "Say on?" It is not only your business to accept Jesus as a Saviour, and Christ as a King, but he is Lord also. Too often the laymen of our church have enjoyed their freedom and the pastors have paid the bills in a large measure. You know all freedom is costly. Not that we do not have just as good laymen as are to be found anywhere in any church, and I am not lodging a complaint against you today, but the thing that we want to remedy is the thing of taking our liberty and making of it license. You will agree with me to be sure that too long we have been satisfied with doing the work at home without any thought much of going into any other part of God's world, either in our own state, or, to the borders beyond, or any foreign field, with our prayers and our means. May it be said that localism has been one of our greatest hindrances? Possibly if we had been more missionary from the beginning we would be a bigger, stronger church today.

Even in our General Conference this spirit is often manifested. The stronger are given the preference. When our church gets to that point where she no longer depends upon certain men in certain sections to do all the work that needs to be done in the way of leading, or in other words as was used in our last General Session when a man from a smaller Conference was seconding the nomination of a certain man, this expression was made by a man from whom you would expect something better, "Ah, the tail is wagging the dog now." When our people get to that point to see that to keep the law of Christ the strong shall bear the burdens of the weak, we shall have gone a long way towards bringing in the kingdom of our Lord and Master.

And may I say to any, if there be such here today, if you do not believe that the church to which you belong is big enough for you, for heaven's sake get where there is room for little souls, for we are facing right here in North Carolina today one of the biggest tasks any church has ever faced considering our wealth and membership. But if you have enthroned this Saviour and King in your lives you are to be depended upon to acknowledge Him as Lord also.

The disciples were having a good time at Jerusalem when the persecution arose that sent them everywhere preaching the word. Perhaps that may be necessary to get our laymen in some instances to get out to where they can preach more effectively with their means as well as their lives. How many places right here within forty miles of Greensboro that could be helped to self supporting churches if the people who are able would only pay their Annual Conference Budget.

Our great trouble is that we are too much concerned about making our own little nest comfortable or trying to overshadow or keep pace out of proportion to our faith or ability, possibly the former in most cases.

I have actually heard recently of some of our laymen saying that they had given away all they have ever had to our church! My, how we need to start a museum today to let many of the present know what we have as well as have something for future generations of Methodist Protestants to gaze upon.

We are so anxious that we shall shine in the community where we are at work and that we shall have just as good or a little better church than some others, all well and good. But when we do this and leave others out, we have not even started on the second mile. May we not limit the work of our Master in this in ourselves or in others? But if we would carry out the purpose of Christ, our part of it, for which he came into the world we must bring about in greater measure that result for which He came into the world.

What is that? Making the Bible live and the characters therein live is a great part of the preachers work. Not a dead book of a dead past, no, but a view of living men and women who live now because they lived then either looking for the Christ, or, in believing that He had already come. This is our material for bringing a reality to men. Why preach that of which no one knows or ever will? Why try to preach something to men to appear scholarly? Why not try Jesus if you have not been doing so and see the change. It's true you may have a different audience, but what of that if the joys of uplifting humanity to the uplifted Christ be yours? When we reach out with a sympathizing Jesus to broken hearts and tempted men and women we are carrying something to them that will touch a responsive chord in their lives. For instance when we preach law enforcement to men we know that the best law observers are to be found among the best Christians. Boy watching a fine Christian gentleman drive in such a way, keeping right up to the limit in a rush drive but never breaking the limit, caused that boy to say, he is all right but no law breaker.

Loyalty to the book is not only following the example of our Master, but is giving the only truth that has stood the test of ages so far as religion is concerned. Doing this to be made wise unto salvation and not to be counted scholarly brings the wisdom of salvation unto others. And in bringing the message of saving and keeping power we are continuing the message that our forerunners, the angels, brought on that happy Christmas night centuries ago.

Standing on the side of the road leading from Jerusalem to Bethlehem, our attention was called to the fact that to the south of us lay the beautiful plains of Bethlehem. The Scripture was referred to that told of that wonderful time when Jesus was born. In my imagination I could see standing out there over where the shepherds that kept their flocks were on duty, a great Angel and in my mind I could hear him say, "Fear not!" The beauty of the plains covered with green grass, though it was in February, helped my imagination to enlarge, and I could see the expression of awe that was upon the faces of those humble shepherds and yet a look of hope as the assurance of the angel caused them to listen attentively. And I wondered if before some of them went to sleep they all had not talked of the prophecies which every Jewish man was taught from childhood,—wondering when the fulfilment should come. For God's messengers come to anxious hearts. Then after the salutation I heard strains of wonderful music such as I had never heard before, for the angelic choir were singing the Hallelujah Chorus and giving their Amen to the glad message. Then I saw them turn to go back and as I watched them and I discovered that they did not shut the gate, and I thought to be sure the angelic messengers are not neglectful in that they failed to shut the gate of heaven! Then it dawned on me that no longer was heaven shut against any upon earth that would accept this Saviour, for all nations shall have the opportunity of entering now. But while enjoying my reverie the guide said, "Come now let us go even unto Bethlehem and see this thing which has come to pass." It took no urging, for we were all anxious to see the place where the Saviour was born. Then the thought came to me what difference does it make if He be born in Bethlehem if He be not born in me. Then my mind played back over the deep blue seas over which I sailed to see this sacred place and I remembered the time and the place in America when He was born in me and the song of the angels was again heard but not in the heavens but in my own heart and soul, and as we turned our faces towards Bethlehem I was glad that I could see this sacred shrine, but ever and anon the thought came to me, that Jesus was just as precious in America as here, and as such gives us the privilege of worship anywhere and my heart rejoiced in that. Then I said to myself if I may but offer to Him that prayer of the poet,

O Master, let me walk with Thee,
In lowly paths of service free, then may I take up the message just where the angels left it off and proclaim Thee just as faithfully as thou wouldst have me, and by faith look for the results which Thou has promised.

AMERICAN HOME BIBLE INSTITUTE

As a part of the movement for the encouragement of the systematic reading and study of the Bible throughout our land the American Home Bible Institute is sponsoring the formation of "Around-the-table" groups in homes and in churches. The course selected for 1930, and now ready for use, is "Studies in the Life of the Christian," taking up in order Christ the Great Teacher, the Christian's God, the Christian man, his fellowman, his faith, Book, prayer, service, church home, business world, society, state, and home, in a series of fourteen studies, with final review. The Institute recommends small groups (of three to ten members), and the course is so arranged that the members may, if they desire, take turns in conducting the sessions. In keeping with the policy of the Institute to depend for its support entirely upon the contributions of friends in answer to prayer, no charge is made for assignment sheets, services, etc., but students must provide their own text books, available at publisher's price. The Institute's credit-certificate, applicable towards the diploma, will be issued upon completion of the course on the same basis as for completion of prescribed work in the full curriculum.

The American Home Bible Institute, now in its twelfth year, is an association of Christian workers, having its headquarters at the home of its president, Mr. E. W. Collamore, 837 Allison Street, Washington, D. C., conducting full courses of Bible reading and study, and having students in nearly every state of the Union and province of Canada. Application to the above address will secure further information as to the "Around-the-table" and other courses issued.

GOD'S GIFT

There are two bidders for each soul. It is for each to decide which shall have it. Satan offers you what he cannot give; he is a liar, and has been from the foundation of the world. I pity the man who is living on the devil's promises. He lied to Adam, and deceived him, stripped him of all he had, and then left him in his lost, ruined condition. And all the men since Adam living on the devil's lies, the devil's promises, have been disappointed, and will be, down to the end of the chapter. But the Lord Jesus Christ is able to give all He offers and He offers eternal life to every lost soul here.—D. L. Moody.

GOD'S JUSTICE

While the offices of justice and mercy are plainly in a close relationship and are brought so cordially together in the Scripture, intertwining as forces of good in the government and governmental character of God, there is necessity that God's justice should be maintained in the highest possible degree of emphasis. It is necessary to God's administrative character. As regards that character, He can as well be perfect in a shortened benevolence, as in a restricted and diminished justice. Or if we look only at the defenses of law, and the motivations at work for the regaining of souls, it is a matter of the highest necessity that there should be no appearance of slackness in God and that His justice should be kept fast in the loftiest, most sovereign pitch of firmness possible.—Selected.

OPTIMISM

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

*Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit;
so shall ye be my disciples.—John 15:8.*

SALUTATION

First of all, we beg you to accept our salutation in the Lord. More than a hundred ministers are on our mind; we are likewise thinking of our 233 churches, with their thirty thousand members. We beg you, individually and collectively, to accept our loving salutation, and with that, our renewed devotion to all that concerns your peace and prosperity.

We would have you also, to be assured of our renewed devotion to all that concerns your peace and prosperity. "For God is my witness, whom I serve in my spirit in the gospel of his Son that without ceasing I make mention of you always in my prayers." "Grace to you, and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ."

The Conference

The comment of one layman is significant: "You have been busy with big things." I think we will all agree with him. There seemed very little disposition on the part of the Conference to splash about in the shallows. Great problems were before us, and with becoming courage, and unanimity of mind and heart, and above all, with a humble reliance upon God, we sought solutions for these problems. How well we have succeeded, the weeks and months ahead will determine. One thing is certain: Our "sufficiency is of God," and in that assurance we shall face the tasks of this conference year undeterred and unafraid. "The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge."

Pastors and Charges

I say again that this relationship is so vital that its importance can hardly be over-stated. The charge and the pastor constitute the unit upon which swings the entire program of the Conference. If conditions here are well, peace is upon us; if there is failure here, the whole program is, by that much, defeated. Every pastor, therefore, who has accepted an appointment from the Conference has taken upon himself a tremendous and far-reaching responsibility; and every charge that has been given a pastoral assignment shares equally in this responsibility. Each pastor, therefore, before he goes to his pulpit next Sunday, should make a solemn covenant with God, that the measure of service for the charge committed to his care shall be the full limit of his ability. This means the fullest measure of time possible for pastoral visitation, for study, and sermonizing; and for the general care of all that concerns the progress of the charge. And above all, it means a renewed purpose to give to the people a living gospel through the gospel messenger. There should be also, on the part of every church, a new purpose to go beyond the attainments of last year in all that will glorify Him who is our loving Head. The fullest endorsement should be given to every progressive program, and a tactful, persistent insistence upon such program where they are not in operation. These pastors who are sent, are God's men; and the people to whom they go are God's people. God is calling upon his men and his people for a year of renewed and steadfast consecration in His service. The conference, therefore, is counting on every pastor to stand in his place, and every church to stand in its place that God may not be disappointed in us.

Moving

Several pastors will move to new fields of labor for this new Conference year. We suggest that this be done as early as possible. It will help to get the pastor and his family "set" in the new environment; and it will also be to the people the final act that completes the change. Let it be done, then, as early as possible. We suggest, also, that charges move pastors. The expense to the charge would not be large, and it would mean a great deal to the pastor. Such a welcome would do much to strengthen the cords of fellowship, and to intensify the already quickened impulse to service. Try it, charges! Try it!

Programs

For the year, it will be timely and full, we trust. But just now there is but one thing before us—$20,000 for High Point College. "This one thing" we do before we think about or undertake anything else. But it will not be necessary to side track other matters very long, we think. It is our faith that we can do this in ninety days. The fact is, the conference is "set and ready to go," and when the word is given, we shall be a perfect bee hive of effort and co-operation. Our faith is that there will be hilarious giving when the word is passed down the line, and we shall be sorely disappointed if there is not soon a great shout of victory within the camp. The ministry of the conference will not fail us in a time like this; the strong lay leaders of the church will not fail us; thirty thousand, that make up our host, will not fail us. "This one thing" we will do: We will raise $20,000 for High Point College.

The committee on plans will meet next Monday, November 18, and by the time there is another issue of the HERALD we shall be ready to say "Go." In the mean time, let us urge that prayer be made daily for this committee and for this undertaking. Pray in private and in public. God can give us a success in this undertaking of "good measure, pressed down and shaken together, and running over." It is our faith that He will.

THE ENCOMPASSING GOD

Psalm 130:5—"Thou hast beset me behind and before."

This is the glory of life. The word "beset" is not in very good repute. We are beset by fears, sorrows, and temptations. It suggests danger, defeat, imminent peril. But God besets us behind and before. This is the victory of faith.

We know much about ourselves—the moral quality of our actions, the tendencies of our conduct, the processes of thought, and the movements of the will. Yet our self-knowledge is restricted. We live blindly, carelessly sinning against our better knowledge. There are destructive forces that spring up from within, when we least suspect their presence, and soon failure and shame surround us.

But nothing escapes God. The priests of Israel carried the names of the tribes upon their sacred garments into the holy place for the Lord's remembrance, but every dawn lights the way for His coming to bless His people, every wind bears the sight of mortal need before Him, and the clouds are His chariots laden with refreshing grace. We cannot pass beyond the circle of His unchanging love.

upon me." Rodin's masterpiece shows the world coming from the hand of God—the fingers melting into the shapeless mass. We cannot see that hand, but it is still about them that trust in Him. It is a helping hand like that which lifted the sick man from his bed of suffering: a guiding hand, for the wilderness journey in inevitable; and a comforting hand, for it still touches the eyes of the blind and washes the strain from our hearts. It is the symbol of God's presence permeating life in strange ways beyond our conception.

Fear it not at all, for it is ever patient, loving, and strong.

Major Acts of Conference

mittee met on Monday after the close of Conference and began to plan for their work.) We ask the co-operation of our present subscribers in this effort to extend circulation. If each subscriber will get a subscriber, our number will be doubled. Let us place another slogan beside Brother Taylor's: "Every subscriber get a subscriber." Through all the plans and all the efforts of all the friends of the HERALD we hope that it may be enabled to go on its way hopefully and with increasing power for good. In addition to the $1,200, we are under necessity of providing for increased printing costs. The young men who print the HERALD have been doing so at a large loss to themselves which they cannot stand any longer. They are both METHODIST PROTESTANTS and would willingly go their limit for the HERALD, but their resources have a near limit.

Some important changes were made in boundaries of charges. Shady Grove and Midway (both near Greensboro) form a charge to be known as Midway. Elbaville and Yadkin College are made a part of State Street charge, Lexington. Union Grove is attached to Mocksville. Shiloh, Friendship and Greens constitute a charge to be known as Shiloh. Canaan and Spring Hill are added to North Davidson. Oak Grove is attached to South Winston. Union Ridge goes to Forsyth. West Thomasville is made a station. Lincolnton-Fairfield are combined. Guilford receives Mt. Pleasant and Mt. Zion. Speight's Chapel becomes Speight's Chapel Mission, a station. Fairfield is detached from Glen Raven and made a station. Haw River is attached to Glen Raven.

Many interesting speeches were made which we have not space to describe. The weather, the attendance, the spirit of the Conference, all were fine, and we trust the work of the Conference as a whole will promote our progress as a church and our success in Kingdom service. We are permitted this week to print the Conference sermon by Rev. N. G. Bethea and we hope to publish hereafter the Ordination Sermon by Rev. H. W. Maier and the Sunday night sermon by Rev. R. I. Farmer, as well as Dr. T. M. Johnson's thoughtful addresses on God and His Friends.

"WHERE HIS GLORY DWELLETH"

"I love the place where thy glory dwelleth," sang the Hebrew poet in Psalm 26:8. This was his blessed description of the temple of the house of God. It was the sentiment and not the place that we think about now. Everything possible had been done to enrich the temple until it was a place of splendor, and it was not difficult to imagine that God was there in the midst of the beauty. The supreme fact, however, was not the material riches and beauty of the house, but rather that the glory of God was to be sensed there.

We need particular places in order to aid us in coming into contact with the Divine. God is everywhere; of that we are more sensitive to the nearness of God than we are in other spots. And this is one of the reasons why we attend church and worship in the place that has been made beautiful for that purpose. We sense the glory of God there more quickly and surely than in other places in the world because they are the temples of God. Why is that? Because that men have felt that they must make shrines for their deity to be the more easily revealed and appropriated by needy human souls.—Zion's Herald.

THUS SPEAKETH CHRIST OUR LORD

Ye call me Master and obey me not,
Ye call me Light and see me not,
Ye call me Way and walk not,
Ye call me Life and desire me not,
Ye call me wise and follow me not,
Ye call me fair and love me not,
Ye call me rich and ask me not,
Ye call me eternal and seek me not,
Ye call me gracious and trust me not,
Ye call me noble and serve me not,
Ye call me mighty and honor me not,
Ye call me just and fear me not;
If I condemn you, blame me not.

SUBSCRIBERS, PLEASE NOTICE

The Annual Conference in its recent session raised the subscription price of the METHODIST PROTESTANT HERALD to $2.00 a year. This was made necessary by the loss of income from the sale of the Publishing House and by the increased cost of printing. December 1st was the time set for the new rate to go into effect. Six months' subscriptions at the old rate ($1.50 per year) will be received before December 1. After that time the rate will be as fixed by the Annual Conference.—THE PUBLISHER.

GOSPEL OF HAPPINESS

This brief essay is intended to correct the misconception prevailing to a great extent in our day, that religion tends to make man morose, sad and downcast; and to remove, if possible, that prejudice which is felt by so many people toward a religious life.

It is realized that, while man is undergoing the period of regeneration and struggles in his efforts to kill off the old man, he labors under a spiritual strain which makes him pre-occupied and deeply concerned, but the result attained is well worth his efforts.

Those who have tasted the experience of a change from a carnal life to a spiritual life find themselves in the end happy and contented, free from all cares, and with a peaceful mind. Sin no longer is their master. They are masters over sin and exercise full control over their passions and evil tendencies.

Their new life is filled with gladness, and they are always cheerful and happy. Their association with the Lord makes them so. They feel secure and protected against adversity, and they have a sure and steadfast hope for the future, a hope which gives them comfort and joy. They no longer feel the pangs of remorse from a profligate life; their hearts are filled with gratitude for the great change that has been wrought in their existence.

The inner life of man is his throne which controls his conduct and ultimately decides his destiny. This inner life is built up under many trials and amid hard struggles against evil inclinations, but he triumphs in the end and is regenerated in soul and spirit. He has won a great victory and is prepared to meet his God.

Why should he not be happy? Happiness comes from within, not from without, and his inner life is sweet and tranquil.

The Psalmist says: "Man's life is as grass; as a flower of the field so he flourisheth," and, remembering this in our short life on this planet, we should live a righteous life while here, endeavor to purge ourselves of all weaknesses, and make ourselves ready for the eternal life beyond.—A. H. Foss.

THE SABBATH DAY

The great service which the day of Sabbath rest renders man is in the realm of his spiritual nature. Man cannot live on bread alone. His physical nature develops best when his whole nature has its wants supplied. The peace of mind which accompanies true religion is a real physical asset. That faith in God which enables one, when he has done his best, to lie down in quietness and to "rest in the Lord and wait patiently for Him" not only affords blessedness of the highest order, but adds to his efficiency in every emergency that may arise.

It is as old as the human race and is based upon the necessities of human nature, therefore it comprehends all races and ages of mankind. As a periodical pause of labor it is conducive to the interests of morality. Its regular rest recruits the physical powers and prevents the strong temptations to stimulants. John Foster says that "the Sabbath is a remarkable appointment for raising the general tenor of moral existence. It also secured the opportunity for the cultivation of domestic intercourse—that powerful incentive to virtue. But more than that, the Sabbath is pre-eminently a day for instruction and worship—indispensable conditions of religious life."—From "Influence of the Weekly Rest Day on Human Welfare," published by the New York Sabbath Committee.

AN EASTERN LEGEND

A little banyan seed once said to a lofty palm tree: "I am so tired of being tossed hither and thither by the wind. Let me shelter awhile among your great leaves."

"O, yes," said the palm tree; "come and welcome. Stay as long as you wish."

So the banyan seed nestled down among the leaves of the palm tree, which very soon quite forgot the presence of the little stranger.

But the tiny seed was not idle. It sent out little roots and fibers, which crept around the mighty trunk and under the bark of the palm tree itself until at last the tree in alarm cried out, "What is this?"

The banyan replied, "It is only the little seed you allowed to rest among your leaves."

"But now you must leave me," said the palm tree. "You are growing too large and strong. You sap my strength."

"I cannot leave you now," replied the banyan, "for we have grown together. I should kill you if I tore myself away."

The palm tree rustled its great leaves and tried with might and main to throw off the banyan, but it could not, and gradually the palm leaves withered and the great trunk shriveled until at last only the banyan tree could be found.

So it is with little sins that come creeping in. They at last smother all the good in the heart and destroy its true growth.—Exchange.

NO OTHER WAY

Is there no other way, O God,

Except through sorrow, pain, and loss

To stamp Christ's likeness on my soul,

No other way except the cross!

And then a voice stills all my soul,

As stilled the waves on Galilee;

"Canst thou not bear the furnace heat,

If 'mid the flames I walk with thee?"

"I bore the cross, I know its weight,

I drank the cup I hold for thee;

Canst thou not follow where I lead?

I'll give thee strength—lean thou on me."

—Unidentified

WHY THIS DISCRIMINATION?

Many people are ready to call an earnest advocate of moral or religious programs a fanatic and other hard names, never thinking of applying the epithet to those equally aggressive along some other lines. Dr. Masters of the Western Recorder says: "No one ever heard of a liquorite being called a fanatic even though to gain his ends he resorts to bribery, murder, arson, or the defamation of character. The time servers reserve the word only for men and women who have a conscious fear of God and who love their country more than graft."—From the Southern Baptist Trumpet.

FAITH

Faith has been defined as "believing that God tells the truth." Faith is more than a mere mental act. It has a moral quality and it is an active agent. Paul speaks in his epistle of the "work of faith." And Jesus said: "This is the work of God that ye should believe on Him whom He has sent." It is this strong faith that John says overcomes the world.—Ex.

OUR STORY PAGE

WHEN BILLY WAS KIDNAPPED

Mrs. Barrett sat on her wide porch knitting a sweater out of gold-colored yarn. It was intended to embellish a new golf costume in which she accompanied her banker husband to the links at the Country Club, where he got most of his much needed exercise. Like her husband, Mrs. Barrett was stout and florid, a condition which came from having plenty of ease, a good cook in the kitchen and an unlimited credit at Mr. Houlehan's superior grocery store.

Very comfortable and fair looked Mrs. Barrett as she sat knitting this delightful summer afternoon, while the honey-suckles threw off their golden perfume and the bees hummed and her three-year-old son, William, Jr., plied up and down the lawn in his expensive new automobile, painted green and fully equipped, save for motor power, which Billy's stout legs supplied. Mrs. Barrett had Billy where she could keep an eye on him for the reason that she lived in a continual fear of his being kidnapped.

It was Miss Stowe who had put the idea in Mrs. Barrett's head. Ideas usually had to be put in Mrs. Barrett's head; they did not grow there. Miss Stowe lived alone in the pretty house opposite, and she hadn't a thing in the world to do but to hear her parrot swear and watch her neighbors. She was sure that the child of Westmore's banker would sooner or later be in danger of the kidnapper and had so announced to Mrs. Barrett. As a consequence Mrs. Barrett kept her eye on Billy every moment that Avis, the reliable $10-a-week maid did not.

The telephone bell rang and Mrs. Barrett ran in to answer it. It was Miss Stowe, who had just read something dreadful in the Tattler and wanted to know if Mrs. Barrett had seen it. Those dreadful Serges had bought the house where they lived and Gordon Street had them permanently. Now wasn't that sad tidings? The Serges were quite beyond the pale of banker's families and moneyed old maids. There were six children and the father watched the Bell Street crossing and the mother was a good-natured slattern who didn't know a thing about sanitation. It was awful, horrible, shocking to have such folks in the neighborhood. "I knew when Jennie Pratt went away and left her house to be rented that trash would get into it. And now we've got them forever," cried Miss Stowe passionately. "Until they came there wasn't any objectionable feature here on Gordon Street, not a dog, nor cat, only dear little Billy and Honeydew, and I'm sure Honeydew is harmless enough." Honeydew was the parrot.

Five minutes later, when Mrs. Barrett returned to the porch, Billy was nowhere to be seen. His green auto stood empty.

She called, she hunted, she got Avis to call and hunt. Miss Stowe saw what was going on and came running out. Billy gone? Kidnapped! Of course. At that Mrs. Barrett had hysterics. Mr. Barrett was out of town, she hadn't an available relation or a friend nearer than Miss Stowe—Miss Stowe sent for the police. They came, gorgeously panoplied. Westmore's entire force, four crowded into a borrowed roadster. They beat through the shrubbery, they looked into the pond, they asked questions. Who had seen Billy last? Hazel Peters said she had seen a little red car going like everything, swoop through the street a moment before the alarm was given. Mrs.

Cryden said she had heard a scream. Old Mr. Mitt said that a mysterious car had kept its headlights turned on the Barrett house for ten minutes the night before. Little Carrie Wade, pie-eyed with imagination, said a queer-looking man had walked past the Barrett house three times that morning. The consensus was that Billy had been kidnapped for ransom. Mr. Barrett was notified by telegraph, extra police were called. Mrs. Barrett went to bed in a collapse and Doctor Hilton, arriving in haste, administered bromide and strychnine.

They searched far and near without avail. Miss Stowe enjoyed the first real excitement for years. After Mrs. Barrett, she was the center of attraction. Honeydew swore to empty ears; he capered on his perch, beat his wings, stood on his head with rage while his mistress, with folded arms, held audience on the front steps.

Hours passed. Afternoon arrived and the Tattler was just ready to get out an extra edition with dazzling headline, "Son of Banker Disappears!" Five times had young Boyd Walters, reporter for the Tattler, appeared on Gordon Street to gather news. Avis, swollen faced with weeping and incoherent, told all she knew. Miss Stowe told much more than she knew.

Three o'clock brought Mr. Barrett, scarlet and dripping with perspiration. His high-nosed car was splashed with mud, for he had sought every possible short cut. He barely looked at his moaning wife. Being efficient, he went to the telephone and called up the Tattler office and the chief of police. Half an hour later, damp from the press, startling lettered bills appeared in several public places, "$1,000 Reward!"

About that time a swarthy, tubby woman in a faded blue dress appeared in Gordon Street. She ambled casually by Miss Stowe's with a wide white-toothed smile. Obviously she was looking for somebody.

"It's that awful Serge woman," Miss Stowe said to the little group on her steps. They looked after her scornfully. "What can she want on this street?"

The Serge woman ambled down and ambled back. Then Miss Stowe overhauled her.

"Who are you looking for?" she demanded.

"That man's house where the lil' boy got lost," returned Mrs. Serge amiably.

"What for?"

"Oh, 'cause." Mrs. Serge broadly grinned.

"Do you suppose she knew anythin'?" asked Mrs. Lippitt.

"How could she?" Miss Stowe sniffed. She pointed. "That's the house over there."

The woman went to the front steps, changed her mind and went around to the back door. An instant later Avis' voice was heard ascending in a shriek. Still another instant and Mr. Barrett dashed out of the house and plunged into his waiting car; he waited only long enough for the Serge woman to take a seat beside him before he broke the speed limit in his flight.

Ten minutes later he returned with the missing child. A waving of handkerchiefs and cries of joy went up from the group on Miss Stowe's steps. All the same they were disappointed.

Billy Barrett had been found. In fact he had never been lost at all. Lacking society, and free for an instant from his mother's watchful eye, he had wandered forth in search of someone to play with. He had come to the little house beside the crossing where Mr. Serge kept watch, had strolled in and finding it impossible to understand Mr. Serge's jargon or for

Mr. Serge to understand his he had promptly gone to sleep. He had awakened refreshed and had had his dinner from Mr. Serge's pail—dark looking bread and onions and a red pepper. When Mr. Serge's "trick" came to a close he had taken Billy home with him and he had been having the time of his life playing with the smaller Serges when Mr. Serge, who had gone to the news-stand after some tobacco, had seen the poster—" $1,000 Reward!" He had hurried home to tell Mrs. Serge and she had fared forth to the bankers, discreetly keeping in the background meanwhile.

And that was all there was to the kidnapping of Billy Barrett except that Mr. Barrett really paid the $1,000 to Mr. Serge, who refused to take it.

"Na—Na! Me like lil fella, na—na!" protested Mr. Serge.

But Mr. Barrett insisted and it was Mrs. Serge who finally took the money. The $1,000 gave them their home free and clear. And because they were simple, kindly, honest folk who minded their own business, even Miss Stowe had to admit that she did not begrudge them their good fortune.

LICKING JIMMIE

Jimmie was the strongest boy in his school. He could saw wood, carry heavy baskets of fruit, climb trees, and run faster than anyone he knew, and when he got into a fight he fought fair and always won.

After a while he grew very proud of his record. He began to boast about how strong his arms and legs were, and how easy it was for him to lift heavy things.

One day his mother heard him. But although she knew how well he could run and lift and fight, she did not call him a strong boy. Her very good reason was this.

Every time anything went wrong at home or in school, Jimmie lost his temper. His tongue ran away with him. He let it say all kinds of cruel and thoughtless and impatient things, and he kept on saying them until his temper cooled.

One day, when his mother heard him boast how strong he was, she called him to her and said: "Jimmy, you have one foe whom you have never once beaten in a fight."

Jimmie looked surprised and interested.

"Who?" he asked, puzzled.

"Yourself," said his mother.

"Me?" said Jimmie. "What do you mean, mother?"

His mother said: "Day before yesterday, I asked you to bring up some wood in the morning and you forgot it. I let it go until afternoon, and then I asked you again. Instead of taking five minutes of your time in bringing up the wood, you said: 'Don't waste my time, mother. I'm busy.' When I insisted, you lost your temper and said the same old things. I always try to forget you have said them, because I know your temper has run away with you. That is the way you very often get beaten, Jimmie; and I think, until you can fight that enemy and lick him, you'd better not boast any more about how strong you are."

Jimmie hung his head. He knew what his mother said was true. But after a little while he forgot about it, because things went pretty smoothly.

One day his father asked him to take an important letter at once to the postoffice. Jimmie was within ten minutes of finishing an airplane model.

"What's your hurry, father?" said he. "Can't a fellow ever have any time to himself? I'll go as soon as I finish this."

"It is necessary that this letter be sent at once," replied his father.

Jimmie's face grew as black as a thunder-cloud, and before he knew what he was doing, he had thrown his fine new airplane straight at his father. His father had never seen Jimmie throw things about, though many a time he had heard him lose his temper.

The airplane crashed past his father and fell, a wrecked heap, on the floor.

And then, before Jimmie could open his mouth, he remembered his talk with his mother.

Without a word he picked up the letter and ran as fast as he could go to the post office. Perhaps he was trying to run away from his tongue, but of course it went with him. But the first time in his life he kept his lips tight shut upon it.

It was almost dark when he got back and supper was on the table. Jimmie came in, very silent.

His father said: "Thank you, Jimmie. You made some speed to the post office. I think you ought to get a good job as a special delivery boy."

Jimmie mumbled, "Thank you, father." To be praised, after what he had done, was too much.

After supper he went to his room, and tried to study, but he couldn't keep his mind on his lessons. He kept thinking of the way he had thrown that airplane at his father. At last he got up, when he heard his father come upstairs, and followed him to his room.

"Father, I'm sorry," he stammered. Nor did he stop there. He told his father what his mother had said about his having one enemy he had not beaten. "I was so proud of my legs, father, of how fast I could run, how well I could fight with my strong arms, too, and what heavy things I could carry. But mother was right. I got beaten the other day when she asked me to bring up wood, and today I got liked worse, when you asked me to go to the post office. Father, you won't catch me getting licked like that again." Jimmie stalked out of the room.

His mother was just in the hall and had heard Jimmie's last words.

"Good for you, Jimmie," was all she said.

But it took a long time to "lick Jimmie," as he called it. He had to fight hard, and often; but every time he was afraid of losing out, he would slip away to his room and open the door of his closet. Can you guess what was inside? The wrecked pieces of his precious airplane.—Katherine Harrington, in Christian Register.

THAT LADDER A DREAM

A man dreamt that he built a ladder from earth to heaven, and when he did a good deed up went his ladder a few feet. When he did a very good deed his ladder went higher, and when he gave away large sums of money to the poor, up it went further still. By and by it went out of sight, and as years rolled on, it went up, he thought, past the clouds, clear into heaven. When he died he thought he would step off his ladder into heaven, but he heard a voice roll out from paradise:

"He that climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber."

Down he came, ladder and all, and he awoke. He said if he wanted to get salvation he must get it in another way than by good deeds, and he took the other way, which is by Jesus Christ.—D. L. Moody.

To the Leader

Try having a "pair meeting," if you have not recently had such a meeting. Have everything done in pairs: two leaders, boy and girl; duet, same; and in the scripture reading, too. Let each leader be equally responsible for the whole meeting.

The Scripture may be used as a basis for several short talks.

Ask two young men to write at least a paragraph on "My Ideal Young Woman," and two young women to write on "My Ideal Young Man." These may be read at the end of the meeting, for they will likely sum up the salient points of the topics.

Use any of these hymns: "Smile," "It Pays to Serve Jesus," "More Love to Thee, O Christ," "Help Somebody Today," "Take Time to Be Holy."

Have someone memorize and recite this bit of poetry:

MYSELF

I have to live with myself, and so
I want to be fit for myself to know;
Always to look myself straight in the eye,
I don't want to stand with the setting sun
And hate myself for the things I've done.
I want to go out with my head erect,
I want to deserve all men's respect,
I don't want to look at myself and know
That I'm bluster and bluff and empty show.

I can never fool myself, and so
Whatever happens I want to be Self-respecting and conscience free.

The Leader's Talk

Ours is a social world and we are social beings. We all feel the need of friends and it is perfectly natural that we should, for God has made us in that manner. Friends play a great part in our lives, for "We are a part of all that we have met." Those with whom we come in contact become influences in molding our lives through the channels of opinions, ideals and character. Someone has said: "Character is so largely affected by association that we cannot be indifferent as to whom and what friends are. They write their names in our albums, but they do more. They help make us what we are. Therefore, be careful in selecting them; and when wisely selected never sacrifice them." Friends may either make or mar a life. We need to consider carefully friendship between the sexes. In testing the friendship between a boy and a girl the friendship is wholesome if it calls forth the best.

Topics

I. Have a girl lead a discussion, What does a girl admire in a boy?

Some of the things are:

1. Strength of character.
2. Courage.
3. Manliness.
4. Tenderness.
5. Ambition.
6. Intelligence.
7. Honesty.
8. Understanding.

II. Let a boy lead the other side of the question:

1. Beauty or physical attractiveness.
2. Character.
3. Skill in some line.
4. Unselfishness.
5. Intelligence.
6. Attractive personality.
7. Convictions.

III. Have similar talks made on what boys and girls despise in each other.

To Be Answered

1. Are girls more religious than boys?
2. How would you deal with the flatterer?
3. Should anything be tolerated in boys that is condemned in girls? The double standard?
4. What do you look for when you look for a friend?
5. What do you think about women entering the business and professional world and its bearing on the attitude of the sexes toward one another?

Prose

He removes the greatest ornament of friendship who takes away its respect.—Cicero.

Propriety of manners and consideration of others are the main characteristics of a gentleman.—Steele.

A happy home cannot be made without team work. The self-willed person creates trouble all around. Consideration, give and take, a willingness to give in, these make success.—Worth.

Intermediate Topic: "The Kind of Friend I'd Like to Be"

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

REPORT FROM WINSTON

The Mission Club of the First Methodist Protestant Church of Winston-Salem met Friday evening with Mr. Beverly Milloway, Jr., with 12 members, two new members and two visitors present.

Mr. Archie Smith, president, presided and conducted devotionals with Mrs. J. E. Kirk leading in prayer.

Various committee reports were made and the society voted to have a social in the near future; also to pack a box for the Children's Home.

During the social hour stunts and contests carrying out the Halloween idea were enjoyed, after which delicious refreshments were served.

ALCOHOL

The Age of Speed has no place for alcohol as a beverage. Alcoholic liquors cause inefficiency, error, delay, and carelessness. They are opposed to the demands of the age.

The Age of Reason has no place for alcohol as a beverage. Alcoholic liquor beclouds the intellect, degrades and destroys the finest faculties of the brain and produces contentment with undesirable conditions. It is the handmaid of ignorance.

The Age of Progress has no place for alcohol as a beverage. Alcoholic liquor is a drag on the chariot wheel, keeping the poor in poverty, maintaining festering social conditions, producing crime, disease, degeneracy and death.

The Age of Peace has no place for alcohol as a beverage. It has no place for the liquor traffic which produces brutality and strife in the home, discord in the national life, conflict in international relations—and brawling everywhere.—The Vanguard of New Zealand.

NOTES OF CONFERENCE

—Memorial service was held in the presence of a crowded house Sunday afternoon in honor of five ministers deceased within the year—J. H. Moton, J. F. Alexander, W. C. Hall, W. P. Martin, H. D. Garmon; also the wives of two minister—Mrs. W. W. Amick and Mrs. L. S. Helms. Rev. W. F. Kennett made the memorial address.

—On Thursday night the Conference and visitors were well entertained and instructed by a pageant presented under the direction of Miss Mary Young, of High Point College.

—The Conference Brotherhood received six new members at its meeting Thursday afternoon. The new officers are Dr. J. D. Williams, president; Rev. H. F. Surratt, vice-president; Rev. R. A. Hunter, secretary and treasurer; Rev. C. W. Bates and Rev. J. E. Pritchard, trustees.

—The Children's Home Day was of extraordinary interest. Dr. and Mrs. Dixon had some of the children with them who went upon the platform. Dr. Dixon says he hopes to see some much needed additions to the equipment of the Home in the near future. He has already in hand some large contributions for this purpose. He will tell more about this from time to time. Bro. J. M. Millikan presided at this meeting and Capt. A. M. Rankin read his report as treasurer. Brother Dixon who manages the Home farm was also present with his wife. The Children's Home has a warm place in many hearts, but it is large enough to fill many more hearts. Why not every Sunday school be a monthly contributor to the Children's Home?

—High Point College had its hour at 11 o'clock on Saturday, President R. M. Andrews, presiding. The urgent needs of the college were set forth and some facts to show that the management has been economical. We believe the vote to come to the rescue of the college was unanimous.

—The ladies who served meals in the Hut of Calvary church were gratified to hear many expressions of satisfaction from their guests, and were pleased to find when the end came that they had lost no money, but on the contrary had gained some.

—We believe this Conference had a larger influx of visitors day after day than we ever noted before. Calvary church is very accessible and we are glad our friends are finding us and coming to see us. (Our ordinary congregations have been better of late).

—Kind neighbors gave the use of rooms in their houses for committee meetings. This was an appreciated favor.

—While the Conference was waiting for the Stationing Committee's report Monday afternoon some of the brethren indulged themselves in pleasantries. One brother had made out a list of assignments for the preachers by lot and he was called upon to read it. Some objected, however, and the list was not read. The mood of the body changed and several of the brethren made most serious speeches regarding the worth of the Methodist Protestant Church, which had an inspiring effect.

—Rev. C. W. Bates, secretary of Conference, was very tired when the end came. On Tuesday afternoon he hid away to Asheville for a few days' rest, leaving Rev. C. B. Way at the typewriter, copying the minutes for the printers.

—Rev. A. W. Plyler's fraternal address, representing the M. E. Church, South, was a gem. It was short and pointed and well seasoned with humor and warmed with fraternal spirit. From which comment you will see that I am thinking of the kind of gems we like to see on the breakfast table. President Taylor's response was most fitting.

—Rev. Lawrence Little, Secretary of the Department of Christian Education, addressed a large congregation Sunday evening. We have been hearing him for years. He has always been earnest, but we detect a deeper spiritual note. He wishes not only to interest the young people, but to help save them to true and noble living, that is, Christian living.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

High Point.—In the absence of the pastor, Prof. C. R. Hinshaw introduced Rev. Fred W. Paschall, D. S. T., of Asheville, as the speaker of the hour, and also as one of the outstanding and rising young ministers of the denomination in North Carolina. He chose as the basis of his discourse Luke 9:51—"He steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem," and said in part: "The longer I strive to lead the Christian life and the wider my observation, the more convinced I am that we as Christian people must set up an ideal, and although there are many things to call us aside from the path of duty and righteousness, we, too, must have that steadfastness of faith and a full and complete surrender of life to God. Lives that are not surrendered to God lack power. If I were to write a book (which I probably never shall do), I would call it "The Tragedies of Life," and among the most painful tragedies I would list the partially surrendered life. These are testing days, when Jesus needs us; He needs our whole-hearted devotion and allegiance. Another dark tragedy is when you and I hold back something. Does this old world need anything more than righteousness, joy, and peace? What is duty, anyway? It is far nobler to serve and sacrifice from a motive of love than a mere sense of duty. A mother will cling to her child, tenderly nurse it through long vigils of the night in desperate illness, sacrifice time, strength, and life itself in its behalf, and she glories in that sacrifice because of her pure, unselfish love, and not from a sense of duty. Thus we should have steadfast faith and the spirit of martyrdom in God's work on earth." The congregation greatly enjoyed this strong sermon by an able and promising young minister, and thanks the committee which sent him to speak for us.

There was no evening service, for our pastor was speaking at Calvary church, Greensboro, the seat of the Annual Conference. We are delighted to learn that both pastor, Rev. R. I. Farmer, and his associate, Rev. E. Lester Ballard, have been returned to First Church for another year's work. And thus with grateful thanks for manifold blessings in the year just past, and with hearts and hands hopeful and eager for service in the days ahead of us, we face the future bravely, "without fear and with manly hearts," and with this little prayer on our lips:

"These are the gifts I ask of Thee:
Spirit serene;
Strength for the daily task;
Courage to face the road;
Good cheer to help me bear the traveler's load;
And for the hours of rest that come between
An inward joy of all things heard and seen."

Appropriate to Armistice Day, the Christian Endeavor Society discussed the topic, "Up-rooting the Causes of War," at their weekly assembly Monday evening.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its general monthly meeting Monday afternoon with a good attendance, Mrs. S. S. Coe, presiding.

Mrs. E. L. Ballard had charge of the program, and used the one outlined for November in the Yearbook, called "Taking Stock of Myself." After a brief prayer, Mrs. R. I. Farmer played softly on the piano, "I Am Thine, O Lord," and Mrs. Ballard read Malachi 3:8-18, the theme being, "Bring Ye All the Tithes Into the Storehouse." She then read a beautiful and touching Armistice Day story, which was thoroughly enjoyed. The business of the day was then taken up, and reports were heard from circle chairmen and various committees. The treasurer reported proceeds from our bazaar and meals on October 31st at $300.00. Since the merger of our three societies April 1st the Auxiliary has raised a total of $1,930. Circle No. 7, Mrs. Ben T. Moore, chairman, won the prize of $10 for selling the largest number of tickets, which amounted to 80, for the turkey supper, and No. 6, Mrs. P. S. Kennett, chairman, sold 76 tickets, thereby winning second prize of $5. Mrs. A. M. Rankin's circle ran them a close race with 72 sold. Circle No. 8, Mrs. J. G. Snipes, chairman, sold the largest number of articles in the bazaar, and realized $27.15, but there was no prize for this project. The women are so much pleased with the result of this first venture, that they decided to hold another bazaar, including plant sale, and chicken dinner next spring.

Nine mission study books, "From Jerusalem to Jerusalem," have been ordered for use in the circles. The Yearbook of programs is being used, and each member is expected to get a copy. The need for a leader of the Mission Club, a group of boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 16, has been evident for several months, and Mesdames R. I. Farmer and J. C. Whitesell were asked to try to secure that leader.

The subject for discussion at the usual mid-week prayer service will be "Conditions Limiting God's Power."

Mrs. C. L. Whitaker and Mrs. H. U. Oakes went to Lexington to attend funeral services for their aunt, Mrs. Charles M. Thompson, who was the widow of Capt. C. M. Thompson, who passed away nearly three years ago. This splendid couple lived to celebrate the 50th anniversary of their marriage, and they were among the most highly esteemed and best loved residents of Lexington. Mrs. Thompson was nearly 81 years of age, and was Miss Mittie Peebles, of Davie County, before her marriage. Funeral services were conducted in the Lutheran church, to which Capt. and Mrs. Thompson were the largest contributors.

Mrs. W. P. Pickett, who has been seriously ill, is improving, her many friends will be pleased to learn. She is taking treatments at High Point Hospital.

Elbaville, Mocksville Circuit.—Attendance at Sunday school Sunday morning was unusually fine. We are proud of the attitude that our folks take toward Sunday worship during the winter months.

Our pastor, Rev. J. W. Braxton, filled his last appointment the first Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. As this was the bringing of another Conference year to a close he delivered an inspiring sermon on "Christ's Challenge to You," which was enjoyed by a large congregation. Mr. Braxton has led us in fields of spiritual food and over the mountain tops of vision and glory, and, furthermore, we have walked together in service. We use as our motto, "The Higher You Climb the Broader the View." We as his people love him and are praying that the Lord may see fit to send him to minister unto us again. We hope wherever he may work that success will be his final end.

Business meeting was held just before church service, in order to elect and re-elect church officers for the coming year. Our officials are such energetic workers that only one change was made.

The doors of the church were opened after the service. We have had the pleasure of welcoming into our church this year eight new members. Three of them came from neighboring Baptist churches.

Christian Endeavor is progressing nicely. We owe what our society is to our pastor. We are thankful that we had a man with such willingness and ability to lead and inspire the young people to go toward higher and nobler things. We pray our richest blessing upon our pastor wherever he may be, now and forevermore.

STELLA BAILEY, Reporter.

Bethesda, Halifax Charge.—The pastor being away at Conference, we missed our regular service yesterday, second Sunday. From recent developments it seems we are likely to lose Mr. Spencer. After his five years of faithful service among us, we feel that we can say he is a good preacher, a good man and a good neighbor. The reporter and family are among the many who will be very sorry to give him up, if he is sent elsewhere. We do not know who will be his successor, but feel that the Conference will send us a good man, who will be cordially welcomed.

Finances are somewhat behind, though part of balance due has been "vouched for" and Mr. Spencer wired to that effect. Pastor's salary was paid in full at this church, but A. C. B. is a few dollars short.

REPORTER.

Stallings, Mecklenburg Charge.—The first Sunday in this month Bro. Harrison preached his last sermon before going to Conference. We have enjoyed hearing the many soul-stirring sermons that he has brought to us.

The Ladies' Aid Society is getting along just fine. We have several new members. We met at the home of Mrs. P. L. Garmon November 6. We opened our meeting with a song, "Onward, Christian Soldiers." We then had a chain of prayer. Mrs. Paul Curlee read a sermon on "What Are You Doing?" "Love Never Faileth" was read by Mrs. P. L. Garmon. Mrs. Arch McLeod read a piece on "Our Fingerprints." We then had the roll call, after which we re-organized. Mrs. M. L. Stallings was re-elected president; Mrs. P. L. Garmon, vice-president; Mrs. Carl Stallings, secretary; Mrs. J. E. Hartis, treasurer; Mrs. Paul Curlee, reporter; social committee, Mrs. M. L. Stallings, Mrs. Arch McLeod, Mrs. John Garmon; program committee, Mrs. Curlee, Mrs. Garmon, Mrs. Hartis; lookout committee, Mrs. George Garmon and Miss Mary Kindley.

Mrs. Garmon invited us into the dining room. As this was her birthday the centerpiece was a white birthday cake holding pink tapers. She served chicken salad, cake and coffee. She received many useful gifts.

We will meet with Miss Ruth Garmon the first Thursday in December.

We ask the prayers of all Christian people that our society may grow stronger each day.
MRS. PAUL CURLEE, Reporter.

Winston.—The Philathea class met Monday evening with Mrs. Felix Adams on High street with Miss Marie Scott, associate hostess. There were 13 members and three visitors present. Mrs. W. C. Tise presided, with Miss Nannie Watson conducting devotionals and leading in prayer. Mrs. W. C. Tise was elected president succeeding Mrs. Roy Hauser, who recently resigned. The following committees were appointed: Entertainment committee, Mrs. W. D. Coble, Miss Margaret Maston and Mrs. G. A. King; a year program committee, Mrs. W. C. Tise, Mrs. J. W. Hill, Mrs. B. K. Millaway, Mrs. J. E. Kirk, Miss Nannie Watson.

A delightful social hour followed during which the hostesses, assisted by Mrs. J. T. Cale and Mrs. A. C. Houtchins, served a delicious salad course.

MRS. J. E. KIRK, Reporter.

Graham.—The reporter wishes to rectify a mistake which occurred in the last report. On the night of October 20th, women's night, Mrs. H. M. Rogers discussed "Woman's Place in the Church," one of the three themes discussed in that service.

In accordance with the plans of the pastor for the year, the Lord's Supper was administered Sunday at the morning hour for worship, it being the first Sunday of the month.

October 27th was Decision and Rally Day in the church and Sunday school. At the invitation 25 children gave their lives into the keeping of Him who said, "Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven." All of them joined the church. Two others, Mrs. F. A. Slate and Mrs. Hal Anglin, joined by letter. The membership of the church welcomes these into their midst and wishes for them a happy, useful Christian life.

The fourth quarterly conference voted unanimously on last Wednesday evening for the return of Mr. Minnis for another year. We earnestly pray that the Annual Conference may see fit to send him to us again.

Circles Nos. 1 and 3 of the Woman's Auxiliary met Monday evening with Mrs. James Black and Mrs. N. E. Sykes, respectively. Mrs. J. F. Minnis was hostess to Circle No. 2 Tuesday evening. Good attendance was reported at each meeting.
REPORTER.

First Church, Thomasville.—We have closed a very successful year. I was called here the first Sunday in December, 1928. We found a good people and have enjoyed the short stay with them. We came when the church was facing serious problems. We have battled through as best we could. Our God has been our stay and strength.

We have had 25 conversions among the children; 19 additions to membership; one given certificate; the Sunday school reached 209, the high water mark during the year.

When we came we found old people just one block away that did not know of and could not tell me where the First Methodist Protestant Church was. When I would be introducing myself to strangers here and there as the pastor of the First Methodist Protestant Church of Thomasville: "I never heard of that church before; where is it?" When I located it: "Oh, yes, 'Hog Eye.'" This church is now known pretty well as the First Methodist Protestant Church of Thomasville.

The year closed with a large assembly of men, women, boys and girls at church to close the business of the year. Pastor's salary was reported to be paid in full. A motion was made to instruct delegate to bring Bro. Powell back, or some other good man. Motion was carried by practically every one standing. The meeting closed and pastor remained standing, talking; people all remained. Finally the good-natured Vance P. Garrett came to the pastor and wanted to borrow his 'church paper. The pastor excused himself to wait on this brother. While we were looking for the church paper a great noise was heard: Tramp! Tramp! Tramp! We surrendered and the entire parsonage was taken and mob commenced to pound the pastor and family until the dining room was groaning under the weight of good things to eat. The pastor and family escaped harm, but benefited by perhaps twenty dollars' worth of groceries. Some speech-making; prayer was offered by the pastor. We can't call names of all present or names of articles brought us. God knows all who participated and each article of food brought us and will reward each of them. We commend them to the new pastor and bid them God-speed and all blessings upon them and their pastor. May this be a great year for you and the Kingdom.

May peace and all prosperity be yours.

H. L. POWELL.

North Davidson Charge.—Dear Brethren: You have been made a new charge—Bethesda, Mount Pleasant, Canaan, Spring Hill, and I have been assigned to you as your first pastor. I call a meeting of all officials of these four churches at Canaan on Wednesday, November 20th, 1929, at 2 o'clock p. m. Let all be interested and be there with a determination to make this a great year for our Master.

Brethren, we are not strangers to each other. I have been to all these churches. One I was pastor of for seven years. I knew them as the best of people. We had good years and I believe we will again.

May God bless you. Meet me at Canaan Methodist Protestant Church Wednesday, November 20th, 1929, at 2 p. m.

H. L. POWELL.

Friendship, Fallston Circuit.—The fourth Sunday afternoon in October the pastor, Rev. J. M. Morgan, preached his last sermon of the Conference year. The Lord's Supper was served.

At the close of the service officers and the Sunday school superintendent were elected for the ensuing year.

We are sorry that our faithful superintendent, Mr. N. J. Wright, or better known as "Grandpa," had a light stroke of paralysis Saturday evening, November 9th. He has served as superintendent for about 60 years. We appreciate what he has done and is still doing. His many friends wish for him a speedy recovery and hope he will soon be back to fill his place at Sunday school.

We are glad to say that Rev. J. D. Morris, who has been sick in the Shelby Hospital, is still improving.

The Christian Endeavor Society has done a splendid work during the year.

This year has been one for very good attendance both for Sunday school and church services. We are striving to make the coming Conference year a more successful one than the past.
REPORTER.

Moriah.—We are starting the new church year with better attendance both at Sunday school and church service. We hope to make this the best year yet.

Yesterday we were very glad to have Rev. H. L. Powell, one of our former pastors, worship with us; also Rev. M. P. Chambliss, who preached for us at the 11 o'clock service.

On the fourth Sunday in October the new church and Sunday school officers were installed in a very impressive installation service following the regular 11 o'clock service.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society held a delightful Halloween social at the church on the third Saturday afternoon in October.

Tuesday night, October 13, we gave our pastor and his wife an old-fashioned pounding. After the pounding the Ladies' Aid Society presented them with a lovely memory quilt.
REPORTER.

Siler City.—The Conference year has come to a close. Our pastor, Rev. J. C. Russell, preached his last sermon to us the first Sunday in this month, and it was an enjoyable day. The Lord's Supper was administered and almost every one partook of this solemn feast.

Just after the morning service officers for the coming year were elected. They are as follows: Church treasurer, Mr. L. L. Wrenn; stewards, Messrs. L. L. Wrenn, J. Wade Siler, J. A. Cooper, C. H. Fox, Miss Clatie F. Andrew, and Mrs. D. L. Johnson; pianist, Mrs. C. E. Brady; reporter, Mrs. J. A. Cooper; Sunday school superintendent, W. E. Sharpe; assistant superintendent, E. D. Woody. They were to have been installed at the evening service, but owing to the downpour of rain and not many being present, it was postponed until a later date.

Our pastor, being away on last Wednesday evening, Mr. L. L. Wrenn filled his place at prayer meeting. He read the 91st Psalm and gave us an interesting and inspiring talk, such as Mr. Wrenn can give. We had a good crowd and every one enjoyed hearing Mr. Wrenn as we always do.

We have a real live Sunday school and every one seems to take an interested part. Yet there are so many who do not attend Sunday school any place. Surely they do not know what they are missing.

On October 10th we elected teachers for the entire Sunday school. We have real wide-awake teachers for each class and I feel sure we can have a good school through the coming year as we have had.

Miss Ruth VonCanon, from Lexington, spent the week-end with Miss Minnie Cooper. We were glad to have her visit our Sunday school.

Our Woman's Auxiliary, with Mrs. L. L. Woody as president, is divided into two circles and are doing a very good work, although more of our members should take more interest in this great work.

Mrs. Emma B. Siler is spending some time at her old home in Liberty. We miss her so much in church, Sunday school, Auxiliary and Circle meetings. We hope she will soon return home.

The C. E. Society has elected new officers for the year and are doing a good work. May we all work together for the best year for every church in the history of our denomination.

MRS. J. A. COOPER, Reporter.

Albemarle.—The flower show and bazaar held by the Ladies' Aid Society on November 2 proved to be a great success from every standpoint. Over 100 entries were made in the flower show and for the best of these, 41 valuable prizes were given. These were donated by the merchants of the city. Chrysanthemums were the main center of attraction and they were of all sizes and colors.

There were many beautiful hand-made articles offered for sale during the afternoon and these were all easily disposed of.

A delicious supper consisting of chicken salad, noodles, ice cream, cake and coffee was served from 5 to 8 o'clock and this feature proved a great success.

Many were heard to state that they were going to endeavor to have more beautiful flowers next year, as this gave them a vision of the possibilities within reach of the flower-lovers of the county.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Moton delightfully entertained the members of Mr. Moton's class of young boys and girls at a Halloween party Friday night, November 1, at their home. The guests came in costume and the variegated colors blended with the colorful decorations of autumn leaves, black cats, and yellow tapers.

Games and ghost-tales were engaged in throughout the evening, which proved very interesting and amusing.

Refreshments were served, carrying out the Halloween idea to perfection. About 25 guests enjoyed this delightful affair and we wish to congratulate Mr. Moton for having such a fine bunch of young people in his class.

The Ladies' Aid Society met in regular session Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. P. Green, with Mrs. B. C. Burleson as joint hostess. The regular routine of business was carried out, all committees reporting encouraging activities in each line of work.

It was decided that we sponsor a play to be brought here by members of a Charlotte church. These players have previously given one play here, and acquitted themselves in a most admirable manner.

We were indeed glad to add Mrs. J. W. Hornbuckle to our membership. Mrs. Hornbuckle was formerly a member before leaving the city, and we welcome her back to our ranks.

During the social hour the hostesses served a delicious plate of refreshments, carrying out the Thanksgiving idea.

A CHOICE BETWEEN CIVILIZATIONS

By Ernest H. Cherrington, LL.D., Litt.D.

General Secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism

The ultimate type of civilization developed in this country will be determined by the final attitude taken by the American people upon the prohibition question. Ultimately the issue is, not merely how much alcohol may be permitted in legal beverages, but whether the nation will continue to develop our high pressure industrial civilization or, abandoning this, revert to some modification of one of the various "cultures" prevalent in Europe.

No one disputes that the civilization of wine-using countries is historic, beautiful and of a very high order. Equally indisputable is the fact that it is essentially different from the civilization we have been evolving in this land. Ivy-covered ruins, traditions that reach back through centuries and give color and life to the customs and habits of today, a classicism which expresses itself not alone in literature and art but through more or less well defined social distinctions which sometimes approach the caste system, leisure, patina: all these have their charm. They are a part of the heritage of an aristocracy which still gives color even to such democracy as prevails in the old world. In that civilization wine has played its part.

Compared to the ancient civilizations in the wine countries of the world, American life may seem crude to some. Mass production is one of the keynotes of our life. Standardization is a shibboleth. We have set our tempo not to the measured pace of an historic past—although we have through inheritance an equal claim upon those legacies of history bequeathed by the past generations of Europe—but to the present and the future. In that quickened pace of swiftly-moving men and machinery, there is no place for the retarding enemy of speed, beverage alcohol. When expert students of our industrial life such as Herbert Hoover, Henry Ford, Roger Babson, Irving Fisher, Thomas N. Carver, Paul H. Nyström, Herman Feldman, B. C. Forbes—to name only a handful out of a host—find that our production ratio, our standards of living, our high wages, our general distribution of wealth and prosperity or our homes and automobile ownership have a direct relation to our policy of national prohibition, it is quite evident that the type of civilization now developing in America can be maintained only by the continuance of that policy. There may be more romance, more ivy, more ruins, more long established social order, more charm in the wine civilizations of the old world than in what some love to call our raw, crude industrialism. It is noteworthy that Congress has been compelled to build a wall of immigration laws against an exodus from the wine lands to dry America. Thatched roofs and immemorial castles alike may be lacking in America, but equally lacking are the poverty, the hopelessness, the discomforts and the fixed social condition which is the lot of so many in other lands. While no wine shop portals swing open here to the seeker of surcease of sorrow in the flowing bowl, wide doors of opportunity open in their stead. None here are taught to be "content with that station in life to which it doth please the Lord to call them." Nor need any drug themselves with nepenthe or mandragora into forgetfulness of their hard lot.

The old challenge, "Under which king, Bezonian?" cannot be ignored. America may make herself a pale copy of Europe on a magnified scale with the wine and the beer which hitherto have been one of the significant factors in the character of civilization Europe has developed. We may turn from our high pressure industrial methods to the slower speed by which European workers earn from one-fourth to one-tenth the amount an American worker receives for a day's work. Instead of our present ratio of one automobile for every five people, we might reduce this number to the ratio of one to each 64 people which prevails throughout the world outside of the United States. Instead of democracy we might devise a stately although parasitic aristocracy. We might turn savings accounts into debts and exchange the widely diffused comfort and ease of the average American worker for the less enviable condition of his European fellow. We might substitute for the gateways of opportunity the swinging doors of the debit, the tavern, the inn and the wine shop. It could be done. More, it would be done if the apologists for the vintner and the brewer should have their way. But in the way of realization of their aims there stands the cold common sense of the American citizen who prefers crude American prosperity with prohibition to the alternative presented by the wine lands of the world.

A DEFIANT SPIRIT

Some cigarette smokers whether educators or blacksmiths radiate a defiant spirit toward any opposition to the free use of cigarettes.

To illustrate:

In Mrs. Mather's audience was one man of about 40 years—an excessive cigarette smoker. As he approached the booth he appeared somewhat defiant and picked up a cigarette from the tray of cigarettes which were there for demonstration purposes. He lighted it and began smoking, puffing the smoke in Mrs. Mather's face. It did not occur to him that there was anything unethical about what he was doing. He was somewhat defiant. But, after he watched the burning of the cigarette in the testing device and saw the liquid poison in the fumes trickling down in drops in the glass smoking tube and form a pool in the acute bend of the tube, he began to show real interest. And when he heard Mrs. Mather kindly and sympathetically explain that the liquid contains nicotine, pyridine, ammonia, and many other poisons, and that when he inhaled the cigarette fumes, he was simply spraying the delicate absorptive tissues of the head, throat and coils and tubes of the lungs with these poisons which are absorbed right into the blood stream—his very life—this once fine boy was no longer a defiant man. He manifested real interest and stood by like the other listeners and eagerly watched the demonstration, asked questions, took copies of the League's scientific literature, and wanted to know if he could be helped to overcome the habit.—The Cigarette News.

—We regret to hear of the death of Will H. Brown, of California. He has been for years a frequent and always highly esteemed contributor to our columns, trying to save the victims of the tobacco habit.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Templeton

An unusually large crowd attended the Memorial Service which was held in honor of Sidney Stokes Templeton at Union Grove Church last Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. The service was conducted by Mrs. Raymond Weisner, of Olin, N. C., and Mr. Blaine M. Madison, head of the English department at Union Grove High School, also of Olin. The program took up the entire Sunday school period and was one of unusual interest and significance, since it attempted to give an epic of Mr. S. S. Templeton, who died about a week ago. The large auditorium was filled almost to capacity and the audience expressed extreme grief and sympathy as the speakers related incidents of vital interest in the life of the dead brother.

The program was divided into three principal parts: Mrs. Raymond Weisner spoke on Mr. Templeton as a unit of the community; and Mr. Blaine M. Madison spoke on Mr. Templeton as a unit of the Union Grove School. Mrs. Weisner talked on the direct influence of the deceased as he shared his part of the responsibility at his church, and emphasized the fact that the church had lost a valuable member. Mr. Rash told the people of the all around activity of Mr. Templeton as a vital part of the rural community. Mr. Madison compared the influence of Mr. Templeton to the influence of the early civilizations, saying that we live today under their influence and likewise the units of Union Grove community live and are governed largely by the influence of the departed worker.

Mrs. S. R. Green

It is with sad hearts that we, the members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Methodist Protestant Church of Albemarle, N. C., record the sudden and unexpected death of our beloved friend and co-worker, Mrs. S. R. Green, which occurred September 26th, 1929.

We realize in her passing that the church has lost a useful and consecrated member, and the society a faithful and efficient member. Therefore, Be it Resolved:

First, that we bow in humble submission to the will of God, who saw fit to transplant this beautiful full-blown rose to a cherished spot in His garden;

Second, that we try to excel her lovely Christian character by greater service to our church and community, and devotion to the work she loved.

Third, that we express our heart-felt sympathy to her devoted husband, precious children, brothers, and sisters, and assure them that we share in their loss.

Fourth, that a copy of these resolutions be recorded in the records of the society, and that copies be sent to the Methodist Protestant Herald, and to the family of the deceased.

Respectfully submitted,

MRS. DON F. HELMS,

MRS. J. R. ANDERSON,

MRS. J. U. WHITLOCK,

Committee in Resolutions.

PLAN CHILD'S CLOTHES CAREFULLY

Since the clothes of children have a decided influence on their health and happiness, they should be selected and planned with careful consideration.

"Clothing should be designed so that every part of the body may have an unrestricted opportunity to work and grow," says Miss Willie Hunter, clothing specialist at State College. "Poorly fitted clothing may interfere with circulation, breathing or digestion. Since a child's bones are soft, it is necessary that there be no pulling or binding. This may cause round shoulders, weakened muscles, lame feet, nerves, displacement of certain organs and susceptibility to colds. Play helps children to develop strong, healthy bodies and clothes should be planned to make wholesome play possible."

Clothing has much to do with character. A child should be so clothed that he is entirely unconscious of his wearing apparel. Miss Hunter says that a child who is overdressed is likely to think too much about his clothes and to become affected and snobbish. Simple, attractive, substantial, clean and comfortable clothes will help to keep him from being self-conscious, will improve his disposition, will establish ideals and cultivate genuineness.

The child should also be taught to care for his own clothes and be taught early to dress himself. Clothes should be designed with as few fastenings and openings as possible and these placed so that he can adjust them. It is a splendid plan, says Miss Hunter, to have a hook or rod in one side of the closet that a child can call his own and encourage him to keep his clothes there in an orderly way.

Children's clothes today are simple but very attractive, says Miss Hunter.

THOS. EDISON'S FIRST KNIGHTLY DEED

In the Round Table Quest Ray W. Harden, chief knight for America, writes as follows—

It may be interesting to relate one of the early knightly deeds of our illustrious Honorary Knight. When Mr. Edison was a small boy it was the custom among his playmates to catch turtles, which were sold to a Chinaman for five to fifteen cents each. What the Chinaman did with these turtles was something of a mystery, which little Tommy Edison determined to solve.

Now Orientals in this country in those days were quite fearsome looking. They wore "pig tails," had long teeth and weird manners, and lived in strange-smelling laundries. Nevertheless, Tommy bearded this one in his den when delivering the next turtle.

The Chinaman, however, seemed flattered by the little boy's interest in his affairs, and invited him to "come see" what use he was making of the turtles. Placing the poor creature in a small tub, the Chinaman proceeded to pour a kettle of boiling water over it, which of course quieted the turtle in death after just a few feeble jumps.

"Make um volly soft — volly tender," explained the Chinaman. "Him velly good soup."

Tommy Edison ran horrified from the shop, and at once organized among his companions a "Society for the Protection of Turtles." This ended the local traffic in turtles, and the boys even spent some time hiding those they happened to meet to keep the Chinaman from finding them himself.—Our Dumb Animals.

MARRIED

On October 5, 1929, Miss Oma Bare, of near Liberty, N. C., was married to Mr. James Clyde Kivett, of Staley, N. C., R. F. D., at the home of the writer, in the presence of a few friends and relatives.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Whitaker, of Julian, N. C., on October 15, 1929, Miss Jennie Ethel Stout, of Julian, N. C., and Mr. Roy Leach, of White Sulphur Springs, West Va., were pronounced husband and wife. The beautiful ring ceremony of the M. P. church was used. The many friends of these fine young people wish them the richest blessings of life.

A POULTRY COURSE

Methods of handling, feeding, breeding and otherwise caring for poultry will be taught and demonstrated at a special short course for the poultrymen of North Carolina to be held at State College during the week of November 18 to 23.

"This is about the best time we can find poultrymen when they are not so busy," says Dr. B. F. Kaupp, head of the poultry department at State College. "The course will be free of charge to all citizens of the state and meals and lodging may be secured at low prices. A course of lectures will be given each forenoon followed by demonstrations and practical exercises in the afternoon. Last year about 100 persons attended this course when it was held in January. This year we hope to have three or four times that number."

Dr. Kaupp says that the lectures will include the practical aspects of handling the farm poultry flock. Much attention will be given to selection of breeding stock for producing birds which lay profitably. Housing the farm flock and feeding the birds through the various stages of chicks, range pullets and laying hens will be taught and demonstrated. Methods of sanitation about the poultry yard and the preparation of poultry and eggs for marketing will be two other interesting subjects. Caponizing, sticking, picking and trussing birds for market will be some of the laboratory demonstrations.

But the poultry experts will not do all of the work. Those who attend may expect to actually go through these operations and learn by doing them, says Dr. Kaupp. He states also that the North Carolina Poultry Association will hold its annual meeting during the week and further attention will be given to the formation of a strong organization. Over 50 of the counties now have poultry organizations.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Under this heading we have a number of splendid Harvest-Home donations to report, but since we have just returned from Conference with the work a bit behind, for lack of time we will ask you to wait for this report until next week.

We are so thankful for these Harvest donations. The fruit, preserves, jellies, and chickens are especially helpful in preparing school lunches for our children.

Thanksgiving

When you read this it will be a little less than two weeks to Thanksgiving. Please remember the Home, especially at that time. Pray for us and the children. Talk about us in your public meetings. And get every one possible to contribute one day's income for the support of the Home. Send along your personal offering if you will; but if it seems best to send it along in the midst of your Sunday school or church offering, just do that. You are the judge as to what method will get the most for the Home. We are depending upon the Lord and His children to give us a good lift at or near Thanksgiving. Thank you and God bless you.

Bazaar and Supper

We are looking forward to and planning for a bazaar and chicken-pie supper on Thursday evening from 5 o'clock to 9 o'clock. We are hereby inviting you to come and enjoy the occasion with us. We are also asking any who will to donate chickens, pickles and fruits for the supper. The ladies are also asked to send any articles for sale at the bazaar. Any help you may give in this will be thoroughly appreciated. We are just so pleased at and thankful for the response of our people to the needs of the Home during last year, and we are encouraged to believe that greater and better things will be done this year.

May God bless our pastors and people in God's Tomorrow

My tomorrow, your tomorrow,
Quite fill our minds with dread or hope;
We know not what the day will bring,
We give our fancy freest scope.

We fondly hope for brightest things,
We fear events will be quite tragic.
We hope and fear and fear and hope
As if the world were ruled by magic.

Upon the throne of all sits God:
He never nods or dreams or guesses;
He holds his hand upon the lever
That brings to us our true successes.

Decline and Fall of Dr. Charles Francis Potter

The writings of Dr. Charles Francis Potter, to those who paid attention to them, have given evidence of a mind tottering toward a fall. The fall has now come. He is down and out religiously. He was first a Baptist, then a Unitarian, then a Universalist. He was pastor of the Universalist Church of the Divine Paternity in New York City until recently. His teachings became unacceptable to his congregation and he resigned. Now he is trying to start a new "church" based on "Humanism," and denying almost everything that the religious world believes. He dispenses with the thought of God and recognizes only the natural system of forces. Instead of accepting the view that God created the world and man he asserts that the world and man evolved. Men willing to be led into the swamps and marshes of unbelief may go with him, but they will find little comfort in his company. Poor deluded soul! He is to be pitied.

Reality and Purpose of Divine Providence

Bible narratives abundantly illustrate the fact of divine providence in the affairs of earth. The story of Cornelius and Peter brings a good illustration. These men are brought together by God for the good of both. They might perhaps have been brought together without the aid of supernatural machinery, but God saw fit to employ an angel, voices and visions. Peter's trance perhaps took form from the recent sights of the tanyard, but the natural was supplemented by the supernatural. God is not limited to the mechanism of nature, and when His purposes require it He brings in supernatural factors.

We are all subjects of divine providence as Peter and Cornelius were. We may not see angels or hear supernatural voices, but God is working for our betterment. He prizes us as highly as He prized Cornelius if we have in us the same respect for God and love for men that he had. If we have not the virtues of Cornelius, God still works for our salvation as He wrought for the salvation of Saul on the road to Damascus.

The world takes on a very different aspect when we admit to our view the mighty and constant factor of divine providence. Before, the world was a mob of self-seeking men, each contending for his own advantage. When God enters, with His beneficent purpose for all men, the material struggles of men are seen in all their pettiness, and life takes on dignity and supreme worth because God is contending for our souls.

This thought of God's intervention for our individual souls is one of the most heartening revelations of the Bible. When God moves heaven and earth to compass our salvation, we may know that He attaches a value to our souls. We may not always at once recognize the hand of God in the events that mould our lives, but afterward we may come to see that God was in this thing and I knew it not. And where we cannot see we may still believe, for God's fatherhood over us implies His constant oversight and unceasing action for our supreme good. This fact of God's providence over us brings to us our strongest assurance of ultimate and complete salvation. If we have fully committed the keeping of our souls to Him, we know that they will be kept.

"Duties Never Conflict"

In our late Annual Conference there arose a difference of view as to the question of saving High Point College. One view was that the need of saving the college is so imperative as to justify giving to the effort temporary precedence over all work for the general church. The opposing view was that obligations to the general church take precedence of all local interests. The fact is we have obligations to general interests and to local interests both of which we must acknowledge, but this does not forbid giving precedence temporarily to one or the other. Conditions must determine when this should be done. A man broke his leg and sent his son after a doctor, bidding him ride with all haste. On the way the boy found his own brother struggling in the water, about to sink for the last time. Should he in such a case give precedence to the effort to save his own brother? There can be but one reasonable answer to the question. The boy would have been disloyal to his father had he not striven to save his other son.

We would be disloyal to the Methodist Protestant Church as a whole if we did not try now to save High Point College. We will hereafter do much more for the general church if we save High Point College than if we let it perish.

A MOVEMENT WITHOUT MONEY

(Campaign for More Children in the Sunday School Should be Kept Free From Usual Organization Methods)

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS

Something must be done, and done quickly and with vigor, about the reported condition that less than half the children of the land are in Sunday Schools.

Protestants, Roman Catholics and Jews are alike concerned in the nation's present failure to give religious training to childhood and youth.

If any real Child Welfare work is to be done by President Hoover's Commission on Child Welfare it must be undergirt by the work of the churches in planting moral and religious standards and impulses in the life of childhood.

A recent article proposing a five-year campaign for the doubling of Sunday School enrollment has been widely reprinted in the religious press. In some quarters active steps have been taken to put the plan into immediate effect. There is no division of opinion anywhere upon the fundamental importance of giving every child a fair chance to know the clear teachings of Scripture upon character and conduct. Any nation, community or church that neglects the spiritual culture of its boys and girls is manifestly failing in a primary responsibility.

In our new zest to "do something about it," the old American bogey of organization at once arises. In one case, a new society has been proposed and a financial budget called for, to carry on an intensive activity for the promotion of an increase of attendance upon the Sunday School.

May it not be said, bluntly and even indiscreetly, that this is one movement which should march without the shackles of over-organization or the loaf of money-raising? Not a man or woman anywhere should get a salaried job out of this effort to do with increased efficiency the Church's basic work. There is no necessity for new literature, or any other expense, except as legitimately provided by the local Sunday School, church and denomination. If the task of recruiting the Sunday Schools to full strength cannot be done by the voluntary efforts of concerned Christians, it cannot be done at all.

Here is a situation that makes its appeal to every normal Christian, and to every normal parent. It must be remedied by local action. In every neighborhood there are children who receive no religious instruction: in the nation as a whole, their number exceeds the total of those already enrolled in Sunday Schools. Obviously, the indicated procedure is for the absentees to be found and brought in, mostly by other girls and boys, incited by their teachers, parents and pastors. The methods may be as varied as the ingenuity of concerned Christians can suggest, but the one objective is to get the boys and girls into the Sunday School.

Of course, the effect upon every church will be vitalizing, even to the point of raising acute problems, such as those of additional teachers and accommodations. These problems should not be allowed to obscure the primary purpose, which is to bring young people into the Sunday School, and within the influence of the teaching of the Bible.

Any kind of Sunday School, staffed by Christians who love children, love the Bible and love God, is able to do the task. It may be a one-roomed school at a rural cross-roads, or a modern religious education building in a city; it may use the Uniform Lessons or one of the many Graded Courses; it may meet in the morning, or it may meet in the afternoon. It may utilize promotional prizes, of class banners, individual badges, or what not. All of these matters are incidental: the one immediate aim is to secure one hundred per cent of possible attendance. The quest for boys and girls will stimulate vitality and increase efficiency. It will quicken the adult classes and the cradle roll. It will react upon family life and intensify parental responsibility.

In Richmond, Va., in Grace Covenant Presbyterian Church, many of the members have recently subscribed to what they call a standard of "Accredited Christian Homes." The conditions to be met are:—

- (1) Family Worship regularly maintained.
- (2) Parents assisting children in the study of Sunday School lessons.
- (3) At least one per cent must accompany children to Sunday School.
- (4) At least one per cent must accompany children to at least one church service on Sunday.

"Accredited Christian Homes" are likely to become widespread. The plan definitely promotes the project of enlarging, stabilizing and vitalizing the Sunday School, all in order that the entire youth of the nation may be brought under the influence of religion.

WHEN GOD BECOMES REAL

(ORDINATION SERMON BY REV. H. W. MAIER)

Text—"In the year that King Uzziah died, I saw the Lord."—Isaiah 6:1.

"To know God and Jesus Christ whom he hath sent," this is fundamental, for this is life eternal. This is the first essential in becoming a minister: this is the first essential in becoming a Christian as well. It was the Master who said in His priestly prayer, "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent."

The ultra-fundamentalist seems to believe in a God who is all heart and soul, and no mind; the ultra-modernist seems to believe in a God who is all mind, with no heart and soul. It seems that neither of these types ask, "What is true?" or, "What is real?" but that alone is what matters. Our God has a heart great enough to love the whole world; he has a mind great enough to comprehend eternity. Christ spoke of Himself as the Truth, and the honest search for truth is ever pleasing to Him. It is the Truth that makes men free; as long as men seek for truth, so long is godliness in the world. And He commanded us to search the Truth, for thus we testify of Him.

The text of the morning is a leaf from Isaiah's diary. In it, he relates an experience that profoundly stirred his soul. He definitely remembers the time, "In the year that King Uzziah died." Some of us are able to recall, for it was more common in other days than now, when some saint would relate the experience of his conversion; how he would tell the very day and hour when the change came to his life; and as we listened we sometimes felt that he was laying greater stress upon the date than the experience itself. Sometimes we may have thought it due to a high degree of emotionalism, and may be a lack of mental balance; but, in the mind of the one giving the experience, the time and place were not so important as the experience which they recalled.

Isaiah is here doing the same thing. He is relating the experience that changed the motive of his life and gave him a new light. Isaiah is not of the common, he was born in the purple. His high social position gave him admission to the royal court. His dress and training fitted him for the best society of his day. He was a writer of great ability and is recognized by many as the greatest stylist of the Bible. On every hand there is evidence of a peculiar ability and skill. And this man says that on a certain date and in a certain place he had an experience that stirred his soul and gave him faith in a real God. He remembers it well. "It was in the year that King Uzziah died that he saw the Lord."

Uzziah's reign was a memorable one; the greatest since Solomon. During his reign of fifty-two years peace and prosperity were in the land. He reigned so long and so well that Isaiah didn't see how the nation could get along without his wise guiding hand. The king was his hero, his crown of glory and his very God. His whole world centered in him; but when the king died all this came to an end; the center of the universe had gone; the heart was taken from Isaiah. He saw nothing but destruction ahead both for himself and his nation. His heart was overwhelmed as he knew the conditions. The nation was sinking into decay, the people were laden with iniquity, they had forsaken the Lord, they had provoked the Holy One of Israel to anger, they were gone away backward.

In this hour of perplexity and distress, there was but one thing left for the wise man that he was, to do, so he wends his way to the sanctuary. He sought the place of calm and quiet for his disturbed soul. He sought the counsel of the Almighty. How many since that day have found the house of God the very gate of heaven, the place where their gloom is dispelled and the darkness is made light? As he entered that holy place he was moved by the deep religious fervor of the peeling trumpets, the hallelujah chorus by the Levite choir and the incense burning upon the sacred altar. What transpired then is recorded here in the experience of the prophet. In this experience he says, "I saw the Lord." Three things became real to him in that hour:

First: God became Real to Him. More real to him than the king whom he so faithfully served; more real than the difficulties facing him. As Uzziah fades from view, God becomes visible with a greater glory than he had ever seen in the king. When he said, "I saw the Lord of hosts," he meant more than a mere perception of the senses, he meant that he transferred his faith from an earthly king who died, to a God who is the same yesterday, today and forever.

In that wonderful hour "His train filled the temple"—every part of the temple, and not only did God's presence fill the temple but every untouched corner of Isaiah's heart. He saw God on the throne and his heart became that throne. He went into the temple with a heavy heart, with a troubled soul, he came out with his burden lifted and he found God the sure anchor of hope. He now realizes as never before that God is King of kings and Lord of lords. God became real to him, God became a vital part of his experience. What a man thinks of God does not change the fact of God. A man may think there is no God, but He rules in the universe. A man may say there is no sin, but its blighting effect is seen wherever man lives. What came to Isaiah on that day was the realization of God. He realized that God lives and rules in the universe which He made, and that fact was more real than the death of the king or the problems confronting him.

Dr. Dale, a great English divine, years ago said that the English people have invented a religion without a God. The people were startled to hear him make so strange a statement. What he meant was this, that the average congregation hears the preacher, sings hymns, repeats creeds, joins in prayer and goes away without having any realization of the presence of God. I am thinking it is true in the day in which we live. The one great trouble with this time is that to a great number of people God has become unreal. I have talked with college boys. I have talked with parents and in many a case God is hid behind a mist and haze. He is yonder in the skies, but he does not dwell with men on the earth. If our church life is to be vitalized, if our religion is become the salt of the earth and the life giving power, then there must be a definite belief in God. He must be a real God revealing himself to real hearts. Many a minister stands before a visionless congregation. They have eyes but they see not; they have ears but they hear not, neither do they understand the great realities of the kingdom of God. But woe if the minister is without a vision of God; if to him He is an unreality. I read but a few days ago of a certain leader of a great denomination who said that the teaching staff of a certain seminary had but one professor who believed in God and he was recognized as somewhat of a back number. Thank God it is not true of our religious teachers. God is real to Dr. Elderdice and Dr. Forelines. He was real to the founders of our beloved church. He was real to John Wesley, the founder of Methodism; he was real to Luther the great Reformer. He was real to Dr. Lewis who for so long a time was eyes for our church. He was real to our fathers and sainted mothers. God forbid that you young men should go out to preach a living God with an uncertain voice. Come into His presence until He becomes real to you.

The God of Jesus was a reality. He came to reveal Him to His followers. Such a realization of God would change our whole perspective. It would change our worship. If God became real to some of our churches there would be less confusion and disorder; instead of a joyless and lifeless service there would at once be interest and life and dignity. It would put a definiteness into our church program, joy into our singing, vitality into our preaching and new spirit into the congregation who come to worship. It would cause men to go to their work with a new and different motive. It would put a spring into the step and happiness into the soul and a new outlook on all of life. A vision of God always changes things. If God became real to all His people, the Methodists would not have the seventeen varieties, the Baptists would not magnify their mode of baptism above all else and the Presbyterians would lose their coldness, and the prayer of the Master would be realized that they all shall be one. Barriers are broken down when God comes into our vision.

There were others in the temple that day who did not see God. They sat unmoved. There were those who journeyed with Paul on that Damascus road who heard but a sound but saw no man. Paul alone beheld the Christ. If we would enter our temples of worship today with an expectant heart, instead of having our minds and hearts filled with material things we too, might come down from the place and be able to say, "I have seen the Lord today."

Isaiah knew well the people of his day, the chapters preceding this one gives the conditions as they existed—the women in their indulgences and sin; the men in their madness and drinking, and the church in her hypocrisy. It could be said of all that their hearts were not right with God. When God became real to Isaiah he stood against all forms of evil. Is not much of our religion a thing of weakness and a meaningless something? when it should be the power of God unto salvation? And yet, as Phillips Brooks has said that along with all this there is a belief that struggles to be true and a feeling that ever struggles to be healthy.

The Second thing that became real to Isaiah was HIMSELF. A man can more truly see himself after he has seen his God. Isaiah was far above the average in morals and Christian living, but the sight of Him made him utter the cry, "Woe is me, for I am undone! for I am a man of unclean lips." A sense of God gave a sense of sin. If we treat sin lightly, if the wrongs of our life don't affect us it is an evidence that we have not seen God. As we compare ourselves with other we may not feel that we are sinners above all else, but when we see ourselves in the light of God's countenance then we hide our face and we utter the cry of woe. The clothing on the line may appear to be perfect in whiteness; but when the snow falls from heaven, we see their faded yellow. Our own perfection fades as we look upon the spotless One.

Peter looking upon the spotless Christ said, "Depart from me, for I am a sinful man." "God have mercy upon me a sinner," said the Publican as he came into the house of prayer. "I am a man of unclean lips," said the prophet Isaiah as he realized his God. That is what happens when a man sees God.

But as Isaiah utters the despairing cry and confesses his sin the guilt is removed. There flies one of the seraphims with a live coal from off the altar and touches those unclean lips. That touch made Isaiah know that God is loving and merciful. This coal of fire burns away Isaiah's sin as dross is removed from the ore by the furnace. We may not know who the seraphims are and how the guilt is removed. They seem not to be angels but those who wait beside the throne ready to do the service of God. I do not know what it all means, and why should I want to know. I would not want to take away all the mystery of faith, for there is a sense of mystery and we need it in our faith as well. No man has ever done anything well who has not realized the unknown all about him. If we are sick we do not want a doctor who knows it all, and the people do not want a minister who knows all the mysteries of the kingdom. There never has been in any undertaking a man who did not feel his own inability. The best scientists have declared that they have been able to pick up but a few pebbles from the beach while the great sea rolled unending before them. To the one who believes and trusts, God reveals His secrets. He reveals to His own what He does not make known to the world. Isaiah knew more about God and himself after this experience than he had ever known before.

The THIRD thing that became real to Isaiah was SERVICE. When God becomes real service becomes a privilege. He heard the Lord say, "Whom shall I send," and who will go for us" and he answered, "Here am I, send me." When God becomes real service becomes a pleasure. He did not approach God with a proud heart and say that he would like to do something for God to honor Him in that way. He asks for the privilege of service, and service that is hard. When a church finds it necessary to coax people to teach a Sunday School class, or take some part in the program of the church, to urge people to come to the worship service, or to make a pledge to carry the gospel of His Son to the people who know him not, that church, and that people have never had a vision of Him. The church to whom God has become real will have many volunteers for Christian service. Too many people of the church say, "I can't, I can't lead a meeting; I can't offer prayer, I can't give anything to the budget of the church, I can't go to worship, for I am too tired." I repeat when God becomes real, people will ask as did Isaiah for the privilege of serving Him; they will ask for the privilege of becoming heralds of his Son; they will want to go with a message of comfort to the distressed; they will say "Here am I, send me." When God is real, the preacher will be kept busy finding work to do for those who ask for the privilege. Let us never forget that the great commission can become a reality only as men enlist for service. God hath need of thee, and you have need of God.

Isaiah not only offered himself for service, but a disappointing service. It takes grace to go where you are almost certain to fail. He tells Isaiah that the hearts of men will grow harder, that their ears will become deaf to His message. His message will be as pearls cast before swine. God says to Isaiah that he will fail. But other men have failed like that. Augustine failed, Carey failed, Judson failed, St. Paul failed and Jesus failed. And yet, such labor is not failure for the men who dare, and who obey. Truth crushed to the earth shall rise again. The tree cut down will have life in the stump and will bring forth and bud in another springtime. Some vital life is left; and that vital force that is left in the nation is the result of the consecration service that He offers. Your work in the Lord is not in vain. A sense of God gives us a consciousness that we are laborers together with Him, that we have a part in the eternal purposes of God, and when that is realized work is ennobled and life is worthwhile.

There is more in any one of us than we realize. It needs the touch of God to bring it out. When we see and realize God, then the false disappears and that which will withstand the test of eternity will remain. To the man to whom God is real, the whole earth is full of glory. As Christ came to make God real to men, so may you go forth into the world and make God real to men. But you cannot make God real to men until you can say, "I have seen the Lord."

ANYBODY ANSWER THE BROTHER'S QUESTION?

Why is the church so often just one step behind—or even stationary—on the industrial front? Why should pastors lack the courage to put into practical action the social dynamic of the teaching of Jesus? Will the time ever come when the churches, whether on an industrial frontier like Elizabethton or on an old and tried battleground, reach out a brotherly hand to the union and say: "Comrades, we welcome you. We want to do all in our power to co-operate in establishing industrial democracy. Let us work together for the common good of all in the community."—A. J. Buttrey.

THUS SAITH THE PREACHER

There was a preacher who, using as his text "Many are called," etc., appealed to his hearers to be among the "fosen chew"; a genial curate informed an astonished congregation that "Rabaras was a bobber"; a vicar in a funeral sermon described a confrere as one who had been a "shoving leopard" to his flock, and urged the aforesaid flock to respect his "merished chemory"; a dean referred to the emotions of Jonah in the "bale's whelly"; a nervous layman made the Scriptures say that it is easy for a camel to go through "the knee of an idol"; an archdeacon hoped that his congregation would be filled with "fresh veal and new zigor"; and a pastor warned his hearers that there is no peace in the home where a "dinner swells."—Central Christian Advocate.

ALL THINGS THROUGH CHRIST

This is a motto upon which we can safely build our hopes for this new conference year. Yea, it is one upon which we DO build our hopes. We are confronted by great problems, but we have a great God to help us solve them. We are face to face with challenging opportunities; there will be for us abounding grace that these opportunities may be rightly used. God will not fail us if we are true to Him. Those who honor Him, He honors, and those who trust Him are as secure as the eternal hills. His word for it. We are calling upon every pastor to make this year one of unflinching prayer; of constant Bible study, and study of the church programs; marked diligence in pastoral duties; and a passionate and persistent effort in soul-saving. With the shepherd thus giving himself to God, the sheep will be led into "green pastures and beside the still waters," and we shall have renewed assurances that we can "do all things through Christ who gives us strength."

First Sunday

The work of our pastors yesterday, and their charges, were in our mind, and we prayed for them. The appointment for the day for some pastors was on new charges; others went back to renew the work where they served last year. In either case, we trust that both pastors and people were new. New in purpose, new in co-operation, new in zeal, and new in the encouraging experiences of a good day. Much depends upon a good beginning; we greatly hope that every charge had such a beginning yesterday—the first Sunday of the new conference year—and that each succeeding Sunday may be one of increasing satisfaction. The blessings of the Lord upon every pastor and every charge!

Dollar a Member

Wednesday afternoon is the earliest possible date on which the committee, appointed to make plans for raising the twenty thousand for the college, can meet. I am not sure, therefore, that it will be possible to get announcement of plans in the HERALD this week. However, if any pastor and any charge are "set" for this undertaking, go right on with it. Brother B. M. Williams writes that Union Grove raised $55 last Sunday, and that the other $16 of their "Dollar a Member" for this church will be forthcoming. There is no better plan than that; so go right on if you are ready for the start. But this one thing: Stress the slogan, "Dollar a Member," and keep the emphasis there. This takes the matter out to the individual member, and the amount asked for is so small that there can hardly fail to be a generous response. Of course there are many in the church who will not think of stopping at $1. Their generosity will make up for the lack of some who may not be disposed to give. But ring the change on the slogan, "Dollar a Member," "Dollar a Member," until it takes fire everywhere. Let's have it on every tongue throughout the conference, and in 90 days we will have $20,000. It can be done; it must be done; it will be done. "Dollar a Member: Dollar a Member!"

And let us urge again: Pray. Pray without ceasing. Pray.

Thanksgiving

This is the time our Children's Home has the right of away in our offerings. Let no church fail to make this offering this year. The Home needs the money, and our churches need the blessing of giving it. Pastors and Superintendents should take the matter in hand at once, and work up interest in a Thanksgiving offering. Whether the amount given is large or small, it will be gratefully received by the Home. If every church will make an offering the total will be considerable. "In as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Send this offering direct to Dr. Dixon.

It has long been a conviction with us that a fitting thing on this day is for the people to assemble at their respective churches, and make public acknowledgement of the manifold mercies of Almighty God. We urge our pastors and people to hold such services, or to join with other churches in a community Thanksgiving service.

"Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise: be thankful unto him, and bless his name."

Budget Apportionments

Because of a necessitated absence from home for several days on conference business, we have not been able to call the budget council and new century service commission together to make the budget apportionments, as ordered by the conference. This will be done at the earliest possible date, and allotments given to charges. We trust that there may be patience with us while we are getting up to these after-conference matters. They are all being attended to with the fullest possible haste.

Honor Roll Recognition

Pastors were requested during the session of conference to note on a slip of paper honor roll churches and charges, and to hand this to Rev. B. M. Williams. If you did not do that, please report to me at once, so your charge may have proper honor roll recognition in the Journal. We are anxious that no church or charge shall be omitted.

The Herald

Beyond question, one of the most important factors in the progress of our conference is the METHODIST PROTESTANT HERALD. This is true now; it has been true in other years; it will continue to be true. We just simply can not get along without the HERALD. Pastors and laymen will, therefore, render a great service to the conference by increasing the circulation of the paper. It should be in every home in the conference. We are not sure but that this is true on a few charges. A list of such charges would make interesting reading. Send them to the HERALD, brethren, for publication, and let your charge be stimulus to other charges. We are anxious to see the HERALD subscription list grow. This is due the Editor, and the conference needs the paper. Let's go.

Appointments

November 20, Wednesday.—Meeting with the Board of Education at 10:30 A. M. Meeting with "Dollar a Member" Committee at 1:30 P. M.

November 22, Friday.—Meeting of New Century Service Commission and Budget Council.

November 24, Sunday.—With Mecklenburg Charge, 2:00 P. M., Antioch Church.

"Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city." Fraternally yours,

S. W. TAYLOR.

A TAXING AND THRILLING TASK

Surely no man who speaks to his fellow men has a task more taxing, or more thrilling, than the preacher. All sorts of folk attend his ministry: youth with its troubled dreams or its savage cynicism, midlife with its faded idealism or its hard realism, age with its prophetic faith or its set, gray, apathetic resignation; all types of mind, all degrees of culture, all stages of development—pilgrims at every turn of the human journey. There is no common mind, no common understanding, only a common need, and what will interest some is sure to bore or bewilder others. Yet the preacher must deal with the most elusive issues of faith and the hidden secrets of the inner life, seeking to make intangible realities real, and impalpable values vivid. His message has to do with the most intimate affairs of the human heart—things we say to no one and allow no one to say to us, save in the most confidential friendship—yet the awful privacy of the pulpit not only permits, but invites, the closest touch of soul upon soul, and the opening of heart to heart. Truly no other form of speech known among men asks for such delicacy of insight and acumen, such exquisite tact, taste, and tenderness of understanding.

No wonder a great council of the church affirmed that preaching is a sacrament, as in very truth it is, despite its failings. By the same token, to belittle it, much less to ignore it—pushing it off to one side—is nothing short of sacrilege. The office of the ministry is sacramental, and as such it belongs to a man by virtue not only of his temperament, his poetic gift and his passion for humanity, but also, and much more, by his heroic quest of holiness. It is a creative office, in that it has to do with those facts in which men set their faith and in which they find the truth, fashioning the stuff of life into shapes of moral beauty. It is the unveiling of spiritual experience in the illuminated life, bringing healing to the old hurt and heartache of man, and light to those in darkness. By as much as the soul of the preacher is ennobled and made transparent by discipline, by devotion, by daring adventures of faith, by so much does he serve his high calling. The test of any sermon is not its eloquence, not its learning, nor yet its artistry, but the regenerative note that is in it, conveying the living word of God to living men through a tender, triumphant, ministrant love. O My soul, remember!—Joseph Fort Newton, in The Pulpit.

THE BIBLE

We search the world for truth; we cull
The good, the pure, the beautiful
From graven stone and written scroll,
From all old flower-fields of the soul.
And we are seekers of the best,
We come back laden from our quest,
To find what all the sages said,
Is in the Book our mothers read.

—John Greenleaf Whittier.

DOES SILENCE MEAN CONSENT

It must be a settled policy of many religious papers to let the changes that are making unfortunate inroads upon the preaching and teaching of the Churches come quietly with as little disturbance as possible. Some that are outspoken in their advocacy of prohibition and law enforcement are very reticent on modernism. We have been wondering what place there will be for such papers when the demoralizing and despiritualizing work of this monstrous evil has had its way. What plea can a religious paper make for its existence when the claim that Christ was divine only in the sense that all other men are divine prevails? These organs, established for the defense and progress of our Zion, are lamentably neglecting the task committed to them. What matters the calling attention to minor matters when the very foundations are at stake? What kind of constituency do they hope for in the near future? What is there left to stand for in a Bibleless, Christless society? These papers were projected to be watchmen on the walls to warn and arouse against insidious foes. Surely their silence does not show their consent—and yet what else does it show?—The Way of Faith.

OUR STORY PAGE

JOE'S FIRST SPEED-BOAT RACE

"Joe," said the driver of the speedboat "Miss New York" to a boy who was standing on the boathouse pier watching him work. "My mechanic is sick and can't ride with me in this race. You know something about speed engines, and I'd like to have you come along."

"All right, Mr. Burns. Wait until I dash up to the boathouse and put on my overalls."

As Joe ran up the runway toward the boathouse, his heart beat high in view of the coming excitement. He had often watched these power boats race each other to the finish; and while it was thrilling just to stand on the river bank and watch them, how much more exciting it would be to ride in one of them!

When he returned, dressed in the white overalls that speed-boat drivers like to wear, his heart beat higher yet; for Miss New York was purring impatiently.

"Hop in," instructed Mr. Burns. "Only a few minutes left before we are due at the starter's boat, and this craft isn't warm yet."

"Joe," continued the driver, as they twisted in and out the sideline traffic to reach the open fairway. "Miss New York is something new in speed-boat design. You'll notice that the engines are in back of us instead of in front, as a result the boat will ride higher in front than most of the entries in today's race. I am anxious to have her win, because many people do not believe in having a boat built this way and I want to show them that it is a great improvement over the old idea."

Joe nodded his head to show that he understood. Then he turned toward the engine pit and listened to the steady hum of the three high-powered motors and tried to detect any sound that might indicate the coming of trouble; but everything was perfect. He looked at the timing devices, and they too were operating without a flaw.

"She is tuned up like a symphony orchestra," he said to the driver.

"Yes. I went over everything pretty carefully this morning. I'm proud of the way she's running. Hello! There goes the signal. We're off, Joe! Keep your eyes on the cooling system, and hold on when we make the turns."

With a roar like that of a mighty airplane, Miss New York leapt up and forward, and took the lead from the other boats by the promptness of her start. Speed-boat racing is a serious business. No man can drive a boat at seventy or more miles an hour through the water and chat easily with his mechanic at the same time. Nor can any mechanic operate three one-thousand horsepower engines and take time to watch the scenery. Both driver and mechanic attend to their racing and to nothing else—and their motto is to tear down the straight-away with everything wide open, and to take the turns as fast and as close as possible without turning over.

Accidents come suddenly and do terrific damage. A log of wood floating in the path of one of these racing demons and there is complete disaster. Or even a smaller obstacle than a log of wood—something so small, perhaps, that it cannot be seen.

Joe took the first curve nicely, then the second and the third, and each time Miss New York straightened out, the increased roar of the engines told him that the driver was still anxious to have his boat come in first. But suddenly, Joe felt Miss New York shudder as though she had struck something. The sensation lasted for only a moment—then the speed-boat slowed down to less than half its full speed. Her bow dropped slightly as she lost headway.

"Quick, Joe! Go up forward and see if there is anything the matter."

"We've hit something, Mr. Burns," shouted Joe, a moment later. "And there is a hole in the bottom of the boat as big as my first. We're sinking!"

"We won't sink," replied the driver, "because we've got two automatic bailers and they'll take care of enough of the water to prevent us from going to the bottom. But we've lost the race. There isn't a chance of winning it at the speed we're going now."

Joe looked down into the hull of Miss New York and saw the water pouring in through the hole. He looked up again to see another boat, the Miss Maryland, tear past to take the lead. Then he examined the leak again and as a result of what he saw and thought, he shouted to the driver:

"Speed her up, Mr. Burns. I want to see what happens."

In response to Joe's request, Mr. Burns opened the throttle and sent Miss New York leaping ahead again. As she did so, like all speed-boats, she listed her bow out of the water.

"A little more," shouted Joe.

"Can't do it," returned Mr. Burns. "Come back here, Joe."

Joe returned to the cockpit.

"The faster I go," explained Mr. Burns. "The more water will come in through that hole. The automatic bailers will take care of some of it, but the rest will soon fill up the boat and sink us. I've got to run the Miss New York slowly enough so that the water coming in will be just about equal to the amount that the bailers can throw out. No use trying to win the race. We may as well make for the pier."

"Mr. Burns," replied Joe, speaking rapidly. "The faster this boat goes, the higher she puts her nose in the air. Isn't that so?"

"Yes."

"Well, that hole is almost above the water right now. If you can give Miss New York a little more speed, it will be above the water and we'll be all right. Try it, anyway, Mr. Burns. I can help by riding as far back aft as possible."

For a moment the driver was silent. He knew that Joe's suggestion was sound, but he was considering the chances of being able to win the race even if he followed the advice. Then he made the decision:

"I'm going to try it, Joe! I believe we can still come in first!"

The increased roar of the engines told the young mechanic that the driver had acted as he spoke, and in a moment both he and Mr. Burns had the satisfaction of seeing the stream of water from the bailer outlet reduce itself to a mere trickle. People watching from the shore shouted encouragingly as Miss New York lunged ahead again at full speed, for with Miss Maryland almost a full lap in the lead and other boats strung out at various distances ahead of Miss New York, they knew that the battle to regain first place would be a difficult one. They held their breath as Burns took the next turn, for he came within an inch of capsizing. They were further surprised to see the speed he made on the straight-away—and when on the home stretch, he overtook and passed Miss Maryland, their excitement could not be controlled.

It had been the greatest speed-boat race they had ever seen, and not one of them doubted now but that Mr. Burns' idea of having the motor in back of the driver's seat was the best.

"I didn't win the race," laughed the driver, happily, as the judges were presenting him with the trophy. "It was won by my young mechanic, Joseph Ward, who used his head to such good purpose that a hole in the bottom of the boat big enough to sink an ocean liner didn't even wet our floor boards."

Then Mr. Burns told the story of the leak and of Joe's suggestion—and it was decided to engrave Joe's name on the trophy along with the name of the boat. That pleased Joe a lot, but what pleased him most was when Mr. Burns drew him aside after the ceremonies were over and said: "Will you be my mechanic in the Big Cup Races next week?"

I leave it to you to guess what Joe said—Selected.

"AS A TALE THAT IS TOLD"

Under the inspiration of the Spirit of God, Moses wrote these words: "We spend our years as a tale that is told." The tale of our last year has been told; what is it? How did we spend the days that were given us? Are we pleased with the record that has been sealed now?

When the record of this present year of grace, 1929, is written, will it be similar to that of the last year? Now is the time to face the situation, and plan for the things that we shall do. Not that we are going to make any New Year's resolutions; that is not productive of results; but that we may take stock of ourselves, and think things out, and live as we would like to live, let us ask ourselves some questions that will help us face the situation.

My Reading—shall my mind be filled with the gutter stuff of the modern novel; or the crimes of the modern newspaper; or the froth of the average periodical? Solomon said: "Of making books there is no end, and much study is a weariness of the flesh." What would he have said if he had lived in this day? There is a great deal of very helpful material that is available; and there is so little time to do anything that we would like; would not it be well to eliminate all but the best in our reading, and fill our minds only with that which will be helpful? And certainly, a good part of that precious time should be given to the reading of the very best that has ever been written—the precious Word of God.

My Pleasures—some time for recreation is essential to the good health of every mind and body and spirit; therefore, every one should have some recreation, or what we speak of as our pleasure-time. But in choosing our pleasures a sensible person will decide for that which will help and not hinder. The usual picture show today has something objectionable in it, in spite of the censorship that is supposed to be exercised. The usual play is as bad or worse. Gambling is entirely too often the result of otherwise innocent games. Honestly, as Christians, Christ's men and women, what part shall we have in these things and similar "pleasures" this year, if the record of our lives at the close of the year is to be one that we shall be glad to have permanently recorded against us?

My Strength—to what shall I put that this year? Into the making of money? Yes, if you are going to use that money? for God and for the extension of His work; but NO, if you are going to try to accumulate a fortune for yourself, to be a curse to your descendants. Shall I put my strength into the service of self, or of others? How am I going to use my time, for myself or for God? What is going to be my aim, the advancement of self or the service of God?

My Church—what part is it going to have in my effort and thoughts? Honestly now again, what sort of a church would this church, would my church, be if all of its members were just like me, ask yourself.

"We spend our years as a tale that is told." God is giving us another chance to make a record. Shall it be one that shall be pleasing to Him, when the record is ended at the close of this year—or may be, for some of us, before the year has closed?—North Ave. News, Atlanta.

THE FALSE CRY OF PEACE

Peace is a good thing, but peace in the ordinary sense of the word is not the summum bonum of human happiness or usefulness. Rest and freedom from pain are comforting to the sick, and may be signs of returning health, or they may be signs of approaching dissolution. Peace in a community may indicate prosperity, or it may be insensibility to duty and indifference to fraud and political corruption. A man freezing to death or under the influence of poison needs to be aroused and kept moving. Some communities need nothing so much as to be waked up and forced to fight for good government.

Peace in the church may mean prosperity or decay. It is written in the Acts: "Then had the churches rest," "and walking in the fear of the Lord and in the comfort of the Holy Ghost were multiplied." This was after a period of persecution and steadfast contention for the faith. There have been other times when the church had rest because it was asleep to its duty.

The command to "contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints," does not indicate that Christians in a world of sin are to expect or be satisfied with peace until righteousness is established. "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." When this call is heard, there are always some to plead for peace. "Art thou he that troubleth Israel?" No, the men who trouble the Israel of God are those who promote immorality and infidelity, who belittle the Word of God and deny the doctrines of grace, and very often these cry, "Peace, peace," when they themselves are disturbing the peace.

When men in the Church deny God as the Creator, or that Christ is God, or that He died on Calvary as a sacrifice for sinners and rose from the dead, or that the Scriptures are inspired and true, the church has a controversy with them, and woe be to it if, through fear of man or love of ease or for any other cause, it shrinks from its duty.—From the Presbyterian, of Philadelphia.

UNUSED JAIL TORN DOWN

Mound Bayou, the Negro town in Mississippi where no white man has ever lived, is about to tear down the city jail for the very good reason that it has been empty for two years. There has not been a murder in the town for more than four years. "We have a peace-loving and law-abiding community," says the Negro mayor. "Our people go to church instead of jail." Mound Bayou has a population of about 800. It is refreshing to remember what is easily forgotten in these days of gang murders and violence of every sort, that there are many communities in the United States where murders are as rare as they are in this Mississippi town.—The Nation.

Suggestions to the Leader

Use corn, pumpkins, leaves, etc., for decoration. Have someone give a short sketch on the origin of Thanksgiving Day.

You might use the topics of the acrostic for brief talks together with the Bible references. If you care to debate try the query, Resolved, That there is no Thanksgiving without expression.

Some suitable songs for the Thanksgiving meeting are: "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart," "Blessed Assurance," "If Your Heart Keeps Right," "Faith of Our Fathers," "If Jesus Goes With Me, I'll Go."

The Leader's Talk

Ingratitude is certainly a besetting evil. We are usually grateful in our hearts, but too seldom we fail to express our gratitude. Words of gratitude may bring and often do bring a certain warmth of feeling into a persons' being that nothing else can do. What a small task this is and we so often fail!

It is indeed well that we should have a day set apart for special thanksgiving. But one day is not enough and as the topic implies we need to give thanks to God through living a thoughtful life. It is an old saying that actions speak louder than words but it is still as true as ever.

There are those people who seem to be unable to express their gratitude. Often if we looked underneath we would find that these people, or many of them, are living lives of thanksgiving. God has given us numerous blessings and we can, at least, show our gratitude by living so that His work may be furthered. Although we should praise God, our best way to praise is through thanks-living.

The Origin of Thanksgiving Day

(Taken from C. E. Quarterly)

Thanksgiving Day originated in New England. In the year 1621, on the occasion of the first harvest after the arrival of the Pilgrims in New England, Governor Bradford proclaimed a day for prayer and for Thanksgiving. With grateful hearts the colonists assembled in their house of worship to render thanks for the prosperity that had come to them and to show their love for the God for whom they had left the old native land to worship in freedom according to the dictates of their conscience.

Two years later (in 1623) there occurred a serious drought, and the governor issued a proclamation for prayer for rain. In the midst of their fasting rain was sent by Providence, and the occasion was changed into one of thanksgiving. The custom developed of observing a day of Thanksgiving annually at harvest time thereafter. The different colonies in New England began to observe this custom and in 1817 the governor of New York State issued a proclamation for a similar observance.

The first national observance of this day was held prior to the organization of the colonies into the United States of America. During the Revolutionary War, Congress set aside annually a day for Thanksgiving. But it was not until during the administration of Abraham Lincoln that a national day was observed throughout the country. Since that time the custom has been regularly observed. Although for many people this day has lost its original meaning, it is still retained by many devout Christians.

THANKS-LIVING

Were thanks with every gift expressed,

Each day would be Thanksgiving.

Were gratitude its very best,

Each life would be thanks-living.

—Chauncy R. Piety.

A THANKFUL HEART

Lord, Thou hast given me a cell

Wherein to dwell;

A little house whose roof

Is weather-proof.

Low is my porch as is my fate,

Both void of state,

And yet the threshold of my door

Is worn by the poor

Who hither come and freely get

Good words or meat.

'Tis Thou that fills my glittering heart

With guileless mirth.

All these and better Thou does send Me to this end

That I should render for my part

A thankful heart.

—Robert Herrick.

MARRIED

Browning-Lucas

November 10, 1929, at 10:15 o'clock, P. M., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. O'Briant, Rosemary, N. C., Mr. William W. Browning and Thelma McRea Lucas were united in marriage, the writer officiating. The young couple is from Little, N. C., and are quite popular among the young people of the community. We wish them a happy and prosperous voyage in life.

J. B. O'BRIANT.

POUNDED

Yes, this is what took place at our last appointment at Gilburg, Vance Charge. While we were in the church after service, talking with some of the brethren, the crowd had gone to our machine and piled in it a nice lot of edibles. It was the nicest pounding we have had in a long time, and they just slipped it over on us, as we were not wise to what was going on. The Dodge has had gas put in it and other nice things for the preacher, but it never had a real pounding before. Well, it might have been imagination in us, but the Dodge seemed to run better and hum sweeter than usual as we drove home that Sunday afternoon.

We would like to give names, but space will not permit; besides we did not find names on all the packages. May the Lord richly bless all the givers.

J. B. O'BRIANT.

TO OUR FRIENDS

We are selling beautiful boxes of beautiful Christmas cards with twenty assorted cards in a box, no two cards alike, and with good envelopes. These sell for $1.00 per box. They are such cards as you would pay ten cents a piece for at book stores and drug stores.

Call by and buy a box, or send us your order and we will mail you a box, or more as per your direction.

The profit from these cards will be given to our children for their spending money at Christmas. Anything you may add to this fund will add to their happiness at Christmas. Thank you.

HERALD SUBSCRIPTIONS FIELD SERVICE

Directing Committee of the Annual Conference: Rev. N. M. Harrison, Rev. R. I. Farmer, J. F. Coble.

The Herald must rely on pastors and their assistants for the work of extending and maintaining its circulation. It has always been so and is more emphatically so now. In making out goals for the charges the Committee has generally followed the rule of one subscription to every ten church members, which does not seem unreasonable or impossible. Of course the logical goal is a paper to every family in the church. The first column of figures gives the goal for new and renewed subscriptions for the conference year. The second column is to give the number received to date.

One of the pressing problems with which our recent Annual Conference session was confronted was the status of the Methodist Protestant Herald. The sincere effort to finance High Point College, as well as other well-known problems, resulted in a reduced support of this Conference organ. The mind of the Conference is unalterably made up as to the necessity of maintaining this medium of information and inspiration. Our necessity now is, therefore, to find some adequate method of support.

Whether or not all believe it to be the best plan, it remains for all loyal North Carolina Methodist Protestants to rally to the one adopted by the Conference. In short, it is to raise the subscription price to $2.00 per year (after December 1st); increase the subscription list to at least 3,000; and maintain the present form and size of the paper. To this end, Dr. McCulloch is to be assisted by the committee elected consisting of Rev. N. M. Harrison, chairman, Rev. R. I. Farmer and Mr. J. Frank Coble. This article is the request of the chairman.

The actual situation is this: An annual deficit of $1,500.00 has been occurring. This is too heavy for the editor or publishers to carry. It must be eliminated. Why has it been? Certainly most largely because of too small a subscription list. The remedy? Those under the responsibility say it lies in the increase of subscription rate and more subscribers.

What are the facts? Based upon the reports of the 1928 minutes, we have 230 churches with 29,410 members. The present subscribers number about 1,400. With an average of 128 members per church, only six paper reach each church group. There is only one Herald taken for each 21 members. The total of church papers taken, including the Herald, is only 1,687. That is, assuming that the others are general church paper, only 287 of these come to North Carolina. That is, only one general church paper is received for each 102 persons. In other words, both the Herald and the general church papers are taken only to the number of seven per church. Does anyone believe that we can be intelligent and appreciative Methodist Protestants or understand the principles and activities of our working program with such meager information coming to our homes?

Goals are announced for our churches which, if carried out, will meet this situation. Of one thing I am certain—our church papers are not reaching the largest possible number of readers. Once we had three papers, costing a total of only $5.50. With the merger of the general papers, we now will have only two. Both may be had for $4.00. That is less than eight cents per week. But to put across our immediate responsibility, the Methodist Protestant Herald, will cost less than four cents per week to 1,400 persons or groups.

As suggestions that may help, the following are offered:

1. Pastoral interest and declaration. He is the key man.
2. An agent in each church. Lay helpers can and must help.
3. Each present subscriber get a subscriber—goal almost reached.
4. Each subscriber get two subscribers—goal exceeded by 1,200.
5. Each quarterly conference member (estimated, 2,300) a subscriber.
6. Each Sunday school teacher and officer (reported, 1,941) a subscriber and the goal is exceeded by 341.
7. Church budget including a six months' subscription to new members; (1,454 accessions reported in 1928 minutes), goal almost reached.
8. Christmas gift subscriptions to the aged, shut-ins, needy, out-of-state Methodist Protestants, parents, libraries (public or school and college), hospitals, or homes. Classes or organizations may help teachers or leaders by sending the paper to them.

After all, the only way to do a thing is to do it. That process may not be what anyone else suggests but rather one's own better method. Nothing succeeds like success—subscribe and get subscribers, fellow Methodist Protestants of North Carolina. All together, let's go!

Fraternally yours in Him,
R. I. FARMER.

—Rev. and Mrs. L. W. Gerringner went to Kernersville Monday for a brief visit to Mrs. Gerringner's mother.

—Mrs. C. W. Bates brought her mother, Mrs. Pickens, of Weaverville, to spend the winter with her in Greensboro.

—Death has made its first attack upon President Hoover's cabinet. Mr. Good, Secretary of War, died Monday from blood poisoning following appendicitis.

—Lindbergh is suffering from an injury received in Mexico last summer when a wheel came off his plane, making landing difficult. X-rays have recently been taken because of pains in his shoulder.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

The Postal Card, W. F. Kennett, Editor.—

It has been so long since The Postal Card appeared that we fear the editor of the Herald has cut the head off of The Postal Card, as he once did several years ago.

We wish to thank the scores, if not hundreds, of friends who visited us during our recent illness—many of them could not be admitted; but we appreciate their calling. For five or six days we were unconscious, and the entire sickness seems like a dream. The flowers also were appreciated, though many faded before we were able to take any notice of them. Our recovery has been amazing in the rapidity of its progress and promises to be permanent, though one of the doctors keeps an eye on us.

Today we received a check for $200 from Bro. J. Norman Wills, treasurer of the superannuate society. This is exactly the amount of our first salary as a pastor; but is not sufficient to pay the cost of our sickness. There were four doctors and two nurses. We thank these good doctors and faithful nurses and we thank the Lord for it all. We enjoyed the Annual Conference and thank the many people who expressed appreciation of the memorial address.

You remember the old man who accepted Christ some time ago? Well, I have seen him since Conference and he says he is holding fast. Thank the Lord. My brethren, see how many souls you can win to Christ this year. The time will come when you will be glad. "He that is wise winneth souls and they that turn many to righteousness shine as the stars forever and forever."

Henderson.—Our Auxiliary meeting for October was held with Mrs. L. R. Gooch. At this meeting all the circles of the Auxiliary were present in large numbers, including the Mission Band.

The meeting was brought to order by strains of soft music, played by Mrs. J. B. Martin. Following this was a short discourse on "Prayer" and the scripture reading by Mrs. Clyde Finch.

In the absence of the president Mrs. J. B. Fox occupied the chair. During the business period reports from all circles were given. The Auxiliary secretary read the minutes of the last meeting, followed by the treasurer's report.

The secretary of Missionary Education announced her plan for collecting supplies for the "Harvest-Home" drive. A note of appreciation was read from Mrs. S. R. Watson, president of the Auxiliary, who has been sick for some time. Mrs. S. R. Harris, program leader for the evening, gave a helpful and interesting review of the study-book, "What Next in Missions?" After this the Mission Band presented the pageant, "The Missionary Record," which was very effective. The meeting was dismissed with prayer.

The Philathea Class held a delightful meeting with Mrs. T. D. Beekham on Tuesday night, October 28th, with Mrs. Emily Reavis, joint hostess. The president, Miss Lucy Taylor, presided. Mrs. J. M. Baity had charge of the devotionals. During the business period, reports were given from various committees. A special effort is being made to collect all dues for the past year and start the new Conference year with a clean sheet. The results were very gratifying as a splendid collection was taken that night. New officers and their duties were read by the secretary and many other plans for more effective work were made. During the social hour the hostesses served a salad course.

The collection for the Children's Home was held during the Sunday school assembly on Sunday morning, November 3rd, this being in response to the "Harvest-Home" drive. Four nice boxes of supplies were collected and packed, to be carried to Greensboro by Rev. R. A. Hunter and thus to the Home.

The fourth quarterly conference was held on Monday night, November 4th. Many good reports were given for the year's work, and yet the fact that our budget was not quite raised in full cast a shadow over the close of this Conference year. Mr. Asa Hardee, elected delegate to the Annual Conference, was instructed to ask for the return of our pastor, Rev. R. A. Hunter, and we are glad to include in this report that we are to have him and his family with us for the fifth year.

MRS. CLYDE L. FINCH, Reporter.

Pleasant Grove.—We are so glad our pastor, Rev. D. R. Williams, has returned to us for another year's work. He brought us a very able sermon Sunday morning from Matthew 9:28-29, using as a subject "Come Unto Me," and emphasized the necessity of the homes, church, and nation coming closer to God and closer to each other. On the evening hour Bro. Williams gave us a soul-stirring sermon from Philippians 4, part of the 8th and 9th verses: "Think on these things. Those things, which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seen in me, do: and the God of Peace shall be with you."

Another Conference year has been recorded. May we all resolve at the beginning of the new year to make a better record this year than ever before. If the Lord should see fit to spare our lives.

The first Sunday in December has been decided as closing day for the singing school that is being taught by Prof. J. B. Swaim.

The Senior C. E. Society is planning to give a play at the Hasty High School Saturday night, November 30th, "My New Hampshire Home."

The Sunday school attendance and interest is very good although there are some being kept away on account of sickness.

REPORTER.

Orange Chapel, Saxapahaw Circuit.—Our new pastor, Bro. T. J. Whitehead, was present at our church Sunday and preached his first sermon on this work. His text was: "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord," and he used as his subject, "Why the Church?" He brought us a fine message and our people are very favorably impressed with his preaching. We already feel that this is going to be a good year for our church.

Our Sunday school has been reorganized with the following officers: Superintendent, Mrs. L. L. Maynard; secretary, Miss Nannie Pickard; teachers—Mrs. P. C. Thompson, Miss Eva Crawford, Forest Thompson and Mrs. Forest Thompson.

Our Missionary Societies are trying to get in working shape and hope to do better work than we have the past year.

We were glad to have Miss Edith Causey, of Mount Pleasant Church, spend the week-end in this community and attend preaching at Orange Chapel.

After the services Sunday, the larger part of the congregation with the pastor went to the home of Mr. C. H. Edwards, where bountiful dinner was spread in honor of his 67th birthday.

REPORTER.

West Forsyth Circuit.—We are still happy, and when I say we, I mean the entire circuit, for we have our same Bro. C. B. Way and fine little family with us again. And that same harmonious sound is going 'round and 'round again into every church and home, spreading the news that our wishes have been gratified. And now we are looking ahead, hoping, trusting, praying, that great good be accomplished this year. But our pastor cannot work and succeed alone; all must work together with him and for him, and God will grant the increase.

A MEMBER.

West Forsyth.—We have entered upon the work of the new Conference year. Services last Sunday were at Pleasant Hill and Tabernacle churches. Our efficient reporter will tell of the services at Pleasant Hill. We were at Tabernacle in the afternoon at 2:30, where we found the loyal and faithful band of members who are carrying on the work there in splendid fashion. The pastor's salary was overpaid at Pleasant Hill and Tabernacle churches for the past year. We were glad to report the salary paid in full at all of the six churches on the charge for the past year, and some paid on the Annual and General Conference Budgets.

The Pleasant Hill church and community were saddened last week by the death of Mrs. Mary Ellen Long, one of the faithful members of Pleasant Hill church. Funeral services were conducted by the pastor, assisted by Rev. Robert Corum, of New Bethel Baptist church, and her body was tenderly laid to rest in Pleasant Hill cemetery to await the resurrection morning. An obituary in her memory will appear in the Herald at a later date.

We will meet our appointment at Harmony Grove church next Sunday morning for the first time in the new Conference year.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Pilot Church.—Work here is moving along nicely. Officers for the coming year have been elected. J. L. Whitaker will be our Sunday school superintendent. He has served us faithfully for several years. Stewards: J. L. Whitaker, S. H. Marion, Jr., J. A. Allen, Jack Baker, Julius Dezarn, and D. F. Dezarn. The board of stewards elected J. L. Whitaker as chairman. Church trustees: J. F. Whitaker, S. H. Marion, Sr., J. W. Watson, and J. S. Dezarn. Classleader, Carrie Marion; secretary and treasurer, Beulah Dezarn.

Our pastor, Rev. A. L. Hunter, filled his last appointment the first Sunday in this month at 11 o'clock, and, as usual, with a very interesting and helpful sermon. We are all glad to have our pastor and family back with us again for another year.

Best wishes to the Herald and its readers.
CARRIE MARION, Reporter.

Granville Charge.—It is with regret that we have to give up Rev. H. F. Fogleman from our midst. He has made many friends since being on the circuit. We shall miss him.

We welcome our new pastor, Rev. C. L. Spencer, to our church and community and trust that we may have a successful year. He delivered his first sermon to us today, November 17. His text was, "Thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things, enter thou into the joy of the Lord." Christ's mission on earth was to seek and save the lost. He taught by parables.

Ten virgins took their lamps and went to meet the bridegroom. Five were wise and five were foolish. Five that took oil in their lamps represented God's Holy Spirit in their lives and the other five depended on borrowing—without God.

Peter denied his Lord, but as soon as he realized it, he repented. He was not guilty of this sin again. He might be a five-talented man.

Andrew was not an orator, but he could talk about Christ, so he could lead others to him. He might be a two-talented man.

Judas failed to use his talent, betrayed his Lord for 30 pieces of silver. He might have been a one-talented man. "He that is not for Christ is against me."

We don't know God. He doesn't require unreasonable service. We must use our talents for Him, then we will receive our reward. Oh, that we may make use of our opportunities—keep our lamps trimmed and burning, so we may be prepared to meet the Bridegroom.

Indifference is a hindrance to the church. We must present our bodies as a living sacrifice. Remember Abraham when he sacrificed his son. He had faith. So we must have faith in God. Thus, our lesson teaches.

Friendship, Mt. Hermon Charge.—We are glad to welcome our pastor, Rev. J. Elwood Carroll, back to our church. He is beginning his fourth year as pastor of this charge and he has served us faithfully. We are sure that this will be even a better year in the work of the church than the preceding years have been. Let us all unite our efforts and co-operate in such a way that we may accomplish more during the present year for the kingdom of the Master than we have ever done before. Truly we may say that "the fields are white unto the harvest" and every member is needed for the service of the Master.

At the regular service Sunday our pastor began a series of sermons on "The Church of My Dreams." He took for his sub-topics, "The Church Adequate for Its Task," and preached a very splendid sermon setting forth some of the needs of the church and definite goals toward which the church should strive this year.

The most crying need of the church now is for Sunday school rooms. We are hoping that every member of the church will realize this need and will vote for the building of these rooms on the third Sunday in December. It must be borne in mind that the Sunday school can render a much greater service, especially to the children, who are the hope of the church of tomorrow, when the school is properly housed and departmentalized. If we fail to save boys and girls we can hardly hope to save them as men and women. Let us, therefore, think carefully and prayerfully on these things.

The second objective toward which we will work this year is to increase our membership 10 per cent, which will mean the addition of about 27 new members. Let us not wait until the close of the year to begin this phase of the church program, but let us start now and strive daily to bring the lost ones into the fold of the Good Shepherd.

The third and last goal will be an effort to increase our benevolences 10 per cent. It should be easy to do that, especially if we carry out the proposed building program.

We were glad to have Rev. W. M. Loy and family to worship with us Sunday, as well as several other visitors. We are always glad to have you with us at Friendship when it is possible for you to attend our services. Come again.

On account of the business meeting held on the first Sunday the Communion Service was postponed until the third Sunday.

The Woman's Missionary Society met with Mrs. W. A. Patterson as hostess Saturday, Nov. 16th, at 2:30 o'clock. Besides other business, a Thanksgiving service program was planned. This service will be held at the church on Thanksgiving night at 7:30 o'clock. The regular Thanksgiving offering will be received at this time.

We note with regret the illness of several of our members, among whom are Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Garrett, Mr. J. W. Bishop, Mrs. T. F. Overman, and Mr. A. H. Patterson. We trust that they will soon regain their usual health and be able to worship with us again.

MAE PATTERSON, Reporter.

Union Chapel, Granville Charge.—We regret exceedingly to give up our pastor, Rev. H. F. Fogleman, whom the recent Conference assigned to Halifax. For three years he has worked patiently and faithfully for the upbuilding of the work here. His vision of goodness and ideals of a richer, fuller Christian life won for him the confidence and love of the entire church and we realize that his place will be hard to fill.

During his stay many changes have taken place in the church. A number of the older members have passed away. Some of the young people have married and moved into other communities; others have come in and taken their places. None of us know what the future holds for us and the only thing for all of us to do is to live in a way to be ready to meet whatever may come.

The C. E. Society, Woman's Auxiliary and Young People's Auxiliary wish to use this as a means of expressing their appreciation of his faithful services. We feel the progress of these organizations has been largely due to his co-operation and prayers. As he enters a new field of service we will continue to pray for him that he may be successful in all his efforts.

Our new pastor, Rev. C. L. Spencer, coming to us from Halifax, will occupy the pulpit Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. We welcome him in our midst and pray for his success in the work here, and we trust that every member on Granville Charge will co-operate with him.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet Friday night, October 29th, at the home of the president, Mrs. Russell Overby.

Miss Bessie Martin will lead C. E. Sunday night. Miss Martin is a member of the faculty of Zeb. Vance high school and we remember the good programs rendered by her last winter.

REPORTER.

Knob Creek, Fallston Circuit.—On the Fourth Sunday our beloved pastor preached his last sermon for the year 1929. Before the service, officers and the Sunday School superintendent were elected for the ensuing year. At the close of the service, the Lord's Supper was served.

The Sunday School is planning to have a Rally Day November 17.

REPORTER.

Gibsonville Church.—Last Sunday was a very good day for Gibsonville Church in attendance. A goodly number attended Sunday School, most of them stayed for preaching and a lot of others came for the preaching service and filled the church to the brim.

A number of the Fountain Place folk came up and worshipped with us. Also a part of the Baptist congregation came over for the preaching service. We were very glad to have them with us and trust they can worship with us frequently since we will only have preaching first and third Sundays and they, the second and fourth Sundays.

Rev. Betha delivered a splendid sermon: the subject being "A Glimpse of Light."

Miss Mary Ruth Huffman offered special music.

A missionary service will be given next Sunday morning at the preaching hour. Rev. P. E. Lindley will speak at this time.

REPORTER.

Oak Grove, Cleveland Circuit.—This brings us to the close of one of the most successful years of our church. Our Sunday School is improving and more interest is being shown in our Christian Endeavor Society. We were glad to welcome Mr. Wilford Crowder back in our C. E. Society Sunday night, Nov. 10, after his being away almost three years. Mr. Crowder made a splendid talk to the young people and gave some very good spiritual helps to the older ones as well.

Church officers were elected last fourth Sunday and a very impressive service was held. Our pastor explained fully the duties of the officers and what it really meant to them. They are as follows: Superintendent, Mr. P. S. Gettys; Assistant Superintendent, Mrs. F. H. Grigg; Class Leaders, Charlie Grantt, P. S. Gettys and A. J. White; Stewards, J. H. Philbuck, John Gold, J. L. White, R. M. Floyd, and Frank Hastings; Secretary-Treasurer, F. H. Grigg; Trustees, J. A. Norman, John A. Powell, R. A. White; Church Reporter, Macie Pendleton; Christian Endeavor President, Inez Ridge.

We are very grateful to conference for sending back to us our much beloved pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge. Although Preacher Ridge has been with us only a year, there have been many improvements during this time and and he has been quite faithful to his work. We feel ashamed when we think of what little we have done to help him. May God help us to be more loyal to him and his family.

Mrs F. H. Grigg, Linde Pendleton, Mrs. C. E. Ridge, and daughter Inez, have been appointed Leadership committees, to help train the children in a Thanksgiving program to be given in our church Thanksgiving night.
M. PENDLETON, Reporter.

Albemarle.—We are glad to welcome our pastor again. He came back from conference simply bubbling over with enthusiasm, and brought us two wonderful messages on last Sunday, that should inspire each one of us to put forth greater efforts for the advancement of God's kingdom in the coming year. And with such a consecrated and enthusiastic leader, aided by scores of willing workers, who knows what good the future may hold for us.

On Sunday morning, the Junior Department assembled downstairs with the entire Sunday school, for the closing exercises. This may be done regularly in the future, as it makes it so much more interesting for the entire school. This department had a record attendance last Sunday, with every teacher and officer, and 97 scholars present, and only 14 absent. We think this is an excellent percentage.

On Sunday night, at the close of the service, the Church Officers for the ensuing year were installed. This was a very impressive ceremony, and should mean much to those who had a part in it.

The men's Bible class will have an oyster supper Friday night, in the dining hall of the church. This class has about 60 members enrolled, and Bro. Anderson says that he wants every member to be there. If they can't eat oysters, the rest will show them how it should be done. Mr. J. E. Gantt's team was on the losing side in this lap of the contest, so they will be the hosts for the occasion. The supper is to be prepared, served and eaten by "men only."

Mrs. D. F. Harkey has been confined to her bed for several days, suffering from a badly infected hand, starting from a cut on the finger. It was feared for a time that it was going into lockjaw or blood poisoning, but at this writing is much improved.

Pastor Anderson and family were pleasantly surprised on Monday night, when a large number of their friends gave them a "pounding," several bags of flour, sugar, etc., all around the room. After singing "Blest Be The Tie That Binds," a beautiful prayer of thanksgiving was offered, for friends, which made every one feel doubly repaid for their gifts.

MRS. JOHN U. WHITLOCK, Reporter.

Pleasant Hill, West Forsyth Circuit.—We, as Pleasant Hill church, feel very grateful to the Annual Conference for sending our former pastor, Mr. Way, to be with us for another year. His work the past year was very satisfactory to all, and we were indeed glad to have him and his family stay in our community. We have enjoyed our many associations together.

The pastor filled his first appointment for the new Conference Year at this church on Sunday morning, November 17, at 11 o'clock. He preached at Tabernacle in the afternoon at the regular hour. We are expecting this year's work to be as good as the closing year.

Arrangements are being made for a thank-offering service which will be given at our church on Sunday night, November 24, under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary of this church. We are expecting to start to work on the Christmas entertainment soon.

The Junior Missionary Society will meet for its regular monthly meeting in Saturday afternoon, November 23, at the home of Mrs. H. C. Whitman. Misses Nora Mae and Frances Whitman will be the associate hostesses at this meeting.

We regret very much to report the death of one of our loyal church members, Mrs. Mary Ellen Long, who passed away November 13. She was a good neighbor and will be missed greatly in the home and community in which she lived. She is survived by her husband, one son, Spencer, and a daughter, Myrtle, who are left behind to mourn their loss. May they be comforted in time of distress and grief.

REPORTER.

Lexington, State Street.—The first Sunday in the new Conference year was marked by a good attendance, and a hearty welcome was given Bro. Hendry, our new pastor. Mrs. Hendry and their attractive little girl have also made their presence in our midst, even for one Sunday, a pleasure and help. We all pledge our pastor our love and co-operation. While every one feels sad about the going of dear Bro. Bethea and his family, and wish for them much success in every way during their stay in Burlington, we feel that we have been very fortunate to have one like Bro. Hendry to take his place.

Miss Edna Jenkins, one of our Intermediate girls, was elected pianist for Sunday school. Mrs. Bethea has been filling this place very efficiently. Miss Edna's playing Sunday was good and we are very glad to be able to find a promising pianist in one so young.

The Missionary Society will meet Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. J. Cox.
REPORTER.

Draper.—We are starting the year with better attendance, both at Sunday school and preaching service. We hope to make this year the best year yet. We are glad to have Rev. W. T. Totten with us another year. Everybody enjoyed his sermon last Sunday night.
REPORTER.

Midway, Haw River Circuit.—We feel that we have had a successful year. Our pastor, Bro. J. L. Trollinger, preached his last sermon for the year the fourth Sunday in October. The Lord's Supper was administered and a large number of the congregation partook of this solemn feast.

During this hour the officers were installed in a very impressive way.

Our pastor being at Conference the second Sunday in this month he sent Rev. J. Clyde Auman to fill his appointment. The congregation was small, owing to a misunderstanding, though we are sure all who were present enjoyed Bro. Auman's talk, which was on Missions.

Our Sunday school has been reorganized and we are starting the new year off with much interest. Prayer meeting was conducted today just after Sunday school by Mrs. J. E. Dobbs.

The Christian Endeavor Society will be conducted tonight by Frank Chambers.

We have a faithful band of boys and girls at this place, and we ask the prayers of all who are interested in this church for these young people that they may be faithful and not become discouraged.

Mt. Lebanon, Randleman.—The last Sunday service of the Conference year was a very impressive one. Someone remarked that our new pastor preached the very best sermon of all the year. Five members were received into the church. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered to a large number.

The following church officers were elected for the new year:

Trustees: W. F. Ivey, C. A. Lamb, and S. A. Frazier.

Stewards: A. S. Barber, Misses Kate Parsons, May Caudle, and Ella Lineberry.

Classleader: C. J. Parsons.

Pianist: Miss Ruth White.

The Ladies' Aid and Missionary Societies have closed a very successful year's work. Both societies have re-elected the old officers for the coming year.

On Conference Sunday we were delighted to have with us at the Sunday school hour Rev. J. B. O'Brian, who made a splendid short talk. It is the opinion of the writer that this charge was Brother O'Brian's first work. He stayed with us then seven years and endeared himself to the hearts of all of us. We are always glad to have him with us.

On the third Sunday morning a very large and happy congregation was present to hear Rev. T. A. Williams, who has been sent back to us for another year.

During the past year Brother Williams has worked unceasingly among the folk. Sundays found him in the pulpit. Week-days found him in and out amongst the people. Wherever there has been sickness and suffering and death, there our Pastor has been also. I am sure we can all say truthfully that he has been a friend to us. We are glad to have him back, aren't we? Then let's prove to him by our deeds that we are.

On the first Sunday in December our Thanksgiving offering for the Children's Home will be taken. Let's not be ashamed of that offering.
REPORTER.

Pleasant Hill, Cleveland Circuit.—It was too rainy last Sunday to start off our new Conference year with a large crowd, but we weren't discouraged and our good pastor, as usual, brought us a wonderful sermon. We are so glad to have you back, Bro. Ridge. Every one loves you and the wonderful thoughts you bring to us. We welcome you heartily in our midst again. May this year be more successful than the last.

Church officers were elected for the coming year, as follows: Classleader, H. F. White; trustees, T. Z. Bumgardner, O. V. Warlick, Jessie Willis; stewards, J. T. Warlick and O. V. Warlick; Sunday school superintendent, Mrs. J. T. Warlick; church secretary and treasurer, T. Z. Bumgardner; church reporter, Miss Lucille Warlick.

Preaching services will be held here the first Sunday afternoon in December at 2:30 and again the third Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Communion services will be observed.

Best wishes to all for a successful Conference year.

LUCILLE WARLICK, Reporter.

Gidcon Grove, Flat Rock Charge.—We have gained some new members during the last three months and our Sunday school is holding out fine; good interest is manifested among both old and young and we are glad to have our former pastor back, for we like his very much and we think the work is progressing very nicely. Bro. Pegg is a good preacher; he has been with us for two years and we have learned to love him and his people.

We now have another reporter, Mrs. Folsom Angel, and I hope we will have more and better reports from our church, for I know she is capable. She belongs to the Stokesdale High School faculty and we believe her a good Christian woman.

Pray for us that we may do our duty. The delusions are great and we have to face many obstacles, but help us to live in such a way that God will be pleased to help us.

Yours for His sake.

F. J. L., Reporter.

Asheville.—We were glad to have our "new" pastor preach for us Sunday morning and evening, Rev. F. W. Paschall. The morning sermon was a new conference year message, helpful and inspiring. Mr. Paschall said: "I have reached the point by God's grace where I am not downcast by a small attendance." His text was Acts 28:15. He thanked God and took courage. Reciting somewhat of Paul's life, a man outstanding in history and religion, the greatest and most wonderful in religion since the day of Christ, admonishing us to be ever mindful and thankful to our Heavenly Father for our numerous past blessings, our present and future blessings, proving our thankfulness by our activity, and ever readiness to serve, doing our bit day by day. The opportunity is ours if we will seize it in one or another of the organizations of the church and Sunday school.

The evening service was quite as good, "Giving Our Best to the Master," our talent, whatever it is, doing our best, if only a very small part, dedicating it to the Lord.

The Girls' Circle will meet Monday at the home of Miss Elsie Drake. The Junior girls are invited to this meeting. After the business session they will sew for the bazaar which is to be held by the Ladies' Auxiliary some time in December.

The Brotherhood will meet with Mr. J. A. McIntire in Biltmore Pines Tuesday evening. After the business session supper will be served by Mrs. E. C. Fawcett's Circle, of which Mrs. McIntire is a member.

Wednesday evening at 6:15 at the home of Mrs. E. H. Spratt, 91 Holland street, the committee in charge of the "bake sale" booth for the bazaar will meet. Mrs. Spratt is chairman.

Our regular Wednesday evening prayer service will be held in the Sunday school room at 7:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. F. W. Paschall.

The stewards are having their first meeting of this Conference year Wednesday evening at 8:15 at the church. We want to get organized and get busy on our work.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will hold their regular monthly meeting with Mrs. G. M. Foster Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. We hope every member will be present, as there is much to be done, and if each and every one will do her bit the burden will be light, for "in unity there is strength."

REPORTER.

Hollister, Halifax Charge.—Having been re-elected reporter, I will endeavor to do my best. We are having a very good Sunday school. The interest is good. We are very sorry our superintendent, Mr. Robert Arrington, has not been able to attend Sunday school for the past three Sundays on account of scarlet fever in his home. We surely miss him and his family in Sunday school. Several of our members have been sick for the past month. We are glad to report they are all better.

The Woman's Auxiliary held its regular meeting last Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. B. Hankins. Mrs. W. E. Knight had charge of the program, using the one outlined in the yearbook for November. Miss Kathleen Shearin played softly on the piano, "I Am Thine, O Lord," after which Mr. Spencer led in prayer. Mrs. J. L. Alston read the scripture lesson. We were very sorry to discontinue the names of our pastor and wife from our Auxiliary. They have been a great help to our society and we will surely miss them.

We are very sorry indeed to lose our former pastor and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer. They have served us faithfully for the past five years and we know that much good has been accomplished since they have been here. Mr. and Mrs. Spencer have a host of friends on Halifax Charge that will never forget them and we will continue to remember them in our prayers.

We are glad to welcome as our new pastor Rev. H. F. Fogleman. He comes to us highly recommended. We hope to accomplish many things this year. Let's assure our pastor of our prayers and co-operation, for the pastor alone can not accomplish the things he would like to unless he has the prayers and co-operation of the people. We are expecting Mr. Fogleman to fill our regular appointment at Hollister next Sunday morning.

KATHLEEN SHEARIN, Reporter.

Asheboro.—On the Sunday before Conference, Jane Page Walker, the little granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hammer, joined the church on profession of faith. On the afternoon of the same day the writer went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lloyd and baptized their fine little boy, William Gray Lloyd, who is a little more than a year old.

Conference has come and gone and we are back on the job. On Monday evening after coming home from Conference we heard footsteps on the front porch and on going to the door we realized that we were in for a genuine pounding. The crowd came right in, carrying their packages and went right on to the dining room where the table soon groaned under the load. Brother L. F. Ross, the delegate to Conference, was the spokesman. In well chosen words he presented to us on behalf of the church the gifts, and said in order that the pastor might have some way of spending his spare time they had brought him a yo-yo, so you see we have something to do. I shall not attempt to name all the articles brought, neither do I know the names of all the donors, but we do appreciate more than we can tell the spirit which prompted the bringing of these gifts. After some remarks on the part of the pastor and prayer the friends went their way and left us to meditate and to be thankful that the lines had fallen unto us in pleasant places.

One week has gone by since Conference adjourned and already I have been in three funerals.

Joseph Ross, Jr., who was operated on at High Point for appendicitis, is home and able to be out again, though will not return to the University until after Christmas.

Mrs. P. H. Morris, the mother of Mrs. J. D. Ross, passed to her heavenly reward Sunday at the age of 85 years and the funeral was held from the Ross home yesterday afternoon.

Miss Beatrice Lowdermilk is our new reporter, so you may expect to hear from her.

CHARLOTTE PEOPLE IN FLORIDA

I would like to hear from the First M. P. Church in Charlotte, N. C., as we were members of that church when there were but six or eight members of us. We left there and came to St. Petersburg, Fla., in 1924, and have lost track. We were very much interested in the church there. We came here and started a little Sunday school two years ago. We had 14 the first Sunday, and now we have on roll 168. So you see we are still working for our Master.

There are lots of good people in St. Petersburg, and it is a fine place to live.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Henderson S. S., Harvest offering: eight jars jelly, four pounds sugar, one pound cakes, two pounds dried beans, one box rice, one box soda, one box raisins, six jars preserves, one jar pickles, 16 cans tomatoes, seven cans fruit, four cans soup, one can wheat serial, 20 cans vegetables, 29 pencils, two small bags flour, five dresses, one boy's coat, one cap, two aprons, 6 narcissus bulbs, one cake of soap.

Charlotte S. S., several toy elephants and other toys, six airplanes, made by the Daily Vacation Bible School, 28 gowns and four dust caps.

Enfield Aid Society: One can fish, seven cans fruit, seven cans jelly, three cans pickles, three cans vegetables, 18 sheets cardboard with pictures.

Mebane: Seven bushels potatoes, two pumpkins, 12 cans corn, 15 cans fruit, pickles and preserves, 31 pencils, 38 tablets, six lbs. coffee, 60 pounds sugar, three pairs bloomers, six pieces of prints and bleached cloth, one shirt, four dresses, four towels, several pieces clothing for children, 24 pounds flour, four pair hose, four cans peaches, two pounds dried fruit, one pair pillow cases.

Pleasant Hill, W. Forsythe: 17 dresses, six hats, one slip, three coats, three shirts, one sweater, four pair slippers, one pair bloomers and jacket.

Mrs. P. W. Miller, Cooper, Texas: One quilt, and Mrs. Lowrena Estep, three dresses and four pair hose.

Mrs. O. C. Barnes, Greensboro, one hat, three suits of underwear, three pair pants, five shirts and one coat.

Mrs. J. A. Gunn, Reidsville, three dresses, three pair shoes, one shirt, two waists and some pieces of serge.

Mrs. S. J. Roberts, Reidsville, 12 glasses.

Worthville S. S., two classes: eight pounds candy. Mrs. W. L. Ward, Worthville Mills, five caps for boys, 50 yards Indianhead cloth, 16 yards plaids, 87 yards unbleached domestic, and one dozen spools thread.

Mrs. A. R. Groce, Worthville, 51 yards Ginghams. All this was brought to us last Saturday by the Sunday School classes taught by Mr. Alfred and Mr. Ferree of Worthville. They brought a large truck load of their young people to see us and along with them came the candy and the yards and yards of cloth. Also $5.50 in money from the Worthville S. S.

Mrs. A. P. Williams, Burlington: Fourteen dresses, three suits underwear, five pair bloomers and one hat. (This was perhaps for some church, but somehow we failed to get the name of the church.)

Some one from Van Dyke's Department store, Winston-Salem, 26 beautiful booklets for children.

Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Williams, Asheville, came by and paid us a delightful visit, and left 13 nice Bibles for so many of our boys and girls. They have asked the privilege of supplying Bibles to our children as they become old enough to need them.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Cox, Hickory Ridge, Forsythe, came by one day last week and stopped long enough to unload a splendid Harvest. Home offering together with the $10.50 listed above, and they handed us a list of the materials donated by that splendid band of people. It was among the very best received yet, but some how the list has been misplaced. We make this report of it with apologies to the donors, and hope yet to find and publish the list.

Thanksgiving and Christmas

A letter goes out this week from this office to each pastor and to each S. S. superintendent asking that all our people be urged to give a day's income to the Home, at or near Thanksgiving. Please heed this call. Our meat and bread and clothing depends upon it. If a letter comes to you and you are not a S. S. superintendent please pass it to the rightful one.

Our Supper and Bazaar

On Thursday, December 5, from 5:00 to 9:00 P. M., we will hold a chicken-pie supper and bazaar. Come to see us and take supper with us. Pastors and superintendents in our nearby churches are asked to call attention to this in your public meetings.

We also solicit your help. Donations of chickens, pickles, fruits or other things for the supper.

We thank you, one and all, for your past help, and we confidently look for a continued helpfulness of our people to this Home.

Remember us at Thanksgiving and make your liberal donations for the support of His little ones.

The dear Lord bless you, and keep you, and cause His face to shine upon you.

Faithfully yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Supt.

—Nearly three years ago Willie Bowman was shot and killed near Tabernacle church while trying to arrest some chicken thieves. A negro named Frank Simmons has just been tried here for the offense and has been declared guilty and sentenced to death. Retribution may be long delayed, but it is sure to come.

—New England was shaken by an earthquake on Monday afternoon. Furniture was moved and some damage done.

—James M. Cox, son of Governor Cox of Ohio who opposed Harding for the presidency, is employed in a lumber plant in Asheville, learning the lumber business.

—Several subscribers have coveted the honor of being the first to renew at the new rate, $2.00 a year, but Bro. C. G. Hunter, of Tobaccoville, "beat them all to it," if we except a certain brother who has insisted for years on paying two dollars a year. Following Bro. Hunter are Mrs. A. G. Dixon, Rev. Edward Suits, Rev. C. W. Bates, J. G. Sullivan, Rev. J. C. Anman, Mrs. Rev. E. L. Ballard, Mrs. J. H. Moton, H. C. Nicholson, Rev. W. M. Loy, Geo. E. Wyatt, Rev. F. L. Gibbs.

—We know a stout-looking man who seems to be the very picture of health, and we were greatly surprised to hear that he is unable to do any work and never expects to be able. Many people are envied when they ought to be pitied.

—Mrs. G. L. McAdams, formerly of Mebane, lately of Pulaski, Va., changes her address to Thomasville, N. C. In Pulaski she could not find an M. P. church. In Thomasville she will be in reach of three.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hamlin, of Asheboro, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last Tuesday. Rev. Jesse Giles was the officiating minister in their marriage. They have had 14 children, 12 of whom survive.

The Courier in giving an account of Bro. Pritchard's pounding has this line:

Exercisesnalmty'.... narrth nam m
We do not quite understand the meaning of it. We hardly think it a part of the pastor's speech of appreciation, though he may have been somewhat at a loss to find fitting words.

—Randolph county had 27 cases of scarlet fever in October.

—Bro. J. H. Allen, of Reidsville, lost his home by fire Monday night and came near losing his life. He awoke to find the house in flames and rushed upstairs to awaken his sons. Flames in the stairway forbade his return that way. He made a rope of a blanket and saved himself and son by descending outside a window.

—The Board of Education had an earnest meeting in Grace church yesterday. Members of the Trustees of High Point College were present. It appointed a committee to employ a field agent for the college. Rev. S. W. Taylor, John Pickett and Charles Robbins compose the committee.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Mrs. Nancy J. Jones

Mrs. Nancy J. Jones, wife of the late Capt. M. L. Jones, who was builders of the Thomasville & Denton Railroad, was born Oct. 31, 1847, and died at her home on English St., in High Point, Oct. 30, 1929.

Surviving are two brothers, M. A. McGehee, Sandy River, Va., and C. A. McGehee, Badin, N. C.; two sisters, Mrs. H. H. Workman, Thomasville, and Mrs. M. F. Tonkins, High Point. Also three stepsons, A. E., J. B., and C. D. Jones, and one stepdaughter, Mrs. G. E. Crowell all of Thomasville.

She professed faith in Christ about forty years ago and joined Jerusalem Methodist Protestant church. Later, she removed her membership to Cid M. P. church, where she remained a member to the time of her death.

Sometime in August she was taken sick and never regained her health. She bore all her sufferings without murmur or complaint. All that doctors and nurses could do for her was done, but she did not rally, and on the morning of October 30 her soul went back to God who gave it. In the presence of a large congregation at Fairview church near Thomasville, the writer, assisted by Rev. H. L. Love, conducted the funeral service. Her body now lies beside her sister and husband in the family burying plot in Fairview cemetery.

Templeton

My heart was made sad when I received a telegram calling me home from school to conduct the funeral of Mr. S. S. Templeton, of Union Grove.

Brother Templeton was born at Jennings, N. C., 1857, and departed this life on November 1, 1929. He is survived by his wife, two sisters, one brother, ten children, 34 grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren. He accepted Christ as his personal Savior in early life and united with Union Grove Methodist Protestant Church, where he remained a member until death. In my earliest recollection he was Sunday school superintendent, class leader and choir director. He was always loyal to the church and ready to co-operate in any enterprise which the church launched. Although he was 72 years of age he was never too old to be interested in young people and their activities. He was a regular attendant of Christian Endeavor. He attended the regular worship at the church and led the choir on Sunday before he died on the following Friday. He was teacher of the Men's Bible Class until his death, and as a token of respect his Bible was placed on his casket and the members of his class marched by and each placed his hand upon the Bible. Our church feels very keenly the loss of one of its oldest and most faithful members, and we feel like praying that his "mantle" may be cast on someone who will be able to fill his place.

The funeral was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. Grady White and Rev. B. H. Vestal. Interment was in the local cemetery.

Yokley

It is with sorrow we chronicle the death of Mrs. Bertha Yokley, who was a faithful member of Lebanon M. P. church. Sister Yokley was born August 1st, 1897, and passed to her reward October 31st, 1929. Her affliction extended over a period of about two years. During the time she suffered intensely, but never complained. She would suffer for several days and be unable to be out, but just as soon as she got strength enough she would be in her place at church. I have seen her come into the services when I felt sure it taxed every bit of strength she had. She loved her church.

She was not only devoted to her church but she was a devoted and faithful wife and mother. She will be greatly missed by her friends and relatives.

May God comfort her husband and little children. And may they look to the Christ

Our Nation Gives Thanks

Thou God of hosts and Lord of all!
Before Thy throne we humbly fall!
Thou art our strength and mighty tower,
To Thee we owe our place and power.

From Europe's bondage Thou didst save
And made our fathers free—not slave.
Across the trackless sea they fled,
By Thy own hand were surely led.

In this new world Thou gavest them place
And savedst them from a savage race.
When England came with force of arms,
Thou savedst us from our dread alarms.

When North and South have come to blows,
The fearful carnage is brought to close,
Because Thy will is higher than men,
And Thou wouldst make us friends again.

When Rum and Wrong assayed to rule
And tried to make the law their tool,
Thou didst rise up and smite them down,
Though still we hear their angry sound.

We thank Thee, Lord, for all Thy care
To save us from each dreadful snare.
We pray Thee still to be our King,
And we this day Thy praises sing.

For peace and plenty we thank Thee, Lord,
And all the blessings of Thy Word;
For home and friends and loved ones here
And hope of life we hold most dear.

Relief Needed for Ministers

We believe that Protestant ministers have to preach too much. Especially in this time of those who preach twice every Sunday to the same congregation and then lead a prayer meeting on Wednesday night. It is too much work of one kind to do well without unduly taxing the strength of the body. There may be a few ministers who can endure the strain, but we fear for the average man. In time it will tell on him: in more time it will wear him out. Like a willing horse, he may do the work without shrinking, but it is not good policy to overwork a willing horse. Your pastor may not admit that he is doing too much preaching; in fact, may not yet know it, but I fear he is. I am not telling you how to make a program that will relieve him, but I am telling you that he needs relief. I have a suspicion that relief is to be found in some change in the Sunday evening service. It may take experiment to find out just what kind of a change is best; if so, let experiment be made. I have a suspicion also that when the right plan is found, it will be found to involve more activity on the part of the laity of the church of all ages. Who will find out and let the world know?

"Thank You" Not Enough

We would fall far short on this Thanksgiving Day if we did not say "Thank You!" unto the Giver of all good. We would be like the swine and other brutes that receive greedily and never have a thought as to the source of their favors. We cannot be men and refuse to offer thanks to God. But it is not enough just to be thankful and to say so. The case calls for far more. Since God sustains us by His bounty, it should occur to us that He has a purpose in our existence, and it should be a matter of deep concern to us whether in our lives we are realizing the purpose of God. On this Thanksgiving Day we should most seriously inquire for the way of our individual duty. Thus the day of thanksgiving will become a day of thoughtful, earnest prayer.

—Dr. Charles M. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps; or, What Would Jesus Do?" spoke in Greensboro last Sunday in the interest of world peace. Interviewed by a news reporter, he spoke of the place of the sermon in church programs, recommending that the sermon come near the first, say, after one hymn. The congregation is not tired out with "preliminaries," the air is better, and the effect of the preaching better. It prepares for the worship of meditation and song to follow. Dr. Sheldon believes in periods of silent prayer and meditation in church services. This plan of having the sermon near the beginning is being tried by a number of ministers who are coming to recommend it for wider use. We believe a good many rural preachers, where singers are scarce, have been using this plan right along, not knowing that they were furnishing a model to city preachers.

—Cheering reports come from the "Dollar a Member" movement in behalf of High Point College. How easily a great thing may be done for the college by all taking hold together. What a pleasure it will be to those who have helped when the thing is done. Such is the joy of conquest that our people will be looking for other difficulties to conquer. That is a large part of our business in this world, to overcome difficulties. The man who runs from his difficulties or tries to unload them on somebody else is missing the meaning and purpose of life.

—Clemenceau of France, is dead at the age of 88. He was a mighty man in the World War and is called "the father of victory" by the French people. He desired a quiet funeral and was taken 250 miles in a hearse and buried in a wood in a place chosen by himself. A quiet funeral did not satisfy the French. They expressed their feeling by firing many guns.

THE COMMONPLACE LIFE GLORIFIED

(Sermon by Rev. R. I. Farmer, Sunday Night at Conference.)

"Whence hath this man this wisdom, and these mighty works? Is not this the carpenter's son? (Matt. 13:54-55).

"Samuel Rutherford, the Scottish theologian who was imprisoned for his Christian views, said, 'I thought of Jesus Christ until every stone in the walls of my prison cell shone like a ruby.' This session of our annual conference will have failed unless we, too, are made to think often and much about Jesus. If we think more about Him, it succeeds.

In normal life, the place of one's earliest abode is never quite forgotten nor despised. Seneca said, 'Everyone loves his own country, not because it is so beautiful but because it is his own.' Happy is he who can point with pride to the place of his birth, though an humble one, and occasionally make a pilgrimage thereto. It was my privilege last August to visit the place of my earliest recollections. The 'big house and barn' of my youth seemed so small now. The long hill where I coasted in the snow and the valley where I played ball were so short and narrow now. Of course, they were the same; but the world has grown larger for me. That which did loom so much larger, however, as tears filled my eyes, was the recollection of mother's sacrifice and father's toil for their family of six. That native atmosphere seemed to mellow my spirit and give added courage for present life struggles.

The text arises from one of Christ's visits to His earlier home. Returning from a tour of teaching, preaching and healing of marvellous success, He hopes for a welcome. But where multitudes of strangers sought Him for His words or touch, now His neighbors, friends and relatives taunt Him. They remind Him at once of the lack of academic training and of the poverty of His family. He can be to them only a carpenter's son. No doubt it was with a sneer that their unbelief was asserted boldly. Though their need was as great as others and His readiness to save them was as marked, 'He did not many mighty works there because of their unbelief.'

The life of Christ was at once exemplary and stimulative. There are two estates in every worth-while life—that of humility and that of exaltation. For thirty years He was faithful to the commonplace before He reached the illustrious. In both He was divine and glorious. It is not good for any of us to have the road of life made too easy. Work is an asset. Hear Charles Kingsley say, 'Thank God every morning when you get up that you have something to do that day which must be done whether you like it or not. Being forced to work and do your best will breed in you temperance, self-control, diligence, strength of will, content and a thousand other virtues which the idle never know.' Thank God for work!

Our task soon will be to go back to the same church and the same people as laymen to work for Christ. Ministers may or may not be assigned to the same charge. But to us all will come the temptation to regard our work and perhaps our people as commonplace and beneath the dignity of our great (?) talents. Perhaps some may say of us, 'Is not this the carpenter's or farmer's or laborer's son or daughter?' How we shall need the grace to be loyal to the common-place, humdrum, everyday duties! Without this, we can never hope for the more glorious. Bethel was not a very inviting place but it was here that Jacob's ladder-dream appeared. The desert of Midian was perhaps so common-place but here Moses beheld the burning bush. Patmos was bleak and dreary but here the revelation came to John. Our task? There is glory in it, if we go back faithfully to meet it.

I. Without the commonplace the illustrious would be impossible. Obscurity of preparation precedes glory of results. All fruition has back of it hidden periods of planting and cultivation. Prior to a fine ride on a modern railway train was the dirt of the mine, the labor of the forest and mill and the exposure of the track-walker who humbly makes possible the passenger's safety. An ocean voyage with its deck promenades is glorious but down in the hulk of the ship, where the intricate maze of machinery and the stuffy atmosphere make breathing difficult, are the humble toilers who make the voyage possible. The commonplace is vital.

To me, the obedience in the home, the worship in the temple and His faithfulness in the carpenter shop make the life of Jesus all the more inspiring. It was as a carpenter that God, the Father, said of Him, 'This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.' Too many young people today are not willing to begin where father and mother began. They insist upon the completed home, the leisure, the luxury which come only after years of toil to the average family. One cannot have the rewards of virtue without paying the price of eternal diligence in conduct.

Loyalty to the commonplace brings the peace we seek. In a state Christian Endeavor Convention, in Newark, Ohio, I heard Dr. S. Parkes Cadman exclaim, 'I was not in a coal-mine when I could read the New Testament in the original tongue in which Jesus read it—I was in Paradise.' Loyalty to the commonplace led him to the illustrious career already reached as a preacher of the unsearchable riches in Christ.

II. Back of every successful life are long years of laborious training and constant devotion. A vision of a great cause dignifies the common tasks leading to it. I have seen a picture of the rail-splitter, Abraham Lincoln, in which he rests one foot upon a half-open log while he reads a book. The captain said, 'I'll study and get ready.' The opportunity came. Thoroughness wins. A Massachusetts Governor is said to have been elected upon the slogan, 'As a boy he hoed the rows to the end.' A member of the House of Commons in England one day hurled this sneer at an opponent, 'You blacked my father's boots.' The reply was, 'Yes, and I did a good job of it.' Nothing can crush such a spirit.

Moses spent forty years in Midian prior to becoming a deliverer. John, the Baptist, inhabited the desert before announcing Jesus as the Lamb of God. Paul dwelt in Arabia before the world heard him as the greatest apostle of them all. Who knows much of Marshal Foch during the first sixty years of his life? And Christ—inspiring are the years of devotion to the common tasks of an ordinary home and church. There is a rare strength which comes through struggle for existence or accomplishment. Face your local church problems and tasks in the spirit of consecration to a great work—Christ's own work. 'Let us hold fast our profession.' (Heb. 4:14).

III. Commonplace things and people are so often used of God to produce the greatest results. The commonplace sun makes a great day. The commonplace moon and stars make the glorious night. God's creation would not be so complete without the commonplace birds and flowers and meadows and forests. The handful of meal and the bit of oil in the cruse, which the widow had, became the means of demonstrating God's power when Ahab and Jezebel pursued Elijah. God's strength is always within our reach if we will but grasp it.

The rod in the hand of Moses; David's sling and pebbles; the barley loaves and a few fishes carried by a mere lad—God used them all to demonstrate His glorious power. But they had to be placed at His disposal by their possessors. Will you let Him use you and your strength?

Behind the bars is not considered a desirable nor conducive place for constructive work. But a tinker in jail, with a goose-quill pen, wrote the book read next to the Bible—Pilgrim's Progress. Moody was not a Doctor of Divinity; but few preachers equalled or excelled him as a soul-winner. No opera star ever lifted men God-ward or thrilled them as the simple, consecrated singer, Sankey. There are latent possibilities in the most common folks—the really big lives are so often the ordinary ones. How truly speaks the Word—'God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; and base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not to bring to naught things that are; that no flesh should glory in His presence.' (I Cor. 1:27-29.)

IV. And finally, the life that is inglorious may be the origin or inspiration of a more glorious one. Back of the worth-while enterprises of life are the humble, unrecognized aids, which, though man-despised, are God-honored. The captive Israelitish maid in slavery could not heal her Syrian master; but she could direct him to the man of God who could instruct him. The quiet, matter-of-fact Andrew never preached a sermon nor wrote a book, of which we know. But 'He first findeth his own brother Simon. . . . And he brought him to Jesus' (John 1:41-42)—Peter did preach the sermon and write the book. The town-folk said, 'Is not this the carpenter's son?' But God used Him as the Saviour of the world.

O, you who yearn for the joy of great deeds, in large places of service—finer homes or larger church plants or more intelligent people—you who are anxious to do some mighty work for Christ, do the thing which lies nearest thy hand. Tell those nearest to you of the wonderful Christ who has saved you from sin. Tell them of the wonderful joy you are having in the thing to which He has saved you—His own lowly service. Be loyal when others forsake the warfare of Christ. No one can know what other life may be touched and redeemed and started upon a more glorious accomplishment than the humble one which first attracted his attention. Somebody won Moody to Christ. Some life touched and inspired the sodden life of John B. Goff until it became the flaming apostle of temperance. World salvation is a co-operative movement in which all who participate, however humbly, shall receive the reward of joy such as only the Master can give for final victory.

You may not be a great light but you can be the taper bringing the first gleam. If I could paint the High School and College graduating scenes, which I love, I would have the beaming graduates in the foreground. But back of them, and plainly visible, I would place the toil-worn and shabbily-dressed and perhaps bent forms of sacrificing parents of some, at least, who have made this hour possible for their children. Happy hearted and wreathed in painful smiles, these, at least some of them, would be portrayed as beholding their own youthful dreams for self-accomplishment, which were denied them, now being attained in others. That is victory.

'It is not this the carpenter's son?' Yes, but also the Son of God. Is yours a seemingly commonplace life? But you are also an heir of God and a joint-heir with Christ. Then prove thyself a good guardian of such an heritage. Go back home or to your work determined to give your best talent and service in building brotherhood.

THE COUNTRY CHURCH

(CONTEST ARTICLE NO. 7)

During the past history of our church, the emphasis has been put upon the establishment of churches in our larger towns and cities. Very little, if any, conference aid has ever been given to establish and support country churches. We all realize the importance of having churches in the towns and cities where many of our rural people are drifting, but we must not forget the fact that the source of supply for country and city churches must be kept at its best by developing our country people.

Boost the Country Church

We should not lament over the country problems. Be a booster of the things that will make for the betterment of the country people. With the improved methods of farming, better homes and equipments, good roads, automobiles, telephones, radios, consolidated schools and modern churches, there is no better place to live and rear children than in the country.

Consolidation and Location of Country Churches

The re-locating of public highways, the drift of country people to villages, towns and cities; and the greater demand for enlarged programs and efficiency in service make necessary in many instances the re-locating and consolidating of country churches. We are living in an age of consolidation. Almost every daily paper brings news of consolidations of banks, railroads, manufacturing plants, and stores. Only a few years ago there was a one or two-teacher school in every community. If the present rate of consolidation is kept up it will not be many years until all small schools will be consolidated. Good roads and truck conveyance has made it possible to consolidate these small schools and give country children the advantage of better schools. The consolidated school provides better equipment; better teachers; and has many other advantages over the small school. The churches can gain similar advantages by consolidation, but are very slow to seize the opportunity.

Buildings and Equipments

Another important need is better church buildings and equipments. A majority of our rural church buildings consist of one auditorium. No church today can properly serve its community in a spiritual way without an educational department providing separate rooms for each Sunday School class and Bible Vacation classes. And many times these country churches are not properly heated, or it may be that the wind is whistling in at some of the broken out window panes. A warm, comfortable church will help keep up the attendance during the winter season. The interior and grounds should be so attractive that it will sell the church to the community. A few cut flowers each Sunday will help. Also the church lawn should be grassed and appropriate shrubbery and flowers planted. Where these weak country churches are not able to do these things two or more should unite and build a church that will be a credit to the community.

Trained Leadership

Still another crying need of the country churches is trained leadership. Many times they are not able to get the pastor they need to organize their young people and take a lead in kingdom service. More often they have difficulty in finding a good Sunday School superintendent; teachers for the classes; a leader for the choir; or someone to play the musical instrument. The consolidated church stands a better chance of getting a good pastor with leadership and consecration. Also the other places of leadership could be more easily filled and others trained to take their places.

Unity and Co-operation

Again there is need of unity and co-operation among our rural people. Many times families or individuals are not friendly with each other and will not work harmoniously together. Some times they withdraw and build a church of their own in the same community. And in some of these country communities there are five or six Protestant churches of different denominations trying to keep up their little churches and not any of them strong enough to pay a pastor or run a good Sunday School. It is high time we sacrifice some of our differences and pray as Jesus did for the oneness of his followers.

Removing Difficulties

It is easier to lay plans and advance beautiful theories of how to solve the country problems, than it is to put these ideals into practice. But if the consolidation of country schools is practical, why would it not be practical to consolidate some of our country churches if the people could be led to see the benefits derived? Many of our fathers and mothers were converted at these altars, and in some instances they are connected with camp grounds and the glorious revivals of the past. I would not subtract one iota from the sacred memories of the past; but many times these altars that were once aflame with the shouts of the saints, have become cold and almost uninhabited. Parents labor hard and long to feed, clothe and educate their children; but when they get old it sometimes becomes necessary to leave the old home with all its sacred memories and go to live with their children in their better homes and depend upon them for support. God bless our country churches that stand on sacred ground: but God forbid that they stand in the way of re-locating or consolidating where the Kingdom of God can better be advanced. Christ taught that neither in Jerusalem nor the mountain in Samaria should we worship the Father, but in spirit and in truth.

Another common excuse for not better locating and consolidating country churches is the cemetery. The custom of holding the funeral service in the church may make it a little inconvenient if the church is removed. But many of our town and city people have to drive quite a distance to the city cemetery. So far as the up-keep is concerned these country cemeteries could be easily endowed and kept in good condition from year to year. The best country cemetery I know is in a sparsely settled community where the church has been removed. Which is the more important to provide a church for the dead or for the living?

Let us unite our prayers, means, and efforts toward the dawning of a better day for our country churches.

AN OUTFLOW ESSENTIAL

A Christian not in use is subject to rust and corrosion. The river Jordan runs into both the Sea of Galilee and the Dead Sea. The difference in the seas is not in their reception, but in their giving out process. The Christian who receives good impressions without corresponding expressions is a Dead Sea Christian. Stagnant, stale, slothful, and wicked are descriptive words of such characters. We are responsible to God for the fullest development possible of our lives. Our highest capacity is God's standard for our efficiency.—P. F. Squyres.

THANKSGIVING

By the time this reaches our readers Thanksgiving Day will be gone. We trust that it may be a day of happiness and genuine thanksgiving on the part of all of our people. The material expression of our gratitude to Almighty God, for His unfailing blessings upon us, is an offering to our Children's Home. Let us not fail to make this offering, and let it be just as liberal as possible. But please do not confuse this offering with the Women's Thank-offering services. Heretofore one of these services was held in November. To get away from the Thanksgiving service, and to avoid confusing the Thank-offering service with the Thanksgiving service, the women now hold their Thank-offering services in September and February. One thing more: Do not be confused about the Thanksgiving Day offering. It is NO PART of any budget. It is to be sent direct to Dr. A. G. Dixon, the superintendent of the Home.

"Let the people praise thee, O God; let all the people praise thee."

"Then shall the earth yield her increase; and God, even our own God, shall bless us."

Greenville Charge

November 15-18. These days were given to this charge in making some post-conference adjustments. The charge appears now ready to begin the new conference year program, and we shall watch for increasing progress as the weeks and months lengthen. Already we have assurance of a generous response to the "Dollar a Member" undertaking for High Point College. It would be heartening, indeed, to have this, one of the most remote charges from our conference center, the FIRST to report a "Dollar a Member" in full. What about this, Greenville? Three churches,—Matthew's Chapel, Wesley's Chapel, and Philadelphia—were visited on this itinerary. Brother O'Briant and Brother Cowan met with us in a called session of the quarterly conference Monday. Brother Cowan tendered his resignation as pastor of Mecklenburg charge, and will remain on the Greenville charge as associate pastor, Brother O'Briant being pastor. These brethren will press the work along all lines, and we shall hope and pray for the largest possible results. There are many good people on this charge, and it is a pleasure to be among them. Our grateful thanks are hereby extended to all who befriended us while we were on this visit.

Mecklenburg

November 24, Sunday.—We held a business meeting with this charge in an effort to fill the vacancy in pastoral supply, caused by the resignation of Brother Cowan. The meeting was held at Antioch Church in the afternoon at 2 o'clock, and was well-attended. We found the people in a pleasing state of mind, and hopeful for the year's work. Satisfactory arrangements were promptly made with them for a supply, and we hope to be able to make complete arrangements by next week.

"Dollar a Member!" "Dollar a Member!"

We will ring the changes on this for the next 90 days, and then comes the shout of victory. When Admiral Togo was sent to destroy the Russian fleet, he said, "A thousand conflicting thoughts, but one fixed purpose," and all the world knows the results. For the first quarter of this conference year there may be with us many conflicting thoughts, but with them there will be one fixed purpose,—$20,000 for High Point College. "A Dollar a Member!" "A Dollar a Member." Twenty Thousand Dollars from TWENTY THOUSAND MEMBERS. Sound it out through the conference, brethren, until it is on every tongue and in every ear. "A Dollar a Member!" "A Dollar a Member," from 20,000 members. The word now is, "Go." What church will be the first to report "over"? What charge? Let's not have a dull day in this undertaking. We will sing, laugh, work, pray, and pay, until this thing is done. "Dollar a Member"! "Dollar a Member"! A dollar a member from 20,000 members in 90 days. All ready now, and all at it. Send money to Dr. George R. Brown, treasurer, and designate it, "Dollar a Member."

The committee is preparing some printed matter that will be of assistance in this undertaking. It will be mailed out to pastors and directors this week, if possible. Once more: Let every minister and every member pray every day for the blessings of God upon this undertaking.

Herald Allotment

The Directing Committee, created by the Annual Conference to assist Editor McCulloch in increasing the HERALD subscriptions to 3,000, has entered promptly and vigorously upon its task, we shall await, with deep interest, the full realization of their goal. This is a reasonable expectation, and only a little effort by many people, and the thing will be done. We urge every pastor and every subscriber to press this matter until the HERALD circulation has mounted to 3,000. The conference, as such, will be more than repaid for all that it costs to do this, and each subscriber will receive, through the weekly visit of this splendid paper, a great deal more than the value of the two-dollar investment. At least a thousand subscriptions should be given as Christmas presents. This would be a splendid way of making Christmas last all the year. Everybody, now, pushing the HERALD!

Service

This little word of seven letters is one of the really big words in the English language. It is a word, too, that is constantly with us. The fact is, we can't escape it. No difference in what realm of life our lot is cast, we meet this word at every turn of the way. And fortunate for us that this is true; for it becomes to us a stepping stone to higher things. In fact, it is the only stepping stone upward. This little word holds the key—nay, it is the key—to all progress and success. Jesus' word for it: "He that is greatest among you shall be your servant." Surely then, we will count favor with this word, and count ourselves fortunate if it is burned into our very being until it becomes the dominant factor in our lives. Emerson's words are significant: "If a man write a better book; preach a better sermon; or build a better mouse trap than his neighbor, though he make his home in the woods, the world will make a beaten pathway to his door." The Lord stir within us, for this conference year, an overmastering purpose to serve.

"DOLLAR A MEMBER"

No, we are not putting on a campaign. We are just raising a little ready money for High Point College maintenance—dollar a member from 20,000 members.

To move this undertaking lively along, the committee on management has districted the conference as follows:

- No. 1. Creswell Charge: Rev. R. L. Hethcox, director.
- No. 2. Roseneath, Enfield, Whitaker's, Halifax, Speight's Chapel: Dr. T. M. Johnson, director.
- No. 3. Spring Church, Greenville, Chase City: Rev. A. D. Shelton, director.
- No. 4. Vance, Henderson, Granville: Mr. J. B. Hicks, director.
- No. 5. Orange, Mebane, Graham: Rev. B. M. Williams, director.
- No. 6. Saxapahaw, Alamance, Mt. Hermon: Mr. H. A. Garrett, director.
- No. 7. Randolph, Libert-Siler, Chatham: Dr. J. D. Williams, director.
- No. 8. Mt. Pleasant, Tabernacle, Moriah: Mr. W. T. Hanner, director.
- No. 9. Asheboro, Richland, Why Not: Rev. J. E. Pritchard, director.
- No. 10. Burlington, Glen Raven-Haw River, Gibsonville-Fountain Place, Fairview: Rev. N. G. Bethea and Rev. L. W. Gerringer, directors.
- No. 11. Reidsville, Haw River: Rev. J. L. Trollinger, director.
- No. 12. Flat Rock, Kernersville: Rev. J. D. Cranford, director.
- No. 13. Grace, St. Paul, Calvary, West End: Mr. F. R. Stout, director.
- No. 14. Midway-Shady Grove: Mrs. C. F. Pinnix, Mrs. C. C. Lineberry, directors.
- No. 15. Guilford, High Point, First, Welch, Lebanon, English St.: Rev. R. I. Farmer, director.
- No. 16. Pleasant Grove, Thomasville, First, Community Church, West End: Rev. H. W. Maier, director.
- No. 17. Denton, Davidson: Rev. E. A. Bingham, director.
- No. 18. State Street, South Lexington, North Davidson, Shiloh: Rev. G. H. Hendry, director.
- No. 19. Spencer, Concord, Kannapolis, Albemarle: Rev. J. R. Anderson, director.
- No. 20. Roberta, Midland: Rev. Robert Short, director.
- No. 21. Charlotte, Mecklenburg, Pageland: Rev. N. M. Harrison, director.

OUR STORY PAGE

THE POSTPONED THANKSGIVING

"I won't be here for Thanksgiving this year," announced Shelby abruptly, "I'm sorry, but I've arranged to be at Delhi for that and the two following days."

A questioning look came into the faces of the assembled family, but the quietness that followed rather disturbed Shelby, who had anticipated protests and pleadings. Van finally broke the stillness. "In that case," she said slowly, "why not make it a postponed Thanksgiving, that is, postpone it until next year?"

"Eh? How's that, daughter?" asked Mr. Borden, glancing quizzically across the table at Van. Her remark had aroused the surprise and consternation that Shelby had anticipated from his announcement. "Just what do you mean by a postponed Thanksgiving?"

"Perhaps I should have said an omitted Thanksgiving," was Van's smiling comment. "Shelby is breaking up the family gathering by going away, and what is a Thanksgiving dinner without all the family present?"

"A solemn affair, I imagine," winked Mr. Borden, and his wife nodded soberly. Aunt Jane merely assented with an amazed stare; while Mildred tapped on the table with her pencil, and frowned.

"Well, then," continued Van, "if it's going to be broken up, let's all take a hand at it. Shelby will be in Delhi on that date and, father, you and mother can go somewhere alone."

"But, dear, how could we go away at such a time, and leave you all at home?" protested Mrs. Borden.

"There won't be any one left at home, Mother," interrupted Van. "Aunt Jane would like to visit her daughter-in-law in Rome, and Mildred has that invitation from Madeline Scott in the city. It seems to me a good time for all of us to go our separate way this Thanksgiving."

"How about you, Van?" interrupted Shelby. "You have provided for every one but yourself."

"Oh! I have my little plan. I've loads of invitations. Now, Mother, you'll have a day of real rest. You won't have to plan a thing for this Thanksgiving, and Aunt Jane won't have to cook or do anything but eat somebody else's turkey and pumpkin pies."

"May I write to Madeline and tell her I'm coming?" asked Mildred.

"Yes, send the letter off the first thing in the morning," replied her sister. "I'll write to Mary, Aunt Jane, if you want me to, and tell her you will spend Thanksgiving with her."

Aunt Jane did not reply, but Van took her silence as an acceptance. She wrote the letter and saw to it that Mildred got off her note to Madeline before bedtime. The way she rushed matters permitted little discussion of the subject.

Never before had the family been separated on Thanksgiving Day, and the innovation would be something more than a novelty. Van had seen this event coming for years past, however. As far back as she could remember, there had always been some sort of interruption in the pleasures of the day by one or more members of the family. Aunt Jane had nearly always sighed, and said, "I declare I ought to be with Mary and Billy today. I'll hardly eat a mouthful of turkey thinking of them."

Father and mother always remembered Thanksgiving as their wedding day, and rarely failed to recall the event as a wonderful milestone in their happy married life rather than a day for general thanksgiving. Often Van had heard them discuss it by themselves, and once mother had said, "If we could just run off together this day and celebrate it alone, Miles!"

Father had looked at her, and replied, "We'll do it, Clara, some Thanksgiving when the children are older. I'd like to do it now, but I suppose duty is at home."

Then Shelby had taken his turn. He had reached the age when youth rebels at old conventional ways. He wished to be original and different. He pretended to be bored by family gatherings and dinners and wanted to run away from them. Several times he had threatened to be absent at the family Thanksgiving dinner. Mildred had been inoculated with the germ of discontent that had been circulating around, and spoke of visiting the homes of her school friends, two or three of whom had invited her to spend this holiday with them.

The announcement of Shelby that he intended to be in Delhi on Thanksgiving Day had therefore given Van the opportunity to spring her little surprise. She had arranged it beforehand in her mind, and was only waiting for the first opportunity to announce it. Without waiting for consent, she settled matters.

As the day of perfect freedom approached, there was an unusual restlessness in the household. Every face looked sadder, and at times a little doubtful. Signs of weakness came first from Mildred. "I almost wish I weren't going to Madeline's," she confessed. "She's invited that Ruth Simpson, and I know I'll not have a pleasant time with her around."

Aunt Jane received a letter from Mary, which she carried around with her several days before speaking of it. "Billy's going to be away from home on Thanksgiving Day," she said. "It won't be a very pleasant visit for me with Mary alone. I guess I—"

"You can't withdraw now, Aunt Jane," protested Van quickly. "You must go."

Shelby kept his counsel, but Van sometimes wondered if his Delhi engagement was not fictitious. Father and mother planned a trip over the route they had taken on their wedding day, but somehow there was one hitch after another in it, and the latter finally said, "I declare, Miles, I wish we were going to stay at home."

"So do I, Clara, but it wouldn't do now. We must see it through unless—" Their heads came closer together, and Van could not hear what they said.

The exodus began early in the morning the day before Thanksgiving. Aunt Jane left first for the tiresome trip to the city; Mildred followed; and father and mother left reluctantly in the afternoon; while Shelby waited for the evening train to Delhi.

When the last one had gone, Van glanced around the deserted house. Everything was very quiet, very unlike previous days before Thanksgiving. She stood a moment looking pensively out of the window and murmured, "I wonder if I'm right. Anyway I've got to be prepared. I won't let any of them come back to a dinnerless house."

Later on, as the girl was busy decorating the dining room with heavy-headed, golden chrysanthemums, and bright leaves, she murmured to herself, "I may be mistaken."

Early the next Morning, Aunt Chloe, who had cooked for the family for many years, came early bringing with her a finely-dressed turkey.

"Oh, what a beauty!" cried Van, as she turned with her hands full of flowers.

"The finest turkey that butcher said he had. If your ma doesn't get a taste of it, nor your pa, Aunt Chloe is goin' to be dreadful disappointed."

"Well, well, we will see what we shall see."

Thanksgiving Day was clear and bright, snappy with frost, but with a brilliant sun shining upon the autumnal beauty. The dining room was glorious, and Van's eyes sparkled with satisfaction as they roamed over it. "Well," she said to Aunt Chloe, "if nobody comes, I will have the dinner alone." Then she stood a minute looking out of the window. Had she been mistaken? Did none of them love the old home as she had felt sure that they had loved it? Did they really want another environment to make it Thanksgiving?

The hunk of an automobile interrupted her. Rushing to the window she found her Aunt Jane just dismissing the station car.

"Well there is number one," cried the girl, clapping her hands, and rushing to the door. "I am right here, Aunt Jane, to welcome you."

"Well, if I ever!" exclaimed the old lady.

"I thought I would have Thanksgiving at home," explained the niece as she led her surprised aunt into the dining room.

"Why, Van!" cried Aunt Jane. "What does this mean?"

"Only that I could not possibly believe any one would want a dinnerless home. I thought I'd have things ready if anything went wrong, and some of the family came back."

"Well, well, if this isn't the surprise of my life. You see there is no place like home, Van. Mary had a house full of company, city folks, and well, I did not fit; so I made an excuse and came back. My, won't we have a grand dinner all by ourselves!"

"I am not sure we shall be alone, though, because here comes somebody now. I hope it isn't company." With a clap of her hands, and a joyful cry, Van was making a dash for the door. "It's father and mother," she cried.

Looking a bit uncertain and sheepish, the two wanderers came up the steps. Evidently they supposed the house closed. When they met Van, they gave a cry of gladness. "You dear child!" exclaimed mother.

"Well, well, sis," her father added. "We are glad to have somebody home." Then looking through the open door into the dining room, they saw the table spread; and turning the two stood stock still. "What does it mean?" both asked, looking at the girl laughing in the doorway.

"Just another one of the regular family Thanksgiving dinners. Aunt Chloe has the turkey ready to serve."

"But how—how did you know father and I would return?" cried mother.

"I didn't for sure, but I had a feeling that you two wouldn't be really happy anywhere else on Thanksgiving Day, even if it was your wedding day. Now tell me why you and father came back."

"Mother got homesick," said father, as the face of the mother flushed.

Aunt Chloe, without being noticed by the father or mother, beckoned Van. "Honey, I reckon you got another one coming to the party. There's a girl coming 'cross lots that looks sort as if she belonged here."

Van broke away and rushed to the kitchen door. A moment later Mildred was in her arms. "Oh, Van, I'm so glad you're home," she cried. "I simply couldn't stand it. I got so homesick last night that I couldn't stay away. I told Made-line I had to come back. I'd forgotten that no one was to be here until—why, there's mother and father!" raising her head in surprise.

"Yes, Mildred, we're all here, except Shelby, and he's coming."

A little later when the boy joined the others, the family reunion was complete. The father seemed to express something personal for each one in his few words of grace. "Lord, make us grateful and thankful for what we have, and keep up from straying after strange gods."

Van felt sure that each one had been cured of a restless desire to change, and in the Thanksgivings to come they would remember this one. She had been right in her prophecy. They only thought they would like to be somewhere else on Thanksgiving Day, but home in the end was the magnet that drew them back to each other for the celebration of the day.

The committee suggests that names of persons who give, and the amounts of each, be published in the HERALD weekly. The college wishes a list also of all donors, and the amounts given by each, for the college files.

This is a 90-day task. We must complete it by that time, which means that we must have the equivalent of a dollar a member from 20,000 members,—not pledges, but cash. It is our desire to have churches and charges reported to the HERALD as rapidly as the membership amount is provided. Let the money be sent at once to Dr. George R. Brown, treasurer. As has been stated elsewhere, we will have some helpful printed matter in the hands of the pastors and directors just as soon as the printers can get it off the press. "Go," now, everybody, and let us have several churches reported to the HERALD next week, and a long list of those who are giving. "This one thing we do: We raise $1.00 a member from 20,000 members. At it, Now!"

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By ELIZABETH HANNER

President C. E. Society, High Point College

DEC. 1: "WHY IS CHRISTIANITY A MISSIONARY RELIGION?"

Matt. 28:18-20.

(CONSECRATION MEETING)

Daily Bible Readings

Monday—It sees a lost world. Eph. 2:1-7.
Tuesday—It has a cure for sin. Rom. 1:16.
Wednesday—It has compassion. Matt. 9:35-38.

Thursday—It has love. II Cor. 5:14-21.

Friday—It has light. II Cor. 4:1-7.

Saturday—It has faith. Rom. 16:25-27.

Suggestions to the Leader

A good poster is one of the best ways to start people thinking. Be sure to have one placed in the church in advance of the meeting. The Missionary committee should help the leader in preparing for the meeting in every way possible—one way would be for this committee to be responsible for presenting a brief sketch of the spread of the Christian religion since the days of Jesus.

Since this is consecration meeting, make a special effort to have each member present take some definite part in the program. There is no better way than through the sentence prayer. Remind your Christian Endeavorers of the pledge, occasionally.

If possible have several special music numbers. Throughout the meeting you could use the hymn, "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations," a stanza at a time. Have at least two verses sung very softly. Other suitable hymns are: "I Love to Tell the Story;" "I'll Go Where You Want Me to Go;" "Rescue the Perishing;" "A Savior of Love;" "Power in the Blood."

The Leader's Talk

The question, "Why is Christianity a missionary religion?" is of utmost importance. Throughout the entire history of the church missionary zeal has been very evident. Just so long as there remains a person who does not know our Savior it will continue. We ask ourselves the question, "Why?" The more we think about this question the more responsibility we feel as young people. We are all included.

Of course, the first great missionary was Jesus Christ. He gave instruction to His disciples as to the furthering of His kingdom. The command which Christ gave these disciples, "Go ye into all the world," applies to us as well. Will we heed the command to help send the message of redemption throughout the world? We cannot afford to fail, for He has no other plan.

Topics

1. The minister of a large city church.
2. Social worker.
3. Home missionary.
4. Foreign missionary.
5. Christian doctor.

(These to center around the theme, "Why Is Christianity a Missionary Religion?")

To Be Answered

1. What factors qualify a missionary religion?

2. Do you consider your religion as being adequate for the whole world?

3. What have the young people of our land to give to missions?

4. What does the Christian religion have to offer women which is different from other religions?

5. Can a church be Christian if it is not missionary in nature?

Prose and Poetry

No other religion has a universal Savior, or any savior at all. Christianity's aim is to make the Savior known, and give the nations a chance to follow Him.—Wordsworth.

No religion deals with sin as Christianity does; none succeeds in lifting men out of sin as it does. It finds people on a low level of life, and puts new ideals into their hearts.—

"This is to be the motive of our missionary work—simple obedience. 'Go ye,' Christ has said, 'make disciples of all nations.' No other incentive is needed to make every Endeavor society a missionary Society."—Amos R. Wells.

As Christ was moved with compassion for the untaught multitude, so is the church's compassion on a world sunk in sin, misery, and superstition. To have the key to the soul's prison and not open the door would be a crime.—Walterman.

THE TEACHER

He sent men out to preach the living Word, Aflame with all the ardor of his fire;

They spoke the truth, wherever truth was heard,

But back to Him they brought their hearts' desire.

They turned to Him through all the lengthening days,

With each perplexity of life or creed;

His deep reward, not that they spoke His praise,

But that they brought to Him their human need.

—Hildegard Hoyt Swift.

Brave youths, what voice is this that calls you far

To lands unknown, to dangers known too well;

That lures you from the quiet ways of home, To crowded streets and homeless wanderings? What flag is this you bear aloft unfurled, Through mountain pass and flood and flame and death?

The voice that calls? It is the voice of Christ. The flag we bear? It is the flag of Christ.

The love that leads? It is the love of Christ. For Christ hath sent us into all the world That men may find in Him eternal life.

—The Woman's Missionary Friends.

Intermediate Topic: Dec. 1: "Christ for Ourselves and for Others." Luke 2:10, 11; John 17:20, 21. (Consecration meeting).

Junior Topic: Dec. 1: "Self First or Others First?" Phil. 2:4. (Consecration meeting).

—Russia and China have had a great battle, according to report, over the Manchurian railway, and the Chinese have been badly beaten. But the factions of China are said to be getting together against their common foe.

NOTICE TO AUXILIARIES

Please remember that all Thanksgiving offerings go direct to Dr. Dixon and NOT to the Branch Treasurer. The Branch Treasurer receives all Thank-Offering money and sends it to the Executive Treasurer and not to the Children's Home, as formerly. Please do not get your Thank-Offering and your Thanksgiving Offering confused. Thank you.

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY

December 8, 1929

The distinctive feature is a "Golden Rule Dinner," a very simple meal in place of the usually elaborate Sunday dinner. Coming between Thanksgiving and Christmas, those two red-letter days associated with abundance, rejoicing and good cheer, its purpose is to quicken the imagination and lead to a practical application of the Golden Rule in behalf of those who have no harvests and for whom there can otherwise be no Christmas joys. Gifts vary with the intensity with which the needs of the under-privileged are visualized. The minimum gift is the difference between the cost of the Golden Rule Dinner and that of the usual Sunday meal. The equivalent of one day's income is suggested as a standard gift.

STATE CONFERENCE OF C. E. LEADERS TO BE HELD IN HIGH POINT

The first state-wide conference and institute for Christian Endeavor leaders in North Carolina will be held here at the First M. P. church Saturday and Sunday, November 30 and December 1. State officers, district officers and officers of city unions and church societies will attend.

Approximately 75 out-of-town leaders are expected to be present, the number likely to be increased to 150 by the daily attendance of local C. E. members.

There will be four sessions, one Saturday afternoon, one Saturday night, one Sunday morning and one Sunday afternoon. Among the leaders who will be present to take part in the program are W. Roy Bregg, field secretary, Atlanta, Ga.; Rev. J. George Bruner, Everett Bierman and Stokes S. Rawlins.

High Point men who will assist in the institute are A. J. Koonce, state president; Rev. Roy I. Farmer, Rev. E. Lester Ballard, Rev. T. A. Sykes, Rev. W. R. Shaffer and Dean P. E. Lindley, of High Point College.

Dr. Charles M. Sheldon, world-known author and religious leader, who will be in the city to address an interdenominational meeting in the afternoon, will speak to the conference Sunday morning.

—Rev. G. F. Millaway has been kindly received by the Concord people and is pleased with the prospects.

HERALD SUBSCRIPTIONS FIELD SERVICE

Directing Committee of the Annual Conference: Rev. N. M. Harrison, Rev. R. I. Farmer, J. F. Coble.

The Herald must rely on pastors and their assistants for the work of extending and maintaining its circulation. It has always been so and is more emphatically so now. In making out goals for the charges the Committee has generally followed the rule of one subscription to every ten church members, which does not seem unreasonable or impossible. Of course the logical goal is a paper to every family in the church. The first column of figures gives the goal for new and renewed subscriptions for the conference year. The second column is to give the number received to date.

Miscellaneous	25	8

The forerunner of our general church organ, The Methodist Protestant Recorder, was The Wesleyan Repository and Religious Intelligence. In its first issue (April 12, 1821) the editor, William S. Stockton, said of the paper: "We intend that the columns of our paper shall be open for the receipt of communications which have for their object the glory of God and the good of mankind." If this be true anywhere in the magazine world, it is, and, of necessity, must be true of the religious press. We believe it to be true of our own denominational press. If it were not true, our support would not be deserved.

Where else can we find logical advocacy of the kingdom of God, the salvation of souls and denominational life interest? Youth is eager for knowledge and is susceptible to influences of the press, both secular and sacred. Few are the homes which do not have daily, at least weekly, newspaper force playing upon them. Large indeed is the necessity for religious papers representing the kingdom of God. For North Carolina Methodist Protestants, the Methodist Protestant Herald affords an intelligent and appreciative understanding of the principles and activities of our Conference.

Informed Methodist Protestants make better Christians. To read the conference paper and the general church organ. The Methodist Protestant Recorder, makes for intellectual and spiritual gain. If 'Reading maketh a full man,' we can and must have intelligent, consecrated churchmen. This makes for efficiency. 'As a man thinketh'—and we think much as we read. Regular visits of the church paper cultivate taste and appreciation. We can scarcely over-estimate the value derived therefrom. It is expected that ministers will draw knowledge and inspiration from church papers. So many people still depend upon pastoral utterances or hearsay for their knowledge of denominational affairs. How necessary, until this condition is corrected, that ministers be the best possible informed speakers and counsellors!

The denominational paper makes certain contact with the people concerning the aims, aspirations and methods of the boards of our church. The general work of the conference is carried regularly, systematically, on time, repeatedly and to all the membership when the paper goes into the homes. Rational reading leads to comparison and drawing parallels between one's own private attitudes or opinions and the church programs which are bringing success to others.

The minds of us all are broadened as our intelligent religious consciousness is deepened. To this end, we must awaken our people to the value of the church press. To maintain morale and optimism we must have facts. Misleading statements, concerning prohibition, for example, must be refuted by facts. The daily press reports, if taken as our only medium of information, would almost lead us to believe that outlawing the traffic in intoxicating liquor is the great curse of the age and that the return to open sale would cure all drunkenness and attendant evils. We must maintain and support the church press to counteract wrong attitudes, false philosophies and garbled facts.

There is no entertainment so cheap as good reading. No pleasure is so lasting as the perusal of clean literature. The greatest profits are derived from hours spent with religious news. The religious press is one of the most forceful agencies for bringing in the kingdom of God. Our churches must use it to spread information concerning kingdom movements and conference goals. Truth as expressed in various views of religious topics must be carried to our homes. Urge folks to subscribe for their church paper.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

High Point, First Church.—Dr. Charles M. Sheldon, author, lecturer, preacher, will occupy the pulpit next Sunday morning. This will be a rare privilege for all of us to hear one of the greatest religious leaders of our country today. Don't miss it!

"Gratitude for God's Goodness" will be the subject used Wednesday evening at 7:30 by the minister. This mid-week service should have the special attention of all thankful people. If you have anything at all for which to be grateful, come, pray and give thanks.

A Christian Endeavor Institute will be held in this church beginning next Saturday afternoon and continuing until Sunday afternoon. A large number of state, city and society officers are expected to attend. We trust that every one of the officers of our society will be present almost all of the time.

A bazaar and chicken-pie supper will be given at the Children's Home December 5th, 3 to 9 p. m., plate, 50 cents. Donations of foodstuffs for the supper and fancy-work for the bazaar are requested. Let us give this splendid institution with its consecrated workers our hearty support.

The firemen of High Point will mend broken toys for Christmas gifts to needy children. Take them to the South Wrenn Street Station, or phone 2972, if you desire someone to call for them.

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—Our new pastor, Rev. J. C. Russell, filled his first appointment Sunday evening, November 24. Every one seemed to like him and his wife. We were sorry to give up Mr. G. B. Ferree and family, but feel sure God does everything for the best. So we wish for our former pastor much success in his new field of labor. May we each so work together that our pastor for the coming year may ever feel as one among us, without fear.

MRS. JEWELL HARRISON, Reporter.

Lexington, State Street Church.—Attendance at all the services today was good, considering the very unfavorable weather conditions. We were very glad to have Bro. J. W. Lindsay, our esteemed Sunday school superintendent, with us this morning after an illness of several days.

At the 11 o'clock hour Brother Hendry gave us a most helpful and inspiring message, using as a text "The harvest truly is great." Surely no one present could fail to realize the great privilege and high calling of all Christians to labor in the fields of God's Kingdom as co-laborers with Him.

At the close of the morning service Mrs. H. E. Widenhouse, Mrs. Hendry, wife of our pastor, and little Miss Louise Hendry were received into church membership. Brother Hendry likes the old-time custom of extending to new members "the right hand of fellowship," so these newest members received a hearty welcome expressed by hand-shaking and by words of welcome too. Mr. and Mrs. Widenhouse came to our city from Concord just recently and have been worshipping with us since soon after getting settled here. Brother Hendry was Mrs. Widenhouse's pastor at Concord. This fact makes her feel quite at home with us. We are all much pleased to have these additions to our force.

Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock the C. E. society will serve a picnic supper in the dining room of the church to all members of the church and Sunday school. There will be some interesting games and contests after which a Thanksgiving service will be held in the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Potts were with us today in the services. We are always glad to have them visit us. They were among our best workers and we missed them greatly when they moved to Mooresville some time last summer.

REPORTER.

Enfield.—We are glad our pastor, Mr. Auman, was returned. May the membership of our church pray for him and work with him in the Master's vineyard.

He filled his appointments the second and third Sundays, giving us helpful sermons.

The following were elected to serve us as officers for the new year: Trustees, R. C. Rives, chairman, John B. Davis, Leo V. Braswell; stewards, J. R. Powers, chairman and treasurer, E. I. Bellamy, Miss Mary Collins, Miss Ruth Bellamy; class leaders, Henry Neal and George L. Parker; Sunday school superintendent, J. R. Powers; assistant superintendent, Ralph Rives; secretary and treasurer, Gilbert Neal; assistant secretary and treasurer, C. H. Matthews; superintendent of the junior department of the Sunday school, Miss Ruth Bellamy. Christian Endeavor society president, Miss Ruth Barnes; vice president, E. I. Bellamy; secretary and treasurer, Miss Nina Wallace; Intermediate Christian Endeavor superintendent, Mrs. E. I. Bellamy; assistant superintendent, Miss Ethel Clements; Junior Christian Endeavor superintendent, Mrs. P. S. Bellamy; assistant superintendent, Mrs. J. R. Powers. Music committee, Mrs. Sam Pierson, Mrs. Cecil Matthews, Mrs. Exum Bellamy, Miss Ruth Bellamy, Mrs. Hubert Whitaker. Ushers, Leo V. Braswell and Hubert Whitaker.

Our Christian Endeavor societies are doing fine. A splendid program prepared by Miss Mattie Lou Partin was well attended on last Wednesday night. The lookout committee, composed of Misses Cook, Sykes, and Ethel Clements prepared a social program which was greatly enjoyed.

REPORTER.

Shiloh C. E. Society.—We are all delighted with the return of our pastor, Rev. R. S. Troxler. Every one welcomed him with smiling faces and happy hearts. His work has been a success here, and we hope his work this year will be even more successful.

As we are beginning a new year in our society we hope to do greater things than before. We have not progressed by leaps and bounds, but feel that the good Lord has blessed our feeble efforts and we have made progress.

The eyes and minds of all are alert for a new plan for improvement or added interest. The society has been supporting a child in our Children's Home at High Point. We also paid our $200 on the General Conference budget. We hope to do even more next year.

Just now we are planning a Christmas program.

MRS. H. F. LEATHERMAN.

West Forsyth.—The appointment for Harmony Grove church last Sunday was postponed until next Sunday night at 7 o'clock on account of the serious illness of the pastor's wife's father at Burlington. The pastor and family were called to Burlington Saturday.

It was the pleasure of the writer to be in the first service of the new Conference year at Fountain Place church at Burlington and hear their new pastor, Rev. N. G. Bethea, who preached a good sermon on the subject, "The Importance of a Vision" at the morning service last Sunday. In the evening we went to First church, Burlington, expecting to hear Rev. L. W. Geringer, the pastor, but he prevailed on the writer to deliver the sermon. It is always an inspiration to worship at our old home church and receive the encouragement which the good people of First church always give.

The pastor and family are appreciative of gifts of fresh meats from the families of Bro. W. S. North, of Baltimore church, and Bro. B. A. Sprinkle, of Pleasant Hill church.

Services will be held at three churches next Sunday: Baltimore at 11 a. m., Stony Knoll at 2:30 p. m., and Harmony Grove at 7 p. m.

We were made sad Thursday of last week when Mrs. J. W. Long, of Pleasant Hill church, passed to the great beyond. Funeral services were held in the home at 10:30 a. m. and at the church at 11 a. m., conducted by the pastor. Mrs. Long was nearly 77 years of age, and is survived by one son, two daughters, 15 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. An obituary will be prepared for the Herald at a later date.

We are planning to hold our first quarterly conference on Saturday, December 14, 1929, which will be at Baltimore church.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Albemarle.—Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson were called to the bedside of the former's mother, Mrs. J. W. Johnson of High Point, who was seriously injured in an auto accident near Greensboro last Saturday. At this writing her condition is considered very grave.

Our Cradle Roll department has recently been re-decorated and several new additions made, which adds very much to the attractive appearance of the room. A beautiful linoleum rug has been put on the floor, a baby bed added, and all the old furniture re-painted light blue. We wish to commend those who have charge of this room for the service which they render to the mothers of the church, also Mrs. Moton, for it was largely her efforts that made the room what it is.

Those who are attending the mid-week prayer services are getting a real treat, for these meetings are proving to be one of the most interesting features of our church life. Come and see for yourself.

Pastor Anderson has been invited to speak at a special service Thanksgiving day at Bear Creek Reform church. We are sure that all who go will hear something worth while.

Mrs. Dora Austin, widow of the late P. W. Austin, of this place, died at the home of Mr. Jim Lowder on November 13th, after a short illness. Mrs. Austin was a member of this church, having come to us from Friendship M. P. church, after her marriage to Mr. Austin, several years ago. Although of a retiring disposition, Mrs. Austin, through her kindness and humility in her character, made many friends since coming into our community, both in and out of the church.

The funeral was conducted at Friendship church by her pastor, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hill of that church. Surviving are five brothers and three sisters who mourn her going. May the Heavenly Father comfort them in their bereavement.

The reporter has just learned that the pastor was presented a beautiful new suit of clothes on going to Conference. This gift was from the Men's Bible class, of which Bro. Anderson is teacher. In talking to the reporter about it this morning, he jokingly asserted that he accepted it with trepidation, as this is said to sometimes mean that the pastor will not be asked to return. We are sure that this suit, and many more, will be worn out before we are ready to let him go.

The oyster supper for the Men's Bible class, which was held last Friday night, was a great success. A good number of men came and the oysters were cooked just right, so you can draw your own conclusion as to the results.

MRS. JOHN W. WHITLOCK, Reporter.

In my last week's report, if you will refer to your copy, you omitted a line, which made the report of the pounding given the pastor sound very un-intelligent. Will you please correct this?

(We can only express regret. The copy is gone and we cannot correct. Please pardon the omission and accept our apology.—Editor.)

Spring Hill, North Davidson Charge.—We regret very much the thought of giving up our pastor, Rev. T. J. Whitehead. He was with us only one year, but during that time he built up the church in many ways. He made many friends and will be missed not only in the church but the homes also. Especially will he be missed in the Young Men's Class. Many of them have spoken of the influence he had over them in the Sunday school. As he goes our prayers go with him.

We extend to our new pastor, Rev. H. L. Powell, a very hearty welcome. He will be with us next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. We feel sure the church will continue to make progress with Mr. Powell as pastor. We shall endeavor to co-operate with him, for the pastor alone cannot accomplish the things he wishes to without the help of the people.

We held a very successful Christian Endeavor program today with Miss Ruth Haynes as leader. The next program will be the second Sunday, with Miss Nellie Wade as leader.

The Ladies' Aid held its meeting last week and decided to do some special work to raise money which will help to seat the church.

The Sunday school is doing good work, although the attendance today was not so good.

ALICE HAYNES, Reporter.

First Church, Burlington.—Just a few words to say that I am back on the job at First Church, Burlington, and happy in the work. There has been no letup in activities. I have made on an average of three pastoral calls a day since Conference, preached three times, conducted prayer meeting one time, attended a half dozen or more extra meetings, besides giving considerable time to the preparation of copy for a church directory that we are having published.

The many expressions of pleasure in having us back on the part of the people give us courage and hope with which to face the exacting duties and the pressing problems of another Conference year. Notwithstanding the absence of the natural curiosity that brings quite a number of people out at the beginning of the Conference year to see and hear a new pastor, good sized congregations were present the first Sunday after conference. The congregations were also good yesterday considering the unfavorable weather.

On Sunday, the 17th, Mrs. Walter W. Wiles, whose husband was already a member of First church, united with us, coming from Hocutt Memorial Baptist church. We are delighted to have Sister Wiles in our communion and fellowship.

Brother C. B. Way, one of First Church's "boys," but now pastor of West Forsyth charge, dropped in on us last evening and was prevailed on to preach. He gave us a helpful sermon from the text, Ps. 104:1: "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go unto the house of the Lord." We were glad to have Brother Way with us, and we rejoice in his success in the pastorate.

The various organizations of the church are humming with activity. There is much work to be done this year. A great and wonderful opportunity faces our church. We are just praying for grace and courage to face up with our opportunity as men and women who believe in and trust God should. The prayers of the praying people throughout our Conference will help us. I wonder sometimes if we do pray enough for one another.

A new reporter has been elected to keep Herald readers informed as to what First Church is doing. Brother Braxton, who has served so efficiently for a long time as reporter, asked to be relieved of some of his duties, so Miss Elizabeth Rogers, a student at Elon, was elected to take his place. When she gets on the job reporting you will not hear much from the pastor.

May Heaven's rich blessing be upon every pastor and every church. With all of our disappointments and discouragements, let us believe that God had something to do with the appointments that were made at Conference. As pastor let us accept our appointments as of the Lord, and as churches let us receive our pastors as servants of God sent of Him to lead us in Kingdom service. If we will enter into the work of this Conference year with that kind of spirit God will bless us and we shall see by and by that the way the Lord led us was best.

L. W. GERRINGER, Pastor.

Burlington, November 25, 1929.

Welch Memorial.—On Wednesday evening, November 20, when the pastor of Welch Memorial church was in the church some one came rushing in and announced that the pastor was wanted at the parsonage. From the appearance and action of the messenger it was concluded that the call was an urgent one. The pastor began to rather hope that it was a need for a minister in a case of matrimony. Haste was made only to find the dining room of the parsonage full of people, most of whom were already married. These weary travelers had found the parsonage a good stopping place to unload the burdens they had been carrying. When the pastor arrived he found these burdens piled up on the dining room table and those about anxiously waiting with glad faces to see a thoroughly surprised pastor. The pastor had never thought that this good deed was too much or too good for the people of Welch Memorial to do, but certainly it was not expected at that time. The articles or the people were not counted but the articles were enough to give the pastor and his family many a good fast in the mouth and occasion for many a kind thought for some of as good a people as are to be found in the North Carolina Conference. More than words can express this occasion will ever be in our hearts and memory and our appreciation is the deepest and most sincere. After a few moments were spent in a very pleasant way, Bro. Odell Brown, one of our local preachers, was called upon to lead a prayer, after which we went to the church for the mid-week prayer service. The prayer service was greatly enjoyed, and why should it not be after the pastor and people had just met in such a fine way? God bless the Welch people and may our work together be so that the people and pastor may be blessings one to the other and that through the church we are serving the work of the Kingdom may be done in a manner satisfactory to ourselves as well as to our great Father.

With prayers and good wishes for Welch as well as all of our people of the Conference, I am

The pastor,
GEO. L. CURRY.

State Street, Lexington.—Without seeking or opposing a change at Conference, nevertheless upon the adjournment of Conference we began at once to arrange for the change.

Friday night the 16th, the Woman's Missionary Society of the church at Concord gave us a farewell linen shower. The evening was much enjoyed and the gifts highly appreciated. The people there have greatly endeared themselves to us during our three-year stay.

We arrived at Lexington Tuesday afternoon and have been most cordially received. Numerous of the brethren have been kind to receive us into their homes while the parsonage was being furnished, but the furnishing being completed we took up our abode Friday night at the parsonage, 208 South State street. We like it fine.

The services are starting off well at the churches. Attendance is fair and the spirit fine. First quarterly conference will be held tonight at Elba. Received three members yesterday into State Street.

G. H. HENDRY, Pastor.

Enfield Charge.—It is good to be back with these people. They have exercised Christian patience in the adjustments which have been necessary, both in thought and in method of approach, as the result of having a return missionary as their pastor. The prospects are that this will be the best year we have had. We are hoping and praying that it may be so.

On our return from Conference we had not much more than stopped our ear than the phone began ringing in messages of "welcome back" from these good people. In the kitchen was a message of good will and cheer in the form of a pounding from the Junior and In-intermediate Endeavorers. Knocking at the front door were some of the ladies of the church with a supper already prepared, being served hot, for the pastor and his family. We were tired from our long journey but we forgot our weariness in the realization that somebody loved us. These expressions of good will and love are deeply appreciated by us both and hope to show our appreciation in a more visible way in the kind of service that we seek to render.

We had a good service on Sunday and the spirit of the people was, we are determined to go forward notwithstanding the financial strain through which the church and the community is passing, due to poor crops.

Last Sunday night Mrs. P. S. Bellamy was re-appointed reporter of the Elmfield church. She has served so well in this capacity that we loathed to give her up. She will give a fuller report of the workings of the church.

On our return our hearts were saddened when we learned of the misfortune of little Linwood Jordan. While playing with some of his playmates on top of some bales of cotton he mis-stepped and fell and broke his right arm in the elbow. He was taken to Rocky Mount and after a few days of treatment he was finally removed to the St. Luke's Hospital in Richmond. Here, we are informed by his father and mother, he is making rapid progress toward recovery. It is the hope of the doctor that he will have a 100 per cent arm when completely well. The father and mother have the deep interest and prayer of the church.

The Thanksgiving service will be in the form of a union service with the other churches of the town at sunrise Thursday morning at the Baptist church.

J. CLYDE AUMAN.

Davidson.—Our first quarterly conference will be held at Alleghany church on Saturday before the second Sunday in December. Every official who has taken the installation pledge will attend if Providence will allow. And, too, the business of the conference will be of unusual interest and will have much to do with the success of the year's work.

The officials at Chapel Hill have already met, organized and laid plans for the year's work. This enthusiasm is inspiring and we hope will be contagious.

Bro. Henry Bell was with us Sunday and delivered to us two inspiring sermons to the delight of us all. Bro. Bell is a young man that possesses great natural ability, is full of zeal, and bids fair to become one of our strong men.

Miss Bruce Smith has accepted the challenge to the young to raise a dollar a member for High Point College, and her enthusiasm is having its reward. Our young brother, Ernest Smith, is starting well as superintendent of Linberry Sunday school. His promptness is proving to the people that 10 o'clock doesn't mean 11 o'clock.

We have been in the midst of gloom since Conference, having attended four funerals, the last one being our own brother, J. S. Reed, of Concord, N. C.

With a heart full of desire for our beloved Zion, I am, sincerely, W. D. REED.

First Church, High Point.—Last Sunday was observed as "New Century Service" day in our church; at the morning hour Rev. Roy J. Farmer delivered an eloquent and impressive sermon on "Our Outlet for Service" from the text found in Matt. 20:28, "The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many." Jesus was asked by a mother to give her two sons positions of honor, the one to sit on His right hand, the other on His left, in His kingdom. He answered that it was not His privilege to grant, but they must attain these honors by service. This is an age of service. We hear often: "Does it work?" "What will be the result?" The greatest question of the day is how to develop men and women for the greatest service in the world. We have just entered the second century of the life of our denomination, and we have been given a great task which is called New Century Service. That which was good for a church a century ago or even half a century ago will not suffice for today. Happiness is not the result of mere labor, but of well directed service. We must be true to the task set for us. Jesus was saying that the chief glory of life is not in honors attained, but in doing the will of Christ. New Century Service is the General Conference work. The average income of all Methodist Protestant families in the United States is $500 per year, and the tithe of all incomes would amount to $9,600,000, but last year the total sum of all money contributed was somewhat in excess of $3,000,000. Are we robbing God and the interests of His church of $6,600,000 yearly? If we would give God what belongs to Him, there would be no High Point College problem or Children's Home debt. Robert Louis Stevenson said, "So long as we love, we are capable of service, and as long as we are capable of being loved, we are indispensable." Just to be near Christ in His service, we share His spirit. He is depending upon human agencies such as New Century Service to carry on His work in the world. Are we going to fail Him?

We are grieved to announce that one of our most faithful members, Mr. W. P. Bodenheimer, was badly injured in the bus wreck on the Greensboro highway last Saturday morning. He is still in a Greensboro hospital, but relatives who visited him yesterday report that he is resting comfortably.

DOCTOR CONDEMNNS INTOXICANTS

Dr. William J. Mayo, of Rochester, Minnesota, the internationally known surgeon and physician, in an interview on the outlook of human life recently in Los Angeles, declared that only the froth of society is really opposed to prohibition in America, and that the great bulk of our population is quite satisfied with it:

"Moreover," he said, "from the point of view of health there never has been any question but that abstinence from alcoholic drink proves extremely beneficial."

Water is the best drink there is, according to Dr. Mayo. That is, provided it is good water, which most municipalities now furnish their inhabitants. In Vienna, he said, the consumption of alcohol dropped off 40 per cent upon the introduction of a good water supply.—Exchange.

—Two tons and above of dry hay an acre are reported by Chatham county farmers who have cut their lespedeza recently.

AN ARMORY OF PROHIBITION WEAPONS

By Ernest H. Cherrington, LL. D., Litt. D.

Director of Department of Education
Anti-Saloon League of America

Facts, the invincible weapon against sophistry and fallacy, filled "The Anti-Saloon League Yearbook for 1929," newly off the presses of the American Issue Publishing Company. In addition to highly valuable data covering the progress toward prohibition in each state of the union, his book sets forth the educational phases of the campaign against alcoholism today. Beside a special discussion of this campaign with the presentation of the work being done by the Anti-Saloon League and other agencies, there are discussions of "How Governmental Agencies Can Assist Temperance Education," "A Summary of Provisions for Scientific Temperance Instruction, and Prohibition Enforcement Codes, in the Several States," and "Laws Referring to Scientific Temperance Teaching in the Several States."

The attitude of President Hoover toward prohibition is set forth at considerable length.

"Prohibition and Public Health" is discussed by Dr. Haven Emerson, formerly health commissioner of New York City, in a very comprehensive contribution.

The failure of the Quebec liquor system to control the liquor traffic in that province of Canada is developed succinctly by Ben H. Spence, of Toronto, whose long study of the Ontario situation makes him an authority on this theme.

Rosters of the various dry organizations, a rather comprehensive bibliography of publications on the alcohol question and a very full index give additional value to this volume.

THE QUEST

A man there was who sought great name,
Personal power and monied fame.
Money he thought the high-st wealth,
Better than happiness or health.
He worked each day with nervous strain,
Prodigal of his brawn and brain.
On sleepless nights he planned for more,
Money, more money, to put in store.
He did not laugh, he did not sing,
Because these did not money bring.
Money to him was life's great prize,
Money blinded his covetous eyes.
Money gave power to wield his will,
Money could vainglory fill.
Money he worshipped day and night,
Money to him meant giant might.
Money, more money he made and saved,
Money, money, money, he craved.
"I want more money, money!" cried he,
"And clutched his gold with miser glee."

One day he sat and mused awhile
On what he had; a money pile.
But love of money began to pall
When dawned this truth! That God is All.

Mrs. S. H. Tomlinson, High Point, (Friends Church), 8 shirts, 1 overcoat, 2 coats with vests, 1 cap and 2 pair shoes.

We thank all these contributors for their interest in us and our children. May God bless you every one.

One Day's Income

Our Thanksgiving letters went out last week to all pastors and Sunday school superintendents. Its purpose was to remind our people through these workers of the annual request to send one day's income, at or near Thanksgiving, to help take care of orphan children. If our people could and would heed this simple request this Home would be made abundantly happy. Please do your best to heed this call. We need you, and you need the blessings that come of such giving. In many things you feel that you are paying your obligations. But this is a blessed opportunity to GIVE to God's little ones.

Next Sunday in the first Sunday in December, the Sunday next to Thanksgiving. If your church and Sunday school has not already sent its thank-offering, please lead them to do so on that day. We thank you, and we are praising the Lord for the amounts you are sending soon.

Bazaar and Chicken-Pie Supper

Please meet your friends at our supper and bazaar Thursday, December 5th, from 3 o'clock to 9 o'clock here in the Home.

We will have a few articles on sale, and serve supper for 50 cents. The chicken-pie is assured if somebody will donate a bag of flour and some lard, for Rev. A. L. Hunter came the other day with Brother Stone, one of his laymen, and left with us 23 chickens. They also left corn and wheat to feed them. And Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Cox had already left three chickens. If others have chickens or other materials to offer for this supper we shall be glad to get them.

If the weather should be bad that evening, please get into your closed car and come along to see us anyway; for the supper will already be prepared.

Our Needs

1. We need money to pay bills, and to buy food, clothing and other supplies. Also to build fences and make repairs.

2. We still need sheets and pillow-slips.

3. We always need clothing. Money to buy new clothing at wholesale prices is better; but good, serviceable worn clothing is always acceptable. Our boys and girls range in age from 4 to 18 years, and we have 50 girls and 52 boys.

4. Things to play with. Cheap toys are almost worthless here; but good games in which four or more may engage are fine.

We would be glad to get basket balls, footballs, baseballs and bats, tennis rackets and balls and a net. A suit of clothes, a sweater, a hat or cap, a tie, a pair of gloves, handkerchiefs, towels, wash-cloths, toothpaste, toothbrushes, good toilet soap and other articles of that kind will really please the children and at the same time be serviceable.

5. Fruit and candy is always very acceptable. A bushel of apples gives us just a bit more than one apiece, and nine dozen eggs lacks two of giving each of us one. This will serve to show you something of the quantity we need.

SUBSCRIBERS, PLEASE NOTICE

The Annual Conference in its recent session raised the subscription price of the Methodist Protestant Herald to $2.00 a year. This was made necessary by the loss of income from the sale of the Publishing House and by the increased cost of printing. December 1st was the time set for the new rate to go into effect. Six months' subscriptions at the old rate ($1.50 per year) will be received before December 1. After that time the rate will be as fixed by the Annual Conference. The Publisher.

Pray for us that wisdom and patience be given for this great work. Our children are praying for you, their friends, back in the churches.

May yours be a fine Thanksgiving Day.

Thank you and God bless you.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON.

P. S.: Remember that we offer you a beautiful box of 20 beautiful Christmas Cards for $1.00. The profit will go to our children for a bit of spending money at Christmas. Come by and get a box, or send us a dollar and we will mail you a box.

RESUME OF MEETING OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF BOARD OF MISSIONS

Held in Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 5, 1929

The reports of the executive secretaries were read, which revealed the very satisfactory condition of the work at home and abroad.

Dr. Haddaway described his visit to Rochester, N. Y., for the dedication of our new church there, saying that it is the best church, the most church for the money, he has ever seen. He predicts a great future for this work. He also reported concerning all of our home mission churches and the other activities of the board in the home field showing that the policy of the board to gradually withdraw our support from those fields which show no promise or progress and to concentrate our efforts upon those fields which are more hopeful, is being carried out. Efforts are also being made to have all churches being helped by this board reduce their obligations as rapidly as possible.

Paul Warner, one of our missionaries in Japan, visited China during his summer vacation and reports the work of Mr. and Mrs. Soderbom to be a real credit to the denomination; he also asks the prayers of all for his special evangelistic campaigns which will be held this winter.

A communication from Mr. Otake states that he expects to leave Chicago for Japan on December 20 and to reach Yokohama on January 14, 1930.

In a recent letter Mrs. Soderbom asked for copies of our Sunday school supplies for each department of the work, saying that our Chinese evangelists who understand English will translate these lessons into the Chinese language for use in our schools and out stations. The Board of Publication is donating this material.

There are 55 pupils in the girls' school in China with the number increasing each week. The boys' school is smaller, but very promising. A new school with 25 pupils has been opened at Sanliehuang.

The evangelistic work among the women has been very encouraging; 140 meetings have been held during the last quarter at 121 homes with an attendance of 1,802. During the same time 146 calls were made in various homes and eight expressed a desire to become Christians and one was baptized.

The famine conditions have retarded the work to some extent, and unless relief can be secured thousands will perish from cold and hunger during the winter. Mr. and Mrs. Soderbom both express the desire that they may be able to open a soup kitchen and thus relieve the situation to some extent.

There is great need of the new missionaries to be sent to all of our fields to take the places of those who are soon to return on furloughs if we are financially able to send them.

Paul Cassen and his wife in India are due to return next April and do not see how they can possibly do so unless someone can be sent to take their places.

The work on the new bungalow in Duhlia is progressing very well.

According to the third quarterly report just received from India, in the evangelistic department of the men's work during the quarter there were held 23 meetings, 60 village Sunday schools, 446 village preaching services, there were 20 inquirers for salvation and 400 tracts were distributed. In all, 8,759 people were reached with the gospel.

The evangelistic work of the Woman's Department since Miss Frank's marriage has suffered. It is being carried on by two native women and a native girl.

In the boys' school in Duhlia there are four teachers, 75 students, 65 of them Christians, seven Mohammedans and three Hindus. There are 60 boys in the boarding department, five paying full fees, nine paying part fees. Two of our boys are in high school in Duhlia, four in Teacher's Training College and four in Industrial School.

In the girls' school there are 85 enrolled, five in the primary department, 75 in the grade school and five in high school.

A new feature introduced is examinations in the Sunday school lessons at the religious services. Practically all take these examinations, men, women and children.

The general health of the children has been very good during the last quarter. The rainy season usually brings three ailments with it, sore eyes, malaria and the itch. There has been much less this year than formerly. During July the cholera scare appeared in Duhlia and to be on the safe side the children were given Bili vaccines, which is widely used in India. The medical department administered to 1,586 patients in the Out-patient department under Dr. Lacy's supervision in July. This number included Hindu, Mohammedan and Christian patients. During August and September the mission dispensary was closed on account of Dr. Lacy's absence while she attended language school at Poona, and Mrs. Cassen ministered to minor cases.

At the afternoon session of the committee a delegation representing the Pittsburgh Mission met with us. Those present were Mrs. F. W. Stephenson, president of the Pittsburgh Branch; Mrs. I. E. Keener, secretary of the Pittsburgh Branch; Mrs. Frances McRoberts, president of the Woman's Missionary Convention; Dr. A. J. Allen, president of the Pittsburgh Conference, and Mr. M. Ernfeldt, from the Second Church, Pittsburgh, where the mission has been held. At the request of this committee, which represented the executive committee of the Pittsburgh branch, the executive committee of the Board of Missions took over the management of the Pittsburgh Mission. A committee was appointed to study the matter and make recommendations concerning the future plans for this work.

A report from Dr. Woodford states that a fine state road now passes our Pine Ridge School, and that large busses pass the school several times a day. Dr. Haddaway visited the school and reports it to be in a very prosperous condition. The country store nets the school about $2,500 a year. A large percent of the food-stuff used in the school is produced on our own farm. The lumber for all the frame buildings has been cut from our own timber, saved in our own mill, dressed by our own planing machines ready for the carpenters to use. The brick high school would be a credit to any community. The auditorium of this building is used for the church services. The personnel of the student body is very attractive and Dr. Haddaway believes that our school is destined to become an educational center for miles around even in adjacent states. Too much praise cannot be given to Dr. and Mrs. Woodford.

Mrs. Marie Thompson, the associate executive secretary, read her report, which shows that we now have a branch of the woman's work under the new constitution organized in every conference in the church, and the many appeals coming to her office for advice and help in organizing new auxiliaries is indicative of a deep and growing interest in the work throughout the whole church. Several auxiliaries have been organized in churches which never had a woman's work before. From every quarter come reports of increased interest following the organization of the new work. I quote from a sample letter: "Heretofore we had six women interested in missions, now 20 or more come to our meetings and say they really enjoy them."

Miss Shaffer spent most of September in Illinois assisting the women in organization work. She spent October in the Iowa-Missouri branch. She has several engagements in Indiana for November, in December she will go to West Virginia and in January to the Eastern Conference Branch.

Mrs. Thompson's report revealed the fact that she has been working night and day attending many meetings and carrying on the work of the office. The orders for literature are increasing every day; 4,000 copies of the yearbook have been ordered. She is now printing 1,200 copies of each article of the monthly program material, which is to be sent to the auxiliaries through the secretary of literature of the various branches. During the first six months 719 packages of literature have been sent out from the office.

Five issues of the Missionary Record have been issued. Beginning with next month a new department will be edited by Dr. F. W. Stephenson in the interest of Christian Education. The new department of Young People's work has already been started through which the practical problems of Young People's Missionary Work will be treated by Mrs. Mayer.

The Record is meeting with universal approval. Mrs. Thompson received, beside renewals, 75 new subscriptions during September and 110 during October.

FROM VIRGINIA

That well known foreigner, Count Keyserling, whose writings we have found it rather hard to think of as coming from a thoroughly sane mind, said some weeks ago, "The only cultured atmosphere one finds today in America is that of Virginia." How far the highest culture is consistent with the suffering endured by hapless animals in Virginia we leave for others to answer. So far, a Virginian, to the manner born, writes us, "We have been unable to secure any humane education in this state, and the condition of multitudes of the animals in this Commonwealth takes the edge off any satisfaction one might enjoy in Count Keyserling's high estimate of us."—Our Dumb Animals.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

C. A. GREENE

"Life! We've been long together
Through pleasant and through cloudy weather;

'Tis hard to part when friends are dear:

Perhaps will cast a sigh, a tear;

Then steal away, give little warning.

Choose thine own time,

Say not goodnight, but in some brighter clime

Bid me good morning."

Thus in the morning hours of Saturday, September 21, 1929, the sweet and gentlet spirit of our friend, Mr. C. A. Greene, stole away, to open his eyes in that fair land, which must be a "brighter clime," since he has left his happy home and devoted wife. We are grief-stricken and can but look up through our tears, and feel sure that the Master has need of this lovely flower in His garden of light.

Brother Greene was born in Davidson County, August 22, 1858, the second child of eight children of the late Robert and Margaret Greene. He had been a long and faithful member of the Mount Pleasant M. P. church. When we lost this loved one we lost a good member in the church. He was present at church and Sunday school when circumstances would permit. He had a usual chair to sit in and, oh, how sad it looks to not see Brother Green sitting in the amen corner. It doesn't seem like Mt. Pleasant without him.

He leaves a wife, Mrs. Emma Green, four children: Mrs. John Spurgeon, Lester Greene, Fred Greene, all of near Abbotts Creek, and Marian Greene, of High Point. He also leaves 11 grandchildren, of which he was very fond.

Impressive funeral services were conducted at Mt. Pleasant M. P. church on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock by his pastor, Rev. R. S. Troxler, and Rev. Mr. Mumford, pastor of the Abbotts Creek Missionary Baptist church, near High Point.

May the God of all comfort and bind up their broken hearts.

In Loving Memory of Mother

Miss Sue Sledge was married to John Hamill May 21, 1861. To this union were born 13 children. The husband and eight children preceded her to the glory world. On October 19 God saw fit to take our darling mother to rest. She was 85 years, six months and 11 days old. She leaves to mourn their loss five children, 41 grandchildren, 52 great-grandchildren, two sisters, Mrs. J. P. Newsom, of Littleton, N. C., and Mrs. W. P. Harris, of Aurelian Springs.

I shall never forget when I knelt at mother's knee and heard that little prayer, "Now I lay me down to sleep." This was my first lesson from mother. She always taught us to pray and to do unto others what we would have them do unto us. She was loved by all who knew her, both white and colored. She loved her church and pastor, and would always attend services when she was able. She wore a smile on her face I shall never forget. Mother, we miss your smiling face and your sweet voice, but we know you are happier now than we. I did all I could for you, darling mother, but God saw fit to take you to rest on high.

By her devoted child,

MRS. M. J. MORRIS.

Hamill

On the evening of October 10th, at 8:20 o'clock, God saw fit to remove from our midst our beloved grandmother, Mrs. M. S. Hamill, aged 85 years, six months and 11 days. She was united in matrimony to John Hamill May 21st, 1861. To this union were born eight children. Her husband and three children preceded her to the glory world. She joined Hawkins Chapel M. P. church in her early girlhood and had been a faithful member until death. She loved her church and loved her pastor and always attended services as long as she was able. Her life was the perfect flower of staunch and simple virtues and the gentle and gracious hospitality that formed the nurturing atmosphere of the community in which she lived, for no one knew her but to love her. She was always cheerful and wore a smile, even in her affliction. The funeral was held at her home on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock by her pastor, Rev. C. I. Smith, assisted by a former pastor, Rev. J. B. O'Brian. The many beautiful floral designs and the large audience present were evidence of the high esteem in which she was held by those who knew her.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. M. J. Morris, Mrs. Lula Warren, Mrs. N. B. Dickens, Littleton, N. C.; two sons, J. W. Hamill, Durham, N. C., and E. W. Hamill, Hartford, Conn.; two sisters, Mrs. J. F. Newsome and Mrs. M. P. Harris, Littleton, N. C.; a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and a host of relatives and friends.

The pall bearers were her grandsons, Bernard Morris, Henry Morris, Furgerson Dick-

Dear grandmother, you have left us,
And we know not where you wander,
But when the sun begins to fade
We all will meet with you up yonder.

We loved you and we loved you true,
And now we know our loss,
But we must think our dear Lord
Was first to pay the cost.

Oh, how we miss your loving smile,
And the love that always was so true,
But we are waiting for the day
When we may meet with you.

Your chair will always be vacant,
Your voice we miss so much,
We are going home to meet you,
For the Lord says: "Of life there is such."

—The effort to supply the mountain schools of the South with helpful Christian literature, by the Bible Institute Colportage Association of Chicago, is meeting with marked success. Already this literature, consisting of the Moody Colportage Library books, the Evangel booklets, Pocket Treasuries, Gospels of John and Gospel tracts, has been placed in over 2,000 of these schools. It is the desire of the Association to reach 5,000 such schools in this way, if possible. In this plan, the Association gives a New Testament to any scholar who memorizes certain Bible verses. Anyone who desires this splendid Christian literature for free distribution in the Mountain or Pioneer schools is invited to address the Association at 843-45 N. Wells St., Chicago.

HORSE LIVES TO BE 52

A letter received from Mr. D. Y. McGee tells of a faithful horse which he had owned and worked on his farm in Supply, N. C., for 30 years till a few weeks ago when, because of her great age, she was mercifully put to death at 52. "Mary" was bred near Lynchburg, Va., and had formerly traveled over Virginia and eastern North Carolina, pulling a wagon for a piano dealer who sold her to a trader from whom she was purchased by Mr. McGee. Mary, who was never known to be sick till just before her death, passed her 52nd birthday on May 7, last.—Our Dumb Animals.

Your Bird of Omen

What is that bird that comes to you
From out the depths of heaven's blue:
That comes to you on crucial days
And sounds a note of blame or praise?

This bird that comes from heaven's blue
And when it comes thus speaks to you—
Has it the form of innocent dove,
With cooing sounds that tell of love?

Or does it come with dreadful croak
And hateful words in anger spoke?
Does it bring doubt and darker night
And leave your soul in dreadful plight?

The birds that come from heaven's blue
Are more in kinds than one or two.
You must beware and save your soul
From wandering birds that have no goal.

But worst of all the birds that come—
And these make up a monstrous sum—
Are birds that sing a grand sweet song
And make you place your hopes all wrong.

Can the Churches Help Solve Labor Problems?

They are trying to do so. Various Protestant denominations in their general assemblies have expressed their mind regarding this matter. The Roman Catholic Church is also active with the same end in view. Thirty-eight years ago Pope Leo XIII issued an encyclical letter on "The Condition of Labor." This letter, making a book of 34 pages, is now being distributed in North Carolina by the resident bishop, Rev. Wm. J. Hafey, of Raleigh. We are indebted to him for a copy of this interesting and illuminating letter. All these expressions from Catholics and Protestants, including the Federal Council of Churches, indicate that Christians feel that they have something to say about labor troubles and that they should be allowed to say it.

Of course in this country speech is free and men have liberty to talk and write about labor troubles. If the main object were to give expression to opinion or to state fact, the situation would be admirable. But the desire is to speak or write in such a way that troubles will grow less as a result. It is quite possible to speak or write in such a way as to magnify labor troubles. To speak the truth so that it will be received and recognized as the truth is not so easy. The Pope may imagine that his position as head of the world's largest Christian Church may gain for him a hearing. The larger denominations of Protestants may make a similar assumption regarding their own utterances. But we believe the fact to be that labor troubles in a large degree are fomented by men who are not amenable to Christian influence; by men who repudiate all thought of divinity and recognize nothing higher than humanity; by men who have no regard for a future state, but confine their view to this earthly life.

What can be done with these men? They deny your premises. They misconceive and misrepresent your motives. They at once conclude that you are their enemies if you object to any of their proposals or contradict any of their views. To them material good is the greatest good and the only good. It is in vain that you set before them greater objectives. They think you are trying to rob them of present good by a delusive promise of greater good hereafter. You cannot pay them for their hard labor in bluesky. They will not accept promissory notes made out in the gorgeous colors of imagination. Your exhortation to patience brings from them angry and insulting retort.

And when you go with your Christian influence to the employing class, you may be met by a similar spirit. "What do you know about our business affairs that you should presume to dictate to us a course of management?" "Your interference is a reflection and an insult."

It is difficult for the churches to bring their influence to bear in such a way as to lead directly to the end of labor troubles. The query will always arise, "Who made you a judge or a divider over us?" The churches must admit their want of jurisdiction over difficulties in the labor world. Even Jesus said to a man, "Who made me a judge or divider over you?"

But the church can do a much greater thing than sit as arbiter of labor disputes. It can so fashion the faith and character of men that they will avoid disputes or settle them justly of themselves. To do this great thing the church must begin in time: it must get in its work in the early days of childhood. Let men be taught their immortality and their responsibility to God; let men be brought to realize the value of humanity, of every individual man; let men learn the great love of God for every human being: then they will be prepared to treat each other with just and charitable consideration. Men quarrel not because their quarrel is just in many cases, but because they are of a quarrelsome disposition. They are prone to see an enemy in every man. Christian influence should cause them to see in every man a brother. It is men that need remaking. When that is done there will be very little trouble in the world of economics.

The church must not be content with putting a blister on a sore spot. It must work for a state of health in which there will be no sore spot.

Let popes keep on writing and general assemblies keep on thundering, but let the work of early Christian training also be done, that men may be prepared to see and do the truth.

—The finest education is the education that has been acquired by daily labor, by saving; not so much money as saving what is still more precious—time and opportunity.—
J. Ramsay MacDonald.

"MIRACLES" AT MALDEN

The yearning faith that dominates the afflicted thousands kneeling day and night at the grave of Father Patrick J. Power at Malden arouses both awe and horror, says Gardner Jackson in The Nation, awe at the faith shown and horror at the suffering and at the apparent violation of the human intellect in some of the actions comprising the demonstration of faith.

"The commercialism involved is ghastly: the slab over the grave covered with money dropped by the kneelers; the two wastebaskets filled with money and emptied two or three times a day; the mountainous pile of scarcely-burnt vigil candles in the rear of the cemetery chapel which are removed to make room for other candles by three shifts of boys working day and night just as soon as the people praying by them (and making a contribution of anything from 10 cents up for each candle) have left the chapel (a flat violation of the religious theory of the vigil light); the hordes and hordes of crippled children yowling at the treatment forced upon them; the tragically ignorant and faithful mothers with typically Mongolian idiot children whom they place upon the muddy, foul slab (to cure idiocy); the newspapermen rushing from one crowd collected around a reported cure to another crowd, taking names, and rushing off to the telephone across the street: the sergeant and patrolman at the grave trying to keep the kneelers moving, yanking them up from kissing the stone and (in the case of the sergeant) treating them just like a football crowd, even to telling this woman 'to get the hell out of here! you've been in here nineteen times already!'"

"Since the newspapers published reports of cures," continues Mr. Jackson, "more than a million and a quarter people in all stages of affliction, disease, and deformity have prayed at this Malden grave"

"Tracing the origin of the present appalling flocking of pilgrims, one instantly realized that it would not and could not have happened except for the newspapers. St. Joseph's Parish adjoins the cemetery and Father Patrick Walsh of that parish is entrusted with the spiritual demands of the burial ground. At a morning mass on Sunday, October 27, Father Walsh announced that cures at Father Power's grave had been reported to him. He asked members of his congregation to inform him of any they heard about. The city editor of Boston's only tabloid happened to be attending that mass; likewise a relative of an office boy on the Boston Globe. The tabloid city editor and the office boy's relative heard Father Walsh's announcement and also heard an altar boy report after the service the cure of his mother's deafness. The city editor sent a man to interview the altar boy's mother.

"The tabloid city editor went ahead with the material in hand. He played it on the front page with streamer headline and pictures. The Globe hesitated a day or two and then printed the story. The cemetery officials were incensed with the tabloid reporter for publishing the story ahead of their intended time. They tried to keep him from the cemetery. But he won out. More cures were reported.

"The outstanding case among all those yet reported is that of Laura J. Moody, aged 18, of 15 Hamilton Street, Dorchester. Miss Moody was carried to the cemetery on Armistice Day in what she, the newspapers and her doctors described as a plaster cast from neck to hips. She was said to be suffering from an incurable spinal deformity. She had been in the City Hospital for eleven months and had not walked for more than a year. She was doomed, so her family doctor, she, and her family said, to a bed-ridden life. She fainted on the cement slab over Father Power's remains (the marble marker resting on this slab on six pedestals of a foot in height had been jarred from its base and somewhat damaged by the crowd of 150,000 the day before and had, therefore, been removed by the cemetery officials). She was taken outside the cemetery in an automobile, there revived, declared she could walk, and did so, back into the cemetery to the grave, where she prayed. She then arose and went to the chapel some 200 yards distant where she left her plaster case on the altar.

"The house officers at the hospital who saw Miss Moody day in and day out," says Mr. Jackson, "were blunt. 'Most of her trouble was hysteria. When we wanted her to walk she wouldn't try.' The X-ray pictures of her spine are the crucial test. One taken soon after her admission to the hospital showed a slight cloudiness which gave basis to the suspicion of spinal arthritis. Another, taken soon thereafter, was negative, showing the spine to be normal. Others, taken at rather frequent intervals throughout her eleven months' stay, were negative. Several X-rays were taken just before her discharge from the hospital. They were all negative.

"I had an interview with Dr. Dana, the visiting staff physician. 'No,' he agreed, 'there was nothing physically wrong with her when she was discharged from the hospital, so far as we could determine. But she had acquired the habit of invalidism and might never have got onto her feet. Her experience at the cemetery broke the habit of invalidism.' I asked him if any one of a number of other experiences, including treatment by a psychiatrist, might not have been 'the precipitating factor' in breaking her habit of invalidism. 'Yes,' he admitted.

"Another Zola is needed to describe the scene at the cemetery," concluded Mr. Jackson. "What he wrote in description of Lourdes applies here. Whether the Church intends to gather proof of the reported cures and set up a permanent shrine—the first in the United States—is not known. In any event the Church moves slowly and cautiously in such matters. It will probably be years before anything official is announced, though the first cure at the grave was reported thirty years ago (when modern newspaper methods were not in vogue).

The Boston newspapers meanwhile are trading on the sincere faith of their hundreds of thousands of readers.—The Nation.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE VERY IMPORTANT

The October issue of Public Welfare Progress, organ of North Carolina State Board of Charities and Public Welfare, is devoted largely to a discussion of school attendance and the importance thereof. School superintendents are quoted to show that the State pays for attendance, while the counties pay for absences. According to the Hancock Bill state appropriations are based upon average attendance—not enrollment. It is therefore, very important that the average attendance be kept as near 100 per cent as possible in order that the full benefits of state appropriations for the employment of competent teachers may be had.

From the class room and educational standpoint, it is patent that regular attendance is essential to the best work and greatest accomplishment on the part of the pupils. That goes without saying.

In answering its own question, "Why all this talk about school attendance?" Public Welfare Progress sets forth the following five points:

"1. There were 208,128 school children absent from their class rooms every day in 1927-28.

"2. Besides, there were 146,344 children of school age (6-21) who were not even enrolled.

"3. Of a school population of 995,122, the average daily attendance was only 640,651. North Carolina's average daily attendance places her 39th from the top.

"4. In 1927-28, this state spent $29.69 per school child to give each child an equal opportunity. 202,232 white, and 135,179 colored children were not promoted year before last. Last year there were 333,411 repeaters in the schools.

"5. In 1928, there were 204,492 illiterates of voting age. North Carolina stands 46th from the top in the percentage of white illiteracy.

"Educate the adult illiterates—

"But why neglect the child illiterates!"

There are rather startling facts which Public Welfare Progress gives, and while North Carolina has made wonderful strides along educational lines, it is apparent that there is a great deal to be done still.—Kinston Daily Free Press.

AMERICA

"It's fine to see the old world, and wander up and down
Amid the ancient palaces and places of renown;
To admire the crumbly castles, and the statues of the kings
But now I think I've had enough of antiquated things.

"O, London is a man's town, there's power in the air,
And Paris is a woman's town with flowers in her hair;
And it's sweet to dream in Venice, and it's great to study
Rome,
But when it comes to living, there is no place like home.

"I know that Europe's wonderful, yet something seems to lack:

The past is too much with her, the people looking back,
But the glory of the present is to make the future free.
We love our land for what she is, and what she is to be.

"So, it's home again, and home again, America for me;
My heart is turning home again, and there I long to be;
In the land of youth and freedom, beyond the ocean bears
Where the air is full of sunlight, and the flag is full of stars."—Henry Van Dyke.

A MOVIE-TONE TALK

(These remarks were made by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, General Secretary of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, on the Fox Movietone at the time of his debate with Mr. E. Clemens Horst in New York on Sunday evening, November 24th.)

Prohibition at its worst is better than the license system ever was or can be at its best.

Prohibition has had a very timid handling by politicians and their puppets. Compromisers cannot enforce this law. It is not the pastime of an hour, but the manly, hero-born, martyr-bred Lincoln-like work of a lifetime.

The defects in prohibition enforcement will never justify your drinking poison, patronizing the bootlegger, or tramping under foot the laws of the land you love. You get your life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness in this country. Why bite the hand that feeds you?

A man can violate the prohibition law or any other law, if he chooses. But stealing does not prove there should be no law against it. It's a very old offense, but you don't propose to repeal the Ten Commandments because they are still violated.

Prohibition makes it easy for a man to do right, and difficult to do wrong.

The license system confronts the poor man with its wide-open saloon door and makes it easy to go wrong. It's better to have to hunt evil, than to be hunted down by it.

For whom shall we bring booze back—the automobile drivers or the aviators; the railroad engineers who are all under Rule "G", or the women and children of our homes; the old soak or the young college boys? We will bring it back if you can show us who NEEDS it.

The bootlegger may be a jolly good fellow. Eve had that same idea of the serpent when he offered her the glad hand in the Garden of Eden.

BALAAM'S ASS AND HIS QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Why did Balaam's ass open his mouth to make remarks, anyway? The ass had acted strangely. Three times he had shied and nearly thrown Balaam. His master had hit him sharply for his misdemeanors. The ass had more spiritual vision than his rider. He saw the angel in the way to which his master was blind. The angel took his place in a narrow road and poor Balaam became exasperated when the shying ass tore the skin from his shins on the jagged edge of the rocks. The persistent angel then stood in a narrow defile and it became impossible for the ass to go around. It was then this humble beast lay down in the road whilst Balaam exercised himself with a stick, whilst he longed for a sword to slay his dumb friend. Why did the ass speak? He arose to a question of personal privilege and explained his unseemly conduct. Why did the ass lapse into silence? He became silent because it was against the law for him to speak—it was against the law of nature. That was the reason the ass has kept silence. Law ought to govern both citizen and king, both layman and bishop.—J. W. Moore, in Richmond Advocate.

AN ORGY OF BUNCOMBE

Not since the days when public opinion rose up in its might and smote the dangerous drug traffic; not since the days when the vendor of harmful nostrums was swept from our streets, has this country witnessed such an orgy of buncombe, quackery and downright falsehood and fraud as now marks the current campaign promoted by certain cigarette manufacturers to create a vast woman-and-child market for the use of their product.

In bringing to the attention of my colleagues in Congress a situation that demands strong legislative remedy if the health and welfare of the nation is not to be increasingly undermined by an evil which promises to be greater than alcohol, I rise to denounce the insidious cigarette campaigns now being promoted by those tobacco manufacturing interests whose only god is profit, whose only bible is the balance sheet, whose only principle is greed. I rise to denounce the unconscionable, heartless and destructive attempts to exploit the women and youth of our country in the interest of a few powerful tobacco organizations whose capacity knows no bounds.

It is clear that the issue raised before the country in the current cigarette campaign is the issue raised by urging excessive cigarette smoking; by flaunting appeal to the youth of our country; by misrepresenting established medical and health findings in order to encourage cigarette addiction. These great cigarette campaigns, into which millions are being poured in order to create new armies of cigarette addicts, have been accompanied by a barrage of most patent hypocrisy.

—Senator Reed Smoot, from an address in U. S. Senate.

Be a "Shusher"

A "Shusher" is one who, at a banquet or informal gathering where there is talking, "Sh—s" with his breath between his teeth to still noisy chatter, that the one presiding or leading may be heard. Sometimes a number of "shushers" are needed to bring the necessary quiet.

Good "shushers" are indispensable in helping to centre attention on the main things, as when a recreational leader conducting games at a Christian Endeavor summer assembly said, "I need a lot of good 'shushers' when I blow my whistle for attention."

If you can't blow the whistle, or be the star speaker or performer, just "shush" with all your sibilance. Those who can speak, or sing, or perform, need "shushers." In a church, a Christian Endeavor meeting, a social, in school, business, public life, thousands of vigorous "shushers" are necessary to get attention for the leaders, for the truth. When shallow clamor makes a din that drowns truth, "shush" for silence.

If you can't be anything else, be a good "shusher" for Him.—John F. Cowan in C. E. World.

HARRY LAUDER'S TESTIMONY

Harry Lauder, the comedian, gives this personal testimony: "No man can be successful and drink. It does not matter who he is, soldier or civilian. When I started on the stage somebody said, 'Well, it is a great life for dissipation and drinking.' 'Well,' I said, 'if there is any success to be had through being sober and steady, I will get it,' and I took a vow that I would not touch, taste or handle strong drink of any description until I had made a name for myself. Now that I have made my name known all over the world, I see more necessity for doing the thing that is right than ever before in order to hold that reputation. There is more need now for me to be sober and steady, for I am looked upon as an example."—Selected.

CHASTENING IS FOR PURIFICATION

Does God have a grudge against us? Is God trying, as it were, to "get even" with us? Is God's "child-training" a kind of parental revenge for childish wrong-doing? Ofttimes we think so. But it is far from the truth. "For they (our earthly parents) verily for a few days chastened us after their own pleasure; but He for our profit, that we might be partakers of His holiness."—Hebrews 12:10. God's one supreme purpose in child-training us, is purification. He is seeking to purge from us all that mars the likeness of Jesus Christ within us. It is His own holiness that He is seeking to perfect within us.—By James H. McConkey.

—After Thanksgiving come Golden Rule Sunday and Christmas.

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

(Christmas is coming! Do you remember how that announcement thrilled your heart when you were a child? Of course you do and some of the most pleasing and lasting impressions of childhood are associated with the anniversary of our Saviour's birth. It is pre-eminently the children's day, the one anniversary of the year that captures the child's heart and imagination. Why is this so? We have the explanation of this fact in the words of Jesus Himself: "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not; for such belongeth to the kingdom of God. Verily I say unto you, whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall in no wise enter therein." Christmas, as the day we celebrate Christ's birth, appeals to the child heart, which in its purity, its trustfulness, its spirit of humility and dependence, is open to all the holy influences of the kingdom of God. "In our infancy heaven lies all about us." It is not strange, therefore, that the heart of childhood, attuned to the spiritual world, should hear the echoes of that angelic choir, singing over the Judean plains; the Gloria in Excelsis. The story of that wonderful Babe, cradled in a manger, on that first Christmas night, in the long ago, takes a deep hold of the child's heart. They believe it, receive it, and rejoice in it. They seem to catch its meaning by that spiritual instinct that allies them to the kingdom. They catch the spirit of the day. We used to load them down with gifts at our Sunday School Christmas celebrations. Now we ask them to bring gifts for their little brothers and sisters who have no one to make gifts to them, and who need clothes and food and simple Christmas toys. And the children come, with laden arms, with shining eyes and with joyful hearts, and lay their gifts at the feet of Him whose birth they celebrate. They know the truth of Jesus' words: "It is more blessed to give than to receive." They have the Christmas spirit. "Of such is the kingdom of God."—Ch. Evangelist.

IF

If you can go to church when all about you
Are you going anywhere but to the house of prayer;
If you can travel straight when others wobble
And do not seem to have a righteous care.
If you can teach and not get tired of teaching,
Or tell the truth when others lie like sin,
Or pray and pray and carry heavy burdens,
And pay the heavy price it costs to win;
If you can face the surge of things about you
And keep your normal balance in life's whirl
If you can act with patience in each crisis,
Nor be a coward, cynic, or a churl;
If you can live and not be spoiled by sinners,
And give—without a Pharisee's vain pride;
You'll be a saint no critic can deride!

—Earnest B. Allen.

HERE IS A TASK

To be honest, to be kind, to earn a little, and to spend a little less, to make upon the whole a family happier for his presence, to renounce when that shall be necessary and not be embittered, to keep a few friends, but these without capitulation; above all, on the same condition, to keep friends with himself: here is a task for all a man has of fortitude and delicacy.—R. L. Stevenson.

OPTIMISM

The President's Letter

EVANGELISM

All Things Through Christ

"DOLLAR A MEMBER"

That's it. We are getting used to it now. Slides off the tongue as easy as a boy's, "Bring me something, Daddy." "Dollar a Member." Not a bit hard to say, is it? No, and it won't be a bit hard to do, either. Union Grove, Orange charge, Rev. B. M. Williams, pastor, is the first church to report total "Dollar a Member" provided. Rev. J. D. Cranford writes last Tuesday, November 26, saying that he hoped to have check in hands of treasurer Brown by Friday of last week, November 29, "Dollar a Member" for Kernersville church. Here's hoping he did. He also says, "I believe that you can count on Kernersville charge to pay up in 90 days." That's good talk. And it's going to be familiar talk, too. Charges and churches all over the conference—North, South, East and West, are going to be saying in a little while, "Count on us," "Count on us." "Dollar a Member" to maintain High Point college! Why, of course we will raise it! Raise it in 90 days, too. The printed matter provided by the Committee on Plans is going out this week. It will be interesting and pleasing to see how rapidly the churches will take up the dollar squares on the large charts. These charts are to be returned to us for our files. We want to keep them for future inspiration. And now let's see what church will get one back to us first. We are offering no prizes; the cause is sufficient stimulus. On, now, and rush a chart back to us by "air mail." Give the cause the inspiration of having several come in each week. Everybody at it, now. "Dollar a Member!" "Dollar a Member!"

West End and Midway

December 1, Sunday.—We were with these churches on this date, preaching at the former in the morning, and the latter at night. This is the Midway church on the Midway-Shady Grove charge. We trust that pastoral arrangements may be made for these charges in the near future. We found the people in a hopeful attitude, and going ahead with the work. At West End plans are already made to secure the HERALD subscription allotment and the "Dollar a Member" for High Point college. Midway is running the Sunday School, and an active Aid Society is adding to the life of the church. Painting and underpinning the church is one off the immediate aims of this congregation. Each of these churches has a promising field in which to work and grow.

Assigned

On November 25, Brother Q. J. Joyner was assigned to Meckneburg charge. He entered at once upon the work. We hope for him and for the charge a year of happiness and progress. It has not been our privilege yet to visit all the churches on this charge; we hope to do that this year. There are many good people on this field, and we believe that developments are possible for the work.

Budget Apportionments

The allotments are being given through the HERALD this week. We urge that plans be made now, at the very beginning of the year, to raise these budgets in full. One essential in doing this, we believe, is to get the individual member to understand that he has an obligation to these budgets, just as he has to the pastor's salary. One way of impressing this obligation is to assess the budgets along with the salary. If he voluntarily takes the obligation himself, all the better; but if not, then it should be given to him by the church. It is difficult to see how the finances of the church can be successfully raised until this is done.

It is hardly possible to expect a great deal on the budgets during the next 90 days,—or the first quarter of the conference year—owing to the "Dollar a Member" effort for the college. However, it is not altogether impossible that some charges may be able to carry both of these obligations along together. It will be a very gracious thing to do that, where it is possible, as annual conference expenses will be going on all the time, and can be met only out of the budget receipts.

Herald Subscriptions

It is gratifying to see that many charges—38, to be exact, reported new subscribers last week. Burlington, First, heads the list, with 9 7-8; Orange is a close second, with 7. High Point, First, Albemarle, and Henderson rank next, in the order named. We bespeak for the Directing Committee persistent and sustained effort to bring the subscription list up to the goal, 3,000, and we earnestly hope for the them complete success. By all means, we should have 3,000 HERALDS going out weekly to our 30,000 members. A little help from everyone, and it will be done.

"A Thousand Miles' Journey to Prepare for One Sermon"

This is what one writer says about Jeremiah's girdle sermon. (Jeremiah, chapter 13). There is some difference of opinion among scholars as to whether this was a vision, or an actual occurrence. However, that may be, it is true that the practice of giving literal and vivid illustrations of their teachings was quite common among the ancient Hebrew prophets. Isaiah went half clad and barefoot for a time to convince the kingdom of Judah of the folly of depending upon Ethiopia and Egypt as allies against Assyria. The poorly clad condition of the prophet was a sign to his people of the comfortless condition in which these allies would be led away into captivity. But whether Jeremiah went a thousand miles to get material for his sermon, or whether he is simply recording a parable or a vision, is not important for us here. What he did was to prepare a good sermon, and if it had been necessary for him to go a thousand miles to get material for it, he would have gone. Sermons are worth preparing; they are worth preparing well. And whatever it costs to do that, every preacher can afford to pay. The fact is, he must pay it, or lose a hearing.

"Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that need not be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

December 4, 1929.

P. S.—Since writing this letter, I have seen Brother Cranford. He informs me that his check for a "Dollar a Member" from the Kernersville Church went forward to Dr. Brown on schedule time last Friday, November 29. Kernersville heads the list in our "Dollar a Member" churches. Hurrah for Cranford and Kernersville. And hurrah for Williams and Union Grove, as the closest second.

THE HOLY SPIRIT'S INDWELLING

"And grieve not the Holy Spirit of God." So wrote the Apostle Paul to the Ephesians. This is an injunction that every Christian may well carefully meditate upon. To have the conscious indwelling of the Holy Ghost is the gracious privilege of every believer; but to realize His continuous presence the disciple must move upon a high plane and keep his heart pure. If he neglects his duty, if by any sinful thought, or temper, or word, or act, he fails to measure up to the best light that he has, the Divine Paraclete will correspondingly withdraw the manifestation of Himself. And since it is His province to illumine, to quicken, and to strengthen, this tends to bring darkness upon the soul and disaster to the religious life. There is no forward way spiritually except that of faithful obedience to one's deepest convictions and noblest impulses, under the promptings of the great Helper whom God has sent. A fitting prayer for every struggler in the unceasing conflict with the forces of evil, both within and without, is voiced in the following lines:

"Mighty Spirit, dwell with me;
I myself would mighty be—
Mighty so as to prevail
Where unaided man would fail,
Ever be a mighty hope
Pressing on and bearing up."

BECOMING FAMILIAR WITH GOD

The president of a bank, when asked by a young clerk how he could distinguish the bad bills from the good, said, "Get familiar with the good bills, and you will recognize the bad bills at sight." By watchfulness and prayer we can so familiarize ourselves with the good that we shall recognize evil the instant it appears, and thus avoid entering into temptation.—The Expositor.

—We expect pastors to notify us when they wish their papers sent to a new address.

—It is no disgrace not to be able to do everything; but to undertake, or pretend to do what you are not made for, is not only shameful, but extremely troublesome and vexatious.—Plutarch.

—Happiness is the product of many things. Among them is the possession of life's comforts, the education of our children, provision for our elder years, and freedom all along the road.—Stewart Anderson.

A PRAYER FOR FAITH

Oh God, too near to be found, too simple to be conceived, too good to be believed, help us to trust, not in our knowledge of thee, but in thy knowledge of us; to be certain of thee, not because we feel our thoughts of thee are true, but because we know how far thou dost transcend them.

May we not be anxious to discern thy will, but content only with desire to do it; may we not strain our minds to understand thy nature, but yield ourselves and live our lives only to express thee.

Show us how foolish it is to doubt thee, since thou thyself dost set the questions which disturb us; reveal our unbelief to be faith, fretting at its outworn form.

Be gracious when we are tempted to cease from moral strife, reveal what it is that struggles in us. Before we tire of mental search enable us to see that it is not ourselves but thy call which stirred our souls.

Turn us back from our voyages of thought to that which sent us forth. Teach us to trust not to cleverness or learning, but to that inward faith which can never be denied. Lead us out of confusion to simplicity. Call us back from wandering without to find thee at home within. Amen.—W. E. Orchard

NOT SAVED ALONE, BUT SAFE

"For this cause it is of faith, that it may be according to grace; to the end that the promise may be sure."—Rom 4:16.

Not saved alone, but safe.

My grasp on Him might one day be relaxed;

My feeble faith one day be overtaxed;

My wavering purpose find itself outwilled;

My fickle love die down, its ardor chilled;

But thanks to God, He has my foe to face;

I rest not on my efforts but His Grace,

And am forever safe.

Nought but His Word is "sure,"

And hence 'tis what He says, not what I feel;

What He has done, not what I do, shall seal

My destiny. And He long since achieved

All that was needed, and I have received

Eternal life.—His gift at such a cost!

Not saved by works, by works I'll not be lost;

His promise aye is sure.

—Henry K. Bentley.

GIRLS BETTER THAN COWS

Some thirty years ago the missionaries in China were told "Girls cannot learn any more than cows." It was when Miss Frances K. Bement, under the American Board, founded the Elizabeth Sheldon Lombard School in Shaower, China. Last June the middle school enrolled 32, the higher primary 30, and the kindergarten 40, a total of 102.

While better government schools make the need for missionary or Church schools less pressing, from a purely educational point of view, Chinese Christians want the mission and Church schools to remain because of the great demand in China today for educated women. They realize that education without character is of minor importance. It is told that of the 3,000 pupils of Confucius, only 72 turned out well. Miss Bement feels that the average for well doing of the Lombard School's 1,000 is much higher. The 27 girls who took a nurse's training course are very far removed from the "cow" standard.—Exchange.

OUR STORY PAGE

"OLD SPECKLES"

Down in the Tennessee Mountains is a Kentucky-bred horse of Arabian parents, known to hundreds of mountain people as "Speckles." The name of his owner is the Rev. Paul E. Doran, home missionary of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. The two names are inseparable in this territory. They were visiting mountain homes long before the advent of good roads in the highlands, and the use of the automobile.

Until he was four years old the horse was cared for by two girls who had ridden and driven him since he was two years old. When the girls left home, one to go into business and the other to school, Speckles was sold to a man who was none too kind in his disposition. One day, when the man was drinking, he started to get into his buggy, and then remembered that he wanted to light his pipe. With one foot on the step between the wheels, he started to light his pipe. The horse thinking he had gotten into the buggy started and knocked the man down. Drunk and angered at his fall, he got into the buggy, and began beating and swearing at the horse. The horse ran away and never stopped until he had torn the buggy to pieces and extricated himself from the remains. Subsequent attempts of this cruel owner to drive or ride the horse were futile. He would not let the owner hitch him to the buggy or mount him. Finally, Speckles fell into the hands of a trader.

Mr. Doran was passing by this trader's lot one day and espied Speckles. He admired him, and since he was in need of a missionary horse to carry him over a large parish in the mountains, offered to buy him. It was to be a hard, difficult task in almost inaccessible coves and ravines. The trader demurred about selling this horse to the minister, saying that he would not suit him, that he had made a bad reputation for himself and was considered dangerous. Finally, however, the man was induced to let the minister have the horse on thirty days' trial. The horse trader and the minister were neighbors, and the trader wanted to remain a friend to the minister.

The minister began talking to Speckles, and petting him. To the trader's amazement, the horse became gentle and easy to handle. That was the beginning of Speckles' missionary career. For ten years he has carried this minister on an average of more than five thousand miles a year, over all kinds of roads and through all kinds of weather. The minister trusted him as his faithful friend which he proved to be. Many dark nights, on dangerous mountain paths, this minister has dropped the reins, and told Speckles to take him home and he has always arrived safely.

And now the interesting part is Speckles' education. He was constantly talking to the horse on their long, lonesome journeys, and teaching him to understand. The horse learned the names of families in the mountains. He would go alone to these homes, when directed to do so, with many miles intervening. He developed some curious traits. No one except members of the Doran family can handle him, unless in the presence of his owner and with his owner's approval. When the minister tells him to go with a stranger everything is all right, and there is no further trouble.

The horse is never hitched, but is allowed to stand unhitched, even at the county seat of Sparta. He will not leave until his owner returns. Once the minister had an engagement to speak in a nearby town. He rode the horse a part of the way and took a bus for the remainder of the trip. Now when Speckles is at the county seat, and feels that his owner has been in town long enough, he comes up on the public square looking for him. That day the minister did not return as soon as he had expected. According to custom, Speckles had gone up on the town square in search of his owner. In trying to get out of the way of a car he ran up an alley, and in some way fastened himself on a fence. The minister returned and could not find him. Thinking for once that the horse had left him, he walked home. Speckles was not there, and did not show up the next morning. A friend in town telephoned that he had seen Speckles hitched the night before, and begging piteously to be turned loose, and that he had loosed him, thinking he would come home. When the minister came to the county seat, a distance of about five miles from his home, he found his faithful horse looking for him.

Mr. Doran's three little boys ride Speckles at pleasure. It is comical to see him stretch out his front legs and then his hind legs and bow his back for the boys to get on or off him.

On one of the long journeys into the mountains, the trail led over a huge flat rock, Speckles slipped and fell, throwing the minister violently to the ground, and stunning him by the fall. When he came to, the horse was standing over him, trembling in every muscle, presenting a pitiful sight. The horse evidently thought he had killed his owner. Ever since that experience, when reaching dangerous places on the mountain paths, he will stop, look back and groan, until the minister dismounts, slaps him on the hip, and tells him to go on and wait for him, meanwhile the minister making his way on foot, up or down the path as the case may be, to find Speckles waiting for him where the way becomes smooth.

The history of mountain missions, in Tennessee, will never be complete without the story of the faithful service of "Old Speckles" and the Rev. Paul E. Doran. Together they have ministered to the sick, the dying, the hungry and poverty stricken ones in neglected and forgotten places in the mountains. They have been ministering angels of mercy, to hundreds of people in the Tennessee Mountains, and the only compensation either has asked or expected has been the bare necessities of life. From my headquarters, at Harriman, Tenn., on the border of the Cumberland Range, I have traveled out into the heart of these hills, and often met "Old Speckles" and the minister, not far from the divide of the watershed, east and west, and have come away with profound impressions of the great service which they have rendered. Speckles, too, is nearing the "great divide" in his own life when he shall rest forever from his arduous labors. He is now practically on pension at the country home of this minister of the gospel. A right noble service has he rendered to humanity, in the out-of-the-way places of the world, responding to kind treatment, and not being such a bad horse as was once reported.—James D. Burton in Our Dumb Animals.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

By ELIZABETH HANNER

President C. E. Society, High Point College

DEC. 8: "WHAT IS BACK OF OUR CHRISTIAN GIVING?"

Matt. 2:1-11; I Cor. 13:3.

Daily Readings

Monday—Attitude to Jesus. Matt. 2:11.

Tuesday—Gratitude. Rom. 12:1.

Wednesday—Human need. Matt 6:1-4.

Thursday—Brotherliness. I John 4:7-11.

Friday—Happiness. Acts 20:35.

Saturday—Unselfishness. Phil. 2:4, 5.

Preparation

These three Christmas topics for December are very important. The leaders should meet with the chairmen of the program committee as early as possible and outline the meetings and discuss plans concerning the Christmas activities.

In this particular meeting the worship service should be carefully planned, using the Christmas music. Encourage general participation in all all meetings.

Have the leader or someone competent summarize the points at the end of the discussion. This will help make for a more united program.

The following songs would be appropriate: "I Would Be Like Jesus," "He's a Wonderful Savior to Me," "I Gave My Life for Thee," "Joy in Serving Jesus," or you might use any of the Christmas carols.

The Leader's Lines

The heart of the topic is, of course, giving. The topic, "What is back of our Christmas giving?" is tremendously important. As we approach this season of the year our thoughts naturally turn toward giving because our whole Christian religion has as its central thought—giving. In what spirit do we give? It is up to us to find out the true spirit of Christmas giving and apply it to ourselves. In making this application we will find the essence of the Christmas joy in our own lives.

Some may give gifts through the motive of selfishness. They expect to receive something in return. Others may give, having no idea of reciprocity. This giving is prompted by love and the desire to please someone. If all Christmas gifts were given with this last view in mind Christmas would take on a greater meaning. Christ told His disciples that it was more blessed to give than to receive. His whole life was made up of giving Himself to others.

The greatest event in all history is back of the spirit of giving at Christmas—the birth of the Lord Jesus. There are those who need material aid at Christmas-time, and there is still that greater class which needs spiritual aid. There is much that the young Endeavorers may do at this time of the year—such as: giving aid to those people who suffer from lack of material things; cheering the people who are shut-ins or invalids; singing Christmas carols, and visiting those who are in need of friends. While we are enjoying the Christmas season, we can help others, which in turn will make our enjoyment more keen and more abiding.

For Discussion

"What is back of our Christmas giving?"

Love, gratitude, human need, thoughtfulness, brotherliness, sincerity, happiness, Unselfishness.

To Be Answered

1. To whom should we give gifts?
2. How may we give without patronizing those to whom we give?
3. Does the stewardship of our money apply to Christmas giving?
4. What part does custom play in this topic?
5. What do you consider the ideal attitude toward giving?

The Poet's Corner

Not what we take, but what we give,
Not as we pray, but as we live,
These are the things that make for peace,
Both now and after time shall cease.

—Selected.

Not what you get, but what you give,
Not what you say, but how you live;
Giving the world the love it needs,
Living the life of noble deeds.
Not whence you came, but whither bound;
Not what you have or whither found;
Strong for the right, the good, the true—
These are the things worth while for you.

Three kings there were from the Orient who came,
Led by a star with strange, compelling flame,
A Prince's sign;
And shepherds, too, followed its beckoning light,
Till in a manger, lo, ineffable sight,
Godhead benighted!
That blessed the givers of loyal gold,
But smiled upon the lambkin from the fold.

We, too, may bring frankincense and myrrh,
And pay our tribute there, as though we were
of kingly birth,
But 'tis not gifts like these that He doth prize
So much as those which come in lowlier wise
From the poor of the earth
Who, having naught of gold or treasure-trove,
Bring that of which they have the highest—love.

Not what we give, but what we share—
For the gift without the giver is bare;
Who gives himself with his alms feeds three—Himself, his hungry neighbor, and Me.

You will rejoice with us in this list of splendid Thanksgiving offerings. Those who have taken the Thanksgiving offering and forwarded to us have done well.

Also more personal gifts are coming this year than last. Please send along your personal offering to be added to these.

Clothing and Other Gifts

At Thanksgiving and Christmas this list is long. We try to be careful to list it all, and yet in reporting we have to be as brief as possible.

Mozelle Auxiliary, Mozelle, Miss., 1 quilt and 1 dress.

The Mincola Manufacturing Company, Gilsomville, N. C., 110½ yards of outings.

Idera Mills Company, Winston-Salem, N. C., 2 dozen princess slips.

Mrs. J. M. Durham, Pleasant Hill, 1 quilt, 8 dresses, 1 pair shoes, 1 waist, and 8 pieces of underwear.

Mrs. J. H. Ruby, Plainfield, Ohio, for Missionary Society, 2 quilts and 2 scrap-books.

Mt. Carmel, Forsyth, 2 bushels potatoes, 1 peck onions, 2 jars fruit and vegetables, and 1 gallon beans.

Union Grove, South Winston, 1 dozen brooms, 3½ bushels potatoes and 6 dress patterns. With this should be listed some materials from South Winston church, delivered to us by Rev. P. L. Kinnaman, but two of the girls had put them in the storage room before we got them listed. The dear Father bless the givers.

Liberty Auxiliary, 300 Octagon coupons, 27 jars fruit and preserves, 1 toboggan cap, 14 hats for girls, 2 caps, 3 lbs. sausage, 1 pair overshoes, 1 suit for boy, 1 pair overalls, 5 pair pants, 2 coats, 4 pajama pants, 1 child's robe, 3 sweaters, 6 coats and a slicker, 6 dresses, 4 skirts, 1 waist, 1 quilt, and 3 pks. potatoes.

The Junior Church, Community Church, Thomasville, gave us a splendid program on Wednesday evening before Thanksgiving. They also left with us for our children 40 lbs. candy, 8 pillows, 7 baskets, 1 bunch of bananas, 10 jars fruit and 15 children's slips. Rev. and Mrs. Maier came with them, and Mrs. Maier directed the program. The fellowship was fine.

Mrs. J. H. Billings, Mitchell's Grove, 1 quilt, Epworth League, Highland M. E. Church, High Point, about 1 bushel of assorted fruits.

Mr. L. L. Wrenn, Siler City, 1 barrel of flour.

Mr. Ralph Rives, Enfield, 1 bag peanuts.

Mr. Z. A. Hardee, Enfield, grapevines.

Miss Sallie Taylor, Yadkin College, damson trees.

Mrs. H. A. Gurley, Charlotte, 1 16-lb. turkey for Thanksgiving.

Junior Missionary Circle, First Church, High Point, 4 dresses, 1 pair bloomers, 1 suit, one suit of underwear, 1 pair boots, 1 box raisins, 1 can beans, 1 can pork and beans, 1 jar fruit, 2 cans peaches, 1 can ginger.

Philathea Class, Westville, N. J., a box of Christmas toys.

Virginia Curry, Welch Memorial, 9 little dresses and 4 pair bloomers.

We thank all these dear friends for their gifts and for their thoughtfulness of us. May God abundantly bless all of you.

Yours in His service,

A. G. DIXON, Supt.

It will be noted that there is no apportionment given here for college maintenance. The "Dollar a Member" plan by which we are to raise $20,000, makes this apportionment unnecessary. It will be noted, further, that some charges are not given any Gratitude Gift Deficit allotment. The explanation for this is that these charges paid their allotment for this purpose in full last year.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

South Lexington Church.—The new Conference year has begun with everybody showing much interest in the work. Bro. Isley filled his appointment Sunday with a very impressive sermon on "Prepare to Meet Thy God."

The Sunday school is moving along nicely. New officers and teachers were elected for the coming year. All the old teachers were re-elected except one, Mrs. B. C. Everidge requesting that someone else teach, as she wanted to go back to her old class. Mrs. Everidge is a very enthusiastic worker.

The Auxiliaries are also coming up very well with all their work. Let's all work together with God's help and make this the best year of our church.

REPORTER.

Mt. Pleasant, North Davidson Charge.—We as Mt. Carmel church feel very grateful to the Annual Conference for our new pastor, Rev. H. L. Powell. We all pledge our pastor our love and co-operation. While every one feels sad about the going of our dear Bro. R. S. Troxler and his family we wish for them much success in every way during their stay from us. We feel very fortunate to have one like Bro. Powell to take his place.

The pastor filled his first appointment for the new year at this church November 24. His subject was "Guaranteed Success." He talked splendidly. We are sure that he will accomplish very much in the coming year.

We took our regular thank-offering Sunday for the Children's Home. The total amount came to $20.56. We are very thankful to these good people for this offering. We are expecting to start to work on the Christmas entertainment soon. Our Christmas tree will be on Tuesday evening before Christmas.

Mrs. Della Ball and Mrs. L. H. Hilton were appointed as "Entertaining committee" last Sunday.

The contest between classes No. 3 and 4 doesn't seem to be making so much progress, but we are glad to state that the girls' class has gained one stationary member. We feel very grateful for her, and we are still working and praying that we may win in the end. We do hate to get beaten.

We regret very much to report the death of one of our friends and neighbors, Bro. Leach Ball, who passed away the past Tuesday. He will be missed very much in his community and home. He professed faith in Christ, but never connected himself with any church. His wife and children are among the most faithful members of our church. His funeral was conducted at Mt. Pleasant Thursday at 2 o'clock by Rev. R. S. Troxler and Rev. H. L. Powell, the pastor of the church. He is survived by his wife, who before marriage was Miss Leslie Murphy, and five children. He was 65 years of age.

May the God of all bind up and comfort the broken hearts.

RUTH PAYNE, Reporter.

Asheville.—While our church attendance is not as large as we would like, our Sunday school is building up and doing splendid work. The Intermediate and Primary Department under the leadership of Miss Verda McIntire and her corps of able assistants, is going forward with leaps and bounds. There is nothing like having the right people in the right place.

The Brotherhood had the largest attendance of the year at their meeting at the home of Mr. J. A. McIntire in Biltmore Pines last Tuesday evening.

The Auxiliary met with Mrs. G. M. Foster last Wednesday with 25 enthusiastic members present. Let's go there again! Many plans were discussed for the bazaar to be held December 6-7. Sewing parties are much in fashion, making numerous articles for the sale.

We were delighted Sunday evening to have a number of our good friends from Weaver-ville worship with us. Also the past Sunday evening quite a number. Come again. We should know each other better.

Next Sunday evening the ladies of the Auxiliary will have charge of the service, giving their Home Missions special service. Miss Taylor, of West Asheville, will be the speaker of the evening. She is an especially interesting Home Mission worker. We had a Thanksgiving service at 10:30 Thursday. The music was a feature.

Several of our members have been sick, but all are now improving.

REPORTER.

Pleasant Grove.—We are glad to be back with the good people of Pleasant Grove for another year, the Lord willing, and we hope to do more than we did last year. We have some who are very active and always ready to co-operate.

The Ladies' Aid and the Brotherhood helped in a financial way on the budget just before going to Conference. We will hold our first quarterly conference on December 4.

We were glad to receive into our church last Sunday morning Mrs. Robert Kennedy by letter from the Friends church. At the close of the C. E. last Wednesday night we were presented with a Thanksgiving Turkey from the society.

D. R. WILLIAMS.

Winston, First Church.—The new year in our church is moving at a rapid pace.

The first Sunday after Conference was observed as "Honor System" Day. Pledges for the ensuing year were made. Those who chose to make their pledge at the church were goodly in number, since this was the first time this was observed in our local church. The stewards visited those who did not make their pledges at the church in the afternoon. Reports of their work were very favorable.

Workers' Council was held the first Thursday night after Conference. Circle No. 3 of the Auxiliary served the meal. New plans were made, among which was a plan to make our Sunday school a "Standard School" this year. Other things of importance were discussed.

A meeting of the ushers was held Tuesday night. The group was organized, and Mr. B. K. Millaway was elected chief. They divided into four groups with a captain at the head of each. Each group is to be responsible for one Sunday in each month. A large percentage of the ushers was present and every one had a good time. This meeting was held at the parsonage with the pastor and Mrs. Surratt, host and hostess to the group. It was decided to meet once each quarter.

A Father and Son banquet was enjoyed Friday evening at the church. A supper was served to a number of the fathers and sons of our church, special music was enjoyed and readings were given. Senator Womble, of this city, was chief speaker at this time. Mr. H. F. Surratt acted as toastmaster.

Thanksgiving is almost here. How are we going to be thankful for what we have? There is no better way to enjoy what we have than to share it with others. A "Sunrise Service" is going to be held at our church at 7:45 Thanksgiving morning. A program has been arranged and a light breakfast is to be served. At the conclusion of the program a candle service is anticipated. We are hoping to have a large offering for the Children's Home. After the worship at the church baskets will be distributed to worthy families. We hope every one will have a real Thanksgiving and get a real pleasure out of sharing with others that which they possess, whether it be food, clothing or a cheery word and smile.

The meeting of Ladies' Auxiliary will be held at the church Tuesday afternoon. A good work is being done and much interest is taken in the undertakings of the Circles. Circle No. 2, Mrs. H. O. Sapp, chairman, has won the "point system" prize for two consecutive months, which deserves honorable mention. The individual circles had their regular monthly meetings last week. The regular business and social hour was enjoyed, with goodly numbers attending their respective circles. Christmas cards are being sold to help complete the budgets.

A Christmas committee has been appointed, a meeting has been held and some plans made for the Christmas entertainment. "White Gifts for the King" is anticipated for this year's program.

Regular services were held Sunday. An anthem, "Abide With Me," was given by the choir. This was most effective. Many truths were brought out in the sermon by the pastor. All who heard enjoyed it.

We are very glad indeed to have with us again Rev. and Mrs. H. F. Surratt. "Two more loyal people can't be found;" that's how we feel about it. All who know need no words to refresh their memory that Mr. Surratt is a wonderful pastor.

It is with regret we announce that Mr. R. N. Hauser is in a local hospital; a speedy recovery is hoped for.

PAULINE L. BRANSON, Reporter.

Corinth, Littleton Ct.—We are very glad to have Bro. Smith and his family back with us for another year.

At our last preaching service before Conference the officers of the church were elected. Mr. Walter Carter is our new Sunday school superintendent; Mrs. Hettie Carter was elected secretary and treasurer of the church; class leaders, Sol Inscow and Richard Harper; trustees, M. J. Morris, Whit Harper, D. A. Inscow, W. E. Carter and W. R. Carter; steward, M. J. Morris, B. F. Morris, Ernest Day and G. M. Johnston.

The first quarterly conference will be held at Littleton M. P. church on the third Saturday in December at 2 o'clock p. m. We are looking forward to having President S. W. Taylor with us at this time.

The young people of the church enjoyed a social given at the home of Rev. C. I. Smith on October 30.

On November 8 our hearts were made sad at the sudden death of one of our oldest members, Mr. John L. Morris. Our pastor being away at Conference, Rev. Pattishall of the M. E. Church, conducted the funeral service. Our deepest sympathy goes out to the bereaved family. May the Great Comforter bind up their hearts and help them to live the kind of life that will enable them to all meet in the "sweet bye and bye."

With best wishes to all.

MRS. B. F. MORRIS, Reporter.

Nov. 25, 1929.

Charlotte, First Church.—We are delighted to have Rev. and Mrs. Harrison returned to us. The first Sunday of this Conference year he said he would not preach a sermon but just talk to the members and visitors, using the first portion of the 15th chapter of St. John. We considered this a wonderful sermon, and following the sermon there was a reconsecration service and those absent certainly missed something.

Last Sunday was known as Loyalty Day. Letters were mailed out to every member the week before and asked to express their loyalty in three ways: First, by earnestly praying for the success of the church; second, by attending one or both services; third, by coming to the church between the hours of two and five o'clock in the afternoon and making a pledge of what he feels is his part of the church budget for the new year.

Mr. Harrison preached another splendid sermon on "Loyalty." Loyalty to God, first, first day of week, first fruits, and loyalty to truth.

The Sunday school year has started off nicely with the classes being re-graded in Primary and Beginners' departments and all Intermediates and Seniors with organized classes. Three Junior rooms opened up and finished in a part of the old rooms used as a parsonage and a new hall leading through. The Boy Scouts are painting the tables and chairs of the girls' classes, and the boys will paint their own. Screens are being made for classes occupying Primary and Junior auditoriums. There are improvements being made and painting to be done in the Cradle Roll room. The children and teachers are very enthusiastic and the work looks promising. Miss Enolia Pressnell is the general superintendent; Mr. J. C. Watts, adult superintendent; Mrs. J. C. Watts, Senior and Intermediate superintendent; Mrs. Lette Bruton, Junior superintendent; Mrs. C. B. Garmon, Primary superintendent; Mrs. E. M. Patrick, Beginners' superintendent, and Mrs. A. F. Love, Cradle Roll superintendent.

The first quarterly conference will convene Monday evening, December 9th, at the church.

There will be a Thanksgiving service on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. We should all attend a service on Thanksgiving Day and show our appreciation and thanks for the goodness and mercy of God and give of our means to the Children's Home and make a real Thanksgiving for them. A 16-pound turkey is being shipped today to the Children's Home, being sent by Mrs. H. A. Gurley.

The three circles are doing splendid work. Circle No. 1 will give a supper at the church December 6 from 6 to 8 o'clock, with Mrs. J. C. Watts in charge.

The Business Woman's Circle is sponsoring a parish paper beginning with a Christmas issue. The Christmas entertainment this year will emphasize the real purpose and spirit of Christmas. A White Gift service will be held Christmas Sunday. Mrs. W. A. Neal, pianist and choir director, is working on some special Christmas music.

We are glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown, son of Dr. and Mrs. George Brown, in our church neighborhood. They recently joined in membership here.

REPORTER.

Lincolnton.—We have made no report in quite a while, but we are still moving along nicely. We had a fairly good year, although it was not what it might have been. We have some as loyal people on this work as you will find anywhere. Mr. R. G. Wood, one of our most faithful and loyal members, moved away and left us. We were very sorry to lose him from our church and he will be greatly missed by all.

Bro. Love and his good wife came back to us this year. We are very glad to have them with us again. It has been a pleasure to work with them the past year, and we are looking forward to a better year together the coming year. Bro. Love is a man filled with the spirit of God, and he has been bringing some soul-stirring messages from time to time.

Our Sunday school is getting along fine. The new officers were elected for the coming year on Sunday October the 20th. An installation service given and the new officers were duly installed. Each officer seemed to feel obligation more keenly.

Pray for us that we may have a good year.

HATTIE JOHNSON, Reporter.

North Davidson Charge.—Since Conference we have been very busy moving and getting ready for the new charge. We are now domiciled in our new home on Route 109, just five minutes' drive from the center of Thomasville. We are convenient to all my four churches. The road will soon be concreted from Winston to Thomasville; then I will have a concrete road from my door within one-half mile of Mt. Pleasant and three to four hundred yards of Canaan. I can reach Bethesda on concrete within one and one-half miles. I can reach Spring Hill on concrete within half mile. All four churches are close in—only about 30 minutes' drive to farthest church. I have the finest situation to my churches in the entire Conference. I have four of the nicest modern country churches, with Sunday school rooms. Two of them are heated by modern heating systems; three lighted by electricity. No finer people are to be found anywhere.

I filled two appointments November 24th. We were greeted by a good, attentive congregation at each place, notwithstanding the weather.

I have never been so well situated as now. I am just delighted with my work and people. We are not strangers to each other. I have held special meetings several times at all the churches and two of the congregations I served seven years. Many of these people

I have seen converted. A number I have taken into membership; quite a number I baptized in infancy. I feel like a man just gotten back home after a long journey. We are hoping and praying for a good year in our Master's service.

H. L. POWELL, Pastor.

North Davidson Charge.—The first quarterly conference of your charge will convene at Bethesda on Saturday before the second Sunday in December, 1929. Preaching at 11 o'clock, dinner, business of quarterly conference transacted immediately after dinner. May every official from each church be present. Important business; don't fail to be there. We are counting on you.

Appointments will be filled as follows: Spring Hill, first Sunday at 11 o'clock; Bethesda, second Sunday at 11 o'clock; Spring Hill, third Sunday at 11 o'clock; fourth Sunday, Mt. Pleasant at 11 o'clock. Canaan at 3 o'clock, p. m.

H. L. POWELL, Pastor.

Moriah.—We had our new pastor, Rev. M. P. Chambliss, with us November 24th for the first time. Our attendance was not as good as usual due to the weather, but we had a splendid sermon, and are looking forward to a good year's work under his leadership.

The Sunday school is building up with Mr. J. F. Jobe as superintendent. This is Mr. Jobe's first experience as Sunday school superintendent, but he is getting a good start, and we believe with him as leader we will grow in number and accomplish great things for the Kingdom.

Next Sunday our Sunday school offering will go to the Children's Home. This will be our thank-offering. In times like these when we feel like cutting expenses on all sides, let us remember that there is a greater need for our support in the work of the church than ever before. Especially for an institution of this kind. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me." (Matt. 25:40.)

MRS. J. S. WOOD, Reporter.

Mocksville Circuit.—The annual election of officers for Union Grove Sunday school was held November 17, 1929. Mr. J. C. Templeton was re-elected superintendent. Mr. B. M. Madison, assistant; Miss Lilyan Harris, secretary and treasurer; Miss Willard Claywell, assistant; Mr. R. J. Weisner, choir director.

Heaters have been installed in our class rooms and the school has been greatly benefited by the erecting of these rooms. Each Sunday we see the interest increasing. The work goes on. We are hopeful for the coming year.

A Christmas program has been arranged and will be presented during the holidays.

Brother Ferree, our new pastor, filled his first appointment December 1. The co-operation of the church is assured.

LILYAN HARRIS, Reporter.

Jennings, N. C.

First Church, Thomasville.—Our work is moving steadily along. Our Sunday school is keeping up its good attendance in spite of the cold weather. Mr. Connell was re-elected superintendent. He has done very much for his church and we feel sure that we were wise in re-electing him.

Our Christian Endeavor society is growing. We were almost despondent over our society for a while, but the interest and attendance have grown considerably in the last few months.

Mr. Powell served the church faithfully while he was with us. We were sorry to see him leave. The last year has been a peaceful one for us and may be have many more happy years before him. May God's blessings be with him in his new charge.

We are looking forward to a great year. The year is before us—why not make it a good one for Christ? We heartily welcome our new pastor, Rev. E. O. Peeler, and his wife into our midst. We are sorry that he cannot move here to be with us, but we feel sure that he is going to give us his best and we are going to stand by him. Co-operation does much for a church, so we are going to co-operate with him and he with us.

Harmony, Yarborough's Charge.—We are planning to have a Christmas tree and a Christmas program for the children of the Sunday school. We feel that by doing this we may awaken a new spirit within the children as well as the older ones of our school.

We were glad to have Bro. Broome sent back to us. It seems that he and Mrs. Broome have put new life into our church and we feel that our community as a whole has been blessed in having them.

Bro. Broome filled his fourth Sunday appointments with us at 11 o'clock in the morning and at seven in the evening. For the evening service he used for his discussion the question: "What Think Ye of Christ?" We realize that we should all ask ourselves this question and settle within our own hearts just what we really think of Christ.

Our C. E. Society held its regular meeting Sunday evening at six o'clock. We are planning to organize a Junior Christian Endeavor the next fourth Sunday with Miss Edna Hughes as superintendent. The children, it seems, are very eager to organize this society and we feel that much good may be accomplished by these little ones. May every one pray for our success in this society.

REPORTER.

Baltimore, West Forsyth Circuit.—We were very glad to welcome back Rev. C. B. Way as pastor for the coming year, and we trust that the coming year will be a prosperous one for him in material as well as spiritual blessings.

A good-sized audience was out last Sunday to hear the first sermon of the year by the pastor. He preached a very inspiring and uplifting sermon from the text, "In everything give thanks." He called our attention to the necessity of being thankful for our many blessings. He emphasized the fact that we should be thankful for home, for friends, and more especially should we be thankful for the great plan of salvation, and also for the fact of the immortality of the soul.

The first quarterly conference will be held here on Saturday before the third Sunday in December. A large crowd is requested to attend.

Owing to the cold weather, the Christian Endeavor Society failed to hold its usual Sunday night service last Sunday night.

The members of the Sunday school are busy preparing their Christmas exercises which will be given on Christmas eve.

In the beginning of another year's work I trust that all are looking forward to doing more during the coming year for Christ's cause and the church than we did during the past year.

MISS ELSIE CARTER, Reporter.

Concord, Saxapahaw Circuit.—We were very sorry that Conference did not return our former pastor and wife, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Loy, to us. They had worked faithfully among us for two years and had won the love and esteem of the people. In going they carry our good wishes and prayers.

We welcome our new pastor, Bro. T. J. Whitehead. We have known him from childhood and know that he is a splendid and promising young man. We think of him as one of our boys, as he was reared in our adjoining neighborhood. He has filled two appointments at Concord and each time preached very forceful and appropriate sermons. We hope to make this a good year and feel if the church co-operate with the pastor as it should much good will be accomplished.

The new officers were elected at Bro. Loy's last appointment. Bro. E. S. Woody was elected Sunday school superintendent and Mrs. Roy Roberson, pianist.

The Sunday school has planned a Christmas exercise and tree on Christmas Eve night.

Bro. Whitehead has called a meeting on next Saturday evening at 6:30 for the officers and members to discuss important matters for the year. Hope a good number will be present.

MRS. J. C. GUTHRIE, Reporter.

Orange Charge.—The first quarterly conference is called to meet with the Edland church Saturday before the third Sunday in December at 2 p. m. Officials, please take notice and be on hand promptly.

Our congregations have been small for the past two Sunday on account of sickness and bad weather.

Union Grove church has pledged its full amount, "Dollar a Member," for the college. Total, $71.00; about one-half of this has been paid. Hope to be able to report full amount paid immediately after third Sunday.

Communion services are planned as follows: Chestnut Ridge and Helton, second Sunday in December; Edland and Union Grove, third Sunday in December.

B. M. WILLIAMS.

Mizpah, Haw River Charge.—We are very glad to have Rev. J. L. Trollinger for our pastor again.

The third Sunday afternoon in November he gave us a brief outline of the year's work, also called our attention to some goals for the new Conference year.

Today the sermon was unusually good; just the fact that each one needed. No one could look at the other fellow and conscientiously say, "That sermon was for you."

Much credit is due our pastor and the members of the committee, who collected the Thanksgiving offering for Our Children's Home. Also, many thanks to each one contributing. If they gave willingly I feel sure they will be blessed.

In the going away of Miss Lilphia Wheeler Mizpah has lost its oldest member. She attended services as long as she was able. Her smile was an inspiration to her friends when they grasped her hand.

The stewards of Mizpah church met with Mrs. Fred Jones November 20 for a business meeting. The business was transacted in perfect harmony.

Randleman Charge.—We are glad to be back with these people. They have been so nice to us. We have learned to love them. The work has started off fine and we feel that this will be the best year yet. Our first quarterly conference will be held at Mt. Lebanon Saturday night before the second Sunday in December. We trust all officials will be present. The officials of the churches have already met and laid plans for the year's work. On the third Sunday we received Mrs. Henry King as a member at New Salem church.

Last Wednesday night we went to Mt. Lebanon to prayer meeting. They had appointed the pastor to open the service. I thought there was an unusually large crowd out, but as it was the night before Thanksgiving I thought they were there showing thanks to the Heavenly Father for His goodness for the past year. We had a very impressive Thanksgiving service. Then when we started home, on going out in the yard we found our car groaning under its load of good things to eat for pastor and family. I won't try to mention each one by name, but it was so great I could not bring it all and my family, so Bro. Claud Moore assisted me to bring it to the parsonage. We are so glad for these good people and for what they are doing for us while with them. We are trying to do all we can for our blessed Master in our short stay on earth, by serving humanity. (We give Mt. Lebanon and Level Cross credit for this pounding).

We elected new reporters at three of our churches, and re-elected the same one for Mt. Lebanon. They will keep the readers of our church paper informed as to what is going on in and around Randleman.

With prayers and best wishes for a happy Christmas.

T. A. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Flat Rock.—The first quarterly conference will convene at 2 P. M. Saturday before the fourth Sunday in December in Flat Rock church.

J. P. PEGG, Pastor.

Bellemont, Mt. Hermon Circuit.—The Coble's Township Sunday School Convention will be held at Bellemont M. P. Church Sunday, December 8th, instead of Friendship Church, as previously announced. We hope that every Sunday school in the township will make a special effort to have a large representation there and help to make this year the best convention year that Coble's Township has known. The morning service will begin at 11:15 o'clock, at which time Dr. E. M. Andrews, president of High Point College, will deliver the principal address.

The afternoon session will begin at 2 o'clock, at which time Miss Essie Mae Cotton, director of religious education at First Christian Church, Burlington, and Prof. S. A. Bennett, professor of religious education at Elon College, will speak on various phases of Sunday school work. Throughout the program special music will be rendered, as well as other features. The public is invited to this convention.

Why Not.—We are comfortably housed in the parsonage at Seagrove. We are in the midst of a splendid people. They are big-hearted, generous folks. On the night before Thanksgiving both men and women—a roomful—came bearing gifts of various kinds, such as any preacher's family needs. Members from Seagrove and Fairgrove churches participated, and out of the abundance of their hearts they presented their gifts. I do not recall that we were ever pounded by so large a group. The pounding was equal to, if not greater, than any ever presented to us. This was made up after our arrival at the parsonage just five hours before the storm. We thank each and all. Why not come again?

We have filled all appointments due to date, making the circle three-fourths complete. Another Sunday will wind up the first round.

The first quarterly conference will be held at Pleasant Hill Saturday, December 14th, at 2 p. m. Preaching at 11 a. m.; lunch between.

WM. H. NEESE.

Seagrove, N. C., Dec. 2.

Dulles, Mocksville Charge.—Our Sunday attendance is large for the winter months. There are not any signs of closing during the winter. We still have E. C. Hendrix for our superintendent.

We are beginning our new Conference year with a spirit to try to make this year our best in history.

Our new pastor, Rev. G. B. Ferree, filled his appointment yesterday afternoon with a splendid introductory sermon. We were glad to have his family worship with us. We are grateful to Annual Conference for sending us a man with such ability.

We were sorry to give up our former pastor, Rev. J. W. Braxton, although we feel that our loss is some one else's gain. We hope for Brother Braxton much success in his new field of work.

We regret to lose Elbaville church, but we are glad to have Union Grove attached to this charge again. We as churches are some distance apart, but we hope for a closer communion and co-operation for the upbuilding of the Kingdom of God.

Dec. 2, 1929.

Mount Pleasant, Mount Pleasant Circuit.—In spite of the extremely cold weather Sunday, we had 130 present in Sunday school and a number of others came for church services. Our Sunday school offering amounted to $11.13.

Rev. Mr. Hutton delivered a forceful sermon at the 11 o'clock hour.

Immediately after services the trustees held a meeting in regard to the beautification of the church grounds. Circle No. 3 of the Ladies' Auxiliary also held a meeting at that time.

The Barren and Philathea classes enjoyed a social in their class rooms Saturday evening. Some were kept away due to the weather; however, about 30 members were present.

It was decided last Sunday that the Sunday school would give an entertainment on Christmas eve, in the church auditorium. The nature of the program and whether or not the distribution of presents will be in the form of a tree has not yet been decided upon.

Circle No. 1 of the Ladies' Auxiliary will meet Wednesday afternoon, December 4, at 2 o'clock.

The first quarterly conference will be held in Mount Pleasant church Saturday before the third Sunday in this month at 2 o'clock.

MRS. LILLIAN SHOFFNER TROGDON,

Elbaville, State Street, Lexington.—As this is the beginning of a new Conference year, we are beginning the work of a new field. Since last report we have been transferred from Mocksville, a charge we dearly loved and will never forget, to State Street, which was or is much displeasing to the majority of the people. Above all that is against our will we hope to make our church and its works count in God's kingdom.

Our new pastor, Bro. Hendry, called first quarterly conference at Elbaville Monday night, November 24, with some delegates from State Street being present for the purpose of deciding when these two churches should have services. It was not decided upon definitely when we should get our services. Since it has been our customary rule to have services twice a month, with a first Sunday morning and third Sunday afternoon service we wish to contend that Bro. Hendry will preach during the month of December at these appointments, and we sincerely hope they will be continued throughout the year.

We were glad indeed to have with us Sunday morning our new pastor, wife and little daughter. He brought forth a wonderful and inspiring message. With all of our gladness and co-operation of and with a new pastor, every one feels sad about the going of our dear former pastor, Rev. J. W. Braxton, and we hope for him much success in every way during his stay at Vance.

At this time we are planning a Christmas program, which we are planning to give Saturday night, December 21. We wish to extend to every one a hearty welcome. Come and enjoy the play, "Living a Fairy Story."

In spite of the bad weather recently our C. E. Society is still progressing nicely. We desire the prayers of all readers and former pastors for strength in the Master's work.

STELLA BAILEY, Reporter.

Concord.—On Thursday night, November 30, 50 people of the church came to the parsonage, bringing many things helpful to us. This is nothing new for them; they treat all their pastors that way. We thank them very much. May the Lord bless them.

G. F. & MRS. MILLAWAY.

317 Ann Street, Concord, N. C.

Moriah.—The chicken supper planned for November 30th has been indefinitely postponed.

Our pastor is putting on a drive for more subscribers to the Methodist Protestant Herald. Aim: A Methodist Protestant Herald in every Methodist Protestant Home. We hope that some member in each home will take this proposition seriously and see that our pastor gets the $2.00 along with your name and address right away. We will be more loyal to our denomination if we keep posted and know just what we are doing and what our greatest needs are. The best way to keep posted is by taking the church paper.

Plans are being made for our Christmas entertainment.

The Woman's Auxiliary will meet on Thursday of this week with Mrs. C. F. Scott.

MRS. J. S. WOOD, Reporter.

Lexington, State Street.—Last Sunday morning reminded many of us of the Sunday morning on which our Sunday school was organized. Six years ago, I believe. That morning has been spoken of ever since as the "cold" Sunday morning. The Sunday just passed can at least be called a cold one. Our attendance was good at all the services regardless of the fact that many automobiles would not start and many pipes were frozen, making things later and more disagreeable about getting ready for Sunday school.

Our pastor filled his appointment at Elbaville Sunday morning. We were much pleased to have Rev. P. E. Lindley, dean of High Point College, bring us the message at the 11 o'clock hour. Bro. Lindley's subject was the ever-interesting one of "Prayer." All present were made to appreciate anew the great privilege of communing with God in prayer.

The Young People's Missionary Society met at the church at six-thirty; a good program was given with Miss Helen Harkey as leader.

At the hour for the regular evening worship service Bro. Hendry spoke to us on the subject of "Spiritual Vision." This address, like every one our pastor has brought us, was inspiring and most helpful and a challenge to the best and noblest Christian living.

The supper and games and general hour of fun, which was held in the church dining room last Wednesday evening just before the regular C. E. service, was enjoyed by quite a large number of folks from the youngest to the oldest.

Miss Lila Aron and Mr. Homer Evans, two of our finest and most faithful young people, who are students at High Point college, were with us and contributed much to the fun and interest of the evening. Miss Aron gave a humorous reading in her very efficient and inimitable way which was greatly enjoyed. The C. E. service, which was a Thanksgiving program, was very good and helpful.

Wednesday evening of this week there will be a chicken supper in the church dining room sponsored by the ladies of the Missionary Society. There will be fun and feasting, followed by the regular meeting of the C. E. Society.

REPORTER.

Friendship, Haw River Circuit.—We had our second appointment since Conference Sunday afternoon. The attendance was very good considering the cold weather.

Mr. Trollinger is again with us and are hoping and planning to accomplish more in the coming year than we did in the past.

Miss Jennie Gordon's Sunday school class of fifteen was very nicely entertained Saturday night at the home of Miss Mary Sue Wagoner.

Sunday school will be held Sunday morning, December 8th, 1929, at 10 o'clock.

MARY LEE WAGONER, Reporter.

From Halifax to Granville.—Nov. 21 we loaded our household goods on two trucks and started for the Granville charge, after saying goodbye to a number of our friends on the Halifax Charge, which was not an easy thing to do, after living among them for five years. I don't think there is any better people to be found anywhere than the people on Halifax Charge, and it has been a pleasure to serve them these five years. But we believe we are going to find the people on this charge to be as good as the best. They have received us kindly and the work is starting off satisfactorily, and we believe we are going to have a good year. We want to thank Mr. W. R. Neville for giving us the rent on our telephone for five years, and the Women's Society of Bethesda church for a nice present to Mrs. Spencer and myself as a token of their appreciation of our services, and Mr. Brown for two loads with his truck, and others for their kindness. We will never forget the good people on Halifax.

We preached at Rehoboth yesterday; the weather was very cold, but we had a very good crowd considering the weather. We attended Christian Endeavor at Union Chapel last night; a number were there considering the freezing weather. We made a trip back to Halifax last Friday and brought our cow. So we are beginning to feel very much at home.

We will hold our first quarterly conference at Rehoboth church on next Saturday, December 7th, at 11 o'clock. We want all of the officials to be present and help us lay the plans for the year's work.

C. L. SPENCER, Pastor.

Asheville.—Our attendance at Sunday school and preaching service was small this Sunday; for three days the weather has been the coldest in years for November.

The evening service was in charge of the Woman's Auxiliary, the yearly thank-offering service; a splendid program and a very good attendance. The speaker of the evening was Miss Cornelia Taylor, a home missionary worker residing in West Asheville. She related several interesting incidents which occurred in Ohio and Texas. There were sad ones as well. We can better appreciate our living in Christian communities when we know something of the lives of those who know nothing of Christianity.

Our stewards are about their work in a business-like way and I am sure they will be successful.

REPORTER.

First Church, High Point.—Mr. E. L. Douglas resigned as superintendent of the Sabbath school November 1st, owing to business changes which will take him out of the city a portion of the time, and Mr. Arnold J. Koonce was elected to fill the vacancy, but on account of the press of his duties, he was unable to accept the post; so Prof. C. R. Hinshaw, of the faculty of the college, has been elected to this very responsible position. The members of the congregation as well as the church school are much pleased at his acceptance and feel sure that he will be a most efficient and faithful official, and that this organization will grow and flourish under his leadership.

An institute for Christian Endeavor leaders was held in First church last Saturday and Sunday, and was attended by a large number of distinguished visitors from other states and young people from nearby towns. A delightful supper was served at the church Saturday at 6:30 p. m. to 71 delegates and friends by the young girls, members of Circle No. 1 of the Woman's Auxiliary, from which a neat sum was realized. This very successful institute was supervised and directed by one of our own members, Mr. Arnold J. Koonce, who is state president.

At the morning hour for worship on Sunday morning our people were delighted to have an opportunity of hearing Dr. Charles M. Sheldon, of Topeka, Kansas, distinguished author, preacher and speaker of international fame, who is making a tour of the Southern States in the interest of world peace. He was greeted by an immense congregation, which filled the auditorium, and represented many out-of-town churches as well as those of other denominations of our city. He was happily introduced by the associate pastor, Rev. E. Lester Ballard, who referred to his pleasant trip to the Holy Land five years ago when Dr. and Mrs. Sheldon were members of the C. E. party as well as Dr. and Mrs. Francis E. Clark. This was the first time that a ship had crossed the Atlantic in recent years with a closed bar, and the first time that a Christian prayer meeting was conducted on the Mount of Olives. Dr. Sheldon is well preserved and vigorous for his years, and selected for his subject, "The Value of a Human Being," based on the text in Matt. 12:2: "How much then is a man better than a sheep?" Christ had rebuked the Pharisees concerning their accusation that He had allowed His disciples to break the Sabbath as they passed through the grain field and plucked the wheat to eat because they were hungry, which was followed by the miracle of healing the man with a withered hand on the Sabbath day. Dr. Sheldon gave four great reasons why a human being is worth more than anything else in the world: first, on account of the personal value of a human being. Every person has his own individual face, voice, and fingerprints. No two human faces or voices are alike; a rare thing is your personality. He once spent a week in a penitentiary upon request, and the first thing upon entering was to have his fingerprints taken. The famous painting, "Mona Lisa," was stolen several years ago, and all France had a holiday when it was found and restored. The second reason is the unknown value of a human life; the smallest tot that plays around the huge Woolworth building in New York is worth more than that towering mass of steel and stone. The feeling that we can do something that we have never done before keeps us from getting old. Dr. Sheldon said that it once devolved on him to direct his church choir, a duty that he never thought he could perform, but he did it for a year, and greatly enjoyed the work. From his C. E. Society in the church of which he is pastor there have gone out 25 young men and women as foreign missionaries, and by their efforts the first kindergarten school for negroes in the United States was established. There have never been any really self-made people, but all owe everything to parents, teachers or other agencies. The third reason is the known value of a life; the influence of one person on others is tremendous. The most foolish person in this town can set it afire and destroy it. Harry Monroe, of Chicago, was a down-and-out drunkard, stumbled into a mission, was converted and preached the gospel for many years. When he died, it took a whole day for the people to pass by his bier and look upon his loved face, the men, women, and children whom he had saved. And the fourth reason is the divine value of a life. Jesus said to the common thief on the cross, "This day we shall be together in Paradise." Now, if human beings are worth more than everything else, we should take care of them. That is why we want a warless world. War maims and cripples men besides those who are killed outright, leaves mothers and widows desolate, fills hospitals with derelicts of humanity, and makes orphans of happy, innocent childhood. The smallest child in High Point is worth more than all the money in its banks. Our people were greatly impressed with this eloquent and stirring address.

At the evening service a new order was observed which carried out a suggestion of Dr. Sheldon and approved by a large number of church-goers, that is, the delivery of the sermon at the beginning of the service. After the first hymn, Rev. R. I. Farmer gave the message on "The Divine Luminary." We trust that this plan will be adopted in all our churches, for we have felt for a long time that we have too many preliminaries, and people are tired before the sermon begins.

The executive board meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary, which was scheduled to be held at the home of the president, Mrs. S. S. Coe, was postponed on account of bad weather.

We hope that many out-of-town friends will patronize the chicken supper and bazaar at the Children's Home next Thursday, December 5th, from 3 to 9 o'clock p. m. There will be various articles of handiwork by the girls on sale, and the price of the meal is 50 cents.

The topic for discussion at C. E. meeting Monday evening will be "Why Is Christianity a Missionary Religion?"

The first monthly meeting of the Sunday School Workers' Council under the new regime will be held Tuesday evening.

The subject of the message at the mid-week prayer service on Wednesday evening will be "Lost Secrets and an Open One."

Prof. and Mrs. Paul S. Kennett and children went to Liberty last week to be present at the birthday celebration of Mrs. Kennett's father, Mr. Kelly Trogon, who reached his 85th anniversary. His sister, Mrs. J. W. Guire, of Lenoir, N. C., is 87 years of age.

Miss Claire Douglas, who is a graduate student at University of N. C., working for the A. M. degree, spent the Thanksgiving holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Douglas.

Miss Virginia Pickens, who teaches fifth grade at Asheboro, was at home for the Thanksgiving recess.

Union Chapel, Granville Charge.—Our pastor, Rev. C. L. Spencer, delivered his first sermon the fourth Sunday morning. Our congregation was not so large, as the weather was very rough. Our Thanksgiving offering at this service amounted to $18.00, and we hope that some of our members that were not present will make this offering larger.

The Woman's Auxiliary met Friday night with Mrs. Russell Overby. Ten members answered to roll call. Mrs. N. F. Parham, chairman of Circle No. 2, had charge of the program, which was an interesting one. Some new plans were discussed by which funds might be raised.

We are very glad indeed to have Rev. and Mrs. Spencer and son present and take part in our C. E. meetings. We need their prayers and co-operation.

Our C. E. Society presented our former pastor, Rev. H. F. Fogleman, with a handsome fountain pen and pencil.

Mrs. Cappy Edwards and Mr. Eugene Stone were married at the Kittrell M. E. parsonage Saturday, October 23rd.

We regret to report that Mr. H. A. Finch has been confined to his room for several weeks.

REPORTER.

Knob Creek, Fallston Circuit.—We are glad our pastor, Rev. J. M. Morgan, was returned to us. This makes the seventh years he has been with us and we feel as we couldn't give him up. He filled his appointment the fourth Sunday in November; it was a wonderful sermon; a large crowd was present.

Prayer meeting was held Thanksgiving night by the leader, Mr. T. P. Dear; a large crowd was present. The pastor was also present. After the service he was invited into one of the Sunday school rooms and surprised with a large pounding. He was well pleased.

Sunday school is doing fine.

REPORTER.

Siler City.—Our new pastor, Dr. J. D. Williams, filled his appointment the third Sunday in November at 11 o'clock and also again the first Sunday at both morning and night. At the morning hour his text was: "Peter therefore was kept in prison but prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God for him." His subject was, "When the church had power." He gave us two good sermons that day and every one seems well pleased with him. Dr. Williams is no stranger among us, as he has served this charge before and we knew before he came we had a good pastor and a good preacher.

Last Wednesday night we had a union Thanksgiving prayer service at our church. All the pastors of the town took part. Rev. Mr. Bradley, the M. E. pastor, gave us a good sermon on Thanksgiving. Rev. Mr. Canipe, the Baptist pastor, and Dr. Williams also gave good talks. Special music was furnished by a union choir. A good congregation was present and all enjoyed the splendid service.

The first quarterly conference was held on the first Sunday afternoon with the Siler City church. Mrs. E. D. Woody was re-elected Conference secretary. A goodly number of the officials were present, the reports were encouraging and all business was transacted in a spirit of harmony. Miss Minnie Cooper was elected chairman of a committee at our church to put on a drive to raise the one dollar per member for High Point College.

Miss Lebus Stone, a High Point College student, spent Thanksgiving with her parents here and attended Sunday school and preach ing Sunday.

We are hoping and praying that each member will work and pray with our pastor and make it the best year, one that will long be remembered.

MRS. J. A. COOPER, Reporter.

West Forsyth.—Despite the extreme cold wave which struck our section of the state during the past week-end, our services were well attended last Sunday. We found a much larger congregation at Baltimore church Sunday morning than was anticipated. The pastor is glad to report the salary over paid at this church for the past year. After the service the pastor and family went upon previous invitation to the splendid home of Bro. Frank Phillips, where we enjoyed a good dinner. From there we went to Stony Knoll for the regular appointment at 2:30. A medium-sized congregation was present for that service. From here we went to the home of Bro. J. W. Mickles for a brief visit. Just as we were leaving, Mrs. Mickles presented us with a nice young chicken, evidently remembering that preachers are fond of the poultry product. She has our thanks for this gift. We stopped on the way to Harmony Grove church at the home of Bro. Jim Patterson, also of Stony Knoll church, where we enjoyed a chicken-pie supper.

At Harmony Grove we met a large congregation at 7 o'clock for the appointment which had been postponed from the previous Sunday morning. It was an inspiration to speak to such an attentive congregation. Just as we were about to close the service something happened, which proved a complete surprise to the pastor. We were held up, not as if by robbers on the highway, but by generous-hearted church folks, one of the brethren taking charge of the service, and informing the pastor of a "pounding" which was immediately administered. The people had brought the gifts to the church and the pastor's Ford was burdened with the various articles of food. A brief expression of thanks was made by the pastor, and when we arrived at the parsonage and unloaded we found numerous articles for the table.

In addition to the three appointments Sunday the pastor attended the last part of the Thanksgiving program at Pleasant Hill church Sunday night, which was rendered by the Woman's Auxiliary. An offering was taken for the Children's Home. The two missionary societies of the church are preparing a box of articles for the Home, to be sent before Christmas.

We failed to make mention in our previous report the good dinner which we enjoyed at the splendid home of Bro. A. R. Long, of Pleasant Hill church. At this home we ate some opossum for the first time since moving to this charge.

We have received gifts from Bro. U. Walter Long and Bro. Junious W. Long, both of Pleasant Hill church, since our last report, and thank each one for the kind remembrances which are highly appreciated.

Christmas programs are to be presented at four of the churches, according to information received, these being Pleasant Hill, Baltimore, Harmony Grove and Stony Knoll.

Our appointment for next Sunday morning will be at Union Hill church.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

DOLLAR A MEMBER CHURCHES

1. Kernersville, on Kernersville charge.
2. Union Grove, on Orange charge.

This list will be run every week. We will reserve third place for YOU until next week. We can't promise to hold it longer than that time. This list won't stay in its small corner long. You'll see.

Again: Send the "Dollar a Member" to Dr. George R. Brown, Treasurer, Reidsville, N. C., just as rapidly as it is paid in. Thank you! Thank you!

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Margaret Frank Laughlin

Mrs. Margaret Frank Laughlin departed this life November 21, 1929, being 85 years, four months and 29 days old. She professed faith in Christ while young and joined Beck's Lutheran church. After her marriage to Lindsey L. Laughlin on December 14, 1877, she moved her membership to Piney Grove Methodist Protestant Church, where she remained a constant member until death. Mrs. Laughlin did not have any children of her own, but adopted and reared Mrs. Will Laughlin. She also leaves two nephews and one niece to mourn their loss. Rev. Mr. Frank, a missionary of the M. E. Church, South, in Japan is her nephew. The other nephew is Mr. Frank, of Handy. Also her niece, Mrs. Taylor, of Handy. She came from a good family and did her part to advance the kingdom of God.

The funeral service was conducted at Lineberry M. P. Church by the pastor, assisted by Rev. W. D. Reid.

E. A. BINGHAM.

Foust

On November 21st our community was saddened on account of the death of James Foust, who died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Foust, of near Gray's Chapel, at the age of 17 years, three months, and 21 days. His afflictions extended over a period of one year. He bore his suffering without murmur or complaint. At the age of 13 he accepted Christ as his saviour and united with Gray's Chapel M. P. Church and remained a faithful member until death.

He leaves beside his parents, three sisters, Edith, Clara, and Colun; two brothers, Tracy and Paul.

He was a member of the young men's class of Gray's Chapel Sunday School. He was a good, obedient, Christian boy. Funeral services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. D. I. Garner, assisted by his former pastor, Rev. A. O. Lindley. Interment was in Gray's Chapel cemetery.

We extend our heartfelt sympathies to the bereaved family.

The dead in Christ are only sleeping.
Tho' their beds be made of clay,
They shall rise and joyfully meet Him
When He comes in that great day.

BAD WEATHER!

Yes, a very common topic. And all of us know that we have just passed through the worst spell of weather we have ever witnessed so early in the winter.

Its Significance to the Children's Home

The Sunday nearest to Thanksgiving is the one day in all the year when the Home has right of way, and expects its largest offering for the year. On this Sunday, December 2nd, this year it was unusually cold, and hundreds of our people who usually go to Sunday school and therefore usually contribute to the Home did not contribute last Sunday, so—

Give Them Another Chance

Please give them another chance, for the Home will suffer if it is not done. For a whole year now we have been running behind, because we found it behind, and we were praying and trusting and believing that this Thanksgiving and Christmas would put us even financially. We are still trusting. Do not disappoint us.

Christmas

Many of you may be planning to buy toys for our Children. Please send us the money instead, for they will have more toys than they will know what to do with.

If you must buy and send something, then be sure to buy needed articles, such as soap, tooth brushes, tooth paste, caps, ties, hose, towels, wash-cloths, balls and bats, tennis rackets and balls. Something two or more can play with. Bed sheets are also needed. And fruit is always needed.

Thank you for a good common-sense consideration of us. Many God bless and direct His workers.

Yours in His blessed service,
A. G. DIXON.

THIRTEEN GOOD YEARS

Surely "Thirteen" is not always an unlucky number. Certainly it was not for the pastor of First Church, Burlington, and his wife on their 13th anniversary. The good women who placed in the parsonage that day a new "Circulator" with which to heat the front of the house did not know at the time that they were helping us celebrate. However, they were, and we thank them most heartily for this further proof of their interest in and love for the Master's service. Favors like this make us want to render a larger service and attempt to show ourselves more worthy of the love of the good folks of First Church.

CENTRAL MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION MEETING

The Central Ministerial Association, comprising the Piedmont district, will meet at High Point College Monday, December 9, at 10:30. The college will provide dinner for all who attend at the nominal cost of fifty cents. Those desiring to take dinner will please notify Prof. P. S. Kennett, secretary of the association.

The following tentative program has been arranged for that time:

10:30—Devotionals led by Prof. Lindley.

10:50—"Creating a Worship Experience,"

Mrs. Maier.

11:20—Discussion led by President Taylor.

11:30—"Our Special Days," Rev. Ronald J.

Tamblyn.

Discussion led by Rev. N. G. Bethea and Rev. J. L. Trollinger.

12:30—Dinner and fellowship.

1:30—"Organizing Our Church Finance,"

Rev. C. W. Bates.

Discussion led by Rev. L. W. Gerringer and Rev. E. A. Bingham.

3:00—Adjournment.

CONFERENCE PICTURES AND DR. LEWIS LECTURES

The supply of Conference pictures gave out before we filled all of the orders for them at Conference. Other prints have been ordered and will be forwarded to all who placed orders for them as soon as they are received from the photographers.

A letter from Dr. Straughn states that the lectures of Dr. Lewis will be ready for distribution in a few days, and so these, too, will be forwarded to all who gave orders for them as soon as they are received.

"Come Unto Me"

Come to Me, ye heavy-laden,
Come with all your load of care:
Take My yoke and learn of Me,
I will help your burden bear.

Come to Me, ye weary ones,
Fainting souls on life's highway:
Lean on Me, I'll bear you up,
Giving strength for every day.

Come to Me, ye wandering ones,
Come with all your sense of sin:
I will take your guilt away,
I will make you pure within.

Come to Me, ye troubled souls,
Full of pain and void of peace:
I will cause new springs to flow,
Streams of joy that never cease.

Death-Bed Visions

Murphy Jones, of Greensboro, lay dying. He wished to live, for he had a young wife and children, but he had pneumonia and somehow knew that he was nearing the end of his life. Brother David Glass, of Calvary Church, was his nurse. He said to Mr. Glass: "I see angels in the room. Do you not see them?" Mr. Glass answered that he could not see them with his eyes. This was about 24 hours before the end came. Repeatedly the sick man spoke of seeing angels about the bed. He was not delirious though he had a little fever. He spoke rationally about everything else, advising his wife about the management of affairs after he was gone. Early the next morning he told the members of his family goodbye and in their distress they went from the room. He said to Mr. Glass: "I will not tell you goodbye until the last." After a time he extended his hand to Mr. Glass, saying, "I'm going now," and with a breath or two was gone.

Mr. John Taylor, of Greensboro, was for a time a worker in the office of the METHODIST PROTESTANT HERALD. We were impressed that he was a good honest man. He became a victim of appendicitis and Brother Glass was called to be his nurse. As the disease proceeded to its fatal termination he spoke to Mr. Glass of seeing his departed kindred about his bed. So impressed was he that he spoke of it frequently.

Probably almost every person that has seen many people die can tell of similar cases. Such happenings make us wonder.

Then there are recorded instances of dying persons appearing to others at a distance at the moment of death.

As far as these evidences go, they serve to impress us with the fact that life does not end with what we call death, that death brings change, not extinction.

Grandeur of Jesus' Thought

If we think of Jesus as a mere man, we have to admit that he was a most extraordinary man. The grandeur of his thought compels it. His mind moved in very large circles. He had no circumstances and no length of life to suggest to him that he was to be a world figure, but he was a world figure on a vaster scale than either Caesar or Alexander. His words show that he had the whole world in view as the object of his conquest and the subject of his abiding interest. He did not allow even death to interfere with the accomplishment of his world-wide purpose, but on the other hand he made death wonderfully contributory to his grand purpose. Jesus was so great a man that he must have been more than man. We cannot account for His phenomenal greatness in any other way. His first recorded utterance, "I must be about my Father's business," reveals an extraordinary state of mind, and many of His later utterances reveal a depth and breadth of comprehension not found in other men. "Truly this was the Son of God."

—The Ministers' Conference at High Point College on Monday was well attended and had an interesting program, Rev. H. W. Maier presiding. Mrs. Maier spoke of the Service of Worship. People need to be taught how to worship. Worship involves all our powers, intellect, feeling, will. Worship is contact with God, and does not answer its purpose unless it brings about a changed attitude toward God and changed action in relation to God. It aims to bring our lives into complete harmony with the life and purpose of God. Each hour of worship should have a special purpose and the exercises of the hour should be adapted to promote the special purpose in view. Hence preparation for the hour is necessary on the part of the leader. Materials to be presented must be selected with care and combined with intelligence. Then the leader must prepare his own mind and heart by a season of meditation and earnest prayer. He must go before the group to be led in worship with a sense of the solemnity and importance of the occasion. Lightness must be put away with all sanctimoniousness. Worship is natural and proper to enlightened souls. Mrs. Maier not only prepares herself to lead in worship, but she also prepares the place of meeting. She goes half an hour before the time to see that the room is set in order. She wishes to have no distracting sights or sounds. She trains the young souls to practice stillness before God. She gave no en-

THE NEW BIRTH

A SERMON BY REV. W. F. KENNETT

Text—John 3:1-3; 6-8; 1:12,13.

We have, presented to us in these scriptures: 1. The absolute necessity of being born again in order to see the kingdom of God, and 2. the privilege of becoming the sons of God, very clearly presented to us by being born of God, and 3. the way by which, and the only way, by which we may be born of God is revealed unto us.

Jesus says, "Ye must, verily, verily I say unto thee except a man be born again he cannot see the Kingdom of God."

This new birth, which is absolutely essential to salvation, is a spiritual birth and is of God. "That which is born of the flesh is flesh and that which is born of the spirit is spirit, marvel not that I said unto thee, ye must be born again. The wind bloweth where it listeth and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh or whither it goeth, so is every one that is born of God."

There are thousands of people in the churches of today who have never been born of God, and who have the form of religion without the power. There are many who are depending upon the ordinances of the church and upon their church membership to save them in the great day of his wrath, people who "have never tasted of the good word of God or felt the powers of the world to come," and who are not saved from sin here, but who vainly hope to be saved from the effects of sin hereafter. This state of affairs has been brought about largely by the influence of the teaching of the Roman Catholic Church, and other churches that are very much akin to the Roman Catholic Church, in doctrine, and which depend largely upon the ordinances of the church for salvation. According to the teaching of the Church of Rome, "All sins preceding baptism are washed away by its holy waters; but all sin that is committed after baptism is to be removed by penance in this life or by purgatory in the life to come. According to this doctrine all that is required of adult candidates for baptism in order to efficacy of the sacrament is a passive acquiescence in the offices of the church, and an absence of mortal sin; no positive act of the will, such as is manifested in repentance and faith, being required." This doctrine which is held not only by the Roman Catholic Church, but by some of the Protestant churches, it is to be feared, has had a leavening influence on other churches, so that the deep need, and absolute necessity, of the spiritual birth is not felt, and realized, and preached, in the Protestant churches as it once was.

The doctrine of salvation through the ordinances of the church is a fatal doctrine, an error in doctrine, that must be fatal in its consequences.

The only instrument of regeneration is the word of God, which "Is quick and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword." In James 1:18, it is said, "Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth," and in first Peter 1:23, "Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth forever."

This new birth is of God. A work that God does in us. Tennyson exclaims:

"And oh for a man to arise in me,
That the man I am may cease to be"

And this is just what the new birth is . . . It is the death of the old man and the creation of the new man, so that we are "new creatures in Christ Jesus." "Old things have passed away and behold all things have become new." It is the passing away of the old life and the inauguration of the new. "God creates within us clean hearts, and renews within us right spirits." It is a work of Divine Grace wrought in us. Justification and pardon are done for us.

Dr. Richard Watson, perhaps the greatest theologian of all ages, defined regeneration thus: "That mighty change wrought in man by the holy spirit, by which the dominion which sin has over him, in his natural state, is broken, and abolished, so that with full choice of will and the energy of right affections he serves God freely and runs in the way of his commandments . . . It is that renewal of our nature which gives us dominion over sin, and enables us to serve God from love, and not merely from fear."—O! so many try through fear.

The work of regeneration is a perfect work. So that no second blessing is needed to complete this work, but the new soul is but a babe in Christ Jesus, and must grow into a man or woman in him. It does not raise us above, or release us from temptation, but gives us the power and dominion over sin, so that we can live in newness of life, and "being transformed by the renewing of the mind we may prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God."

How this mighty work of God is wrought in us is indefinable. "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but thou canst not tell from whence it cometh, and whither it goeth, so is every one that is born of the spirit." We cannot explain it. You cannot understand it. But you can know it. "It is a truth that transcends but does not contradict human reason." We can feel it even as we feel the gentle breezes of the evening. We can discern its influence and power even as we discern the power of the wind among the leaves of the trees.

"How can a sinner know
His sins on earth forgiven?
How can my gracious Savior show
My name inscribed in heaven?"

"What we have felt and seen
With confidence we tell;
And publish to the sons of men,
The signs infallible.

"We who in christ believe
That he for us hath died,
We all his unknown peace receive,
And feel his blood applied."

And we know that we have passed from death unto life, because we have the witness in ourselves, and the spirit bareth witness with our spirits that we are the children of God, and we know that we have passed from death unto life.

While regeneration is a work that God does in us, it is a work that never is wrought, and never can be wrought until certain conditions have been fulfilled upon the part of man. Whittier says:

"Though God be good, and free be heaven,
No force divine can love compel;
And though the song of sins forgiven
May sound through lowest hell,
The sweet persuasion of his voice
Respects thy sanctity of will,
He giveth day; thou hast thy choice
To walk in darkness still."

The conditions of regeneration on man's part are repentance and faith. Acts 2:38, "Then Peter said unto them, repent and be baptised every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost."

John 1:12, "As many as received him to them gave he power to become thee sons of God," and first John 5:1, "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God."

God does not, will not, and (I say it reverently) cannot force man's will. To do this would be to change man's nature, and transform him into a mere machine. "Though God be good, and free be heaven, no force divine can love compel."

The conditions, on man's part necessary to regeneration are the same as those necessary to justification, and pardon of sins, which are repentance and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. "Therefore being justified by faith we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

But I want us to remember that since the work of regeneration is God's part, a work that God does for us and in us, that there can not be any doubt about God doing his part when we have met the necessary conditions, and so it is written, "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God." If we have any doubt it should be, and must be as to whether we have truly repented and exercised a living faith in Christ. And on these points I think we have great need to examine ourselves. Have we given up all sin? and are we relying wholly on the merits of the crucified one for salvation? If so then we need not fear as to the new birth, for "God is faithful who has promised," and "to everyone that receiveth him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name."

A few words on the difference between reformation and regeneration will be in order, and it might be well also to speak of the incompatibility of sin reigning, in the regenerate state.

Dr. Wilber F. Tillett, Dean of the Theological Faculty of Vanderbilt University, says, "It is only when reformation is preceded by regeneration that it can be said to have a sure foundation and to inspire confidence in its permanence. There may be such a thing as reformation without regeneration, but there can be no true experience of regeneration without reformation. Reformation is an outer work, regeneration is an inner work. . . . there is a great difference between white-washing and washing white, and this is just the difference between reformation and regeneration. Reformation is white-washing, but regeneration is washing white, or being washed white:

"There is a fountain filled with blood,
Drawn from Immanuel's veins,
And sinners plunged beneath that flood,
Lose all there guilty stains."

"One drop of the blood will cleanse me within,
And free me from sin, and make my soul even whiter than snow."

Dr. John Watson says, "Regeneration is never to be confounded with reformation. The former is used of the spiritual world, the latter of the moral world. The former has to do with the soul where are the springs of life, the latter has to do with the conduct, which is only a form of life. In regeneration the old vessel is not repaired and repainted; it is rather remelted and remolded, and the necessity for this entire and unflinching process lies in the constitution of human nature. No change is worth the name which begins from without and works inward; every change which is to accomplish a perfect result must begin within and work outward." And this is true, and just here I fear many thousands of souls are making a fatal mistake. They mistake white-washing for washing white. They mistake reformation for regeneration, and underestimate the positive statement of the Master himself, "That except a man be born again he cannot see the Kingdom of God."

Wilful sin is incompatible with the regenerate state. In Romans 6:12, it is said, "Let not sin reign in your mortal bodies that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof." And in first John 3:9, "Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin; for his seed remaineth in him and he cannot sin, because he is born of God." This does not mean that a regenerate believer can not backslide, and fall into sin, but that those who consciously and wilfully commit sin can not at the same time be regenerate Christians and continue such.

John Wesley said, "He that is by faith born of God sinneth not by any habitual sin, for all habitual sin is sin reigning, but sin can not reign in any that believeth; or by any wilful sin, for his will while he abideth in the faith, is utterly set against all sin, and he abhorreth it as deadly poison. Nor by any sinful desire, for he continually desireth the holy and perfect will of God, and any tendency to an unholy desire he by the grace of God stiflenth in the birth; nor does he sin by infirmities, whether in act, word, or thought, for his infirmities have no concurrence of his will, and without this they are not properly sins."

And so we understand the child of God may sometimes commit sin but he does not willingly do so, and when he is overtaken by sin he is quick to repent, and there is in his heart a "Hungering and thirsting after righteousness." The foregoing may be regarded as the negative results of regeneration, and consist of freeing the soul from the power and dominion of sin.

Now let us notice just briefly some of the positive effects of regeneration and to quote again from Mr. Wesley: "To be a son, or child of God, is to love God, who hath thus loved you, as you never did love any creature, so that you are constrained to love all men as yourselves; with a love not only ever burning in your hearts and flowing out in all your actions and conversation, but making your whole life one labor of love, one continual obedience to those commandments: 'Be ye merciful as God is merciful.' Be ye holy as, I, the Lord am holy, and be ye perfect as your father in heaven is perfect."

The instant we are born again, born from above, born of the spirit there is a real, as well as a relative change. We are inwardly renewed by the power of God. We feel the love of God shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us producing love to all mankind and especially to the children of God; a love that expels the love of the world, the love of pleasure, of ease, of honor, and of money, together with pride, anger, self-will, and every evil temper; in other words changing, changing the earthly, sensual, devilish mind into the mind which was in Christ.

Love, praise and prayer are the breath of every soul which is truly born of God. "The love of God in the soul of a believer immediately and necessarily implies an unceasing presence of God, the loving pardoning God manifested to the heart and perceived by faith; and an unceasing return of love, praise and prayer, offering up all the thoughts of our hearts, all the words of our tongues, all the works of our hands, all our body, soul and spirit, to be a holy sacrifice acceptable unto God in Christ Jesus our Lord." These according to Mr. Wesley are some of the positive fruits of regeneration.

Are these fruits manifested in our lives? Are we thus consecrated to the service of God? Is the "World crucified unto us and are we crucified unto the world," and are "Our hearts set upon things which are above where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God?"

Lastly the privileges of "sonship"; by regeneration we become the sons of God. "And to as many as received him," etc. And as the sons of God, we are led by the spirit of God for it is written, "As many as are led by the spirit of God they are the sons of God."

It is impossible, says Dr. Pope, "To exaggerate the blessedness of this interior and exterior guidance of the holy spirit given to the children of God. He is the ever present finger of God directing, and the power of God defending the followers of Christ."

Not far from this promise of divine guidance is one equally as precious to all of God's faithful children. And that is the assurance "That all things work together for good to them that love God."

"It is equally impossible to exaggerate the blessedness of this promise, which contains the divine guarantee of a special providence over all who love God and prove their love by keeping his commandments. But this promise is not that worldly good, and wealth and creature comforts shall be brought, by the heavenly Father to his children, it means that all things shall work together for his spiritual good, shall contribute toward making him a holier, and a more useful man . . . and this is what the true child of God desires above everything in the world. And it is this that makes him happy above all the happiness that can come to the sons of men through the sordid things of this world . . . 'For the kingdom of God is righteousness, and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost.'"

Another privilege of the regenerate souls is heirship. "If we are the children of God then we are the heirs of God, and joint heirs with the Lord Jesus Christ." We are heirs of an inheritance that is "incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away."

"As the grandest proof of God's love to man is the gift of his son. The next grandest proof of his love is his making us sons and fellow heirs with Christ. Behold what manner of love the father hath bestowed on us, that we should be called the sons of God, therefore the world knoweth us not because it knew not him. Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself even as he is pure."

"Behold what wondrous grace!
The father hath bestowed
On sinners of a mortal race,
To call them sons of God!"

"Nor does it yet appear
How great we must be made;
But when we see our savior here,
We shall be like our head.

"A hope so much Divine
May trials well endure,
May purge our souls from sense and sin,
As Christ the Lord is pure.

"If in my father's love
I share a filial part,
Send down thy spirit like a dove,
To rest upon my heart."

"We would no longer lie
Like slaves beneath the throne;
My faith shall Abba Father, cry,
And thou the kindred own."

AMEN.

A CHRISTMAS GIFT

In fifteen days from this day thousands of us will give a Christmas gift to somebody. Millions of dollars by millions of people will be spent for this purpose. All right. But let's do this: PUT HIGH POINT COLLEGE ON OUR LIST, and five thousand of us give ONE DOLLAR each to brighten the Christmas of the college family. Isn't that a good idea? The General Conference is not asking us for a Christmas offering now. Nevertheless, we are going to GIVE at Christmas. Fact is, it would not be Christmas unless we did. Let's make the gift to High Point College—five thousand of us—and let's make it $5,000. My, but how this would make Christmas happy for them,—and happy for US, too. Of course we will take it out of the $20,000 that we are raising. That is to say, the Christmas offering will simply be a payment on that amount.

One pastor said to me yesterday that his church would raise the full "Dollar a Member" and let it go with this Christmas Gift. He was speaking for a large membership, too. We are confident that many other churches will feel the same way about this. Already our hearts are feeling the spirit, and surely a thing so timely and so worthy as this will appeal to us as a God-sent channel through which we may express that spirit.

We will do this, won't we? Out of our $20,000, send $5,000 to the college as a Christmas Gift!

THE COMMITTEE.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

At the request of the High Point College Finance Committee, a special session of the North Carolina Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church is hereby called to meet in Grace Church, Greensboro, Tuesday, December 17, 1929, at 11 A. M.

The purpose of this meeting is to secure the endorsement of the conference of a plan of the Finance Committee for the liquidation of the indebtedness on the college.

S. W. TAYLOR, President
C. W. BATES, Secretary

December 11, 1929.

JESUS DIED FOR ME

The Lord Bishop of Durham at the end of a long illness was asked what he had been thinking of. He replied, "I have been coming back from all my studies to remember that Jesus died for me." Charles H. Spurgeon declared that he had lived by four words, "Jesus died for me," and that he intended to die by them.—Selected.

COMING GOOD

"Dollar a Member" is going good. One director reports today that two charges in his district assure him that the full amount—"Dollar a Member" will be raised in each. One church in this district raised half of its amount last Sunday. And listen: While we are doing this, the Finance Committee is working out a plan to take care of the college indebtedness. Surely the Lord is with us! The printed matter, provided by the committee on management, went out to most pastors and directors last week. These supplies will be in the hands of everyone by next Sunday. The leaflet will give necessary information, and the chart, with the $1.00 squares, furnishes an interesting device for bringing the matter concretely before our congregations. It is our full faith that these squares will be taken rapidly when the charts are presented to our congregations, and the people have the opportunity to give. We believe that the suggestion of the committee, as to how to use these charts will be helpful, unless pastors and directors have a better way of doing it. "Dollar a Member"! "Dollar a Member!" that's the slogan. And with that slogan, we win. Of course many people will want to give more than that. A number of children, and other persons in the church may not be able to give a dollar a member, but many others can give more, and will do it. In this way we will realize our goal.

Please do not forget these three things: Send list of all contributors to Dr. Andrews, with amounts after each name; send charts back to me, filled out as indicated; and all cash to Dr. Brown, treasurer. Deluge him with it. "Dollar a Member"! "Dollar a Member"! And above all, continue to pray.

Christmas Offering

See announcement of this in another column. Since it is fully explained there, enlargement here is not necessary. We bespeak the full co-operation of the conference in this Christmas part of our "Dollar a Member" project. Our own Christmas will be happier if we make the college happy by this gift.

Special Session

At the request of the College Finance Committee, we are issuing a call for a special session of the Annual Conference. See the call elsewhere in this issue of the HERALD. Special notice by letter is going out also to every minister and delegate.

South Winston Charge

December 3, Tuesday night.—We were with this charge at this time in the first quarterly conference of the new conference year for this new charge. The charge is composed of South Winston Church, Oak Grove, and Union Grove. Two of the churches, South Winston, and Union Grove, were represented in the conference. The plan of appointments was arranged, but the salary and budget apportionments were referred to the second quarterly conference, which will be held at Oak Grove. Other business required by the first quarterly conference was transacted. The reports showed a Sunday School at each church, with Oak Grove leading in enrollment. The pastor reported $32, as the Thanksgiving offering of the charge for the Children's Home, and that a small amount had been paid on salary. Brother Kinnaman, the pastor, is consecrated and optimistic in spirit. We were glad to hear him well spoken of by the brethren. The South Winston congregation has a lot paid for, and they hope to build on it, though they have not felt sufficiently strong to make the venture. The pastor will be a safe and zealous leader for these churches, and we shall hope and pray that the year may be full of much good for this charge.

Bessemer City, Kannapolis, and Spencer

December 7-8, Saturday and Sunday.—These days were given to these three charges. The expected quarterly conference at Bessemer City did not materialize. Owing to a misunderstanding on the part of the pastor as to our being with him, he had postponed the conference to a later date. However, a talk with him and the brethren there will help, we think, to start off the year, and we trust that each succeeding service may be marked by increasing interest. We have a nucleus here for a useful church, and by proper organization it appears to us that the work should grow. One thing that will help is a well-worked out and stabilized program, that will not only provide for the work locally, but that will link the church up with the conference and denominational interests.

On Sunday morning, it was our pleasure to be with the Kannapolis congregation. We arrived just as the Sunday School was closing. The attendance was 41, the same as it was one year ago, they told us. The preaching service followed at 11 o'clock, with one more present than the number attending Sunday School. The people manifested helpful attention, and we enjoyed worshiping with them. In the afternoon, we held a business meeting, and arranged for Brother J. L. Love to serve them as pastor during the year. He will enter upon his work at once and in a short time, he will move into the parsonage. This appears to be a very satisfactory arrangement. Brother Love will enter whole-heartedly into the work, and his people will give him, we are sure, full co-operation. If we can hold on long enough, we probably can succeed in building a church there. We shall continue to watch results with interest and sympathy.

For the night service, our appointment was with the Spencer Church. We found here an interested and loyal group. Their new church building is small, but attractive, and ample for their present needs. Their indebtedness is a handicap to them, but they are earnest workers, and hope to pay this off in the course of a few years. We are making arrangements to supply a pastor for them and expect to be able to make further announcements very soon. Whoever serves them will find a loyal and an appreciative band of workers. Our visit to each of these points gives us encouragement. We are grateful for all kindness shown us while on this itinerary.

Brother Robert Short and Brother Foster, his delegate, were at Kannapolis in the afternoon to talk "Dollar a Member" with us. We were glad to see them. They will press the matter at Roberta, and with good results, we trust.

Central Pastor's Association

December 9, Monday.—This meeting was held at High Point College. It was our privilege to attend. We were gratified to find present 25 or 30 other ministers belonging to this group. The program was timely and interesting, and full of profit. We believe that our pastors will find these meetings helpful in fellowship and in the discussion of vital church matters. The Eastern and Western Federations will no doubt be announcing meetings soon.

Rural Church Contest

We have not forgotten this contest nor lost interest in its purpose. Other matters have been so pressing recently that we have not been able to give attention to it. It is gratifying to know that these papers are still running, and we trust that our readers may be provided with another good one this week. We can not put too much emphasis on the rural church. The judges are keeping up, of course, with each contestant, and will be able to make their report promptly when the contest ends. Our impression is that there are yet two or three papers, of the required ten, to be run.

Correction

The Budget Council did not give apportionments of Gratitude Gift Deficit to charges that paid the allotments of last year. By oversight, however, one or two charges that paid last year were given another allotment this year. Welch is one, and Haw River, another. The Budget Council regrets this error. These charges, and any others that may have a similar complaint, will simply disregard the apportionment.

Fire Works

Let them alone, if you ask us. Christmas is not a time for fire works. How the practice of noise and reveling and drunkenness ever got into our Christmas celebration is a marvel. Surely we will not continue that method of celebrating the birthday of our Saviour. The first Christmas sets the standard for us. It was a Christmas of heaven-messengers, of holy music, of adoration of the Christ. It should still be so. The world does not care, and will not change our practice in this matter; but the church should care, and should not stop its efforts until our Christmas is what it purports to be,—a celebration of the birth of our Saviour, and not a time of noise, and reveling, and drunkenness. Nothing can be more suitable, as an observance of Christmas, than public worship in our churches on Christmas Day.

couragement to the thought that any one is prepared to conduct a worship service extemporaneously.

Rev. S. W. Taylor emphasized the importance of having an orderly and clean places of worship. Dust on the floor does not inspire worship. Neither do hats and overcoats out of place. The need of suitable song books was also stressed.

Attention was called to the fact that choir leaders sometimes—perhaps unwittingly—usurp the place of the pastor in the direction of the worship service. When the pastor is not present, as is often the case in circuits, it devolves upon choir directors to select and announce the hymns, but when the pastor is present he should select the hymns or at least should have opportunity to approve the selection. This is necessary to secure harmony between the songs and the sermon. Some pastors are, perhaps, too willing to leave the matter of songs to the choir altogether.

Rev. R. I. Farmer reported that he had been trying Dr. Sheldon's suggestion that the sermon be delivered near the beginning of the hour, with apparently good results.

Rev. C. W. Bates read a paper on church finances, presenting a plan to enlist all church members in doing their part. The plan involves a network of committee service, reaching out to the last man, woman, and child with an invitation to contribute a penny a day or more each week. Payments of small amounts are not much felt, and the aggregate is gratifying, not to say astonishing. You have only to reckon a little to see that 200 persons contributing a penny a day each will in the course of a year contribute $730.00.

What to do with the church member who fails to contribute to the financial support of the church was earnestly discussed but not decided. Perhaps the best thing to do with him would be to Christianize him.

The members of the meeting enjoyed a good dinner in the college dining hall. The next meeting will be three months hence.

OUR STORY PAGE

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

A ragged little boy with a bundle under his arm wandered one hot summer day through the poorest section of one of the big cities towards the railroad station. Weary and footsore from his long hot walk, he mounted the steps of the station and was almost at the top when a big man turning sharply into the staircase bumped into him and almost knocked him down. The boy recovered his balance, but dropped the bundle and the man, full of apology for his awkwardness helped him gather together the few poor garments that scattered over the steps.

"Where are you bound for, sonny?" asked the man.

"Paradise, sir," answered the urchin.

Now this answer was startling to say the least, and Mr. Brown looked his surprise.

"Honest, sir," persisted the boy. "Just come over to the train and see. There's a bunch of us fellows going this week. It's a farm, sir. Paradise they call it and it sure is."

His curiosity aroused, Mr. Brown followed the lad's suggestion and escorted him to the train. There beside the gate were forty little boys—all more or less ragged, but all grinning happily and waiting their turn to be inspected and tagged by the kindly young doctor who had to pass upon the fitness of each prospect before he might pass through the gate. Mr. Brown stood quietly by watching the proceedings. The boys were a happy, noisy crowd, but not unruly.

"Where are they going?" he asked one of the workers when the noise had abated.

"To Paradise," was the answer, "but really, sir, in more ways than one. These poor boys and many like them are sent by a Vacation Week Society to a place called Paradise Farms. The boys go there for two weeks—all expenses paid—and they are given real food, good supervision, taught good habits and started on the road to good health. Of course, we have thousands of applicants and every case is investigated before the boys are told to report at the station. Only really worthy cases are sent. Do you know, sir, some of these kids have never seen grass growing? They come from tenements where five and six people live in one room which they call 'home.' Paradise is a good name for the farm. It is Paradise for those kids. Really, two weeks is too short for them. But our funds are terribly limited, and we're doing the best we can do with what we have." The social worker had warned up to his subject. He told Mr. Brown about similar camps that were run for poor little girls. Their camp clothes were provided for them. Good wholesome food was given them. They are taught to swim, to stretch and grow in the sunshine, to live and to find God.

Mr. Brown was impressed. He had known, of course, that such work was being done but he had never come into such close contact with it before. "How much does it cost to send and keep a fellow at such a camp?" he asked.

"Our organization estimates that seven dollars a week will pay all expenses including transportation and the counselor's salary for one child. Not much, is it, measured beside the good that it does?" No, it is not much. Mr. Brown pulled his check book from his pocket. "Here, I'm glad I bumped into that kid, this morning. Sometimes, I'd like to visit Paradise, myself."—Selected.

CHER AMI, THE PIGEON THAT SAVED THE LOST BATTALION

During the World War many and varied were the means used to defeat the enemy. Every sort and kind of living creature had their part in this. One of the means used was the employing of carrier-pigeons. Many interesting stories are told of these but none more thrilling than that of Cher Ami ("Dear Friend").

After a hard, tiring day's march, the battalion of 670 soldiers reached their destination, and hoped for rest. With them were five carrier-pigeons, which slept peacefully in their baskets. Early the following morning, to the horror and dismay they found the forest in their rear alive with the enemy soldiers, and themselves entirely cut off from ally assistance.

Five days of torturing gun fire followed, during which time the men began to perish from hunger and became delirious from their wounds. One by one four carrier-pigeons were released, hoping they would get through with their message, and help would come, but with no avail.

And then came still further disaster, for it was discovered that the Allies, totally ignorant of the position of the battalion, were shelling them from behind the enemy's lines.

"What shall we do, what shall we do, to save our men?" was the agonized cry of the battalion officers.

"We still have one carrier-pigeon left us, Cher Ami. Perhaps he will get our message through. It is our last hope," they said. An officer hastily wrote the message, "For Heaven's sake, stop it." Then he rolled this message in the capsule and attached it to the right leg of Cher Ami. The pigeon lingered for a moment in the hand of his friend, then spreading his wing, the gray soldier was off. A second later it was seen to fall, wildly fluttering in pained surprise. Dully the men stood around watching the agonized flutterings of their last pigeon, their one hope.

But Cher Ami's courage did not fail. Amid shrieking shells and dense smoke, his spirit heard the call "Come home." He raised his head, he spread his wings and soon was once more in the air, on his way. One-half hour later, twenty-five miles away, a sergeant of the allied army saw a small gray speck in the clouds. Nearer and nearer it came, fluttering round and finally flew down the landing-board. It was Cher Ami, dripping with blood and staggering with weakness. Then it was discovered that a machine gun bullet had pierced his breast and torn away one leg, but the message capsule still hung by a clotted ligament. Hastily the message was detached and read. The barrage was instantly stopped and that night the allied army smashed through the enemy's lines, saved the remnant of the lost battalion, and brought 252 men back to safety.

And Cher Ami? He survived his wounds for one year, was brought home on a United States transport, was decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross, and lived out his days, the petted mascot of the signal corps headquarters in Washington.—Homiletic Review.

GOD'S BEST GIFTS

I used to think that God's gifts were on shelves one above the other, and that the taller we grew in character the easier we could reach them. I find now that God's gifts are on shelves one beneath the other, and that it is not a question of growing taller, but of stooping lower, and that we have to go down, always down to get His best gifts.—Dr. F. B. Meyer.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HELPS

TO GIVE?"

To the Leader

Since it is so near Christmas, try to lend as much of the Christmas spirit to the meeting as possible. One way to do this is to make the spirit of worship predominant.

If you want more general discussion (and most societies need more) give out slips of paper and pencils and have each member write down all the gifts which he thinks youth has to give. If your group is not too large, have these read and tabulated by the secretary on the blackboard, if you have access to one. As the leader speaks briefly about each he may easily lead the group to discuss the points with him. In these slips you might have the members underline the gifts which youth can give to Christ.

Use Christmas music if you wish, or "Give of Your Best to the Master," "Jesus Calls Us," "More Like the Master," "Take Time to Be Holy," "I Gave My Life for Thee," "Something for Jesus."

Leader's Lines

At the last meeting was discussed the spirit behind giving, but at this one we are to discuss the gifts themselves. We wish to lay special emphasis on the gifts we, as young people, may give, not only to others, but to Christ.

Our giving is, in too many cases, thought of in the light of the material world. We simply cannot afford to let ourselves, or the people over whom we may have influence, continue to think along such a low plane. "The gift without the giver is bare." Then we should feel it our duty to help make people see the true spirit of Christmas by showing them what they have to give. The gifts which are in our own power to make are varied and numerous, both to those in need and to Christ and His cause. Some few of the things which youth may give, practically speaking, are: singing Christmas carols to the shut-ins or in institutions; pledges of support and co-operation to the pastor (make this definite) either as regards church work or Sunday school work; presentation of books or pictures; helping the less fortunate and renew your Christian Endeavor covenant.

Topics for Discussion

Yourself, optimism, understanding, time, health, service, gladness, interest, friendship, talents, substance.

To Be Answered

1. Which do you consider as having the most to give, youth or old age? Why?
2. How much of our time should we give Him?
3. In what ways may youth give gifts to Christ?

4. When youth gives himself to Christ what do you consider that to imply?

5. What is the most valuable gift we may give?

6. Do you give as much time, material goods and attention to God as you do to your best friend?

Bits of Poetry

Man am I grown, a man's work must I do.
Follow the seer? Follow the Christ, the King,
Live pure, speak true, right wrong, follow the King,

Else wherefore learn?

—Tennyson, "Idylls of the King."

Look up and not down;

Look forward and not back;

Look out and not in, and Lend a hand.

—Edward Everett Hale.

There's nothing lost that's lost for Christ;

The world for self hath not sufficed

To satisfy the soul of man.

In mercy God conceived the plan

That labor forth from love would spring.

And love by laboring learn to sing.

—R. B. Preston.

JESUS CALLS US

Jesus calls us o'er the tumult

Of our life's wild, restless sea;

Day by day his sweet voice soundeth,

Saying, "Christian, follow me."

Jesus call us from the worship

Of our vain world's golden store,

From each idol that would keep us,

Saying, "Christian, love me more."

In our joys and in our sorrows,

Days of toil and hours of ease,

Still he calls, in cares and pleasures,

"Christian, love me more than these."

Jesus calls us; by thy mercies,

Savior, may we hear thy call.

Give our hearts to thy obedience,

Serve and love thee best of all.

—Cecil F. Alexander.

SEND C. E. WORLD SUBSCRIPTIONS TO REV. R. I. FARMER

The High Point Christian Endeavor Union recently elected as its official representative for the Christian Endeavor World "more-readers-campaign" in North Carolina the Rev. R. I. Farmer, minister of the First Methodist Protestant church of High Point. Mr. Farmer is chairman of the Union's board of advisers and also a member of the State C. E. Union executive committee.

The International Society of Christian Endeavor, with headquarters at Boston, has launched a campaign to increase the number of readers of the Christian Endeavor World, the official organ of this interdenominational young people's movement. All representatives receive a cash credit toward a trip to the World's C. E. Convention in Berlin, Germany, next August. Where preferred the same credit will be given toward a trip to the International Convention in San Francisco, in 1931. To five representatives securing the largest number of subscriptions in the United States and Canada will be given the trip to Berlin as guests of the International Society. In lieu of part of the trip, the Passion Play at Oberammergau may be substituted. This will be Mr. Farmer's choice in the event of his being awarded the trip in Group D as North Carolina's delegate.

Both new and renewal subscriptions count, as well as those advanced for two or more years, which add the corresponding credits. In announcing his candidacy, Mr. Farmer states that he is convinced of doing a good work for the youth of all churches in leading folks to read the Christian Endeavor World. No finer Christmas gift, to reach the recipient 52 times a year, could be made. The information and inspiration of the World's Convention, as well as the Passion Play, will make for more efficient work wherever the message may be carried. Any co-operation will be appreciated.

—Mecklenburg leads the counties of the State in the training of rural white teachers. It is learned from the current issue of State School Facts, which is devoted to a detailed analysis of the scholarship of white teachers employed in 1928-1929. The rural white teachers of Mecklenburg County now have average training equivalent to 3.44 years in college. Since 1922-23, the average training of rural white teachers in this county has been increased by more than two college years.

—Bro. J. M. Millikan has been engaged to serve as Field Agent for High Point College. This is a great work, requiring peculiar qualifications, and we trust that Bro. Millikan will find such co-operation as to make what would otherwise be a difficult and unpleasant task an easy and pleasant labor. His success in securing support for the Children's Home encourages the hope of like success for the College. We do not know his plans, but in due time he will make them known. Now the appeal for $20,000 maintenance fund has right of way.

You see how long a list we have this time, and it makes a fine report. We would rather have this amount of money given by the many as it was than to have had one person give it.

Please note too in this report and in last week's report how many of our pastors and their wives have sent in their "One Day's Income" for the Home. A few of our laymen and laywomen still do this, but in the main, our laymen have ceased to send the day's income direct to the Home. May we not hear from you yet?

In last week's report it was Mr. C. C. Stamey of Falkton who sent us the check for $100., and not Mr. "C. C. Staley" as reported.

Regular Monthly Offerings

This letter came this week: "enclosed please find—dollars for the Home. We are ashamed of the way we have treated the Home for the last year. But we had such a bad year in finances . . . we let other things claim all the available cash, and neglected this very important work. There will be a check coming to you every month this year, the good Lord being our helper."

We thank the writer, and trust that each Sunday School in the Conference will so resolve.

A regular monthly offering, with a definite amount from each Sunday School will keep this Home going fine.

Clothing and Other Gifts

Three sets of new double doors for the Girls Dormitory, front and east and west ends, given by the Rosses of Asheboro. These are being put in today.

Prof. E. B. Stinson, High Point College, one overcoat.

Mrs. Ida M. Trenary, Chicago, Ill., six quilts for single beds. Good, as most quilts sent us are for double beds.

North Carolina Annual S. S., Washington, D. C., a box of toys, and containing a few articles of clothing.

Mrs. William Nave, South Vienna, Ohio, 8 sheets and 4 pair pillow cases.

Young Woman's Auxiliary, Muncie, Ind., one dozen wash cloths.

Shiloh on Shiloh Charge, 3 hens.

Friendship, on Shiloh Charge, 3 hens.

Flat Rock, Bethel and Gideon's Grove on Flat Rock Charge, 14 chickens and 40c in cash.

Sunshine Mission Band, Muncie, Ind., a box containing one suit of clothes, one book, one pair stockings, and a number of toys for Christmas.

For the money reported above, and for these gifts which are coming in almost daily, we thank you. May God abundantly bless all of you.

A Sane, Common-Sense Christmas

Many of you will be sending presents here for our children, and we thank you. But please make your gifts practical. Cheap toys are soon destroyed and your money is lost. Buy something that will give service.

Christmas Cards

We still have on hand a number of boxes containing 20 beautiful Christmas cards and good envelopes. No two cards are alike. Order from us at once and cards will be mailed to you promptly. $1.00 per box. All profits will be given to the children for Christmas spending money. They have very little money to spend at any time. Help them out.

Thank you and God bless you.

A. G. DIXON.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Pugh

Ida May Hughes Pugh departed this life November 17, 1929, aged 57 years, one month and 25 days.

She was married October 22, 1893, to S. A. Pugh. To this union were born seven children, six of whom survive, one having died in infancy. The children are James F. and Jake Pugh, of Millboro, Route No. 1; Solen F. Pugh, of Tallahassee, Florida; Mrs. C. R. Wood and Mrs. W. D. Setliff, of High Point, and Mrs. Wade Routh, of Millboro.

She professed faith in Christ in early life and joined the New Salem M. P. church, later moving her membership to Bethany M. P. church where she remained a loyal member until death. She was always a loving and kind mother in her home and will be greatly missed by her family and a host of friends and neighbors.

Foust

James Walter Foust died November 21, 1929, aged 17 years, 3 months and 21 days. He leaves a father, mother, three sisters and two brothers, Edith, Clara, Calleen, Tracy and Paul. He professed faith in Christ four years ago and joined Gray's Chapel Methodist Protestant church.

James was a splendid young man, and was faithful to the Sunday school and church. During his illness he bore his affliction and suffering patiently, and manifested the spirit of Christ in all things. His going away from us leaves a vacancy in the home, the Sunday school and the church, but we rejoice in the hope that was his for an eternal and heavenly home where the study and worship of God never ceases, and where the highest joys of the soul will be his forever.

D. I. GARNER.

—Miss Martha Parsons suggests that pastors who have not time to make a personal round of their membership for the church paper appoint a few lay members to give systematic and persistent attention to this matter. It seems to us a good suggestion.

HERALD SUBSCRIPTIONS FIELD SERVICE

Directing Committee of the Annual Conference: Rev. N. M. Harrison, Rev. R. I. Farmer, J. F. Coble.

The Herald must rely on pastors and their assistants for the work of extending and maintaining its circulation. It has always been so and is more emphatically so now. In making out goals for the charges the Committee has generally followed the rule of one subscription to every ten church members, which does not seem unreasonable or impossible. Of course the logical goal is a paper to every family in the church. The first column of figures gives the goal for new and renewed subscriptions for the conference year. The second column is to give the number received to date.

Miscellaneous	25	9

I have long regarded the church paper as the most valuable pastor's assistant, when it was impossible to have one in person. It calls 50 times per year with definite information. The Conference president visits each charge many times annually. Our most successful charges are among those whose membership reads the church papers. An informed people are not only cooperative, they know why and for what they co-operate. Often Sunday visiting, inclement weather, sleeping through the sermon or announcements, thinking of next week's work or business, wondering how someone can afford to have a new suit or dress—these or other causes of static prevent the reception of announced programs which should be known. The weekly visits of the Methodist Protestant Herald not only reach the membership regularly, but reach more people in a parish, no doubt, than the average minister has to hear him in the congregation. If not now true, this should be the result from new subscriptions.

That which has wrought considerable sacrifice financially for the editor and publishers need be no sacrifice for 3,000 readers. Surely there are considerably more than 3,000 people in North Carolina who will not miss $2.00. Without that many subscriptions at the new price, the burden is too heavy. With this new support and wider reach of readers, the burden is lifted. Enlist now and swell the ranks of Herald readers.

Unless you, dear pastor or people of our churches, have already reached your goal as a minimum, please turn again to the article of November 21st. Find the goal set for your church. Read again the suggestions for interesting new subscribers. Add to these other more helpful ones which have occurred to you and which the editor would be glad to publish, if sent to him. Armed with an array of facts and persuasions, whether minister or layman, determine to get others to help and go after your goal. A little teamwork will do it nicely.

It will be almost too daring a suggestion to make; but I daresay that the money spent for Christmas presents by Methodist Protestants in the Old North State this year would more than meet every emergency which our Conference faces. It does seem to me that the same amount would not only give us the 3,000 subscribers, but would meet the High Point College necessity, provide for church extension obligations and leave something for our very worthy and sometimes very needy supernumeraries. Is this a rash supposition? If so, pray forgive. If not, may we not at least follow the suggestion, "These ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone." (Matt. 23:23).

The final word is to hurry to non-subscribers. Tell them of the need. Impress the benefits of Conference news and programs carried directly to our membership. Receive their subscriptions and send them to the editor, thus gladdening his heart. That the blessing of religious literature in the home be not denied our people any longer, get subscribers. For the larger contacts, do not forget The Missionary Record and The Methodist Protestant Recorder. But fail not our own Methodist Protestant Herald. The church papers need our help, but we need them in a larger measure.

"Here shall the Press, the people's rights maintain,

... Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

MY HOBBY

An interesting thing I like to do
If I'm sad and sometimes blue
I select a very interesting book
And sit down to read in a pleasant nook.

I read of soldiers, sailors, ships,
And fairies that dance on their little toes tips

Pirates, oh! my! my! and treasures too
Storms and winds that go "wooooo"

And when I've finished reading the book,
I walk away from my pleasant nook
And then I draw a sigh
And go, for night is nigh.

MARY FRANCES WALKER.

On the first day of the second semester in school, the little boys took their seats and waited until the teacher came down among them to get their names. The first one to whom she came replied that his name was Si. "No," the teacher corrected, "you mustn't say Si, say Silas."

Next she came to one who said his name was Tom. "Thomas," she corrected.

"And now, little boy," she inquired of a lad in the end row, "what is your name?"

There was a bit of squirming: "Jackass," responded the lad.—Boston Transcript.

"In your sermon you spoke of a baby as a new wave on the ocean of life," remarked Mr. Younghusband. "Quite so," replied the clergyman. "A poetical figure of speech." "Don't you think," suggested the harassed member of his flock, "that a fresh squall would hit the mark better?"—Ideas.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Macedonia.—We are all delighted with the return of our pastor, Rev. J. M. Morgan. Every one welcomed him with smiling face and happy heart. His work has been a success here, and we hope his work this year will be even more successful. May the membership of our church pray for him and work with him in the Master's vineyard.

Attendance at Sunday school today was very good considering the cold weather. Our Sunday school girls and boys are giving a play to raise money for our church.

Mrs. Ellis Hoyle has returned to her home from the Lincoln hospital, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis and is getting along nicely. We hope she will soon be back with us in Sunday school.

Mount Zion, Pinnacle Charge.—Our Sunday school has got away to a fine start under the newly-elected board of officers and teachers in spite of the severely cold weather.

We have already gotten our Christmas program out and started practice.

We are very glad to have with us as our new pastor Rev. A. L. Hunter; we say new because of two reasons. First, was did not have a pastor after the last Conference year was finished while Bro. Hunter was attending Annual Conference; second, since Bro. Hunter has served us so long he necessarily has to find new methods and practices of preaching in order that he may avoid preaching the same sermons over and over again, which, of course, he never does. His messages are always new and interesting. He has started the new year by filling every appointment up to date.

On Saturday before the third Sunday in December at 1:30 o'clock p. m. the first quarterly conference will be held at Pinnacle.

Bro. Fred Fowler is building a very modern home, seven rooms, brick veneer, which he hopes to move into by Christmas.

We are hoping to get plans in shape to start our new church when spring weather opens up.

We are planning to try to make this the best year in our Sunday school and church work and ask the prayers of all true Methodist Protestants that our efforts may be blessed to the extent that the harvest will be great.

MRS. W. E. JONES, Reporter.

Mount Carmel Church.—Last Sunday was another good day for us. Rev. C. G. Isley's service in the morning was very forceful, his text being "Prepare to meet thy God." This sermon was striking, interesting, full of warning.

The Missionary Auxiliary gave an oyster supper for the benefit of the church. The proceeds amounted to $30.55.

We are much encouraged by the gradual improvement in Sunday school. We are, however, not satisfied with the present attendance and condition of the church. We hope before long to have a new church under construction. We ask all Christian people to pray for us in this work. We wish to thank the ones that have already given much of their time to the many duties connected with the church work.

The C. E. Society is planning and preparing an interesting program for Sunday night. The society is now thinking of a social.

Pray for us that we may follow the voice that calls, for it is the voice of Christ.

REPORTER.

Oak Grove, Cleveland Circuit.—Our new Conference year has begun with everybody showing much interest in church and Sunday school. Our much beloved pastor, C. E. Ridge, does not only fill his appointments, but he is one of our main leaders in our Christian Endeavor society. We are so thankful to conference for sending Brother Ridge back to us. He has been with us only a year, but there has been much improvement, both in our church and community, during this time. Everybody seems to think we could hardly live without him and his family. May God help us to be more loyal to them.

There will be a Christmas tree and program given in our church December 24. Mrs. F. H. Grigg and Mrs. C. E. Ridge will train the children in their exercises.

Our Sunday school superintendent, Mr. P. S. Gettys, has appointed five committees to collect funds to treat the Sunday school, which will be a nice package of something given to each member of the Sunday school. The committees are as follows: Rose Mary White, Linder Pendleton, Inez Ridge, Blanche Mode and Blanche Gettys with the writer as chairman.

Much credit is due our pastor and members, who gave in the Thanksgiving offering for our Children's Home which amounted to $20. If they gave willingly they certainly will be blessed, for God loves a cheerful giver.

With love to the Herald and best wishes for a happy Christmas.

M. PENDLETON, Reporter.

Hope, Chatham Charge.—Our "new" pastor, Rev. A. O. Lindley, filled his first appointment for us since Conference on the third Sunday night in November. The service was well attended. He also filled his appointment at the 11 o'clock service on last Sunday. Owing to unfavorable weather and other circumstances this service was not so well attended. Bro. Lindley, as usual, brought us one of his earnest discourses. We want to thank Conference for sending Bro. Lindley back to us. We trust that by all working together as we have done in the past we may accomplish much for the upbuilding of the kingdom of God this year.

The "measuring party" which was given by Circle No. 1, and the oyster supper by Circle No. 2 of the Woman's Auxiliary, both proved successful. A neat sum was realized, which we expect to apply toward lifting the debt on the Sunday school rooms.

REPORTER.

Fairfield.—We are very glad indeed to have with us again Rev. and Mrs. Fred Love.

At our last preaching service before Conference the officers of the church were duly nominated and elected as follows:

Stewards, M. E. Hager, A. A. Duckworth, Pat Proctor, Marjorie McConnell and Agnes Proctor. This board of stewards elected R. R. Proctor as chairman and J. A. McConnell as treasurer.

Church trustees, Prim and Colman Howard.

Class leader, M. A. Proctor.

Pianist, Agnes Proctor.

The stewards held their first business meeting Friday night. The business was transacted in perfect harmony.

With the help of our pastor we are going to give a play for the benefit of the church.

REPORTER.

Midway.—Midway Sunday school attendance is increasing every Sunday. We appreciate our efficient superintendent, Mr. Baron Lamb. Mr. Lamb is a young man, willing and ready to do all he can, and we feel that with the prayers and attendance of the people around Midway that he can do a lot of good as leader of our Sunday school.

The Conference did not assign us a pastor for this year, so Bro. Taylor sent Bro. J. Taft White, a ministerial student from High Point College, to preach for us last Sunday. Bro. White preached a real interesting sermon on "Unconscious Influence," which every one seemed to enjoy very much, and we hope that we may have him for our pastor this year.

There were several visitors present Sunday. We are always glad to welcome visitors, and hope you will come again.

Our Sunday school is preparing to give a short program and have a Christmas tree sometime during the holidays.

Several of our members were present at the chicken dinner which was served at the Children's Home last Thursday and report a good dinner and a jolly good time.

Our Ladies' Aid will meet with Mrs. Dixon at the Children's Home next Thursday. We are planning to do some more sewing for the children there.

I close, wishing all you Herald readers a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

STELLA YORK, Reporter.

Hebron, Orange.—We are glad to welcome our pastor again. He is beginning his sixth year as pastor of this charge, and has served us faithfully. We are hoping for a better year this year than ever before.

Bro. Williams filled his appointment at Hebron this afternoon. After the sermon the Lord's Supper was administered.

Our S. S. is holding up very well under the circumstances; the weather and bad roads cut the attendance some. We are planning a tree and exercise for the children Christmas. The program committee has this in charge and is working on it.

We are hoping to install a Heptola in the church by the next preaching Sunday. This will add greatly to the comfort of the congregation.

The pastor and stewards will meet at the home of Mr. P. N. Thompson Thursday night for the purpose of laying plans for the coming year.

Our Sunday school will start a new contest next Sunday. Mr. B. F. Wilson, our Sunday school secretary, has been elected president of this contest and we feel that much interest will be shown and new members added.

The officers and teachers of the Sunday school were delightfully entertained at a supper given by Mr. and Mrs. A. K. McAdams at their home. Those present were Mr. B. F. Wilson, secretary, Miss Velma Sykes, Miss Grace McBane, Miss Nannie McAdams and Mr. Sam Nelson, teachers. Two of the teachers could not be there. Two of our oldest memlers are very sick—Miss Eliza Jobe and Mr. H. A. Wilson. They do not improve very much, we are sorry to say.

MRS. T. A. GILL, Reporter.

Littleton Circuit.—On Tuesday night before Thanksgiving the pastor and family were made glad. Our doorbell rang, and guests began coming in. At first we thought it to be some of our good friends calling to welcome us back on the work this year, but soon the crowd grew larger and we hardly knew what was going to take place.

After an hour or so spent in pleasant greetings and good wishes for the new year, we were invited into the dining room, and here, to our surprise, we found the table piled high, and on the floor were many things—a pounding! Upon investigation we found many nice things for a Thanksgiving dinner. Also a lot of other articles of food.

We were so happy we hardly knew how to thank our good members from Corinth, Vaughn and Littleton churches for this expression of gratitude.

We are happy to be back on the work this year. Everything seems to be moving along very nicely, considering the financial strain our charge is passing through due to poor crops.

The pastor and family are very comfortably housed for the winter in the parsonage that has recently been remodeled by the charge. We appreciate all efforts put forth by the circuit to bring about our comfort. May God's richest blessings rest upon them and the work.

C. IVEY SMITH, Pastor.

Henderson.—On Sunday morning, November 17th, our pastor, Rev. R. A. Hunter, preached his first sermon of the new Conference year. A large and attentive congregation made evident our joy of having him and his family with us another year. Special music by the choir was also a pleasing feature of the services.

On Monday evening, November 18th, a meeting of the board of stewards was held at the home of Mr. Clyde L. Finch. The organization for the coming year was made at this time and Mr. Finch was elected chairman of the board. Many plans were made and discussed, and a bright future is hoped for along this special program of the church's work. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

On Thanksgiving Day we had a most impressive message from our pastor and a large attendance joined in the services. The offering was taken for our Children's Home.

Sunday morning, December 1st, we had two talks from two of our laymen. Mr. Clyde L. Finch, chairman of the board of stewards, spoke of the new plans made by the board to finance the local work of the church and help to meet the entire budget for the coming year. Mr. J. B. Hicks presented the call of "A Dollar a Member" for High Point College in a very effective way. These needs being brought before us so well by these men we are praying for a quick and certain response from all members. We should not accept this only as our duty, but as our privilege and opportunity to labor in His vineyard.

The Auxiliary held a most interesting and well attended meeting on Monday afternoon, November 25th, with Mrs. F. R. Harris. Mrs. J. B. Fox presided in the absence of the president. The devotionals were conducted by Mrs. L. R. Gooch. Mrs. C. M. Hight and Mrs. C. H. Finch sweetly sang "It Pays to Serve Jesus," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. F. R. Harris. The last chapter of the study-book, "What Next in Home Missions?" was reviewed by Mrs. Clyde L. Finch. Following this the business of the Auxiliary was taken up. Reports from the four chairmen of the circles were very good. The secretary read the minutes of the last meeting, after which the treasurer's report was given. It is pleasing to note that the attendance at the meetings and the amount of money collected thus far exceeds all records known before the merger. The Auxiliary voted to give a chicken dinner to help meet some local needs at our parsonage. The chairman reported a meeting of the executive board and the study book for the coming year was selected, "From Jerusalem to Jerusalem." There being no other business the meeting closed with prayer. The hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. William Boyd, served home-made candy and salted nuts.

The Philatheas held their regular monthly meeting December 5th at the home of Mrs. Clyde L. Finch, with Miss Lettie Finch and Mrs. C. M. Hight, associate hostesses. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Finch presided. Mrs. Thomas Powell conducted the devotionals for the evening. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The treasurer being absent no report was given. During the business period the class voted to give a Bible to one of our members now sick in the Scott Parker Sanatorium. A list of names and Christmas toys desired by children at the Caswell Children's Home for Feeble-Minded was taken to be supplied by members of the class. The vote was also made to observe Christmas at our church with some special program. A committee was appointed to take this in charge. During the social hour a salad course was served.

REPORTER.

Why Not.—Since Conference the parsonage has been right much improved. A new porch floor has been laid, two rooms painted, a wardrobe bought and put in, and a closet built in. A new mantle also has been added.

Bros. Noah and Russell Williams and Frank Brown deserve honorable mention for moving us free of charge. Bro. Lloyd Cable contemplated our needs and brought us a big load of wood.

I visited Love Joy and Macedonia yesterday. Love Joy church building is a beauty and does honor to the community in which it stands. The attendance was highly encouraging, the singing fine—in short it was good to be there. Macedonia was visited in the afternoon. Here I found a good building, but too large for the attendance. I found good folks here also.

Next Saturday is quarterly conference at Pleasant Hill. Bro. Pritchard is to be with us in place of President Taylor, who could not attend on account of previous engagements.

WM. H. NEESE.

Seagrave, N. C., December 9, 1929.

Canaan, Denton Charge.—Rev. E. A. Bingham Sunday morning at 11 o'clock gave a very inspiring and forceful message. His subject was "The Call to Service." He pointed out very vividly the different ways a person may be called into all time service to spread the glad tidings of Jesus Christ.

The Sunday school is proceeding in a satisfactory manner. The attendance is as good as usual for this season of the year. Much interest is being shown by the officers to arouse more interest. The following church and Sunday-school officers have been elected and installed for the coming year: Superintendent, Fred Nance; assistant, Wesley Sexton; secretary and treasurer, Miss Edna Harris; assistant, Wayne Sexton; choir leader, J. M. Gallimore; organist, Miss Mada Ward, Miss Esther Gallimore; reporter, Wesley Sexton; stewards, J. S. Harris, J. D. Ward; class leader, S. E. Martin; assistant, J. M. Gillmore; trustees, W. L. Sexton, J. R. Surratt, T. J. Ward.

The first quarterly conference was held at Denton. Much business was disposed of at this meeting. Mr. W. E. Hill, of Denton church, was elected circuit steward for this charge, and Mr. J. S. Harris, of Canaan church, was elected as his assistant.

Best wishes to the Herald and its many readers.

REPORTER.

Davidson.—We have completed our first round on this charge of six angles and have seen encouraging evidences of progress this year beyond that which we had seen before. Our first quarterly conference was held last Saturday and it indeed was a very interesting one. The churches that were a little short on salary before Conference will pay up in December. Bro. Free Latham, one of our energetic young men, was elected circuit steward and we predict that he will keep things going this year.

The "Dollar a Member" for the college is meeting with pleasing approval. We are putting each member's name in the square with the dollar and posting in church. When a dollar is checked off it shows who paid. Misses Bruce Smith and Lillian Lanier, Christian Endeavors of Lineberry church, accepted the challenge to raise the amount at Lineberry. They are already scoring in the teens.

The C. E. Society, under the leadership of young Bro. Hoyt Wood, one of the most faithful presidents I ever saw, is taking on new life. At the suggestion of Bro. Thomas Hall the society closed last night with a testimonial service. It was inspirational.

The pastor is greatly encouraged by the fact that in his churches devout souls invoke heaven's blessings upon their pastor. All these things inspire us to greater effort.

W. D. REED.

St. Paul.—We are starting the new Conference year with good attendance both at Sunday school and church service. We hope to have a successful year's work. We had a good sermon yesterday by our pastor. He used as his subject, "The Family Altar in the Home." We were very glad to have Miss Lillian Wade and Miss Lillian Eudy from High Point College with us at the 11 o'clock service last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Brittain have returned from Weaverville where they went to visit Mr. Brittain's father and mother, and they also stopped over at Hickory to visit Mrs. Brittain's father and mother.

Since our last report death has entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Parr and taken their little son, Jack. The funeral was held on Sunday, December 1, from St. Paul church.

conducted by the pastor, after which the little body was placed in Green Hill Cemetery.

The Willing Workers class held their class meeting on Wednesday night before Thanksgiving at Mr. and Mrs. G. H. May's. After the business meeting was over the class of young boys and girls had a social hour, after which ice cream and cake were served.

We have started out to try to raise a dollar per member for the High Point College which each member has been asked to pay. It is not much—just one dollar. We should be glad to pay that much for our college.

We are planning to have a Christmas exercise and a tree. Mrs. Brittain has charge of the children and they start practice tonight.

Our Ladies' Aid will meet Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. May. We are looking forward to this meeting. We may tell you more about it later.

MRS. J. S. WADE, Reporter.

First Church, High Point.—On Sunday morning the minister, Rev. R. I. Farmer, in response to the suggestion made by the General Conference to observe one Sunday annually as "Men for the Ministry Day," delivered a pertinent and eloquent plea for "Obedience to the Heavenly Vision" from Acts 26:19, "Whereupon, O Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision." He said that sometimes a boy or girl hesitates to give a definite decision for life service to Christ, and if he had encountered a friendly word or hand-clasp at the proper time, five years would have been added to his ministry. Dr. Stephenson said at the recent Conference in Greensboro that one of the saddest experiences that he meets is when men in middle life come to him and ask to be allowed to preach the Gospel, and he is forced to tell them that it is too late, meaning that it will take several years to equip themselves by proper education and training for this important task. One must have vision for the future; mothers have visions and dream dreams, when they look lovingly into the dewy eyes of their tender babes clasped on their breasts; they dream of what these men children may become in future years or what heights these women children may reach, for in this day of enlarged usefulness and doors of opportunity open to girls, they are enjoying an equal privilege with our boys. Teachers have visions, as they patiently step by step lead the young minds entrusted to their care through the mazes and intricacies of books and lessons. Real estate men have visions when they begin to build cities as they imagine all the possibilities of forests and fields. The first thing that Paul saw was a sense of sin. The man or woman who is most conscious of sin, is nearest to be saved. No man or woman ever accomplishes any kingdom work without a sense of unworthiness. There is no passport to Heaven; "we have all sinned and come short of the glory of God." The second thing that impressed Paul was a realization of his duty; "Lord, what wouldst thou have me to do?" He will now go out and do greater things. Horace Mann was once offered the governorship of Massachusetts, but preferred to be president of a small college at Antioch, Ohio. This vision brought to Paul a new power over men. A fisherman who had a fine outfit, reel, rod, and tackle and sporting togs, could catch nothing, while his helper, a little Scotch lad, was kept busy pulling up plenty of fish, asked the boy why he had so much better luck, and this was his answer: "You'll never catch the fish unless you keep yourself out of sight." A great field of social service is open to us. God will let us see what to do, and He has put us in the world among humanity to help them and to do something for them.

Mrs. George T. Penny was hostess to the Woman's Auxiliary on Monday afternoon at their general meeting and delightful Christmas party, which was attended by 58 members and guests at her magnificent home on the Greensboro road. The interesting program for the day was led by Mrs. O. D. McPherson in a happy manner, the subject being "Evangelism at Home and Abroad." A number of questions were asked, which brought forth information about our educational institutions, including the Theological Seminary, Adrian College, Michigan, Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md., Westminster College, Tehuacana, Texas, and our own High Point College, youngest of the group. During the business session over which the president, Mrs. S. S. Coe presided, the Auxiliary voted to send a check for $20 to the Empty Stocking Fund, in care of The Enterprise, of High Point, for Christmas cheer, and also the sum of $100.00 to the High Point College Fund. Rev. Mr. Farmer, who is a member of Committee on Herald Subscription Goals, told us about the importance of saving the paper, and how much interest this subject aroused among members of Annual Conference, and Mesdames Coe and Moffitt were asked to secure a member from each circle of the Auxiliary to solicit renewals and new subscriptions to our church paper. The goal for First Church is 69, there being already 40 subscribers. At the close of the business session the gracious hostess, Mrs. Penny, was assisted in serving a delicious salad course followed by cream, cake, and mints in beautiful Christmas favors of green and red by Misses Elizabeth Welch, Ruth Moffitt, Mrs. J. C. Welch, Sr., Mrs. Allie Foister, Mrs. L. R. Peacock, Mrs. J. C. Welch, Jr., and others. Mrs. Penny is always a charming hostess, and her Christmas parties for the Auxiliary are very delightful annual affairs, always eagerly anticipated and greatly enjoyed by a large number of our members. We were much pleased to have several visitors, including Dr. and Mrs. George R. Brown, of Reidsville, Rev. R. I. Farmer and children, Miss Mary Eller, Mrs. S. A. Holleman, and others.

Circle No. 8, Mrs. J. G. Stipes, chairman, will serve the Baraca-Brotherhood supper in the assembly room Thursday evening at 6:45 o'clock. Mrs. H. V. Oakes is chairman of the committee on arrangements. An appetizing meal and entertaining social time is assured all who will attend.

At a called session of quarterly conference held immediately following morning worship hour on Sunday, it was decided to raise our quota of "A Dollar a Member" for the college, which will amount to $708, by Dec. 20th, and present it as a "White Gift for the King" at the Christmas entertainment to be given by the Sunday school. Since the Auxiliary will contribute $100, it should be an easy task to raise the remainder.

"What Is Back of Our Christmas Giving?" was discussed at the weekly session of C. E. Society Monday evening.

In future the bulletin Sunday morning will carry the attendance and offering of the Sabbath school of the previous Sunday. The report for Sunday a week ago was: Attendance, 270; offering, $32.25.

Prof. L. R. Johnston, principal of our local high school, returned Sunday from Lexington, Ky., where he attended a convention of high school principals and secondary schools.

The pupils of Prof. Ernest B. Stinson of High Point College, both vocal and instrumental, will appear in recital in Roberts Hall Wednesday evening, December 11th. These recitals are always highly enjoyable and those who attend are promised a musical treat.

We are pained to announce the illness of several members: Mrs. J. B. Spence is ill at her home on Lindsay street; Mrs. B. F. Montgomery is not so well at her residence on South Main street; Mr. S. A. Holleman, father of Mrs. C. C. Robbins, is kept at home by illness; Mrs. Juanita Moffitt Cox is recovering slowly from her serious operation, and is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Moffitt, North Main street; Mrs. Maggie Suits, mother of Mrs. C. E. Barton, is seriously ill at the residence on West Ray street. Many prayers go up for those who lie on beds of pain and suffering, and we trust that the Heavenly Father may be with them and comfort them until their recovery.

We are pleased to see Mrs. W. P. Pickett out again after an extended illness. Her sister, Miss Mary Eller, has come to spend some time with her, and the two plan to go to Florida after Christmas to spend several weeks with Mrs. H. S. Meredith at Tampa.

First Church, Burlington.—Our attendance at Sunday school was 303. This is an increase over last Sunday. The new superintendent is working very hard and faithfully to get the heavy debt off. It was finally decided that each person double his offering.

The attendance was very good at the morning service. Mr. Geringer preached at this time. As Dr. Charles M. Sheldon suggested, the sermon was preached during the former part of the hour, while the latter was left for business, etc.

All the churches in the city held a union service in the First Baptist church at the evening hour, at which time Dr. Sheldon spoke on World Peace.

The Baraca class will have their annual banquet in the hut on Tuesday evening, December 10th.

Most of our new officers have gotten started in their work for the year. We are looking forward for a very successful year.

REPORTER.

Enfield.—In spite of the recent cold wave our church and Sunday school attendance has been good, and the work of the new Conference year is moving forward encouragingly, however we hope the interest relative to the drive now on for Herald subscriptions, also the dollar a member drive for High Point College, will be increased, and that every member of the church will take an active part in this work until our quota is reached. Mr. Auman has explained to us why this project should be carried to completion in 90 days; he also gave a poster to each member present at church service yesterday. The need is fully explained on the poster.

Mr. Auman gave us two good sermons yesterday. At the morning service his theme was specially directed to parents, impressing us with the importance of child training in the home. He very beautifully exemplified the life of Hannah and Samuel. At the evening service his theme was "What Is In Thy Hand?" explaining that God required the use of even the least talent. Our hands may not hold a staff like Moses held, but surely we can learn from God how to use what we hold.

We were glad to have Mr. John T. Bobbitt, of New Bern, N. C., worship with us at the morning service. Mr. Bobbitt was a member before moving to New Bern; he was a faithful attendant, and we miss him. We are always glad to welcome him home. He gave Mr. Auman a renewal subscription to the Herald and said he expected to be a life-long subscriber.

Our Christian Endeavor societies are growing. The young people remain interested and are really doing a great work. The meetings are well attended and greatly enjoyed. We appreciate the work Miss Ruth Barnes is doing in this society. She is serving us as president. Her motto is "Let each one have a part." Mr. Auman, too, is loyal, never failing to be present. We just couldn't get along without his cooperation and prayers.

We are planning a Christmas program. Miss Ruth Bellamy and Mrs. Eli Bellamy were appointed to have charge of the program.

Best wishes and a happy Christmas to every one.

Enfield, N. C.

REPORTER.

Kistlers, Cleveland Charge.—We at Kistlers church are very glad to have Bro. C. E. Ridge and his family back with us.

At our last preaching service before Conference the church elected its officers and they were duly installed. Each officer seemed to feel obligation more strongly.

Our Sunday school is small during the winter months, but we feel our effort is not in vain. Our Sunday school offering for December 1st was for the Children's Home.

In the beginning of another year's work, I trust we are all looking forward to doing more for Christ's cause and the church than we have during the past year.

MRS. ALVIN IVESTER, Reporter

Hollister, Halifax Charge.—Pastor Fogleman filled his second appointment with us Sunday night, December 8. He brought to us an inspiring and helpful message.

Preparations are being made for a Christmas program and free to be given on Thursday night, December 26. Mrs. E. T. Ellington, Mrs. W. E. Knight and Miss Kathleen Shenin were appointed to prepare the program.

The first quarterly conference will convene with Ringwood church on Friday afternoon, December 13. All official members are urged to be present and any others that will come.

REPORTER.

Littleton Circuit, Hawkins Chapel.—We are glad to have back with us our same pastor, Rev. C. I. Smith.

Our Christian Endeavor held a business meeting Sunday afternoon. New officers were elected. We hope to get things in a straight line and have a wide-awake Christian Endeavor for the coming year.

We are sorry to know Mr. Andrew Pittard and little Bert Butts are very ill; glad Mr. E. B. Pair was able to be back at the church Sunday after a spell of sickness.

May God help every church in every way to stand more for Him in the year to come than ever before, so when the day comes we can be as sheep to stand on the right hand side.

MRS. C. H. HAWKINS, Reporter.

Cleveland Circuit.—We are glad to be returned to this charge. Immediately after Conference we took up the work. We have been very kindly received and the people seem hopeful of a good year.

A Thanksgiving service was held at Oak Grove church. It was a splendid program and well received. An offering of $20 was sent to the Children's Home. A meeting of the board of stewards has been arranged with the different churches this week to work out a system for raising the finances. We are hopeful of seeing this charge go on the Honor Roll this year.

We are receiving some response to the "Dollar a Member" for the college. We will do our best to make this an Honor Roll church for High Point College.

Our first quarterly conference will be held at Oak Grove church on Saturday, December 21; preaching at 11 a. m., dinner at the church, quarterly conference in the afternoon. All conference officials are expected to be present.

C. E. RIDGE, Pastor.

Tabernacle, Tabernacle Charge.—We are delighted to have Rev. H. L. Isley returned to us. He gave us another good sermon Sunday morning. It was against the advice of his physician that Brother Isley preached to us Sunday, as he is having a severe throat trouble. We hope he will soon be well again.

Some of our young girls presented a missionary drama in the church Sunday evening which was well attended. A silver offering was taken for the cause of missions, which amounted to about $14.

On Monday evening, Mr. Brell, an agent for the Aluminum Cooking Utensil Company, gave a lecture and demonstration in our church. This was a very instructive lecture, and we are sorry that more of our people didn't hear Mr. Brell. We received a few dollars from the Utensil Company for helping advertise in this way.

One of our finest young men, Glen Stancil, who has been making his home with Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Coble, was recently united in marriage with Miss Nell Andrew, of Alamaue's Presbyterian church. We hope to have them live among us and attend our church.

A cantata is being prepared by the C. E. Society and will be given during the Christmas holidays.

REPORTER.

Albemarle.—The Ladies' Aid Society met on Tuesday afternoon in the ladies' parlor of the church. Mrs. D. J. Hatley and Mrs. C. L. Hatley were hostesses for the occasion. The room was decorated with Christmas bells, holly, and other holiday decorations, giving it a very cheerful appearance. In the absence of the president and vice-president, who were both sick and unable to attend, Mrs. D. J. Hatley acted as president. The regular routine business was carried out in an efficient manner.

It was decided that we have a bake sale on December 23rd, and each member is asked to make a cake or to make candy for the sale. The manager of the M System Store has very kindly offered space in his store in which to conduct the sale, and it will be held at that place beginning at 2 P. M. A great variety of cakes will be on sale at reasonable prices, and the public is cordially invited to buy their Christmas cakes here.

At the conclusion of the business hour, the hostesses served delightful refreshments, consisting of a salad course with coffee and butter-scotch pie. Hostesses for the next meeting will be Mrs. Boyd Gantt and Mrs. J. A. Furr.

On last Sunday morning the observance of the Lord's Supper was commemorated. Mr. Anderson brought us an interesting message on this subject, explaining the origin and meaning of the Lord's Supper, and what it should mean to us. We always feel drawn closer to God and to our fellow-men after one of these beautiful services.

Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson, accompanied by S. R. Hutchins and family, visited in the home of J. W. Johnson, of High Point, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hatley announce the arrival of a son, Joe Wesley, on December 8, at the Yankin Hospital. Mother and babe are both doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Pickett Montgomery, of High Point, were visitors last week in the home of C. S. Moton. Mr. Montgomery became very ill shortly after arriving here, with something like flu, which necessitated them extending their visit longer than they intended. We trust that he has completely recovered by this time, and that the next time they visit our city, he will not be quite so unfortunate.

MRS. JOHN U. WHITLOCK, Reporter.

Henderson.—We have begun our fifth year as pastor of the Henderson church. The people seem glad to have us return to them and are co-operating splendidly in every line of work. We find that our duties increase as we become more familiar and better acquainted with the people of the church and community in general. However, we find that the busier we are the happier we are, and yet we are inclined to agree with the editor that there may be a danger of a pastor trying to do too much and growing prematurely old, although we feel none of the infirmity of old age yet.

Our every-member canvass has been delayed this year on account of not receiving the apportionments until last week. The canvass will be made next Sunday afternoon. It is hoped that a good showing will be made. The "Dollar a Member" campaign has already been launched under the direction of Bro. J. B. Hicks, and the people are responding gladly.

The ladies of the church are doing splendid work, locally as well as general. They have recently paper two rooms at the parsonage and painted the kitchen. This has added to the appearance and comfort of the building and we thank them for it.

We are glad to report that Mrs. S. R. Watson, our faithful and efficient organist, who has been absent from our services for a number of weeks on account of illness, is able to be out again and will soon be back in her place at the organ and as president of the Woman's Auxiliary.

Since Conference our services have been well attended, considering the condition of the weather. She splendid music rendered by the choir, under the direction of Mrs. F. R. Harris, adds greatly to the attractiveness and helpfulness of these services.

We are expecting another good year here and are hoping and praying that we may have many souls for our hire. Pray for us.

R. A. HUNTER.

Shiloh Charge.—Our work is not as large as last year. We have three churches instead of five. We have a good work and hope to do a good year's work. We held our first quarterly conference at Shiloh; had a good conference. Bro. Ira Koonts was elected secretary of the conference.

Since our Annual Conference and just before, the people of Shiloh church have given us some nice gifts: Bro. Jeff Berrier, $30 and one ham, Miss Emma Berrier, $5; Shiloh C. E. Society, a real good pound; Bro. A. H. Ragan, of Thomasville, 15 pair of socks. We thank these good people for these gifts, and pray God's blessings upon them.

R. S. TROXLER.

Graham.—As our craft embarked on a voyage of hope for another year, we were grateful for the presence of Rev. J. F. Minnis again at the helm to steer and guide, as the Pilot of all would have us go. Let us be much in prayer that we may help him over the rough seas so the threatening waves will not toss us too high.

The sermon Sunday morning by the pastor from Matt. 26:46, "Rise, let us be going," was a divinely inspired message, we believe, and should have reached the hearts of all his listeners, as he pictured the plight of a sleeping church. It is time we were waking to a realization of what it means to be a sleeping church member.

Tuesday evening, November 26th, the doors of the hut, which has recently been built, were thrown open to the public. The interior of the building was made lovely by the use of potted plants. The principal speaker of the evening was Rev. N. G. Bethea. Six other ministers were present and participated in the program: Rev. L. W. Geringer, Burlington First church, Rev. Dim-ite, M. E. Graham; Rev. D. V. Pike, Friends, Graham; Rev. R. P. Ellington, Baptist; Rev. Harrop, Presbyterian, with the pastor, Rev. J. F. Minnis. Music was furnished throughout the evening by the Junior quartette, First church, Burlington, and Misses Louise and Margaret Moore, Graham. Refreshments consisting of sandwiches and coffee were served by the ladies of the church at the conclusion of the program.

The first quarterly conference will be held Wednesday evening, December 11th.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will meet on the third Monday night instead of the regular time in order to make room for the Christmas program. Every member is urged to be present.

Friday evening, December 13th, a play entitled "Out of Court," with a cast composed of the young people of the church, will be staged in the Lut. The public is cordially invited to come and enjoy two hours of good, clean amusement.

We are glad to note Mr. J. L. Amick, who under went an operation in the Clinic Hospital, Greensboro for appendicitis, is home and getting along nicely. We hope he will soon be able to be out and attend church again.

The Sunday school is moving along nicely under the leadership of Mr. P. S. Dixon. While the severe weather somewhat decreased the attendance for a few Sundays, we are expecting it to be average and above the average in the future.

REPORTER.

West Forsyth.—I guess the readers of the Herald will be surprised to see this short report from me. Last Sunday was a good day. We were at Union Hill church at 11 o'clock. It is always a pleasure to be with the good people of this church. It is difficult to decide which invitation for dinner to accept, as there are usually a number of invitations given. On last Sunday we enjoyed a visit and good dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. P. Baker, and it is always a great pleasure to go to this home. After dinner we visited other homes where there was sickness. We were sorry to find some the Union Hill church people sick and hope they will soon be fully recovered and be in our services again.

Friday night of last week we enjoyed having some visitors who came bringing with them useful gifts which were very highly appreciated, and we will long remember them in friendship and in our prayers. Those who came were members of Pleasant Hill church, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Hunter and daughter, Lena, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hunter and daughter, Juanita, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Long.

We thank Mrs. Frank Myers of Stony Knoll church for gifts for our dining table; Mrs. Arthur Long, one of our neighbors, has also remembered us again with suitable things for our kitchen.

The writer was about to forget something. I must mention a gift of a Christmas box from Mrs. W. B. Spease, of Pleasant Hill church, and highly appreciate the gift. I also desire to express many thanks to Miss Bessie Warner, of Harmony Grove church, for a nice birthday present.

Wishing the many readers of the Herald a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, I am, the pastor's wife, MRS. C. B. WAY.

State Street, Lexington.—Tuesday night, November 26th, the membership came tramping in with filled arms and merry jesting right in at the front door of the parsonage and found their way to the cook-room and there did us great good by leaving the table well burdened with a fine variety of things to eat. They took us by complete surprise, and you can well imagine how our eyes were on extension while the performance was going on. We stood it well and now our hearts are deeply grateful to all who had to do with the pounding. It would be impossible to give either names or the things given as space forbids.

On the following night we were also remembered by the Christian Endeavor Society, who presented Mrs. Hendry and the parson with a beautiful glass fruit bowl. It, too, is much appreciated.

Our reporters are faithful; there is little left for me to say. This is as it should be. We at the parsonage are getting settled by this time and will soon be completely grooved in to the new routine of things.

State Street church proved for about half of the "Dollar a Member" for the college yesterday. It has not been presented as yet to Yadin or Ellaville churches.

The attendance at all services of the various churches appears to be fair with a small increase at State Street church.

G. H. HENDRY.

Liberty Hill, Anderson Charge.—Our new pastor, Rev. J. C. Russell, brought us two very interesting and helpful messages yesterday.

The Christian Endeavor Society held its meeting just before the preaching hour. Mrs. W. R. Harrison was the leader. We were glad to have the pastor take part. We feel that he is going to be a great help to us. The society is preparing to give a Christmas pageant at the hour for their meeting next fourth Sunday night.

The first quarterly conference for the year was held at this church Saturday, December 7. All the churches were represented. The business was transacted in the usual way. Mr. R. P. Wyatt was re-elected secretary; he has served very faithfully for a number of years.

THEFTS DECREASE

"Despite the increasing number of crimes, the railroads report that the thefts of freight and other articles from them have decreased 93 per cent in the past ten years. In 1920, losses to railroads from theft were $12,726,947, while in 1928 they were only $928,563, and indications point to an even greater reduction this year.

"An important factor has also been that 97 out of every 100 men arrested charged with having stolen something from a railroad have been convicted and punished. It is swift and certain punishment that is the biggest deterrent from crime."

He would like to have a copy of the speech Benjamin Franklin made when he asked that the constitutional convention be opened with prayer.

—Bro. Grabs pays us the compliment to say that the M. P. Herald excels in the recognition of the mutuality of ministers and laymen. We thank him. We believe that both ministers and laymen are folks; ministers nothing more, laymen nothing less.

—Rev. R. J. Tamblin spoke in High Point chapel last Monday on "The Pacifists and Citizenship." He referred especially to the case of two distinguished persons who have recently been denied citizenship because they would not agree to serve as soldiers in war. One of them is a woman too old to be drafted, we believe.

NUMBER 7

The Story Christmas Tells

Let all great days their stories tell—
How kingdoms rose and kingdoms fell,
How battles were won and battles were lost,
How ships of state were tempest-tossed,
How victors marched at head of state
And took proud place among the great.

But Christmas Day comes on with story
That puts in shade all earthly glory:
She tells of One, both God and man,
Whose great career this day began.
In manger born, of virgin birth,
He came to be the greatest of earth.

Wise men took note and angels came
To pay their tribute to his great name;
His matchless worth was felt afar;
E'en Heaven hung out a blazing star.
His shining words, His noble deeds,
Put Him ahead, and He still leads.

He is not blind to smallest needs,
Nor deaf to any want that pleads,
And sees the power of habit's chains;
And His chief joy is found in this—
To save from sin and lead to bliss.

With dauntless courage He met His death,
As Son of Man gave up his breath,
That He for us might conquer fears
And save our eyes from needless tears:
He solved the problem of human woe
His pains Himself did undergo.

All other tombs their captives hold;
But His escape was quickly told.
He had a power beyond all foes;
He will o'ercome in ways He knows.
He sits today enthroned on high—
Directs affairs in earth and sky.

No Paper Next Week

By approval of the Annual Conference the HERALD is returning to its former custom of suspending for Christmas week. This gives needed relief from the grind of printers' work and affords some opportunity to engage in the exercises specially appropriate to the Christmas season. We wish all our readers all the joys and innocent pleasures of this sacred season.

—Rev. W. F. Kennett's sermon on The New Birth in last week's issue of this paper was pronounced by Rev. T. J. Ogburn the best sermon on that subject he had ever heard. It deals with the fundamentals of salvation in an impressive way and is worth re-reading.

Don't Put It Off

(Resolutions for 1930)

Do you wish to nobly live?
Don't put it off.
Think sometime to freely give?
Don't put it off.
Foolish to regret and sigh,
Time and chance go fleetly by.
This is the time to really try—
Don't put it off.

Like to free yourself from debt?
Don't put it off.
Plan some way relief to get?
Don't put it off.
Useless to procrastinate,
Sit inert, bemoan your fate,
Do it now before too late—
Don't put it off.

Want to start the New Year right?
Don't put it off.
Make a saddened life more bright?
Don't put it off.
Prove that you can meet the test,
Serve a cause, work with zest,
Resolve today to do your best—
Don't put it off.

Regarding Obituaries

We regret that we can not always publish obituary notices promptly. If we charged for their insertion as many papers do perhaps that would so reduce the number and length that we could always find space. We do not intend to adopt that policy unless driven to it. We request those called upon to write of the deceased to bear in mind the limitations of our space. It is perhaps not improper to suggest that friends of the departed wait to write until called upon by the family of the deceased to write. In this way the demands on our space would be diminished. We wish to render a reasonable service in printing matter pertaining to the lives of the dead, but we cannot permit this department of the paper greatly to encroach upon the space that belongs to matter of more general interest. We ask writers of unpublished obituary notices to excuse the forced delay.

CHRIST EVER PRESENT*By REV. ROY IRWIN FARMER*

We never can go anywhere
 But Jesus Christ our Friend is there;
 Nor bitter pain e'er rend the heart
 But He who suffered has a part.
 The Man of Sorrows is our own
 For ev'ry path we may be shown;
 Tho' rugged or with moss o'erspread
 He knows the way our feet must tread.

The friends we trust may oft betray,
 Still our dear Saviour trod this way;
 And bitter words from loved ones pierce
 Into His heart like daggers fierce.
 Yes, He who trod Judea's hills
 Both knew and knows our many ills;
 It matters not though tempters rage
 My Christ can save as battles wage.

To bear another's burden great
 May serve some rash desire to state;
 And if one's own dull load is borne
 There's fortitude when hearts are torn.
 But grander still we can afford
 To cast our burden on the Lord;
 The promise that He will sustain
 Then gives us joy instead of pain.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

The people of North Carolina are sending out of the State annually for the purchase of food and feedstuffs a sum in excess of $250,000,000. An idea of the extent of this colossal drain upon our resources and earnings may be obtained from some simple comparative statistics. It would, for example, be sufficient to pay the total property tax, town and county, for four years. It is nearly twice as much as North Carolina has spent on roads over a ten-year period. It amounts to $81.00 annually for every man, woman and child in the State, or more than $400.00 for the average family.

This state of affairs is economically unsound and, as a practical matter, wholly unnecessary. With the exception of tropical fruits and spices, North Carolina can, by intelligent application and planning, produce every foodstuff consumed by man and beast and now largely purchased from outside markets. Our almost incomparable soil and climate are admirably adapted to the production of corn, wheat, rye, potatoes, beans, celery, lettuce, tomatoes, apples, peaches and all the great secondary crops of hogs, cattle, poultry, milk and butter. No state in the American Union is better equipped by nature to "live at home" and no state is more dependent upon outside sources for almost every food necessity. We dissipate what might easily be converted into a gigantic surplus to meet this annual deficit in the realm of elementary production. Money that could be spent for better schools and homes and the comforts and conveniences of life goes for food and feedstuffs, of a frequently inferior quality, when almost everything we need could be economically produced on our own farms and in our own gardens.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, OLIVER MAX GARDNER, Governor of North Carolina, with a view to focusing the attention of the people upon what appears to me to be their greatest single present need and in pursuance of my general agricultural and "Live at Home" program, do designate and set apart the week of December 15-21 as "Live at Home Week" and to this end urgently request the co-operation of all the people. Let the civic and luncheon clubs and Chambers of Commerce hold a dinner at which nothing but the products of North Carolina farms shall be served, and in this let them enlist the active co-operation and participation of the farmers and their wives. It would not be improper, I think, and would certainly be highly useful for the ministers of the gospel to set aside Sunday, the 15th, for a sermon on the subject of living at home. When the wise King Joseph was confronted by the prospect of a food shortage, he adopted practical measures for meeting the crisis and thereby saved from hunger his own people in another land. Let the Superior Court Judges call this to attention of grand juries and let the home and farm demonstration agents make this program their slogan. Let the retail grocers co-operate by advertising each week some North Carolina product and let the Women's Clubs build their programs around this movement. Let the attention of the eight hundred thousand school children of North Carolina be focused upon it by appropriate exercises. And let the heads of every state institution and of the Department of Agriculture assist in practical ways in carrying forward this program upon the success of which the happiness and prosperity of all the people of the State so vitally depend.

Done at our Capital City of Raleigh, this fourth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine and in the one hundred and fifty-fourth year of American Independence.

TWO WAYS OF BURNING TOBACCO

In the spring of the present year a warehouse fire in London, England, destroyed 8,000 tons of tobacco, causing a money loss of $5,000,000. This was lamented by the tobacco men as a great loss, but in reality it should be considered a blessing. Far better that $5,000,000 go up in tobacco smoke, straight through the open air, than to be breathed into human lungs before being given the air. Better a loss of money than a loss of health and manhood.

In the meantime, smokers continue to start fires by their carelessness. A report of the great fire in Nova Scotia that destroyed St. Boniface College, causing a loss of $750,000 includes a statement to the public by the fire commissioner to the effect that it is believed the fire was started by the carelessness of a smoker.

Press dispatches from Superior, Wisconsin, following a series of disastrous forest fires in that state, contained this statement: "Fire wardens say that nearly all the fires were started by motorists who dropped lighted matches or cigarette stubs from their cars."

It might be well to deal with such offenders as did Judge Stahl, of Corona, Calif. A real estate dealer, who carelessly started a fire by throwing down a match after lighting a cigarette, threatening the destruction of one of the National Forests, was fined $500, and the fine suspended for thirty days, on the condition that the offender would pay $480, which was the cost to the Forest Service for extinguishing the fire. If smokers were always required to pay the losses they cause, or go to prison in case of default, it would no doubt reduce the number of such fires.—Will H. Brown.

THE "DOLLAR A MEMBER" CAMPAIGN

I am greatly pleased with the reported progress on the 'dollar a member' campaign for High Point College running expenses. It is the most hopeful sign I have observed since the college was built—hopeful in that the membership of the church appears to be ready to respond to the appeal. I have always believed that the church in North Carolina could maintain High Point College if it had the willingness to do it. And I have felt for some time that the church would be willing to do this when it saw that it would be beneficial to itself and to the State by keeping the college running. I think most of us recognize that there is a large number of people in our State who neither have anyone to go to college nor are they connected in any vital way with those who do go to college, therefore it is more difficult for them to see any reason why they should contribute to the support of a college with which they have no vital connection than it can be for those who have children either in college or who may want to go to college. In other words, there are many people who look upon a college education as a sort of luxurious attainment. But, leaving out that class of people in our State, I believe that we have enough among our membership who are vitally interested in High Point College to make it succeed. The facts are, as I see them, it is an investment which the church can ill afford not to make. Because the church must depend upon its young members to carry on the work which the older ones are gradually laying aside and unless these younger people are well-trained to take up this work, it will naturally follow that it will lag; that it will not go on so well as it did when their fathers were running it. I for one believe that the rising generation can and will do the job better than we are doing it, for the simple reason that they have had better training and more experience in the work than their parents have.

So let us all together rally to the proposition of raising a dollar a member in our churches and thereby surprise even those who made the proposition that it be done, since they expected thirty thousand people to raise only twenty thousand dollars.

DENOMINATIONAL YOUNG PEOPLE'S DAY RECEIPTS 1928-29

The following is a complete report received by our Department from Rev. James H. Straughn, D. D., Promotional Secretary and Treasurer of the Methodist Protestant Church. The eighteen Conferences reporting receipts are as follows:

Eastern, $210.17; Maryland, $205.40; North Carolina, $175.40; Ohio, $173.03; Pittsburgh, $99.90; Illinois, $84.54; Indiana, $61.84; West Virginia, $53.30; Onondago, $38.42; Michigan, $36.69; Mississippi, $18.00; Missouri, $11.70; Georgia, $10.46; Kansas, $9.18; Ft. Smith-Oklahoma, $8.05; Iowa-Missouri, $6.10; Alabama, $2.86; Colorado-Texas, $2.28. Total, $1,207.32.

We are publishing these figures because our Department promised to give recognition to the various Conferences that observed the Young People's Day and took an offering for the New Century Service. Our office has received many comments as to the general acceptance of the program. Plans are now going forward for the observance of this day on a larger scale, and in a far better way than we did last year. Denominational Young People's Day will be held on January 26, 1930. Will you please watch for definite announcement of materials, etc., to be used?

F. L. GIBBS, Assistant Secretary.

ALCOHOL OR AUTOMOBILE?

"A motor car traveling at the rate of thirty-five miles an hour will cover twenty-one feet in two-fifths of a second. It takes a driver one-fifth of a second to apply his brakes and stop the car." A small quantity of alcohol in the brain of the driver may increase this fraction of a second to three-fifths, during which time the car will have traveled forty-two feet farther. Measure off this space and consider what might happen in that distance to a child, to a pedestrian, to another car caught in an emergency, in the path of the driver who might have stopped before reaching it if his brain had not been muddled by alcohol.

In England, where accidents due to automobilists driving when under the influence of alcohol are becoming alarmingly frequent, The Daily Express is quoted as saying: "It should be stipulated by insurance companies that claims will not be entertained where it is proved that motor car drivers have been served with intoxicating liquor, no matter how small in quantity."

"This is pretty drastic for a general paper," says The National Temperance Quarterly, reporting the newspaper's remark, "but it is quite in accord with the scientific evidence of the day, which shows that the sedative action of alcohol is to dull the intelligent appreciation of the difficulties constantly arising on the road, and the accidents occurring in consequence are more often than not the result of drink conditions far short of drunkenness."—Sunday School Times.

"DOLLAR A MEMBER" CHURCHES

1. Kernersville, Kernersville Charge.
2. Union Grove on Orange Charge.
3. Pleasant Hill on Cleveland Charge.

Fourth place in this list is held for YOU for the first after-Christmas number of the HERALD. We are anxious to see who "You" will be. Just as soon as your church is over, please report to us. No better thing can be done on Christmas Sunday than complete this offering. Do it, and give us your cheering report at once.

THE COMMITTEE.

—The Russian alphabet of thirty-six letters is to be changed to conform to the alphabet used by most European countries. Commissions have been appointed to reform the present Russian spelling and to report the completion of their work this month. The matter of a like change in the spelling of Hebrew and other languages used in Russia has also been under consideration.

—"Christmas is a great interpreter of the beautiful. It shows the real values of time and eternity. The commonplace becomes exceptional—the simplest words of appreciation put us in a kind of rhapsody, and the ordinary scene becomes dramatic, historic, lovely, eternal."

—May I tell you why it seems to me a good thing for us to remember wrong that has been done us? That we may forgive it.—Dickens.

—"A living sacrifice" is the life poured out in loving ministry for others. How often our own lives are impoverished because we reserve them for ourselves!—Missionary Review.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

Seven days more, then Christmas. At there will be no HERALD next week, we are sending our Christmas greetings in this issue. To every minister, every pastor, every preacher, and every church, with our thirty thousand members, we extend the greetings of this happy festive season,—the happiest of all the year. We hope for everyone a Christmas of unmarred joy. Family reunions, social occasions, gift giving, sumptuously loaded with appetizing viands,—these, and many other things at this festive season, but surely those who believe in Him and who love Him, can not forget the Babe of Bethlehem on His natal day. Surely nothing can be more appropriate for Christians than to assemble in their places of worship on Christmas day, and ascribe praise and honor and glory to Bethlehem's Babe, and confess their sins to Him, as their only and all-sufficient Saviour.

"O holy Child of Bethlehem,
Descend to us we pray;
Cast out our sin, and enter in,
Be born is us to day.
We hear the Christmas angels
The great glad tidings tell;
Our Lord Emmanuel."

"Dollar a Member"

Listen: "Please give Pleasant Hill church proper recognition for raising her 'Dollar a Member' yesterday. I am sending check to Treasurer Brown for $70." This is from pastor Ridge of Cleveland Charge. And listen again: "We presented the 'Dollar a Member' yesterday. The result was $24. I believe that we are going over the top." This is the way Pastor Helms writes for Connelly Springs Charge.

"The 'Dollar a Member' is meeting with pleasing approval. We are putting the name of each member in a square, and posting the chart in the church. When a dollar is checked off the chart shows who paid," Rev. W. D. Reed, Davidson Charge. "We have started out to raise a dollar a member for High Point College. It is not much—just one dollar. We should be glad to pay that much for our college," Mrs. J. S. Wade, reporter for St. Paul. "At a called session of the quarterly conference held immediately following morning worship hour Sunday, it was decided to raise our quota of a 'Dollar a Member' for the college, which will amount to $708, by December 20. Since the Auxiliary will contribute $100, it should be an easy task to raise the remainder," reporter, First Church, High Point. "The 'Dollar a Member' campaign has already been launched under the direction of Brother J. B. Hicks, and the people are responding gladly," Rev. R. A. Hunter for the Henderson Church. "State Street provided for about half of the 'Dollar a Member' yesterday," Rev. G. H. Hendry.

West End, Greensboro, raised $93 of their "Dollar a Member" last Sunday. Brother O. F. Stafford says that he expects 100 per cent from that church. Word has also reached us that $87 was raised at Reidsville last Sunday. And so on.

and so on. Yes sir, "Dollar a Member" is going good, going good! We expect these reports to be many times duplicated this week. Our people are going to take care of High Point College,—the youngest institution of the sort in our entire church, and the youngest college in the State.

Once more: PLEASE PUSH THE CHRISTMAS OFFERING—$5,000. It's not an extra, but just a part of the $20,000, that we want to send to the college as "Christmas Cheer." And we can give assurance that it is a much-needed cheer. The very spirit of Christmas is to make somebody happy. The college is an opportunity for this. Come on, now, and let's make everybody there happy by sending them this Christmas offering of $5,000.

And this: Don't hold the money back. Send it right on to Dr. Brown,—any amount from $1 to $1,000.

Littleton

December 14-15, Saturday and Sunday.—These days were given to this charge, and the first quarterly conference Saturday, and in three appointments Sunday. The quarterly conference was held at the Littleton Church in the afternoon at 2 o'clock, with four of the churches represented. In addition to the usual business of the first quarterly conference, some special matters received attention. Among these was a deficit on pastor's salary. Steps were taken to provide this. We trust that it may all be paid. Salary and budgets for this year were apportioned to the different churches. The total budget for the charge is $1,740, or a per capita membership allotment of $3.50. There will be, of course, some local obligations that will increase this slightly. The parsonage has just been painted inside and out, and a bathroom, with fixtures, added. The parsonage is located in one of the best sections of the town. It is a good building and now presents a very neat appearance. The appointments on Sunday were as follows: Littleton, 11 a. m.; Weaver's, 2:20 p. m.; Hawkins, 7:30 p. m. The congregation was large at Hawkins, though not so large at the other two points. We were heard with helpful attention at each place. Our visits to these churches revived pleasant recollections of our early ministry when we served them as pastor. Some who were active in the work then—22 years ago—are still faithful. We were accorded the privilege of baptizing and receiving into the Littleton Church at the morning service, Miss Jennett (do we have the name correct?) Warren. The building at Hawkins has been greatly improved since we were pastor there. A double front door has replaced the two single doors; the posts in the church have been eliminated by a self-supporting roof; new ceiling has been put on, a new floor laid, the walls done over, the recess pulpit changed and greatly improved, and new pews installed. It was Hawkins Chapel, but not the old building that I knew years ago. We most heartily congratulate the congregation on this marked improvement. We found improvements at Weaver's also. A new floor had been laid there, and comfortable and attractive pews added. The interior walls were in a well-kept condition, and our impression is that the exterior has been painted in recent years. These two rural churches are well located for service and opportunity for growth. We should like to see them on a full capacity program. Littleton is one of our old and established charges, but it does not grow as it should because of inadequate pastoral support. We trust that a new awakening may come to the charge in this particular, and a new day of development, as the result. "Dollar a Member" was presented at each of these churches, and $34 realized in pledges. Littleton Church will pay the full dollar a member, we think. Further efforts will be made to raise more at the other churches. Brother Smith, the pastor, is zealous for the progress of the charge, and is faithfully trying to push the work along all lines. We shall hope and pray for him and his people a year of success.

We have on this charge some of our most loyal people. It was a pleasure to be with them again, and to renew the delightful fellowship that we had with them in the by-gone days.

Brother H. S. B. Thompson and his family worshiped with us in the service at Hawkins, and we had a brief visit with Brother D. A. Fishel at Vaughan. He is eighty years old, but he still has a youthful spirit and a clear mind. His recollections of many things that happened in his earlier years are vivid. Our visit to these churches and this charge was enjoyed by us, and we are grateful to the pastor and to the people for the cordial reception that we received and for the kindnesses that they showed us while we were among them. May the Lord bless and prosper the work of this charge.

Christmas Present

Let it be the HERALD. By doing this you will provide a Christmas reminder for the entire year. Send $2.00 to the editor, Rev. J. F. McCulloch, D. D., Greensboro, N. C., and be a blessing to somebody for fifty-two weeks. And if you are not a subscriber, play Santa Claus to yourself by sending in your subscription.

Assigned

After-conference pastoral assignments have been made as follows: West End, Greensboro, Rev. P. E. Lindley; Midway-Shady Grove, Rev. Taft White; Spencer, Rev. P. S. Kennett. These brethren will enter at once upon their respective charges. We congratulate the works to which they go, and we predict for each charge a year of happiness and progress.

Preaching

What is it? It is such a familiar performance to us that we would hardly look to the dictionary for a definition. And yet we would find a good one there. Webster's New International defines it as, "proclaiming the gospel." That is certainly simple, brief, and clear. Preaching is not just saying words; it is not beating the air; it is not ranting; it is not scolding; it is not a gymnastic performance on a stage. Preaching is "proclaiming the gospel." No preacher can have a right understanding of this simple definition without feeling, with Paul, that he must "magnify his office."

" 'Tis not a cause of small import

The pastor's care demands;

But what might fill an angel's heart,

And filled a Saviour's hand."

We heard Dr. Forlines say once in a public address that it is not only the duty of a minister to preach the truth; he must preach it so as to make it attractive. What the world needs most is the gospel. If this were not so, there would have been no calvary. And surely to proclaim what the world needs most is the greatest work that man ever did, or will do. How well, how attractive, how convincing, how compelling it should be done!

Appointments

December 18, Wednesday.—Meeting with the Trustees of the Children's Home, 11 A. M. Quarterly Conference, First Church, Thomasville, 7:30 P. M.

December 19, Thursday.—Quarterly Conference, English Street, 7:30 P. M.

December 22, Sunday.—Guilford Charge as follows: Mitchel's Grove, 11 A. M.; Hickory Grove, 2:30 P. M.; Fairfield, 7:30 P. M.

December 25, Wednesday.—Christmas, at home.

December 30, Monday.—Lebanon, High Point in Quarterly Conference, 7:30 P. M.

"And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men."

I WANTED REALITY

"I praise God for this wonderful Gospel. I was away from God, had no love of God in my heart, nobody to tell me the way out of sin; but one day a young man in my neighborhood came to the Camp Meeting in Portland. He came back with a wonderful story—a story of victory. That put such a deep hunger down in my heart for God. I had been under conviction many years, and sought God. I wanted reality but I couldn't find it. He told me that Christians could live without sin. That appealed to me, and I began to seek God with all my heart.

"In western Canada I went down on my knees and sought God with all my heart, and He forgave me of my sins and planted power in my life, gave me victory to live every day above sin, under trial and hard temptations. Then He put it up to me to make restitution. I had robbed my own father of money; I lied and stole and did many things that were wrong. God gave me the grace to make them right. I know God planted the old-time religion in my soul.

"I heard of sanctification through the literature I received from here, and God planted a hunger down in my soul to seek after it with all my heart. He sanctified me wholly, and brought me here. I sought for the power upon my life, the baptism of the Holy Ghost and fire. One Sunday when the message went forth—it took that to make me ready, that I would be one of the bride—I went to the altar, and it wasn't but one minute until God poured out His power and baptized me with the Holy Ghost and with fire. He has planted this Gospel deep down in my soul, and I thank Him with all my heart."—Selected.

UNCONSCIOUS ROBBERY

When John C. Calhoun was a student at Yale, he was a tremendous worker. Some of his fellow students ridiculed him for his intense application. He replied, "I am forced to make the most of my time, that I may acquit myself creditably when I go to Congress."

Such a statement made by an obscure college lad may have sounded presumptuous at the time; but all the world knows that ultimately the youth's prediction was fulfilled. He did, indeed not only go to Congress but proved himself one of its outstanding leaders while he was there. Without doubt that habit of tireless industry—the determination to make the most of every minute—had much to do with the eventual realization of the young man's ambition. An eminent jurist has well said: "There is no form of petit larceny so common as that of stealing time. Seconds, minutes, hours—who does not pilfer them? Many who think themselves perfectly honest are guilty of this form of thievery every day."—Forward.

THE QUESTION OF ORTHODOXY

We consider a man orthodox who believes what Jesus Christ and the apostles taught. We add the teaching of the apostles, because they were the inspired interpreters of what Christ taught. Orthodox confessions of faith simply state in brief what Christ and the apostles taught.

Because a man who believes what Christ and the apostles taught lives an unworthy life or even a wicked life does not release others from the obligation of believing these things. Because a man who does not believe these things lives a pure and beautiful life does not release us from the obligation of believing these things. Dr. Meeser who discusses this matter in the Crozer Quarterly for April, 1929, is wrong when he says: "The only true and adequate test of correctness of a man's views is their result in his life."

To be sure men ought to live as they believe. We are ashamed that all orthodox people do not do so. There is such a thing as objective truth apart from subjective experience.—The Watchman-Examiner.

THE WORLD IS WAITING FOR YOU

The world is waiting for you, young man,

If your purpose is strong and true;

If out of your treasures of mind and heart,

You can bring things old and new.

If you know the truth that makes men free,

And with skill can bring it to view,

The world is waiting for you, young man,

The world is waiting for you.

There are treasures of mountain and treasures of sea,

And harvest of valley and plain,

That Industry, Knowledge, and Skill can secure,

While ignorance wishes in vain.

To scatter the lightning and harness the storm

Is a power that is wielded by few;

If you have the nerve and the skill, young man,

The world is waiting for you.

Of the idle and brainless the world has enough—

Who eat what they never have earned;

Who hate the pure stream from the fountain of truth,

And wisdom and knowledge have spurned,

But patience and purpose which know no defeat,

And genius like gems bright and true,

Will bless all mankind with their love, life and light—

The world is waiting for you.

—Prof. S. S. Calkins.

A DANGEROUS TREND

A discerning contemporary thus pertinently remarks:

"It seems to be the fashion nowadays to own as Christians those who deny the very foundations of Christianity. It is a very popular notion that, provided people are outwardly moral, amiable, benevolent, and charitable, it is a matter of very small consequence what they believe. Life is better than creed or dogma, we are told. All this may sound plausible, but the reader may rest well assured that the direct tendency of all this manner of speech and line of argument is to get rid of the Bible, rid of the Holy Ghost, rid of Christ, rid of God. Let him hear bear this in mind and keep close to the precious Word of God. Let him treasure that Word in his heart and give himself more and more to the study of it."—Selected.

WHAT WILL YOU DO WITH JESUS?

When Pilate presented Jesus before the Jews, he said, "Whom will ye that I release unto you?"

The howling mob said, "Barabbas."

What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ?"

"Let Him be crucified."

"Why, what evil hath He done?"

"Let Him be crucified—loose unto us Barabbas."

And they cried so much the more, till he turned Jesus over to their will, and they led Him away to be crucified. And there, on Calvary, Jesus, nailed to the cross, poured out His life's Blood for our sins, and the sins of the whole world.

He died to purchase our salvation, to cleanse us from our sins and make us new creatures in Christ, here, and prepare us for that glorious place He has made for His people.

The Blood of the Son of God is our only redemption. If Jesus cannot save you, nothing else can. The Word says, "Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." Acts 4:12. There is salvation in no other name but Jesus.

He can lift the burden that oppresses. He can set the sinner free from sorrow and turmoil and distress. He will pour the healing balm upon your sin-sick soul, and make you love and serve God with all the integrity of your heart. What will you do with Jesus?—Selected.

ALONE IN DEATH

One of the most sobering truths that each one of us must face—and one of the truths that is most fearsome to him whose faith is weak—is the truth contained in that noble saying of Pascal's, "I shall be alone in death." Man is a social being. He lives with others; he works with mothers; he prays with others; he sins with others. But in death he is solitary. Friends and relatives may be about his bedside, doing all that love and grief and sympathy make possible to alleviate pain, and to comfort and console. They may go with him to the very gate of death; but at last he must part from them. When the pageant of this world fades away and the unknown magnificence and splendor of the next breaks upon his sight, no one can share that experience with him.

OUR UNFAILING FRIEND

Happy is the man who has Jesus for his Friend! Truly, "He sticketh closer than a brother." And not only is He ever present, but He also has power to help. Though human sympathy is invaluable, how painfully inadequate is the assistance of those who fain would succor us in the hour of great calamity and distress! Amid the wild waves of sorrow, their voices sound afar off—they are like persons on the shore trying in vain to fling a rope to one wrestling with the billows of the sea, beyond their reach. But there is a Voice that can hush the furious storm, and a strong Arm that can reach the far-away struggler who is almost ready to go down in the depths of despair. "Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable gift"—that of this divine, unailing Friend.—Selected.

A life of sin, a life of pride, indulgence, and worldliness—a life devoted to the world, the flesh, and the devil—is a failure. I care not how many flowers you may send to that cradle, or how many flowers you may send to that grave, you need to put right under the name on the tombstone this inscription: "Better for that man had he never been born!"—

OUR STORY PAGE

THE WILD HORSE ROUND-UP

Ben Johnson sat on his horse and looked across the valley at the herd of wild horses grazing near the side of the hills. Beside him, on another horse, was Bill Weston, the greatest wild horse catcher in the world.

"Ben," he said, "the round-up is going to start pretty soon. Are you sure you can keep your saddle?"

"I think so," replied Ben, smiling. He felt more at home on the back of a horse than he did in the seat of an automobile, but he had never had the chance to prove it to Bill Weston, who was always teasing him about his riding. In fact, he expected his cowboy friend to make some humorous reply, but instead Bill Weston gripped his arm in excitement.

"Look, Ben!" he cried. "Isn't that a white horse, or are my eyes telling me lies?"

Down among the grays and the browns in the herd of wild horses, was a single white stallion, standing nervously at attention, as though it had already scented the danger to itself and its followers.

Ben drew in a sharp breath of surprise. He had heard the cowboys talking about a fast, strong horse that some of them had seen but which none of them had been able to catch. They spoke of it as a white shadow, racing down the valley with the speed of wings. They said it had the ability to vanish from sight; because many times they had "cornered" it only to have it mysteriously disappear. The stories were so unreal and fanciful that nobody took them very seriously.

"It's the White Stallion!" Ben gasped. "I thought those stories were fairy tales!"

"So did I," replied Bill Weston. "Which shows that I don't know as much about wild horses as I'm supposed to know. But the difference between other cowboys and myself is this: They have merely seen the White Stallion. I'm going to catch it!"

He tightened his grip on the reins and swerved his horse toward the wild herd. Ben followed him, at the same time glancing down the valley to where he and Bill had put up the funnel-shaped entrance through which they had hoped to drive the entire herd into the corral.

"The White Stallion is the leader of that crowd," said Bill. "If we can get him going in the right direction, the rest will follow naturally."

Ben knew that in rounding-up wild horses it was unwise to get the animals in a panic. So he approached the herd carefully, with the intention of getting them started toward the corral without any excitement. But just as he was about to succeed in his purpose, he heard low rumbling sounds coming from the other side of the mountains. Looking up, he saw black clouds spreading rapidly over the sky.

"Just our luck!" grumbled Bill Weston. "A thunderstorm! Let's hope it says away until we get the White Stallion near enough to the corral so that it will be safe to stampede him the rest of the way."

But Bill's hopes were soon shattered. The biggest black cloud was by this time crossing in front of the sun and the valley was beginning to darken as though night were coming on. There was a sudden flash of lightning, followed almost immediately by a sharp crack of thunder.

The White Stallion started nervously, threw back its head in surprise and alarm and stood for a moment with quivering nostrils, listening for a repetition of the terrifying sound. The rest of the herd moved restlessly about him, waiting for him to decide on a course of action.

"C'mon, Ben!" shouted Bill. "Start the drive, before it's too late!"

Ben whooped and snapped his whip several times through the air, spurring his horse toward the herd at the same time. Frightened, the nearest horse shied away from him, colliding with other animals nearer the center of the group. They, being nervous because of the thunder, shied also, and as a result the entire herd began to move toward the corral.

Ben could see that the White Stallion was the only horse who did not follow this movement blindly. He was still standing alert, his ears up, his whole body in a tense, listening attitude. The herd swept on in a frenzied panic, but still he refused to move. In front of him was Ben, shouting and snapping his whip, but behind him was the storm; and at that moment there was a second flash of lightening and another crash of thunder nearer and louder than the first. At this, the White Stallion took sudden fright. He rose high upon his hind legs and shied off to the left, breaking into a gallop as he regained all-fours.

Ben swerved and turned with him. The boy knew that White Stallion was probably the faster horse, and if he once got ahead, he would escape from the valley and go free, and so to prevent the wild horse from pulling ahead, Ben jerked his reins and threw the weight of his own horse against the head and shoulders of the stallion. This confused the wild horse so that he changed his direction a trifle and stumbled a few steps before regaining his former speed.

"Look at that boy ride!" cried Bill Weston, to another of the round-up cowboys. "He's trying to edge the stallion around!"

The rest of the herd had scattered hopelessly, and Bill Weston was watching the strenuous duel between Ben Johnson and the wild horse.

Ben glanced up once and saw that by repeated collisions he had swung the stallion in a huge semi-circle, so that now he was headed just to the left of the funnel opening to the corral.

Could he force him in with another try? They were almost on top of the fence as it was, and if the stallion ever got by, he would escape.

The wild horse seemed to sense the fact that he was being forced into a trap, so he bore outward and resisted Ben's attempt to turn his head toward the funnel. But with a tremendous pull on his reins, Ben threw himself and his horse directly across the head of the stallion. There was a dull thud as the two horses met. The stallion was swerved off to the right, and Ben's horse was knocked away to the left with such force that its rider was thrown heavily to the ground.

When Ben opened his eyes again, Bill Weston was leaning over him anxiously.

"How do you feel, Ben?"

Ben winced as he tried out his arms and legs. They had been bruised and sprained, but no bones had been broken.

"I'm all right, I guess," he said. "But I'm pretty sore at myself."

"Why?" asked Bill.

"Getting the White Stallion so close to the corral and then losing him just because I couldn't stay in my saddle."

Bill grinned.

"You didn't lose the White Stallion," he said, "come here. I'll show you."

They walked to the edge of the corral and looked over the fence. Heaving and panting from his exertion was Ben's own horse, and running around the corral in an attempt to find a way to get out was the White Stallion!

"You were inside the funnel when you took the tumble," explained Bill. "Both horses kept right on through the gate, and I let the bars down."

For a moment Ben was silent.

"And if it's the tumble you're worrying about," Bill went on. "Forget it. You did the neatest piece of riding this afternoon that I've ever seen anybody do, and that includes the riding that I do myself. I want you to stay out with me for the rest of the month. Will you do it?"

"Sure," agreed Ben; and two weeks later, a cowboy rode into the camp on a white horse that had just been tamed and broken.

"White Stallion!" exclaimed Ben. "Isn't he a great horse. You're lucky to have him."

"You're the lucky one," returned the cowboy. "White Stallion is for you."

"For me?"

"Sure," replied Bill Weston, grinning. "You caught him, didn't you?"—Selected.

GOD'S PROMISES

"All things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive."—Matt. 21:22.

We are to "ask in faith, nothing wavering." James 1:6. Why is it that people ask God for something, and wonder if He will give it to them? Unless we ask in faith, nothing wavering, we shall receive nothing from the Lord. Faith is child-like simplicity, confidence in God. Faith comes into the heart through obedience to the Word of God.

"The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."—James 5:15. God is delighted to hear the prayer of the righteous. How we thank God that the old-time Gospel really puts us in touch with God, on intimate terms with the Lord. Many know Him afar off; but God is pleased to dwell with His people, and they can walk with Him in these days, as His people walked with Him in days gone by. When our lives are pleasing to God, He will meet with us and help us in our daily affairs.

God answers the prayers of His people. Look to Him in faith, believing. "He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him."—Heb. 11:6. That is one of His promises. Another is, "No good thing will He withhold from them that walk uprightly."—Ps. 84:11. Let us not be weak in faith and doubt whether God will hear our prayer, but say, "I know my prayer has gone through, and God will work out according to that which is well pleasing in His sight."

Sometimes the Lord does not answer the first prayer we make. We read of Elijah on Mount Carmel, praying for rain. It was seven times he prayed, and he prayed effectually and fervently. God heard the first prayer; but delay is not denial. If we are determined to get a prayer through and an answer back from Heaven, we shall get the answer, because God knows what we need. He knows our hearts, and because of our "importunity" He is going to grant the desire of our heart, according to His will.

God wants people to pray in earnest. He wants our lives to be such that we can pray with absolute confidence that God hears and answers prayer. There is a reason for unanswered prayer. "If our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence toward God. And whatsoever we ask, we receive of Him, because we keep His commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in His sight."—I John 3:21-22. That is what the Bible says. If you are under condemnation, you have not faith to believe that God will hear and answer prayer. The faith channels are clogged. You need to get right with God.

"And this is the confidence that we have in Him, that, if we ask anything according to His will, He heareth us."—I John 5:14.

BUILDING A TEMPLE

A builder builded a temple,

He wrought it with grace and skill;

Pillars and groins and arches,

All fashioned to work his will.

Men said as they saw its beauty,

"It shall never know decay,

Great is thy skill, O builder!

Thy fame shall endure for aye."

A teacher builded a temple

With loving and infinite care,

Planning each arch with patience,

Laying each stone with prayer.

None praised her unceasing efforts,

None knew of her wondrous plan,

For the temple the teacher builded

Was unseen by the eyes of man.

Gone is the builder's temple,

Crumbled into the dust;

Low lies each stately pillar,

Food for consuming rust.

But the temple the teacher builded

Will last while the ages roll,

For that beautiful unseen temple

Is a child's immortal soul.

FAITH TESTED

A jeweler gives as one of the surest tests for diamonds, the "water test." He says: "An imitation diamond is never so brilliant as a genuine stone. If your eye is not experienced enough to detect the difference, a simple test is to place the stone under water. The imitation diamond is practically extinguished, while a genuine diamond sparkles even under water, and is distinctly visible. If you place a genuine stone beside an imitation one under water, the contrast will be apparent to the least experienced eye."

Many seem confident of their faith so long as they have no trials; but when the waters of sorrow overflow them, their faith loses all its brilliancy. It is then that the true servants of God, like Job, shine forth as genuine jewels of the King.—Homiletic Review.

Christmas Program

DEC. 22: "HOW CHRISTMAS SETS THE WHOLE WORLD SINGING"

Luke 2:1-14.

Bible Readings

Monday—Song of Redemption. Rev. 5:8-14.
Tuesday—Song of Peace. Ps. 122:1-9.
Wednesday—Song of Love. I Cor. 13:1-13.
Thursday—Song of praise. Ps. 100:1-6.
Friday—Song in the heart. Eph. 5:18-20.
Saturday—Song of Victory. Rev. 7:9-17.

To the Leader

Try a different program for the Christmas time. This program will not be difficult but it does require right much singing. If you have access to a stage and curtains use these but if not you can arrange without this device. Have some young girl, draped in a sheet, to represent Mary, and a man with a turban (cloth wrapped around his head) to represent Joseph. Mary and Joseph should be sitting, apparently on the ground, with the low manger directly in front, in which the Babe may or may not be seen. Use straw around the manger. Have the audience sing "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing" and "Joy to the World" at the beginning. Then have the scripture read, Luke 2:1-14, from behind the scenes. Before the curtain rises have several girls (draped in sheets, to sing "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear." As the curtain is raised the audience will see Mary and Joseph and the Babe. After this the chorus sings again, "Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem." At this time have the audience sing the last verse of the preceding song. Right here would be a good time for sentence prayers. Have it understood who will open and close to avoid any confusion. Have enter at this time a shepherd dressed much as Joseph and have him read some passage about the shepherds as they watched their flocks. The chorus should sing, "O, Come All Ye Faithful." At the end of this song the three wise men are heard singing the first verse of "We Three Kings of Orient Are." Then the wise men will come one at a time singing the verse of the song bearing on his gift—gold, frankincense and myrrh. As they enter they lay down their gifts at the foot of the manger. When the last wise man has come, the three may unite in singing the chorus. If you have any little girls who can sing, let three or four sing "Away in a Manger." To end, have the audience sing "Silent Night, Holy Night" very softly.

If you would like to lengthen the program get someone tell a Christmas story—either "The Other Wise Man" or "Why the Chimes Rang" would be good.

WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH OUR SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON COMMITTEE?

Said a colored deacon to his pastor, "Pasture, if yo' text had had the smallpox yo' sermon would never a took it. They warn't near enuff together."

Quoting a very noted Baptist theologian:

"Teachers cannot find teaching material in the texts to carry out the subjects of the titles, hence many will ignore the texts, the sacred and living Word of God, and look for material in the vaporings of men."

Also: "The committee has misinterpreted the Scripture used in the lessons for the fourth quarter, the titles given for ten of the thirteen lessons are as misleading as it would be for a nurseryman to put wrong labels on fruit trees he sells, etc."

"Behold, I am against the prophets, saith the Lord, that steal my words everyone from his neighbor," (Jer. 23:30). Read the whole chapter.

Let us not be entangled with modernism. "But," say some, "don't be too hard on modernism and other sins, there is some good in them all." You would not partake of a wholesome meal knowing that it was seasoned with a deadly poison. "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness," but "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

This is the best I can do this week. I have waited for several weeks before sending a report in the hope that it might be better next week. It may be that I have held up the procession by withholding my report. I am sorry if such has been the case. I shall endeavor to do better.

I hope the pastors will instruct their treasurers not to send odd cents to me. Let each remittance be in even dollars. This will make my work easier.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT

WOMEN OF NORTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE HAVE TWO URGENT REQUESTS

The women of the Methodist Protestant Church in North Carolina have never failed to respond to urgent calls, and upon the approach of the holidays two requests are being recorded in this week's HERALD. First, our Conference is asking that every member of the church pay $1.00 per capita to the High Point College. Every woman is asked not only to pay her $1.00, but to co-operate with the pastor in getting every man, woman, boy and girl to do the same thing. There are approximately 2,000 active members of the various Auxiliaries in the State and if each of these women dedicates herself and her service to this great undertaking, the college need will be supplied. Women, act at once!

Request No. 2

Make your church a Christmas or New Year's gift. Christmas season is a time when, according to an ancient custom, everyone is expected to bestow gifts. The aim of the North Carolina Branch of Women's Work has been, and still is, an auxiliary in every church. Will not the women of the various churches, where there are no organizations, make a gift to their church of a Woman's Auxiliary for a Christmas or New Year's gift, thereby falling in line with the plan of our General Conference?

By virtue of church membership every woman is a member of a Woman's Auxiliary, but there are many churches in the state without an organization. Will the ministers who read this appeal not lend their co-operation by helping to organize? The discipline contains the constitution and by-laws and extra copies may be secured from Miss Pearl McCulloch (secretary of literature) (Greensboro, N. C.). Names of officers should be sent to Mrs. George R. Brown, Reidsville. The churches where there are auxiliaries have profited by organizations and find that the part the women are playing in the work of the church is of great benefit; one proof of this was demonstrated at the recent conference when figures show that the women of North Carolina not only raised the greater part of the General Conference budget, but made their usual donations along all missionary lines. Give your church the gift of your services by organizing a Woman's Auxiliary.

FROM PASTORS and PEOPLE

Gibsonville Church.—The new roof and painting of the church on the outside have been finished. Concrete steps have been built and shrubbery has been planted. The church is being papered inside and the woodwork is being newly painted.

The Ladies' Aid Society and the Missionary Society held a short business meeting in the church hut Wednesday evening of last week. The societies merged and elected officers for the coming year. Mrs. D. M. Davidson was elected president; Mrs. F. G. Hammer, vice-president; Mrs. Carl Allen, recording secretary; Miss Georgia Clapp, treasurer; Mrs. Kenneth Williams, corresponding secretary. A nice sum of money was taken from the sale of different articles by the members. Mrs. W. J. Jennings conducted the devotionals and presided over the meeting.

A special service is being prepared for next Sunday night. Everybody is invited to attend.

The Primary Department will have a Christmas program next Sunday morning. Everybody is invited to attend this service and especially the parents and those who are interested in the Primary Sunday school.

The young men and young ladies' Bible classes are planning a reception for the new pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. N. G. Bethea. The reception will be given Wednesday evening, December 18th, in the church hut.

Mr. Bethea has been preaching some splendid sermons, and everybody seems to enjoy hearing them.

Rev. Creed Wall, the pastor of the M. E. church, brought his congregation and worshipped with us last second Sunday night. We were glad to have them worship with us and hope they can come back again.

A community service will be held next Sunday morning at 6 o'clock in the church auditorium. Everybody is requested to be present. The high school orchestra will visit shut-ins and play Christmas carols.

ORPHA BURGESS, Reporter.

Rehoboth, Creswell Circuit.—Our pastor, Rev. R. L. Hetheox, preached his first sermon at Rehoboth the second Sunday in December since his return from Conference. We were all glad to have him return, and doubly glad he was able to fill his appointment, as he has been very feeble some time. Really he was too sick to have gone to Conference. After his return home he was in bed off and on some time. I am glad to say he's gaining rapidly and was able to give us two splendid sermons that day.

I think the prospects are better for a good year's work than we've had in years if all will pull together. Our people have had bad crops, no market yet for their peanuts—yet we are hopeful and each one is anxious to do his part to make this year the best. We've not been able yet to get up our thank-offering, but that will be gathered in now soon.

Our first quarterly conference met at Rehoboth church on December 9th. It was well attended and very harmonious in every detail. Bro. Norman Davenport, our delegate to Conference, gave us a splendid account of what he saw and heard. It has been said "One more trip to Conference would make his a preacher."

I don't know what has become of the reporters on this work. Wake up, let it be known what you are doing.

We are working on the "Dollar a Member" and subscriptions for the Herald. These committees will have their work in soon.

This church gave our pastor a good Thanksgiving; food, already cooked, besides money and other things for the pantry. We try to always have a donation every preaching service.

Wishing all a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

REPORTER.

Asheville.—The past week was a busy one for our people here.

The regular choir practice was held with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McIntire at their home in Biltmore Pines Tuesday evening.

The weekly prayer service was held on Wednesday evening; a very good attendance considering the number of our folks sick with colds.

Friday evening Circle No. 4, Miss Novella McIntire, chairman, entertained the brotherhood with an oyster supper at the parsonage.

Saturday the Auxiliary held a sale of cakes, candies and fancy articles at C. D. Kenney's. A nice sum was realized from the two sales—fifty dollars, or nearly so. Our folks have surely worked hard.

The Auxiliary will hold their regular monthly meeting with Mrs. Adams on Brucemont Circle Thursday p. m. It is hoped a large number will be present to hear the good reports.

Friday evening the monthly business meeting of the C. E. will be held at the church. This is to be the election of officers and a full attendance is urged.

REPORTER.

High Point, Lebanon Church.—We are glad to have our pastor, Rev. Edward Suits, returned to our work for another year. Although the church did very well last year, we are hoping to do better work and accomplish more for the Master during this Conference year.

Bro. Suits gave us two excellent sermons last Sunday.

We are just starting on the "Dollar a Member" drive for the college.

The Sunday School is moving along nicely under the leadership of Brother J. W. Montgomery. Our Christmas entertainment will be given at the church Wednesday evening, the 25th at 7:30.

We are sorry to report the death of Mrs. Bettie Pitts, which occurred last Sunday; the funeral was conducted Tuesday at 11 o'clock at Abbott's Creek Church. She was the mother of Mrs. C. M. Brown, one of our best church workers. She and all the relatives and friends have our deepest sympathy.

REPORTER.

Matthew Chapel, Greenville Circuit.—Rev. E. G. Cowan filled his appointment Sunday, with a large congregation present. Quarterly meeting was held December 14th. Rev. Mr. O'Brian brought to us a good message. All the churches were represented except Wesley's Chapel.

We are still having a good Sunday School and real live C. E. Society.

The following Christmas program will be given on December 26, beginning at 7 o'clock. A pageant, the story of the first Christmas. Scene 1, the home of Mary in Nazareth (an angel visits Mary). Scene 2, The manger at Bethlehem, and the night of Jesus' birth. Scene 3, The shepherd watch. Scene 4, Mary and shepherds. Scene 5, The visit of the wise men to Mary and Joseph at home.

At the conclusion a Christmas tree will be given. Come and spend an enjoyable evening with us.

ODELL BOWER, Reporter.

Pinnacle and Mt. Zion.—We are glad to be returned to this charge for several reasons. First, because we think they are a good people to serve, and next, because we have served them so long, that there seems to be a peculiar attachment between pastor and people, and we are hoping to able to work together for greater things than ever before.

The work is starting unusually good, I think. We have been very kindly received at all the churches and remembered in a substantial way. We have received lots of good things to eat, for which we are very grateful.

We are planning for a Christmas entertainment of two of our churches.

We are pushing the college and paper campaign just now.

We held our first quarterly conference Saturday, the 14. Everything worked out harmoniously.

The Pinnacle Auxiliary held a very interesting and well-attended meeting on Friday P. M., November 29, with Mrs. H. H. Brown. Devotional was led by Miss Mannie Reynolds. Two good papers were read by Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Westmoreland. "How much will you give to missions?" was used by different ones of the society, after which he had a duet by Mrs. Westmoreland and Miss Nina Hunter. Following this we had a little writing contest, given by Miss May Walker, which was greatly enjoyed by all. Next we enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. Brown, who served cake and coffee.

We will meet with Mrs. Ernest Watson, December 27. We are hoping to accomplish greater things in the line of missions than ever before.

A. L. HUNTER.

Stallings, Mecklenburg Charge.—Last night our new pastor preached his second sermon at this church. We were late securing Brother Joyner, but are delighted with him and his good family. His subject last night was "Compromise," and the scripture lesson was taken from the story of Pharaoh's attempt to compromise with Moses concerning the children of Israel. He brought us a good message and we were thrilled with the spirit, and felt that he "had been with Jesus."

A MEMBER.

Flat Rock, Vance Charge.—On December 15 our new pastor, Mr. Braxton, filled his second appointment which was enjoyed. Before his service they elected a board of new stewards for the new year's work. They are: Mr. B. W. Jones, Mr. J. T. Hester, Mr. John Richardson, Mr. T. P. Hester, Mr. F. M. White, Mr. S. W.

Reavis, recording steward. Trustees: Mr. A. S. White, Mr. J. W. Reavis, Mr. J. T. Hester, Mr. J. H. Satterwhite, Mr. U. J. Parrott. Sunday School superintendent: Mr. S. W. Reavis; Mr. Roy Davis, assistant superintendent. Reporter: Mrs. B. W. Jones.

On Thursday of last week the Auxiliary held its monthly meeting in the lovely new home of Mrs. J. H. Satterwhite, which Mrs. Satterwhite was the hostess. It was a very interesting meeting for such a few members present, but we are hoping to do better than to fall down on the job of attending. We are looking forward for the best year's work for our pastor and people. Let's wake up and get on the job.

REPORTER.

Shelby, Caroleen Charge.—I reached this work November 21. Mrs. Lowdermilk and I were very kindly received. A further evidence of the above was made known about 8:30 on last Saturday night, when a truck came to the door of the parsonage with a number of nice packages to be handed over to the delight of those who occupy.

On December 8th we elected the following church officers: Trustees, J. T. Ramsey, Amos Gantt and John Gantt. Stewards, M. E. Green, Everett Lee, C. G. Hollifield, and Mrs. Claudia Ramsey. Class leader, J. L. Maloney. Assistant class leader, Mrs. J. T. Ramsey. Sunday School superintendent, J. L. Maloney. December 13th, we held our first quarterly conference. J. L. Maloney was elected secretary. The attendance was not large, but large enough we trust to make a beginning that will count throughout the entire year. The following were elected parsonage trustees: J. T. Ramsey, Mrs. Frank Glenn, and M. C. Green.

The every member canvass, the weekly payment pledge card and the envelope plan were adopted. The conference also voted to build a garage on the parsonage lot.

Using all special days named by the General Conference for raising moneys was also adopted.

With the board of officers named in this report, if we can drive away all discouragement, and in its stead gather a full and sufficient amount of faith to take its place, we hope to accomplish much good.

Many thanks to the good people of Kannapolis for the miscellaneous shower they gave us on the last night we spent at the parsonage, and also for the additional kindness shown in helping us to pack our household goods before moving. To them all we wish pleasant holidays.

E. G. LOWDERMILK, Pastor.

Philadelphia, Greenville Ct.—We heartily welcome our new pastor, Rev. J. B. O'Brian. He has filled his first two appointments at this church and both were fine sermons. We are grateful indeed to the Annual Conference for sending us a man with such ability. We trust that the coming year will be a prosperous one for him in material as well as spiritual blessings. We're looking forward to a great year.

Our pastor is putting on a drive for more subscriptions to the Methodist Protestant Herald. Let us all take a part and work faithfully with the pastor. We will be more loyal to our denomination if we know just what we're doing and what our greatest needs are, and the best way to keep posted is by taking the Herald.

We are also working for our "Dollar a Member" for High Point College.

Our Sunday School is very small during the winter months, but we feel that our effort is not in vain. We are hoping and praying that each member will work with our pastor and make it the best year—one that will long be remembered!

With prayers and best wishes for a happy Christmas and a prosperous New Year.

MRS. R. A. SHELL, Reporter.

Orange Charge.—The first quarterly conference met with the Efland church, Saturday, December 14th. A fair representation was present from each church. Plans were adopted for the year's work. All the conference business was transacted harmoniously.

Brother C. H. Jones was re-elected secretary of the conference. This is the 23rd time he has been elected to this position. Brother W. A. Davis was re-elected financial agent for the charge. The old board of parsonage trustees was elected, also all other committees remain the same for this year. The next conference goes to Hebron Church.

B. M. WILLIAMS, Pastor.

Why Not.—The writer preached at Pleasant Hill last Saturday at 11 a. m. immediately following the sermon lunch was served by the ladies. At 2 p. m., the first quarterly conference assembled. At the pastor's request Rev. J. E. Pritchard presided. From beginning to end it was an interesting session. A splendid attendance was recorded. Brother W. B. Brown was elected secretary. Several recommendations were made by the pastor and all were unanimously accepted.

Appointments at New Hope and Floy Springs were met yesterday. Attendance at both Sunday School and preaching was good. Fairgrove was visited Sunday night. Here a goodly number of children, young people, and older ones, were holding a very inspiring C. E. service.

New Hope, Flag Springs, Fairgrove, and Seagrove are preparing for a Christmas service.

The pastor's financial support is universally encouraging. In fact, the outlook for the year is very gratifying. The people seem pleased with the budget being lower than formerly. Indications are that it will be raised. The pastor is planning to prepare charts, one for each church, showing in detail the amount the church is assessed.

The college dollar per member is being stressed with some response.

Wm. H. NEESE.

Spring Hill, North Davidson.—The first quarterly conference convened at Bethesda with a very good number present. Surely we have met no better people than those there. They just made one feel as though they were at home. Rev. Geo. Curry, of High Point, was there; hope he will be with us again.

The attendance at Sunday School today was real good, there being 132 present. This was five more than the record attendance. Brother Powell was with us and brought an interesting sermon. He also presented the "Dollar a Member" for the college, which we hope will go over successfully. At this time the Lord's Supper was celebrated with a large number partaking.

The Sunday School will give a short Christmas program and have a tree Monday evening at 6:30. Miss Eula Swain has charge of the program.

We are glad indeed to say that the Beginners have recently purchased 25 new chairs to use at Sunday School. They, with the help of their teacher, raised the entire amount with which to get them.

REPORTER.

Chapel Hill, Davidson.—Our Sunday School is good; not so many come, but most all take part. Mr. Wade Surratt is superintendent.

Mr. Homer Surratt does not improve much; he has been sick for some time, let us remember him in our prayers.

We had a good prayer meeting last Sunday. Prayer meetings will be held every two weeks, and all are invited to attend.

LIZZIE CRANFORD.

Pleasant Hill, West Forsyth Charge.—On December 15, between seven and eight hundred people gathered at Pleasant Hill M. P. church to pay their last tribute of respect to Gaylord Eugene Sprinkle, the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Sprinkle. The services were conducted by Rev. C. B. Way, pastor of this church, and Rev. George Holloway, a former pastor of this charge.

Gaylord was born in Vienna township on January 17, 1906, and departed this life at Akron, Ohio, December 9, 1929. At the age of 12 he became a member of this church and was loyal to all its services as long as he was in the community. The last service he attended at his church was Sunday school on the fourth Sunday in May, this being the Sunday just before he, with two of his boy friends, left for Akron, Ohio, to start work.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Sprinkle, one sister, Mrs. Gilbert Conrad, and a brother, Speas, all of Vienna township.

The pall bearers were Elwood Hunter, Blaine Long, Taft Bailey, Spencer Mock, Clifton Mock and Johnnie Sprinkle.

LOLA LONG, Reporter.

First Church, High Point.—Both services yesterday were well attended. At the morning worship hour Rev. R. I. Farmer spoke on "The Invasion of Christ," using the text from Rev. 21:5, "Behold, I make all things new." "The term 'invasion' is commonly used in connection with some entrance with hostile intent, the desire to conquer for plunder or encroachment which is regarded as an intrusion; but when Jesus Christ invades a life or organization or community, He comes for good, and blessing follows His entrance. Every broken or wasted life surrendered to Him will be remodeled. The best Christmas is ours when we open our hearts and receive the Christ."

A program of beautiful Christmas music was presented at the evening service. A violin quartette, "Andante," was rendered in a charming manner by Misses Dorothy St. Clair, Virginia Frank, Mrs. Walter Kester and Mr. Arthur Fidler. The lovely Cantata, "The Story of Christmas," was sung in a charming manner by the choir, the solo parts being given by Mesdames Allred and Whitesell, Messrs. H. E. Jones and Arthur Fidler. Misses Vera Idol and Margaret Sloan of the college faculty assisted with this rendition.

The different circles of the Woman's Auxiliary met Monday afternoon, as follows: No. 4, Mrs. E. L. Douglas, chairman, with Mrs. J. H. Pritchard on West Ray street, No. 5, Mrs. A. M. Rankin, at her home on North Main street, No. 8, Mrs. J. G. Snipes, with Mrs. George T. Penny, on Greensboro road, No. 2, Miss Nellie Martin, chairman, will meet tomorrow evening with Mrs. L. R. Peacock on West Farriss avenue, and No. 3, Miss Mary Young, chairman, will meet at the same time with Mrs. F. R. Auman on Montlieu avenue.

The topic at Christian Endeavor Monday evening was "What Have Young People to Give?"

At the mid-week prayer service Wednesday evening the subject will be "When Jesus Said 'We?'"

On Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock the "White Gifts for the King" service will be given by members of the Sunday school. Each department of the school will present a gift in the form of food or clothing for the poor of the city or money for High Point college. The "Dollar a Member" campaign for the college will be completed at this service. Any who desire to give themselves to Christ, or present themselves for membership or service in the church, will be given an opportunity to do so.

The Sunday school report for December 8th was: Attendance, 345; collection, $13.13.

The church budget, apart from the building fund, for the coming year is $13,400, which is less than that of last year. The average amount for each week is $250.

Mrs. W. C. Hammond, executive secretary of the Board of Public Welfare, reports that there are 800 children in the city who will have no Christmas cheer unless it is supplied by some benevolent organization or individuals. The Empty Stocking Fund conducted by High Point Enterprise has reached the sum of $930, but $3,000 is needed. The Woman's Auxiliary contributed $20 to this fund, and the Barnea-Brotherhood class of men gave $25.00.

Mr. R. Lynn Trout was in town this week. His mother, Mrs. P. T. Crawford, is now making her home in St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. Claude York, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. York, of High Point, and Miss Etta Mendenhall, of Lexington, were quietly married by Rev. E. Lester Ballard at his home Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The sister of the groom, Miss Daisy Lee York, accompanied them. Mr. York is a young man of much promise and has a large number of friends who extend to him and his attractive bride many congratulations and good wishes in their new life. The bride's parents reside in Lexington, but she has lived in High Point about a year. Claude holds a position with Ring Drug Company, of this city, and is a grandson of the late Rev. I. L. York, who served many years as a minister of the Methodist Protestant church in North Carolina.

At their meeting yesterday at the home of Mrs. Geo. T. Penny, Circle No. 8 of Woman's Auxiliary donated $10 to the Empty Stocking Fund of the city.

The "Aunt Lizzie Welch class" of the Sunday school will contribute $25.00 to the college fund.

Lexington, State Street Church.—Our Sunday school is growing in the most encouraging way. Mr. J. W. Lindsay, our superintendent, is able to be with us right regularly now and is so pleased at the gain in attendance, as indeed we all are.

Our pastor brought us a message of comfort and encouragement at the morning service that was greatly enjoyed by a large audience. The evening service was also one of inspiration and helpfulness. We are all much pleased to have quite a number of our friends of other denominations visit us at every service.

The chicken supper served in the church dining room a week ago last Wednesday night was in every way a success. Next Wednesday night the C. E. Society will serve supper in the church dining room and give a diversified and interesting program at the regular C. E. meeting.

Our deepest sympathy goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Sink in their sorrow at the passing one of their twin babies, little Bruce, a week ago last Thursday night. These twin babies were a great delight to all the friends of the family, and we all sorrow with the family in their affliction and pray that they may be comforted by the thought that they can have their baby again in the Beyond where there will be no parting.

The Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. C. L. Koonts next Friday afternoon at three o'clock. Mrs. A. H. Evans, president, presiding.

REPORTER.

Pleasant Hill.—Quarterly conference was held at Pleasant Hill church December 14th; preaching at 11 a. m. by Rev. W. H. Neese, pastor; dinner and conference at 2 p. m. Had a right good crowd and fine time. We were glad to have with us at this time Rev. J. E. Pritchard, from Asheboro.

REPORTER.

Mount Pleasant, Cleveland Circuit.—Bro. C. E. Ridge came to us Sunday afternoon with a very inspiring sermon. We are glad Brother Ridge has come back to us. He did such splendid work the past year. He filled all his appointments, though sometimes the roads were bad and it seemed to be impossible for him to come.

DELLA BRACKETT, Reporter.

Lineberry.—The Ladies' Aid Society met on Saturday afternoon with Mrs. M. L. Skeen. In the absence of president, Vice-President Mrs. W. A. Frank acted as president. The regular routine business was carried out. Those present were: Mrs. W. D. Reed, Mrs. Whit Wood, Mrs. Lonnie Morris, Mrs. Nin Loflin, Mrs. E. D. Lanier, Mrs. Frank Lanier, Mrs. J. P. Elliott, Mrs. Claud Elliott, Mrs. M. L. Skeen, and Mrs. W. A. Frank.

Mrs. Claud Elliott read the scripture; Mrs. W. D. Reed led in prayer. Mrs. Brice Reid was a visitor. The members worked on a quilt for Ava Lax. We drew names to get presents for Christmas, to be put on the tree at Lineberry. All present assembled in the dining room where sandwiches, coffee and cake were served.

We all enjoyed the evening real well, the only regret that the time was too short.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. J. P. Elliott; may we have 100 per cent there?

Let us all have for our motto: "Do all the good we can."

REPORTER.

Moriah.—Our attendance was unusually good yesterday, both at Sunday school and church service. We are glad to see this increase in attendance and interest.

The first quarterly conference met last night following the Christian Endeavor meeting.

Our Christmas entertainment will be given on Friday night of this week. The program will include special music by the choir, recitations by the small children, a Christmas tree and a real live Santa Claus.

The "Dollar a Member" drive for High Point college was started yesterday and about half of our quota raised. We hope to be able to raise the full amount right away.

MRS. J. S. WOOD, Reporter.

Laurel Hill, Fallston Charge.—Pastor Morgan delivered a wonderful, inspiring sermon to us last Sunday. A large crowd was present as it was a beautiful, warm day and all enjoyed the message. All of our hearts were made glad when we saw our pastor walk into the church, as this was the first sermon he had preached to us since Conference. We were proud to know that God had permitted such a wonderful man to be returned to us to be in our midst for another year.

Mr. Morgan encouraged each member to subscribe for our good paper, the Methodist Protestant Herald, if they were not already subscribers. Two subscribed for the paper after service, Miss Grace Sain and Mr. W. A. Sain. We feel quite sure that several more will enlist.

Mr. Morgan also asked that on next preaching day each member bring one dollar to pay to High Point College. We sincerely hope that each member will respond to this call. We certainly would hate to let High Point College go down and us not even have a Methodist Protestant college. But we are trusting that with God's help we can press onward until the goal will be reached.

Our church has recently purchased a nice communion set.

Mrs. Kate Sain donated collection plates to the church. We wish to thank her very much.

Our pastor had lunch with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sain Sunday.

We all are glad and thankful that Mrs. Etta Sain is able to attend church again.

The senior girls and boys of our Sunday school have bought class pins. We find that this aroused a greater interest in the two classes.

The first quarterly conference of Fallston charge will be held at Knob Creek on Saturday before the fourth Sunday in December. Let all get busy and go and attend to our church affairs on that day and maybe Santa Claus will be better to us.

Our Sunday school is looking forward to our Christmas tree and Christmas program we are now planning to have.

Wishing the Herald and all its readers a Merry Christmas.

LOIS WILLIS, Reporter.

Pleasant Hill, Cleveland Circuit.—Pleasant Hill sends greetings to all of her sister churches of the same faith and order and wishes you a Merry Christmas and a great and successful New Year.

We are having and have had a very pleasant year. We hope the coming years will bring even greater happiness.

Our pastor, Rev. C. E. Ridge, preached to us Sunday morning at 11 o'clock; he brought the real Christmas spirit in a wonderful sermon about the birth of Christ.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely under the leadership of Mrs. J. T. Warlick.

The members responded gladly to the "Dollar a Member" campaign and paid the quota of $70.00 to the college fund.

Merry Christmas and a happy New Year to every one.

MRS. H. O. BRITTAIN, Reporter.

Denton Charge.—We are glad to be back with the good people on Denton Charge. The work is starting off nicely. Two of the churches, Denton and Cid, are planning Christmas exercises. We have not made any special effort to raise the dollar per member for High Point College yet, but have been distributing the information leaflets and boosting the college and our loyalty to this progressive institution. One member has already handed me five dollars for his family, and two others one dollar each. Another who holds his membership at Pleasant Grove on Davidson Charge gave me a dollar for his church. We feel confident that a majority of the members on this charge will give their dollar or more.

We are also interested in reaching our quota for the Methodist Protestant Herald. I want every subscriber on this charge to renew their subscription and secure one other subscription each.

On last Monday while the pastor was away attending the funeral of his nephew, the Denton members came to the parsonage with a real pounding for pastor and family. The pounding had been planned before they knew the pastor was going away, but it was appreciated just the same. We thank each one who took part in reviving our spirits and giving us new courage to serve them better. We also thank others who have given us fresh meat, vegetables, etc. And may God's richest blessing be given to those who are striving to build up the kingdom of our Lord.

E. A. BINGHAM.

Lebanon.—The new conference year is starting off fine. All of the appointments have been met and the attendance has been good considering the sickness among our people.

The pastor and family have received many tokens of kindness since conference. The good people of this church have always been noted for their kindness and thoughtfulness. But on Wednesday evening, December 5th, there was a kind of a high tide in their thoughtfulness, and they gave the pastor and family a generous pounding. This came as a surprise at the close of the regular prayer meeting. Some who did not get to prayer service have pounded us since then.

We greatly appreciate these tokens of kindness and trust we may prove ourselves worthy of such treatment.

We are leaving the general news of the church for our reporter and we are hoping you will hear from her at an early date.

EDWARD SUITS.

Asheboro.—A great many things of interest have happened here since Conference, but I shall not attempt to enumerate them all. Two new members have been received, Miss Bonnie Thomas from the M. E. Church, South, in Troy, N. C., and Mr. A. B. Copenhaver, who was originally an M. P. in West Virginia but who later in life united with the Christian Church in West Virginia. We are glad to have both of these with us and hope to receive several others within the next few weeks.

Congregations have been good when the weather would permit. Yesterday the Sunday school attendance jumped to 250 as compared to 222 the week before and 103 a year ago.

A fine Workers' Council was held last week and the quarterly conference was fairly well attended on Tuesday evening of last week. Our every-member canvass has been made and the canvass for funds for the college is being carried on by a dozen young people this week. We hope to get the required amount and we hope the young people will derive good out of the effort to get the money. The church paper campaign is also on, so these are busy days. The writer has assisted in five funerals since Conference and was with Brother Neese in his quarterly conference on Why Not Charge last Saturday and is to be with Brother Trogdon in his quarterly conference on Richland charge next Saturday.

Next Sunday morning we will have the Christmas sermon with Christmas hymns and at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon the choir will render a program of Christmas music. This will take the place of the evening service.

J. E. PRITCHARD.

West Forsyth.—The meeting of the first quarterly conference held at Baltimore church last Saturday was not as well attended as the previous conferences. It was a beautiful day, and should have resulted in a large attendance. However, four of the six churches on the charge were represented, these being Baltimore, Stony Knoll, Pleasant Hill and Tabernacle. The pastor delivered the sermon at 11 o'clock and dinner was served by the women of Baltimore church at the noon hour. The business session was held at 1:30 o'clock. In the absence of Bro. J. H. Spease on account of illness, Bro. C. G. Hunter, of Pleasant Hill church, served as secretary of the conference. The pastor rendered a report of his work for the brief period of the new conference year. Other reports were submitted. The pastor's recommendations were adopted, which provided that the apportionments of the Annual and General Conference be accepted, and apportioned to the various churches, also the amounts for superannuates and C. G. G. deficit. The month of January was designated as "Herald Subscription Month." The "Dollar a Member" plan of the committee for financing High Point College was also accepted.

The regular appointment at Pleasant Hill was suspended last Sunday on account of the funeral of Gaylord E. Sprinkle, aged 23, member of Pleasant Hill church, who died at Akron, Ohio, December 9. Rev. George Holloway, one of the early pastors of West Forsyth Charge, now a pastor in the M. E. Church, South, assisted the pastor in the funeral services. An obituary will appear later.

We met the regular appointment at Tabernacle church last Sunday afternoon at 2:30, and there was a usual attendance of members and friends. The appointment at this church has been changed from the third Sunday afternoon to the second Sunday morning, beginning the second Sunday in January. Union Hill church, which has had their appointment on the second Sunday afternoon instead of the second Sunday morning. This change of appointments involving these two churches, was ratified by a vote of the quarterly conference last Saturday.

The pastor and family enjoyed the dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Long, of Pleasant Hill church, on the occasion of the celebration of their golden wedding anniversary on Wednesday of last week. Rev. F. W. Grabs, Moravian minister, delivered a brief talk and Dr. Swartzie, also a Moravian minister in Winston-Salem, was present and made a brief speech. Mr. and Mrs. Long were unusually happy and received a number of useful gifts. A large crowd, estimated to be 200 people, was present.

On Wednesday afternoon of last week the pastor and Rev. F. W. Grabs conducted the funeral service for Charlie E. Long, who died almost suddenly at his home near Pfafftown on Tuesday morning. The services were conducted in the home and at Pleasant Hill church and the burial was in the Long graveyard at Pleasant Hill. The deceased was 26 years of age, and while he was not a member of any church, he attended and was a member of the Sunday school and is said to have been a Christian young man.

Our appointment will be with Harmony Grove church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Roberta Charge.—Since I have been elected reporter from our church, I will send a few notes. Our work is moving on very encouragingly.

We were very glad indeed to have Rev. Mr. Short and his family returned to us. This is his fourth year with us, and we have learned to love him and his family.

Our Sunday school attendance and interest are fine under the splendid management of Mr. Z. D. Cochran, our good superintendent. There were 220 present yesterday, and the collection was $17.78. Rev. Mr. Short preached a fine sermon Sunday morning, after which the church officers were installed. This was a very impressive service, and of a new order.

We are planning for a Christmas program which will be held on Christmas Eve.

Death has visited our community twice since Conference, taking two of our good women; they were Mother Matt Blackwelder and Mrs. Calvin Garmon. They were laid to rest the same day in the church burying ground, beneath a bank of flowers which bespoke the high esteem in which they were held. The bereaved families have our sympathy.

ELMA MILLER, Reporter.

Liberty-Siler City.—We moved from Greensboro to Liberty November 22, just in time to get our household goods unloaded when the fleet set in. We found the parsonage warm and comfortable, for Bro. J. W. Curtis had coal sent in and a good fire was burning when we arrived. The ladies had been there and made everything ready for us before our arrival. We are living in one of the best parsonages in the Conference, located among good neighbors and we are delighted with the house and our neighbors.

Our lot has not fallen among strangers, for it has been our privilege to serve these good people in former years, and the people of both churches have not ceased to assure us that we are among friends. On Tuesday night, December 3, the parsonage was taken by storm by the people of Liberty and a generous pounding was the result. The next night after prayer meeting at Siler City when the pastor went to his Ford he found that it was loaded down with another heavy pounding. The starter on the Ford had been giving trouble for some time, but it gave no trouble that night. If any other pastor's car has not been starting very well I hope his people will read this, for if this one ever gives trouble again I will let my people know about it. The articles given at these poundings were numerous, wisely chosen and valuable. Words are inadequate to express our heartfelt thanks to all who in any way contributed to these happy occasions and for all the tokens of appreciation we have received since coming to this charge. It is the hope of the pastor that this may be the very best year that this charge has every experienced and that the relationship between pastor and people may be pleasant and profitable.

The first quarterly conference convened with the Siler City church December 8th. The conference was well represented by both churches and the business was transacted in harmony and with enthusiasm. It has never been my privilege to hold a quarterly conference when a better spirit prevailed than did in this one.

May all the pastors in our beloved church be wise in the administration of the affairs of the church and faithful to our great commission, and may our people be loyal and true, is the desire of this pastor.

J. D. WILLIAMS.

Granville Charge.—We held our first quarterly conference at Rehoboth church on December 7th. All three of the churches were represented, and the business was transacted in a spirit of harmony.

We have preached at each church on the work, and the year seems to be starting off well, and we are expecting a good year.

We are busy now painting and touching up the interior of the parsonage, which will add much to its appearance.

Last Friday was the 13th, but who said Friday was an unlucky day, and the 13th an unlucky number? We are convinced that Friday, the 13th, was a lucky day for this preacher and his family. As we were sitting around Friday night, wondering what kind of luck the day had brought to us we noticed a number of cars parking in front of the parsonage, and heard a number of voices. At first we thought a wedding was on hand. We looked around for our discipline, and quickly got that in place, and by that time they were entering the porch. When we opened the door they began to enter with their arms filled with all manner of good things to eat. We soon found our table groaning under the load, but it would not hold all the things; they were piled under the table, and around in the room. We found that we had nine chickens and one crower to get the parson up early; a number of bags of sugar, a hint to the wise is sufficient (we will try to look sweet); we have almost everything that a person can think of for the pantry. After the crowd unloaded, we went to the parlor where we had a good social hour together, and dismissed by praying God's blessings on the company.

We haven't space to write all the names of those that had a part in this, but it was the Woman's Auxiliary and members of Rehoboth church, and the members of Union Chapel church. We want to thank every one who had a part in the pounding. The people of Bear Pond are killing hogs now and we are feasting sumptuously every day. We want to thank them also, for this expression of their kindness. We wish for you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

C. L. SPENCER, Pastor.

There are a few boxes in the office which came in today. We have not had time to list the contents.

We thank all of you for your care of us, and for your love for our children as expressed in these gifts of money and materials.

If there are errors please overlook them unless they are glaring, in that case please drop us a line and let us know. Thank you. We cannot understand how we are doing what we are and keeping up; but somehow our Father is giving the needed strength for the many tasks.

Before we make another report the birthday of our Lord, Christmas, will have passed.

We are hereby extending to all our friends, the readers of the HERALD, and supporters of this Home our very best wishes for a happy Christmas and a glad New Year.

God bless you and keep you and protect you.

Yours in His blessed service,

A. G. DIXON.

IN HONOR OF THE DEAD

Walker

Just as darkness was approaching on the night of November 13, 1929, the death angel visited the home of Mr. Samuel L. Walker, taking his beloved wife, Mrs. Mary Ann (Williams) Walker, to live with God. Mary Ann (Molly) as she was widely known, was born November 7, 1847, the daughter of J. W. and Joline Williams. She was a devout Christian woman, having been a member of the M. P. church for over 50 years. She was always at her church until in July she was stricken with creeping paralysis, which caused her to be helpless. She stood her sickness and sufferings with Christian fortitude, saying often she was ready, willing, waiting to go home.

Sister Walker was the mother of five children. She leaves, besides an aged husband, Samuel L. Walker, a step-mother, Mrs. J. N. Williams, of Summerfield, N. C.; two sons, Sylvester Walker, of Summerfield, N. C., and Freer Walker, of Reidsville, N. C.; ten grandchildren, one great-grandchild and a large circle of friends who were grieved at her death. She will be missed in her home, her church and community, but our loss is her gain.

Her body was laid to rest at Bethany churchyard beside her daughter to await the resurrection of the just. The funeral service was conducted by Revs. John Knight and J. C. Pegg. The profusion of flowers showed she had many friends.

God knows the way. He holds the key,
He guides us with unerring hand;
Sometime with tearless eyes we'll see,
And then sometime we'll understand.

ONE WHO LOVED HER.

Lorenzo Chester Little

"Uncle Shug," as he was affectionately known, came to his harvest like a shock of wheat fully ripe. Seventy-five years he had lived and lived beautifully. He had been sick for more than a year, suffering from heart trouble. He was up and about the house most of the time until Thursday afternoon, November 7, when he was stricken down and continued unconscious to the end, which came the following Wednesday noon, November 14.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Louise Little, to whom he was married 55 years ago, and eight children: Jonah, Jake, E. L., Mrs. Flora Little, Mrs. Retta Johnson, Mrs. Mattie Thompson, Mrs. Cora Hunter, Mrs. Bertha Polk; 37 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren; also two brothers, Jacob and Daniel Little.

The funeral was conducted at Love's Grove church, his former home, and he was buried in the church cemetery. The writer was assisted by Rev. W. D. Reed, a close personal friend of the family, who spoke words of tender and touching eulogy.

A vast array of neighbors and friends were present to the overflowing of the church to pay their last respects. The floral offerings were large and beautiful.

Brother Little had been for years a most loyal and useful member of First Church,

Concord, and in his going the church will lose one of its most zealous members.

He lived long and well, and his church, his neighbors and his own large family are ready to rise up and call him blessed.

To honor his memory aright is to serve his God and look forward to the happy reunion above the shadows and the night.

"Gone, but not forgotten," for there lies a man, citizen and saint.

G. H. HENDRY.

Hartis

On the morning of November 9th at 9 o'clock, God saw fit to remove from our midst our beloved superintendent, Mr. W. C. Hartis. He was born July 12, 1880. He joined Pleasant Hill M. P. church at Matthews when he was a boy. In later years he moved his membership to Zoar M. P. church where he remained a faithful member until death. At his going we feel the church has lost one of its most faithful workers. He was always present at Sunday school and preaching services when his health would permit.

He was united in matrimony to Miss Lillie Walker December 16, 1903. To this union were born two children, daughter and son. The daughter preceded him to the other shore three years ago. He is survived by his wife, son, and two grandchildren, his mother, two brothers, and one sister. Funeral services were held at Zoar M. P. church at 3 o'clock November 10th, conducted by Rev. N. M. Harrison, of Charlotte, assisted by Rev. Mr. Smith, of Flint Hill Baptist church. His body was laid to rest in the cemetery to await the resurrection morn. The many beautiful floral designs and the large audience present were evidence of the high esteem in which he was held by those who knew him.

REPORTER.

Mrs. Annie Salena Long

Mrs. Annie Salena Long, wife of Junius W. Long, departed this life November 21, 1929. Her age was 76 years, 11 months and six days. She was the daughter of John and Mary Scott. She was married to Junius W. Long, December 2, 1875, and to this union were born four children, three of whom are living, A. R. Long and Mrs. J. F. Hunter; Mrs. C. F. Hauser. Besides these there survive 15 grand children, three great grand children; one brother, Albert D. Scott, and one sister, Mrs. F. M. Gurley, of Portland, Oregon.

About fifty years ago Mrs. Long, then in young womanhood, united with Pleasant Hill Methodist Protestant Church, and remained a faithful member until her removal to the celestial city. Prior to her ill health she was a worker in her church and delighted in all of the services of the church.

Her going from us was to some of us a shock. While many of us were busy with the duties at the close of day, and while the sun was slowly sinking below the western horizon, bringing the shades of night upon us, the soul of Mrs. Long took its flight to the Beautiful City of God. God in his infinite wisdom had called her spirit from the body which had endured pain and suffering for twelve long months, thus bringing an end to the suffering of the body.

A sainted mother, a loving and devoted wife and a kind neighbor was the character of the departed one whose memory we revere. Hers was a life of love, sacrifice and service to her loved ones, to her neighbors, to her church and to her Lord and Master.

C. B. WAY, Pastor.

Loy

William A. Loy, aged 62 years, one of Burlington's best known citizens, died at his home following failing health for several months, although the end came rather suddenly. He is survived by his widow, two sons and four daughters. The daughters are: Mrs. D. D. DeMoss, Mrs. J. F. Thompson, Mrs. Mary Warren, of Burlington, and Mrs. Sadie Mamer, of Rockingham; the sons are Dan and G. F. Loy, of Burlington. There are also two brothers, J. A. and George Loy.

Funeral services were held at the late home by Rev. L. W. Gerringer, assisted by Rev. Geo. W. Holmes, and the body was interred in Pine Hill cemetery.

Brother Loy was a member of the Mt. Hermon Methodist Protestant church, having professed faith in Christ and united with that church a great number of years ago. He was not only a good citizen, but he was a Christian man. Just a few days before his passing he told his good wife that he realized that he did not have long to stay here, but that he was ready to go, though he regretted to go and leave her and the children. The hearts of the bereaved ones are surely comforted because of this assurance he has left that all is well with him. May the grace of God abound toward the loved ones in such measure as to sustain and comfort and enable them to bear this loss as only Christians can.

Slack

The soul of James F. Slack, a member of First Methodist Protestant Church, of High Point, since November, 1925, left its earthly habitation to return to its Creator and abide with its Saviour throughout eternity on October 22, 1929.

Born in Randolph county 74 years ago, he left the home place and became a resident of High Point in 1904. He was married the first time to Sarah Robertson and after her death several years ago, he was wedded to Frances Ferre, who, with seven children, a sister, and a number of grand children, survive him.

For five years he had not been in good health, but his fatal sickness was of several months' duration. In health, he was jovial and cheerful, and was a tonic for all needing encouragement and cheer. In sickness he tried to maintain the same spirit, but wherein he failed he supplied the deficiency with a great deal of hopefulness. Before he departed, he assured his faithful helpmeet that his soul was at peace with God and he had no fears of eternity.

The abundance of floral designs and the large number present at the funeral service was indicative of the love and esteem with which he was held by relatives and friends.

"It seems such a little way

Across to that strange country, the beyond;
And yet not strange, since it has come to be
The home of them of whom we are so fond.
They make it seem familiar and most dear.
As traveling friends make distant countries near."

VALUABLE YEARBOOK PUBLISHED

One of the most helpful and interesting books to ever come to the writer is the Yearbook and Directory of the First Methodist Protestant Church, Burlington, N. C. It is a thirty page booklet neatly bound and conveniently arranged so as to be attractive and useful to every member.

Its contents are: Clean advertisements; a foreword as to the Who? What? and When? by the pastor; a good photo of the pastor; a panorama view of the church and parsonage; a brief but interesting history of the church; the church calendar; organizations with officers and activities; and an up-to-date roster of the entire membership of the church, giving street and telephone numbers, etc.

The pastor, Rev. L. W. Gerringer, and the members should be congratulated upon such a forward step. Somebody did some tedious work to compile such a helpful book. This is just another echo of the efficient leadership that the First Burlington Church has maintained throughout its existence. May even greater things be accomplished.

AN INTERESTED FRIEND.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE

Officials and members of the churches on West Forsyth Charge: Please be present for the First Quarterly Conference which will be held at Baltimore Church Saturday, December 14. Preaching at 11 A. M. (preacher unknown at this writing) dinner at the church and business session at 1:30 in the afternoon. Important business will be transacted. We want your help; please be present for all of the conference. May we all assume the new degree, "D. D." (duty done).

C. B. WAX, Pastor.

—The special session of the Annual Conference on Monday gave approval to a motion to pay off the major portion of the debt of High Point College by the sale of bonds. These bonds will run for years and pay to the holders six per cent. interest, and will be secured by a second mortgage on the college property. A first mortgage is held by the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company to secure a debt of $150,000, which by payments has been reduced to less than half that amount.

A WAY TO FINANCIAL FREEDOM

The Layman Company's pamphlet, "Winning Financial Freedom," has proved so popular and effective that once more we offer it to any pastor without charge. On request we will send, postage paid, enough copies to supply all the lay officials of his church.

The pamphlet describes a simple method by which the pastor may carry on, quietly and steadily, the education of his people in the principles of Christian giving, without interfering with his other work, and at a cost purely nominal.

The Layman Company is a non-profit, inter-denominational Christian agency which puts its resources at the service of all the churches.

When you write, please mention The Methodist Protestant Herald.

—By thinning out an acre of pines, G. M. Hatley, of Hudson, in Caldwell County, has found it possible to sell stovewood at a profit, occupy himself at gainful labor, and leave his field of pine trees in better shape than before the thinning.

—The fifth edition of "Poultry Diseases," written by Dr. B. F. Kaupp, head of the poultry department at State College, has just come from the printer. This book is used in practically all institutions as a text-book in poultry science.
